City Recruits Companies At Boston Convention

Quincy On Biotech Biz 'Radar Screen'

By EMILY TAFT

Two weeks ago, the City of Quincy, in partnership with the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, headed to the BIO 2012 International Convention in Boston in hopes to draw Biotech companies all over the world to Quincy.

Some 65 countries and 48 states representing over 3,000 businesses attended the convention held during the week of June 18th.

"It was not only great for the City of Quincy to be able to promote itself to these companies, but it was also great for the city to be a partner with Massachusetts, with the Commonwealth, in promoting this industry, and helping to promote this industry to other countries," said Quincy Chamber of Commerce President Dean Rizzo. "This is new for Quincy, and this is new for many of these companies to even put Quincy on their radar screen."

About 150 residents packed North Quincy High's cafeteria to have their collective voice heard on the future of North Quincy and Wollaston last Tuesday.

The meeting was co-hosted by the city, the Metropolitan Area Planning Council (MAPC), and the Asian Community Development Corporation (ACDC).

The meeting discussed the results of a six-week long online Community PlanIt game, and solicited additional feedback from residents.

Mayor Tom Koch, whose grandfather owned and operated a variety store in the area, opened the meeting. He told those in attendance that their feedback would

Economic Development Planner, agreed with Rizzo saying that in order to get Biotech businesses here in Quincy, they have to go out and find them.

"They might not come here if we don't tell them we are here," said Verenis. "If you want the fish, you have to go fishing. You can't sit in Quincy and think they will all come flocking to you. So that's why we made this thrust to have this presence in there. But it's at least a year maybe two or three out but you have to start building it."

The city and the Quincy Chamber are promoting five different areas that are bio-ready sites in Quincy. Crown Colony Office Park, Fore River Shipyard, State Street Office Park, Boston Scientific Facility, and Downtown Quincy are all areas that are accepting biotech companies. Although there is space available for these companies, Rizzo said that there would have to be certain modifications done if a company chooses to move here. Those modifications include higher ceilings, sanitary rooms, among other things, all of which will have to be done by either the business or the owners of the area they choose to place their business.

Now that the convention is over, the next step is to get those companies that showed interest during the convention here to Quincy, but it will be a long process to do so. According to Rizzo and Verenis, there is a lot of follow up emails, phone calls, and paperwork that has to be done with all of the companies that showed an interest in Quincy.

"It's a growing and solid industry sector, not only in Massachusetts but in the world, and is very stable," said Rizzo. "It will certainly be one way to help stabilize and diversify the economy in the City of Quincy. We already have a strong financial services sector, a strong medical sector. We have a strong small business sector, and this would just be another added industry sector in the community that would bring good jobs, good wages, good companies, that are willing to invest in the long term in the city, and help make a great and better community overall."

Rizzo said they have about four or five businesses that are interested in looking at Quincy to either relocate or add a branch.

"The goal is to bring good companies, with good jobs, and good wages to the city of Quincy, and those can be found in high tech, life tech, financial services, medical, and the gaming industry," said Rizzo. "We've talked to companies that need to find a space within the next 3-6 months. We've talked to companies that are looking two to three years out, so it runs the gamut depending on what their needs are. It's not a quick decision for some of these companies."

Verenis said that the 2013 Biotech convention will be held next year in Chicago and he said they plan to attend to recruit even more businesses. Rizzo and Verenis said they also hope to start looking at other industries such as financial services, high-tech services and the gaming industry.

"We were successful with this thing, and it was huge, the event was huge," said Verenis. "It's very exciting, and it has worked so well."

According to Chris Walker, director of Policy and Information for Mayor Tom Koch, the mayor was very pleased with the conference and the results the city achieved from it.

"The Mayor was very pleased with the time he spent in town talking to some of the businesses and he came back to Quincy feeling the city was on the map," said Walker. "We are now in the same game as Cambridge and Boston and that's really where we want to be."

THE BRILLIANT TRILLIANT

In the world of high-end fancy-cut diamonds, trilliant-cut diamonds hold a special place. These unique triangular diamonds feature three equal sides and usually contain fifty facets. While round and oval cuts are often chosen for engagement rings and other mostly conservative pieces of diamond jewelry, trilliant-cut diamonds are most often reserved for upscale earrings, bracelets, and rings. Trilliant-cut diamonds can also be used as focal stones. While the actual shape and dimension of trilliant-cut diamonds is largely a matter of personal preference, it is recommended that their depth be in the 32-44 percent range. This is an important consideration since the depth of a trilliant diamond largely dictates the brilliance of the gemstone. These diamonds turn heads!

The trillion cut is not for the person looking for that traditional ring, but for that person that likes to take chances and go on adventures. The trillion shape is a dazzling cut, catching the light and giving off a sparkle and fire. We are here to assist you. Our store is located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center where we are anxious to share with you our trillion cut diamonds. Contact our store at 617-773-3636. $10M Town Brook Relocation Project Breaks Ground

By SCOTT JACKSON

At a ceremonial ground-breaking for Town Brook's new culvert on Monday, state Secretary of Administration and Finance Jay Gonzalez told Quincy residents and officials they should be proud of redevelopment taking place downtown.

"It is all extremely exciting," Gonzalez said. "This is one of the biggest, most transformative economic developments going on in the Commonwealth right now and I think all of you should take a lot of pride in that happening. I'm just happy to be here."

The $10 million project will re-route the brook through a new culvert that roughly parallels Hannon Parkway — right now the brook snakes its way underground through Quincy Center. The relocation of Town Brook is one of three core public improvements, along with the building of a the Cliveden Street Bridge and Adams Green, needed as part of the $1.6 billion redevelopment of Quincy Center.

The project is being funded with a MassWorks grant. But Gonzalez, an attorney who worked with Quincy on its agreement with Street-Works prior to taking his current position, said the development wouldn't have been possible without the city's efforts.

"It's amazing now, five to six years later, here we are and it's actually happening," Gonzalez said. "That wouldn't be the case if the city hadn't been able to pull all the different stakeholders, all the different parties who are absolutely critical to making something like this happen, together."

While Gonzalez praised the city for its work, state Sen. John Keenan praised Gonzalez for helping fund infrastructure investments throughout the state that will lead to private development.

"He has taken a very creative, and yet conservative approach to infrastructure investment that will promote that type of development," Keenan said.

City Council President Mike McFarland said the Town Brook shows residents who expressed concerns over the downtown that the project is coming to fruition.

"The project's coming together," McFarland said. "Downtown is being developed. Economic development is just off the charts around here and it's going to provide employment, and jobs, and new places to live for years to come."

Officials at the ceremony also paid their respects to the new brook's designer, engineer Jon Stephenson. Stephenson, 40, passed away two weeks ago after losing his battle with colon cancer. Mayor Tom Koch presented Stephenson's wife Kendra with a shovel memorializing her late husband and said the Town Brook enhancement project wouldn't have happened without him.

Lighthouses Of New England Topic At Library Monday

The Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy, announces a new summer series entitled "Your Big Backyard" exploring places, people and history in New England.

On Monday, July 9, the topic is Lighthouses of New England. Traditional lighthouse keeping is a way of life that is fading into the past with automation.

Jeremy D'Entremont, author and lighthouse historian, will present an overview of the history of New England's historic and picturesque lighthouses with the primary focus on the colorful and dramatic stories of lighthouse keepers and their families.

D'Entremont's presentation will feature past and present images of the lighthouses, as well as video clips. There will also be discussion of the present-day lighthouse preservation efforts of the American Lighthouse Foundation and other organizations.

D'Entremont has been called the leading expert on New England's historic lighthouses. He is the author of nine books, including

The Lighthouses of Massachusetts and The Lighthouse Handbook: New England. His website, New England Lighthouses: A Virtual Guide, was launched in 1997.

He is the historian and past president of the American Lighthouse Foundation, and founder of Friends of Portsmouth Harbor Lighthouses. He has appeared on the History Channel, the Travel Channel, Public Television, and National Public Radio speaking about his favorite subject.

The program is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

'The Great Anniversary Festival'

This week our nation celebrates its 236th birthday. On the calendar, the date is July 4. But the holiday is officially known as Independence Day. This marks the signing of the Declaration of Independence at the Second Continental Congress in Philadelphia on July 4, 1776.

Many of you probably know that our own John Adams had predicted that July 2nd – and not July 4th – would be the day that our nation celebrates our independence. That's because the Declaration of Independence was adopted by 12 states on July 2. Some would say signing the precious document – that began two days later – was merely a formality.

Adams wrote two letters to his wife Abigail dated July 3. The first declared the Colonies had supported the formation of a new country called the United States of America. The second letter predicted the July 2nd anniversary date while suggesting the holiday could be called the great anniversary festival.

Here are some excerpts from those letters to Abigail:

In this first letter, the future Second President of the United States wrote:

"Yesterday, the greatest question was decided, which ever was debated in America, and a greater perhaps, never was or will be decided among Men. A resolution was passed without one dissenting Colony that these united Colonies, are, and of right ought to be free and independent States, and as such, they have, and of right ought to have full Power to make War, conclude Peace, establish Commerce, and to do all the other Acts and Things, which other States may rightfully do.

"You will see in a few days a Declaration setting forth the Causes, which have impelled us to this mighty Revolution, and the Reasons will justify it, in the Sight of God and Man. A Plan of Confederation will be taken up in a few days. On July 2nd, 1776 the Association known as United Colonies of America officially became the United States of America."

The ink was probably barely dry on that letter before Adams sat down to correspond again with his wife.

An excerpt from his second letter:

"But the Day is past. The Second Day of July 1776, will be the most memorable Epocha, in the History of America.

"I am apt to believe that will be celebrated, by succeeding Generations, as the great anniversary Festival. It ought to be commemorated, as the Day of Deliverance by solemn Acts of Devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with Pomp and Parade, with Shows, Games, Sports, Guns, Bells, Bonfires and Illuminations from one End of this Continent to the other from this Time forward forever more."

The tone of this second letter then changes from celebratory to cautionary. Adams offers this sobering aside to what true independence will mean for our brand new nation.

"You will think me transported with Enthusiasm but I am not. – I am well aware of the Toil and Blood and Treasure, that it will cost Us to maintain this Declaration, and support and defend these states. – Yet through all the Gloom I can see the Rays of ravishing Light and Glory. I can see that the End is more than worth all the Means. And that Posterity will triumph in that Days Transaction, even although We should rue it, which I trust in God shall not."

Adams's prediction about July 2 was off but his words about independence and liberty still ring loud and true today.

ANOTHER KEY QUINCY figure in the founding of our country was of course John Hancock. Hancock, as the president of the Second Continental Congress, was the first signer of the Declaration of Independence.

HANCOCK

Hancock signed the document with a bold, fancy flourish "so King George III can see it without his spectacles." But in actuality, the king never received a signed copy with Hancock's signature.

THIS WEEK also marks an important anniversary in local history.

Monday – July 2 – was the 75th anniversary of the disappearance of Quincy's and America's most famous female flyer Amelia Earhart. The famed aviation pioneer was lost near Howland Island in the Pacific Ocean July 2, 1937 on an attempted around-the-world flight.

Earhart was the first woman to fly solo across the Atlantic Ocean in 1932. She used North Quincy's Dennison Airport as her home base for many of her flights during the 1920s and 1930s.

She and co-pilot Fred Noonan were flying in a twin-engine Lockheed and had reached the two-thirds mark of the around-the-world goal when the plane mysteriously vanished. The mystery sparked speculation as to the circumstances surrounding the disappearance. Seventy-five years later, that mystery remains today.

Some claimed she and Noonan were on a spy mission for the U.S. checking out Japanese bases in the Pacific. These theorists noted the flight originated just four years before the Japanese sneaked attacked Pearl Harbor. They also maintained the plane ran out of fuel and crashed into the ocean. The plane's occupants were then picked up by the Japanese and executed.

Over the years, other theories surfaced. One claimed she was actually alive and had been seen in Chicago more than 25 years ago.

But in 1981, Earhart's sister – Mrs. Muriel Morrissey – spiked the speculation and rumors which she called nonsense. At a standing-room-only audience at the Quincy Historical Society, Mrs. Morrissey said fatigue and bad weather probably teamed to bring the plane down and there was no spy mission involved.

Mrs. Morrissey authored a book about her sister entitled "Courage is the Price." She said Amelia became interested in flying during World War I when she entered the "voluntary aid detachment" in one of the largest military hospitals in Toronto, Canada.

Morrissey said the military had just started to use planes for reconnaissance missions and Amelia's interest in flying was sparked by her contact with injured pilots, who despite their injuries were eager to fly again.

She also said her sister was a pioneer in the truest sense of the word.

"Amelia's flights were not made as stunts. She wanted to show that women could do it."

Mrs. Morrissey was a flying enthusiast herself. She died in her sleep March 2, 1998 at the age of 98.

PATRIOTISM AND PERSONALITY – Uncle Sam Rounseville – a frequent marcher in the city's Flag Day Parade – shared the patriotic spotlight with his wife and two grandchildren this year.

Dressed in red, white and blue regalia, Sam, his wife Jean Kenney Rounseville and their two grandchildren Harry Ryan (age 9) and Tricia Ryan (age 5) made a pretty patriotic picture marching together along the parade route to the delight of onlookers.

Harry started marching with Uncle Sam when he was five dressed as a miniature Uncle Sam.

Parade newcomer Tricia appeared dressed as a pretty and petite Betsy Ross.

Only Tricia didn't see it that way.

When Mayor Tom Koch learned over and asked, "And who do we have here?" Tricia answered proudly: "I'm Princess America."

The mayor was a little taken back but loved it.

Tricia continued to answer this way for anyone who inquired including Sen. Scott Brown's wife, Gail Huff.

"Good for you," Gail told Tricia.

Princess America. Has a nice sound to it.

Record Number Of Elementary School Students

Dr. Paul Gossard, superintendent of schools, announced that Quincy's 21 elementary schools would have an all-time record number of students in elementary schools next September - 8,221.

This increase of 744 from last year was the result of the rapid birth rate following the war. The increase was expected to continue for the next five years.

Atherton Hough School in Houghs Neck had top enrollment - 711, with the Washington School in Quincy Point with the lowest - 178.

Student-to-teacher ratio would be 1-to-29 in the Quincy schools next fall.

KENNEDY TO ORGANIZE WOMEN'S COMMITTEE

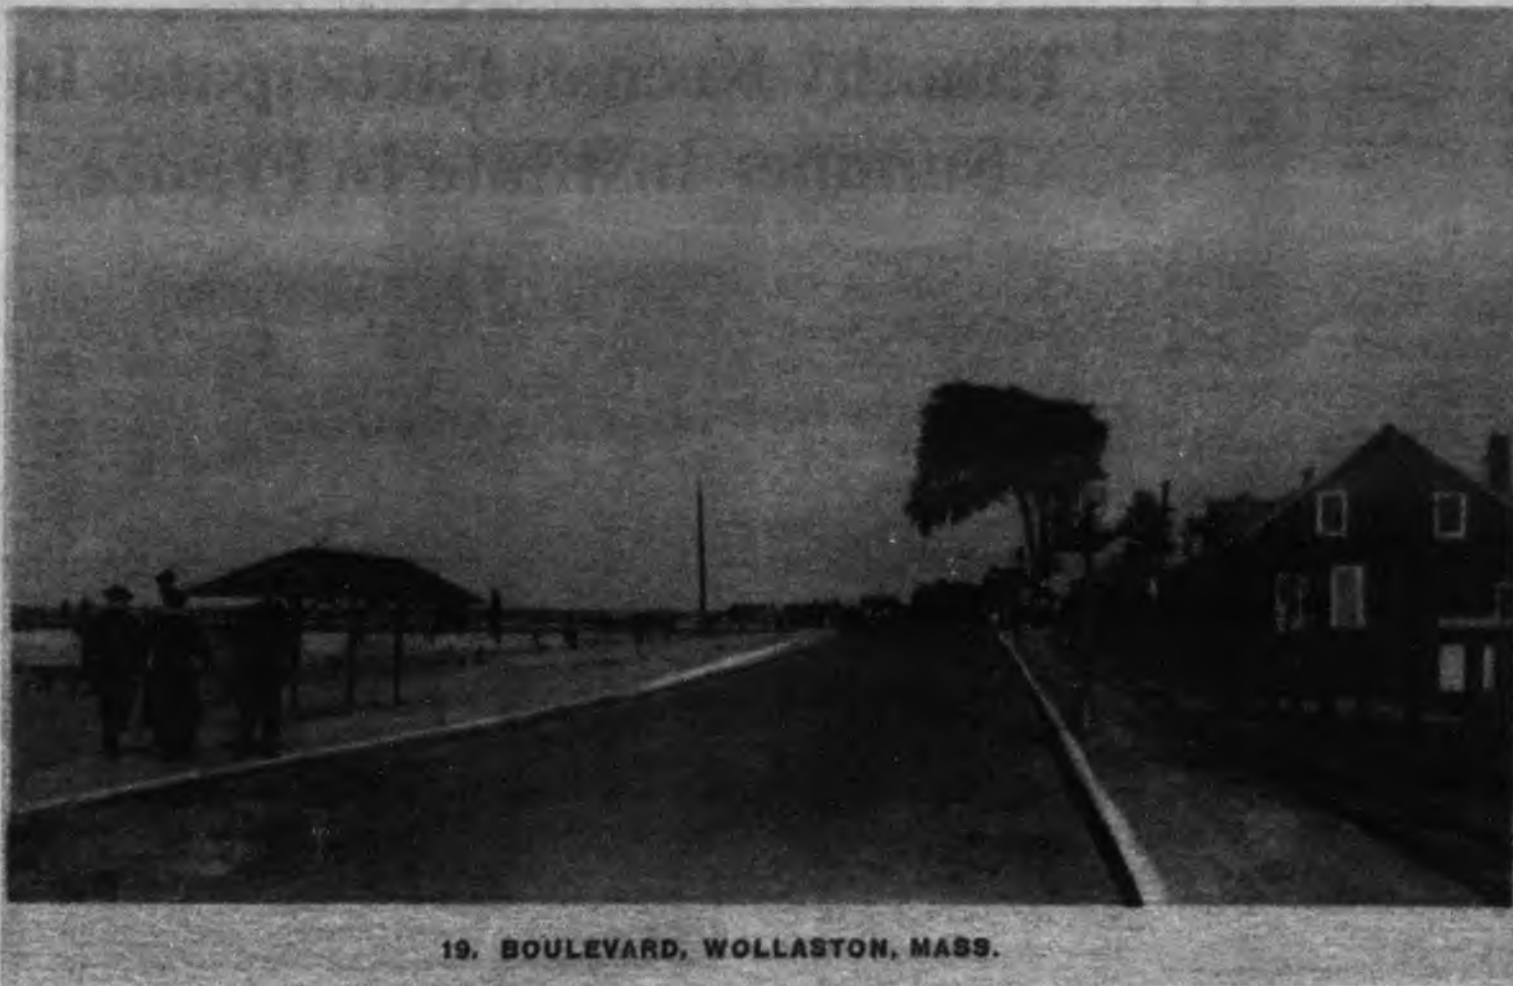

Mrs. Rose Fiske of Granite Street received a letter this week from Congressman John F. Kennedy candidate for the U.S. Senate.

In the letter, Kennedy announced plans to set up a women's committee in Quincy to assist him in his campaign. The committee would be in charge of voter registration.

Coordinating the women's committees in the state was the Congressmen's sister, Pat Kennedy.

19. BOULEVARD, WOLLASTON, MASS.

THIS IS A 1912 postcard view of Wollaston Boulevard looking south from near the end of Carle Road. Before this road was opened in 1980, the coast along here was salt marsh and eel grass. The narrow unmarked and unpaved roadway was more than adequate at the time since there were few automobiles to use it. Now, 100 years later, this road has been rebuilt a number of times and today serves as a commuter road from the South Shore to Boston. The large Elm tree in the distance was near the corner of Beach Street and was a landmark from the 19th century when there was a popular small shaded beach located there. The fence on the right extended along much of the Boulevard to keep people from the marshes which today are all filled in. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Sheriff Urges Sign-Up For Emergency Notification System

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti encourages area residents to make sure they are included in the database for his Code Red Rapid Alert Notification System, which directly notifies them about public safety emergencies via telephone voicemail, email, text message, Twitter, Facebook or iPhone app.

"If you have a published home phone number, you're already in the database, but if you prefer to receive notifications in some other way, such as cell voice voicemail or text message, you need to sign up with us," Bellotti said.

The free-of-charge system transmits alerts about flood warnings, missing persons, hazardous material dangers and any other situations that local officials deem to be public safety emergencies.

The notification system calls residents' home phones via databases available from the phone company. People who wish to add their cell phone numbers or email addresses must voluntarily register their information with the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office by visiting the NCSO website at www.norfolksheriff.com and clicking on "Rapid Alert Notification System." The NCSO keeps all such information confidential and does not share it with anyone.

To receive alerts through Facebook, search for the "NCSO RANS" page on Facebook and click on the icon to become a friend. People on the Twitter network can search for "norfolkcorans" and then click to follow.

The iPhone app allows you to receive alerts issued in other areas of the United States while you are traveling in those areas.

More than 8,000 people already have signed up to receive the alerts via their phone, computer or handheld device.

"The system's versatility allows us to keep pace with current communication technology," Bellotti said. "I hope everyone will take advantage of this important notification service."

Appreciation For City's Police, Firefighters, Workers

On Friday, June 22, members Local 792 of Quincy Fire Department and their families spent their personal time providing a cookout at the Kennedy Council on Aging to the senior citizens.

The temperature that day was 96 degrees, and this wonderful group of people worked non-stop for several hours, preparing the grille, arranging tables and chairs, collecting and disposing of rubbish, sweeping the gymnasium and leaving it spotless after 151 people had eaten.

The City of Quincy is indeed in great hands with people such as the following:

In addition, we have to thank Mayor Koch for providing this wonderful facility to the seniors, the Director Tom Clasby, his assistant, Linda Bowes and all of the employees and volunteers for their efforts leading up to and planning this wonderful event.

We tend to take the firemen, policemen, and all public workers for granted, but we here at the Kennedy Council on Aging want them all to know that they are deeply appreciated.

Spring Gala Raises $142,000 For BID-Milton

Beth Israel Deaconess Hospital-Milton raised more than $142,000 at its recent Fundraising Gala held at Lombardo's in Randolph.

All proceeds from the event support the recent implementation of new digital mammography services.

More than 350 guests enjoyed an evening of music, dinner, and silent and live auctions. Top selling items included seven night accommodations in a luxury penthouse in Kinsale, Ireland and a round of golf for four at the historic Newport Country Club. Attendees also participated in a 50/50 cash prize raffle. The cash prize winner was awarded $1,000, which was graciously donated back to the hospital.

"We are very pleased with the tremendous turnout," said Joseph Morrissey, president of BID-Milton. "We are proud of the important advancements now available at the hospital's diagnostic imaging department with the implementation of digital mammography, and are always so appreciative and humbled by the support we receive from the community."

The Spring Gala, which was co-chaired by Dr. Mary Louise Ashur and Dr. George Ashur, along with Special Events Committee Chair, Carol Fallon, sought to raise specific funds for the recently implemented, state-of-the-art, digital Selenia™ digital mammography system. The new system provides enhanced image quality, increased patient safety, and a number of unique features, such as softer, heated pads, and faster examination times.

Timothy Keenan Participates In Summer Institute In France

Timothy Keenan of Quincy, a junior at Boston College High School, recently participated in Boston College High School's Summer Immersion Program in Lyon, France.

Timothy spent three weeks living with a French family, taking classes at Centre Saint Marc, the Jesuit High School of Lyon, and learning of the city's rich history which dates back to antiquity.

Among the sites visited were the Roman Amphitheatre, the Gallo Roman and Fine Arts Museums and the Center of French Resistance and Deportation.

The trip culminated with a three-day excursion to Paris where Timothy toured such historical monuments as the Eiffel Tower, the Louvre, Notre Dame and the Chateau of Versailles.

The French Summer Institute is part of Boston College High School's Global Education Program, which also includes programs in Argentina, China and Ireland.

Quincy's Julia Himmel Honored At NYC's Carnegie Hall

The 89th Annual Scholastic Art & Writing Awards drew 800 students from around the country to the celebration May 31- June 2. Students were congratulated by Scholastic's Chairman, President, and CEO, Dick Robinson, and the Executive Director of the Alliance for Young Artists & Writers, Virginia McEnerney.

Three-time Academy

JULIA HIMMEL

Award-winning actress Meryl Streep, the keynote speaker, congratulated the students on their accomplishments.

"We are counting on you to explain this very complicated world and our future," Ms. Streep said in her address. "You're not only expressing yourselves, what you think and feel. In time you'll understand this: you speak for all of us," she said.

Himmel was supported and guided by her Art Teacher at Fontbonne Academy, Nicole Robertson, who was also sent a certificate and medal honoring the role she played in Julia's success. In a letter from Scholastic, she was thanked for her commitment and dedication to the arts, and for her outstanding efforts in supporting Julia.

Hancock Park Rehab, Nursing Center Scores Another Deficiency-Free Survey

For the third year in a row, Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group's Hancock Park Rehabilitation & Nursing Center in Quincy has received a 2012 deficiency-free survey from the Massachusetts Department of Public Health.

"This is a wonderful accomplishment," said Richard Coughlin, administrator of Hancock Park Rehabilitation & Nursing Center. "For the third year in a row our successful survey highlights the continued commitment and dedication of our staff toward providing the highest level of quality care to our residents."

In Massachusetts, a deficiency-free survey from the state Department of Public Health is considered one of the foremost confirmations of quality care and service a skilled nursing center can receive. The state regulations require each skilled nursing facility to undergo a rigorous survey in which the centers are evaluated on quality of nursing care, patient rights, therapeutic

Natalie's Cauliflower Soup, Chicken Salad Supreme

It was SOME luncheon that my nieces and I had recently at my niece Natalie and Bill's lovely home in Marshfield. All of us were raving over the cauliflower soup and the unique way she served her delicious chicken salad.

So naturally I got the recipe for both. I hope you will like them as much as we did.

CREAM OF CAULIFLOWER SOUP

1 potato (diced)
1 tablespoon chopped garlic
1 small onion (chopped fine)
1 cauliflower
32 ounces chicken or vegetable stock
½ stick butter for sautéing
Salt and pepper to taste

In the butter, sauté the garlic, onion, and potatoes until all have a golden brown hue.

Cut up the cauliflower in small pieces and without the stems, add to the pan. Also add 32 ounces of the stock and cook covered for 15-20 minutes.

Then when slightly cooled, and with a potato masher, work the mixture until smooth. Natalie's said after that she also used an emerging blender, it all depends on how smooth you want the soup. Their daughter Libby poured the water laden with fresh slices of cucumber.

Enjoy!

CHICKEN SALAD AND AVOCADO

1 whole chicken (cooked the way you want) (diced)
4 ounces chopped walnuts
1 green apple (diced)
½ cup Miracle Whip
½ cup mayonnaise
Avocado
Mixed greens

In a bowl, place the chicken and the apple. Add the miracle whip and the mayonnaise, then the walnuts. Stir gently until done.

Slice the avocado and cut inside so that you could easily have it with the chicken salad. Serve with the chicken salad over the avocado with mixed greens on the side of the plate seasoned with olive oil and Balsamic vinegar.

Maureen's French Soufflé

While visiting my cousin Gen, her friend Maureen was describing what she had made recently. It is called Clafoutis, a French version of a soufflé, but what a difference from anything I've ever had.

CLAFOUTIS

6 eggs
6 tablespoons sugar
1 ¼ cups whole milk
2 tablespoons of a liqueur (she used bourbon)
1 tablespoon vanilla
Pinch of salt
¾ cup flour
3 cups fresh cherries, pitted (and coated with confectioner's sugar)

Confectionery sugar

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Butter a 9-inch pie plate or cast-iron skillet.

In a blender, combine the eggs, sugar, milk, liqueur, vanilla and salt. Blend for a few seconds to mix the ingredients.

Add the flour and blend for one minute or until smooth. Pour the batter into the prepared pan, then spread the cherries evenly on top.

Bake for 30 minutes until it is puffed and golden and set in the center.

Sprinkle with confectionary sugar and serve warm.

factor in to the city's rezoning of Norfolk Downs — the business district in North Quincy and Wollaston.

"Going through this process they'll be some ideas, thoughts, and data collected from this process that we've been in," Koch said. "Going forward and moving our city forward, some of that will be taken into account as we begin to plan the rezoning and the development, if you will, of Norfolk Downs."

Ward 5 City Councillor Kirsten Hughes attended the meeting and said she was thrilled to see so many people, especially younger people, in the crowd. Hughes, the councillor who represents Wollaston, then explained that the city as a whole would reap the rewards of an improved North Quincy and Wollaston.

"Anything that really benefits those areas, really benefits our city," Hughes said. "I feel as though it's sort of the heart of our city and with all the downtown development going on we want to take care of these great neighborhoods."

The first part of the meeting discussed the results of the Community PlanIt game, which was run by Emerson College's Engagement Game Lab. The North Quincy/Wollaston game was one of the first times the Community PlanIt game has been used. Besides Quincy, only Boston Public Schools and Detroit have had a PlanIt game run.

Eric Gordon, the lab's director, explained that during the game players undertook five separate missions involving what Gordon said were important elements of life in the area, including transportation, housing, and recreation. Over 200 players participated, leaving more than 1,000 comments.

Gordon said he was able to educate himself about the neighborhoods by reading through comments and conversations on the site.

"The kinds of dialogue and the conversations that took place on Community PlanIt were really great," Gordon said. "I learned a lot about North Quincy and Wollaston and I feel good about the kind of engagement that we had here."

Holly St. Clair, the MAPC's director of data services, then went over with some results of the PlanIt game and other previous outreach work while polling those in attendance on the same questions. Both groups identified transportation as North Quincy/Wollaston's biggest strength, ahead of locally owned businesses.

Similar polling was done to determine the biggest weakness of the area. The polling last week showed a lack of culture and entertainment to be the biggest problem, whereas the game indicated that a lack of tradition and history was the number one weakness.

The next questions focused on possible future changes to the area. Respondents were asked what they wanted prioritized in terms of economic development. During the game, commercial rehabilitation and job creation were tied as the top priority, and job creation took the top spot at last week's meeting. In terms of housing development, affordable rentals and affordable homes were identified as the biggest issues in the game and meeting, respectively.

Celebrate The 4th At Adams Park

Independence Forever: The Continental Congress: Wednesday, July 4, 2 p.m., Adams Carriage House, 135 Adams St.

Became a delegate to the Second Continental Congress and reenact the passage of the Declaration of Independence on July 4th in the Adams Carriage House. Join the "band of brothers" who changed the course of history in 1776 and sign the historic document.

This interactive and engaging event is an invitation to adults and children to take part in the momentous occasion that John Adams recalled as the "great anniversary festival" that will be celebrated by "bonfires and illuminations from one end of this continent to the other from this time forward forever more."

Light refreshments to follow. The program is free.

A Walk in the Park on the 4th of July: Wednesday, July 4, 6:30 p.m., in the Formal Garden, 135 Adams St., Quincy.

Join Park staff in the formal garden at Peace field for a "walk in the park" and discover how four generations of Adams family members cultivated, sustained, and enjoyed the historic landscape that surrounds the old House. The program is free.

Jefferson and Adams: A Revolutionary Dialogue:

Wednesday, July 4, 7 p.m., on the Beale House Lawn, 181 Adams St., Quincy.

Witness a moving and powerful dramatization of the extraordinary friendship between Presidents Thomas Jefferson and John Adams and the remarkable Mrs. Adams. Bill Barker and Abigail Schumann (Colonial Williamsburg) and veteran actor Sam Goodyear bring to life 50 years of this often contentious, sometimes turbulent, and ultimately enduring friendship.

Light refreshments to follow. The program is free.

$5 Admission For Up To 3 Different Itineraries Second Discover Quincy Day Set For Saturday

The second "Discover Quincy Day" will take place on Saturday, July 7th.

For only $5, attendees can purchase a special Discover Quincy wristband that will gain them admittance for the day for up to three different planned itineraries.

Participants can embark on the "Adams Experience," which originates from the National Park Service Visitors Center at 1250 Hancock St. and includes a guided tour of the Adams birthplaces as well as the Old House at Peace field.

Tours are from 9:15 a.m. - 3:15 p.m., leaving every quarter past and quarter of the hour.

From there, a short stroll will take participants to the United First Parish Church for a guided tour of the church and crypts where Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams are entombed.

From 1 to 3:45 p.m., the "Quincy Experience" embarks from the Quincy Historical Society at 8 Adams St. and includes a guided tour of the museum, with provided transportation that takes participants to guided tours of the Dorothy Quincy Homestead and Josiah Quincy House.

From 11 a.m. - 4 p.m., the "Walking Experience" originates at the Quincy Historical Society at 8 Adams St. where participants will pick up a walking tour map that brings them on a self-guided walking tour down Hancock Street to the Hancock Cemetery. An historical interpreter will be on hand at the cemetery to help guide visitors.

Wristbands may be purchased in advance at the Best Western Adams Inn, Coffee Break Café, the Quincy Historical Society and the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

They may also be purchased Saturday, July 7th at the Quincy Historical Society.

For more information, www.thequincy-chamber.com or call (617) 471-1700.

John Quincy Adams Birthday Ceremony July 11

A presidential wreath from the White House will be placed on the tomb of President John Quincy Adams in a ceremony at the United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center Wednesday, July 11 at noon.

The wreath-laying ceremony will commemorate the 245th birthday anniversary of the sixth President of the United States of America.

The public is invited to attend and admission is free.

Captain (Select) Helen Furbush, Commanding Officer, Ft. Devens, will present the wreath on behalf of President Barack Obama.

A tour of the church and crypt where President John Adams and his wife Abigail Adams and their son President John Quincy Adams and his wife Louisa Catherine Adams are entombed will be offered after the ceremony.

In the 1960's, President Lyndon Johnson began the tradition of the White House arranging for a large laurel wreath to be placed with due ceremony on the graves of deceased U.S. Presidents.

President John Quincy Adams was born in Quincy (at that time the North Precinct of old Braintree) on July 11, 1767.

Dorothy Quincy Homestead Open Saturday

In celebration of Discover Quincy Days, the Dorothy Quincy Homestead, a National Historic Landmark, will be open for public tours Saturday, July 7, between 1 and 5 p.m.

Visitors are welcome to walk in on their own or take advantage of the Discover Quincy Days' van transportation running from the Adams Academy (Quincy Historical Society).

Tours will start on the hour and half hour beginning at 1 p.m. The last tour begins at 4:30 p.m.

All tours are free of charge, but a voluntary contribution is suggested.

Dating from 1686, the house is 326 years old. During the 17th and 18th centuries, this mansion was considered the grandest estate in Quincy.

During the pre-Revolutionary War era, it was a meeting place for such patriots as Josiah Quincy, John Hancock and John Adams. It was the childhood home of Dorothy Quincy Hancock, the wife of John Hancock.

The Homestead is operated by the Colonial Dames of Massachusetts in conjunction with the Massachusetts Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR).

Groups may request a private tour on a date of their choice by phoning 617-742-3190 or emailing nsda-ma@verizon.net.

For more information, visit the Homestead's website: www.nsda.org/ma/quincy_homestead.htm

Lamar Thompson: Fine Young Man Will Be Sorely Missed

saddened by the loss of such a fine young man," said School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro. "We want to make sure that anyone who is in need of support has it with the student support staff at Quincy High School, and Quincy Public Schools will do all it can in order to make sure everyone is able to communicate and get the support they need."

Quincy police responded to a call on Sunday, July 1, at around 1 p.m. after Thompson, a Hooper Street resident of Houghs Neck, jumped into the water from a pier near the Quincy Yacht Club. Thompson had been at the pier with a few friends when he decided to jump in from a high part of the pier and tried to swim to the boat docks. Thompson made it half way when he went under due to some type of distress, according to Quincy Police Capt. John Dougan.

About 10 members of the Quincy Yacht Club jumped in the water searching for the Quincy High School senior for 15 minutes but were unable to locate Thompson because of poor visibility underwater.

When divers arrived at the scene, they were able to retrieve Thompson's body within a minute of searching. Dougan said divers found him eight feet under the surface. Dougan said they tried to resuscitate at the scene but were unable to, and Thompson was transported to Quincy Medical Center where he was pronounced dead at around 2:30 p.m.

sense of humor and maturity.

"Lamar was a very mature, laid back, great kid with a great sense of humor. He was very popular with the kids and the first one to stand up and shake your hand," said Spendlove. "He was going to be a great help this year. This is tragic, and awful. It brings to light just how fragile life really is."

According to Quincy High School Principal Frank Santoro, in the short time Thompson lived in Quincy he made many friends while attending Quincy High. Santoro said that Thompson played a big part in the Jamaican display during the Multicultural Fair this past year.

"Obviously when we lose a student it's not an easy thing to go through," said Santoro. "He made many friendships in the short time he was here and he will be missed sorely."

Celebrate Life Of John Quincy Adams July 11

The Adams National Historical Park, 135 Adams St., Quincy, announces two programs celebrating the life and times of John Quincy Adams on his 245th birthday Wednesday, July 11 at the Adams Carriage House from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m.

At 1:30 p.m., acclaimed character actress Judy Bernstein will portray Louise Catherine Adams, wife of the Sixth President. Bernstein performance will focus on the life and times of the nation's only foreign-born First Lady.

At 4 p.m., the Rosewood Chamber Ensemble featuring Barbara Hopkins and Judy Handler will perform "The Musical World of John Quincy Adams," a musical journey through the life and times of John Quincy Adams. Besides being the Sixth President, Adams was also a noted diplomat, theatergoer, operatic devotee and flute player.

Following the program, guests are invited to join in a rousing salute to Adams and enjoy a slice of birthday cake as the Adams National Historical Park honors JQA on the anniversary of his 245th birthday.

Report Name Change To Social Security

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

This time of year, we see a lot of weddings, and in many cases that means name changes. If you need to change your name due to marriage, divorce, or any other reason, you will want to report the change to Social Security.

There are several reasons to report the change. First, IRS and Social Security match computer records. If the name and Social Security number you report on your tax return do not match the name and Social Security number in our records, it could delay the processing of your return as well as any tax refund you might be due.

The second reason it is important to make sure your Social Security records are up-to-date is because your potential Social Security benefits are based almost entirely on the earnings record we maintain for you. If your employer reports earnings to the government under your new name, and your Social Security record still shows your old name, those earnings may not get credited to your Social Security earnings record. Missing earnings can lead to lower future Social Security benefits.

To change your name in Social Security's records, you must apply for a new Social Security card. To make the application process faster and easier, just go to www.socialsecurity.gov/ssnumber/ and print out the form for a Social Security card, "Application Form SS-5." That's also the form you need if you simply want to apply for a replacement card. The application form also tells you what evidence you will need to submit.

Complete the one-page form and bring or mail it to your local Social Security office with proper documentation. All documents must be originals or certified copies and must have information that clearly identifies you, like your date and place of birth. The application includes information on what types of identity and documentation are needed for specific cases, and what sorts of documents we can accept.

The application process is easy, and described well (along with other things you may want to know about your Social Security card and number) at www.socialsecurity.gov/ssnumber.

Children's Programs At Crane Library

By JULIE RINES
Thomas Crane
Public Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library announces the following programs for children.

Mother Goose and Little Bo Peep: a Nursery Rhyme and Song Extravaganza

On Friday, July 6th at 10 a.m. on the Main Library Lawn, children's librarians Jane Miller and Gail Columbare will present Mother Goose and Little Bo-Peep: a Nursery Rhyme and Song Extravaganza. The fun-filled program of stories and songs is geared for very young children, ages 4 months to 3 years old accompanied by an adult.

No registration is required.

The show will be held rain or shine; in case of inclement weather the program will move to the large meeting room. Meeting room space is limited to the first 125 people; when we reach capacity, the doors will be closed.

The program is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library.

Art-to-go is an eight-week series of drop-in art activities that travel throughout Quincy. Supplies for the week's project will be available on Mondays at the Main Library; Tuesdays at Adams Shore; Wednesdays at North Quincy and on Thursdays at Wollaston. Stop by between 2 and 4 p.m. and make a craft. Projects are open ended to accommodate a wide age range. They are easy enough for toddlers and preschoolers to do with an adult's help and free form enough for school age children to add their own personal touch.

Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library.

The art project for the week of July 9 is paper quilt designs.

Summer Storyteller's Series

On Tuesday, July 10th at 7 p.m., Magician Greg McAdams presents Dream Big - Read through stories, magic, comedy and audience participation, and some extremely funny puppetry. Children will see the dream worlds they can visit when they open a book. Every child dreams of being a princess or a wizard and of course superheroes. For the big ending we will magically turn an audience member into a superhero (all audience members will get a chance to be a superhero after the show.)

This program is the first in a series of six Tuesday evening storytelling programs for children ages 5 and older. Check our website for details on the upcoming programs. Sponsored by the Quincy Arts Council.

Children's Movie: Coraline

On Wednesday, July 11th at 2 p.m. at the Wollaston Branch Library.

Coraline is a curious young girl who unlocks a mysterious door in her family's new home and enters into an adventure in a parallel reality. On the surface, this "Other World" eerily mimics her own life - though it is much more fantastical.

While encountering different versions of her own life, Coraline must rely on her resourcefulness, determination and bravery to get back home.

Rated PG, the run-time is 100 minutes. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library.

"Let's Play Together" Pajama Storytime

On Wednesday, July 11th at 6:30 p.m. Storyteller Diana Kane of Creative Connection presents "Let's Play Together," pajama storytimes designed especially for children ages 2-5 and their parents.

Every Wednesday evening will be filled with activities for children and adults to do together. Come see Ms. Diana for an hour of interactive stories, partner dances, playing in a band and singing together.

Ms. Diana is a music specialist and storyteller who has prepared a six-week program that is designed for adults and children to enjoy stories and songs as a family. This is a great time for you and your children to sing, dance, listen and talk with each other.

First in a six week series, the program is sponsored by the Quincy Arts Council.

Craft: Design a Quilt Block

On Thursday, July 12th at 2 p.m. at the North Quincy Branch Library unleash your inner artist and design a quilt square for a handmade "blankie" to be given to a child this summer. Materials, pre-cut fabric pieces and sewing volunteers will be available to help you create your one of a kind square. Squares will be sewn into "album" quilts, which will be given to the Boston Chapter of "Project Linus," a national organization that provides quilts and blankets for security and comfort to children who are ill, traumatized, or otherwise in need.

This program is suitable for children of all ages with adult assistance. Interested adults are encouraged to stop by and create a square of their own.

Materials will be available at the North Quincy Library all summer to design a 9-inch (finished) quilt square. Donations of finished squares will be accepted as well, see the National website for guidelines regarding the materials accepted: www.boston-projectlinus.com

Children's Book Discussion- A Cool Moonlight

On Thursday, July 12th at 7 p.m. in the Main Library Children's Room children entering grades 5 -8 are invited to discuss A Cool Moonlight by Angela Johnson.

If you had never seen the sun, if you couldn't see it because its light would hurt you, would you dream about it? Allergic to the sun, Lila lives her whole life at night. Her family goes shopping, she plays outdoors, all by moonlight. She dreams of the daytime and the sun but doesn't know if it will ever be possible to see anything but the moon. While we talk we'll work on a simple craft. Pick up a copy of the book in the Main Library children's room to read before the group meets.

What If Your Quincy Home Doesn't Sell?

Quincy - If your home has just come off the market and hasn't sold, don't get discouraged. The reason your home did not sell may have nothing to do with your home or the market. In reality, your home may have been one of the more desirable properties for sale.

So Why Didn't Your Home Sell?

Last year almost half of the homes listed for sale never sold at all, and many sellers found that there was a tremendous amount a homeowner needed to be educated on to sell their home for top dollar in the shortest time period.

Don't risk making the wrong choices and losing both time and money on your investment. Before you hire a realtor, know the right questions to ask to save you time and money.

Industry experts have prepared a free special report called "How to Sell a House that Didn't Sell" which educates you on the issues involved.

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your free copy of this report call 800-611-0351 and enter ID#1012. You can call anytime, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Call now to make sure your home sells next time you list it or visit www.QuincyHomeExpired.com

City, Revere Road Abutter Settle

By SCOTT JACKSON

The city has reached an agreement with an abutter allowing the relocation of Town Brook to go forward.

Revere Road resident Arline Goodman had filed an appeal contesting the city's efforts to run the brook along the Hannon Parkway, citing concerns over flooding on her property. But a settlement between Goodman and the city was reached last Monday.

"We reached an accord with Arline Goodman," Assistant City Solicitor Paul Hines told the Sun in a phone interview Friday. "It's a good compromise on both sides - her lawyer was happy, we were happy."

In a statement Friday, Goodman's attorney Stuart Schrier credited Hines for arranging a meeting between his client and Mayor Tom Koch. The meeting was the impetus for the agreement.

"At the meeting Mayor Koch was able to hear Ms. Goodman's concerns about how the project might increase flooding," Schrier said. "The mayor expressed personal interest and demonstrated a commitment to work towards a settlement."

Schrier added that Goodman decided to work on a settlement following a final decision by the state Department of Environmental Protection which allowed the city to use its preferred route, instead of an alternate that would've ran the brook through the heart of the new downtown.

"Once it was clear that brook was to follow the City of Quincy proposed route, it became important to address making the project the best it could be within those limits," Schrier said.

Still, Goodman would have preferred the alternate plan.

"Ms. Goodman believes there may have been better alternatives that would have offered remarkable long-term benefits to the residents of the City of Quincy," Schrier said. "Several of the alternative plans would have offered remarkable opportunities to have the brook become part of everyday life. Imagine a restaurant on the banks of the brook. What a setting for some outdoor tables. How about family dinner while watching and listening to the sounds of the water passing nearby."

Under the agreement, the city will pay $25,000 to Goodman in exchange for an easement to access her property so construction can take place. Hines noted that the city would've needed to compensate Goodman for her land even if a settlement hadn't been reached. Goodman will receive her check when the easement documents are prepared, which will happen within the next 60 days.

Goodman had also expressed concerns about losing a tenant who lives on her property close to where construction will take place. The agreement will pay that tenant's rent for 37 days. Hines couldn't give an exact figure for that amount as the city is still verifying how much needs to be paid, but said the rent was "reasonable for Quincy Center."

The agreement also addresses flooding concerns Goodman had. The city will reimburse Goodman for five years of payments for flood insurance on her property, starting at the completion of construction on the portion of Town Brook along her property. The city will also install a French drain under her basement and will deliver her a letter from an engineer saying the project won't cause increased flooding.

Schrier said his client "still has some concerns about increased flooding, but the efforts of the City of Quincy to address her concerns was appreciated."

Additionally, the city will provide rodent control before, during, and after construction. Goodman and her tenants will each receive parking spaces in the Hancock Municipal Parking Lot during the construction period. The city will also warn them of any interruptions in utility service, and investigate the use of transparent materials so Goodman's view of the brook wouldn't be obstructed despite the walls being 18 inches taller.

The agreement also includes provisions that affect more than just Goodman and her tenants. A sign that says "to Revere Road" will be installed at the intersection of Hancock Street and Hannon Parkway - Hines said Goodman was concerned that drivers couldn't find Revere Road anymore. The city will also improve the crosswalk at the intersection of Revere Road/Hannon Parkway and Mechanic Street, and post speed limit signs on Goodman's street.

One change Goodman also vigorously fought for, according to Hines, was a plaque commemorating the American Legion Post near Goodman's house. Her late husband Carl was a past commander at the Post and the two had stayed active in it.

The project's scope could also be widened. Provisions in the settlement call for the city to widen the brook to improve the transition between the old and new culvert further along Goodman's property. The city would also undertake wall repairs further downstream near Washington Street, if that property owner allows such work. The DEP would need to okay both of those undertakings before they began.

For her part, Goodman agreed to waive her right of appeal. She will also not be allowed to join a potential Quincy Environmental Network (QEN) lawsuit over the brook, though she can continue being a member of the organization.

QEN Challenging Town Brook Relocation

While Arline Goodman agreed not to further appeal the relocation of Town Brook, the Quincy Environmental Network has filed a lawsuit to block the project.

QEN spokesman Steve Perdios said a suit backed by six residents was filed last week in superior court, challenging the state Department of Environmental Protection and city Conservation Commission's approval of the relocation plan.

"The DEP and Conservation Commission process was improper," Perdios told the Sun Monday.

Perdios didn't get into specifics of the case, because the city has yet to receive a summons for the suit. But he said the main concerns involve flooding and loss of habitat for fish in the brook, and that the lawsuit was mainly concerned with the approval process itself.

QEN isn't against relocating Town Brook. Perdios said he'd prefer it take an alternate route through the downtown, which would also daylight more of the brook. He also said that his group is in favor of the larger development taking place in Quincy Center.

"We support the downtown redevelopment," Perdios said. "We're happy to see certain areas moving forward."

Perdios still hopes he can work with the city to avoid a drawn-out legal battle. He said he met with city officials recently, and wishes that that conversation leads to further talks. He also thinks an agreement can be reached making the city's preferred route more palatable to QEN members.

"It's about mitigation," Perdios said. "We believe that if you're going to do it poorly, you have to mitigate its impact."

Town Brook Project Breaks Ground

"Jon just had a complete grasp on the whole issue and just did a phenomenal job," Koch said. "We wouldn't be here today if not for Jon's talents, hard work, and leadership on this project."

Gonzalez joined Koch in paying tribute to Stephenson. He said the brook would serve as the engineer's legacy.

"What a great legacy to him that this project is happening," Gonzalez said. "What a great gift to the people of the City of Quincy and to the people of the Commonwealth."

In addition to creating a culvert for the brook, the city will create so-called pocket parks along the new route. One of those pocket parks will be at the site of the old American Legion Post 95. According to Assistant City Solicitor Paul Hines, Beal/Street-Works recently purchased the building for $600,000 plus $30,000 in realty fees and deeded the property over to the city. Hines said the city will not need to pay back the developer for the purchase.

The Town Brook project hasn't been without its critics. Concerned resident Laura Innis protested at the groundbreaking, holding a double-sided sign. One side read, "build around the brook" and the other had a picture of a fish.

Other concerns have also been raised about flooding, particularly downstream of Mechanic Street where the groundbreaking took place. Admittedly not an engineer, after the ceremony Gonzalez said he didn't think the new culvert would cause flooding.

"I'd have to assume that if anything it gets better,"

Gonzalez said. "But this project is primarily about a major investment being made in Quincy Center. A $1.6 billion private investment that is literally going to transform the downtown and improve the quality of life for citizens here and provide jobs for the Commonwealth."

In all, 42 communities received $63.5 million in MassWorks grants last year. Quincy received the largest grant at $10.1 million. In addition to that state money, the city also approved a final application for up to $40 million in funding through the state's Infrastructure Investment Incentive (I-cubed) program. Though they couldn't attend the ceremony because of a scheduling conflict, Quincy's state representatives praised the state's investment.

Street-Works Managing Partner Ken Narva hailed the state's contribution to the project as an example of how a public-private should operate.

"Downtown Quincy represents the largest historic redevelopment in Massachusetts, and has become a national model for aging cities seeking a brighter future," Narva said. "We are thrilled to have the City of Quincy and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts as partners in this ambitious project. It is truly an example of a public-private partnership that works, and we are excited to see it continue to move forward."

Work on the Town Brook relocation actually began during the spring - Gonzalez joked that would make his boss, Gov. Deval Patrick, happy - and is expected to be finished next year.

Cornerstone Campus Preschool Teams With Keohane Funeral Home To Grow Vegetables For ISS

Each year, the children and staff of the Cornerstone Campus Preschool, a program of the First Baptist Church of Wollaston, plant a vegetable garden as part of the school's life science and nutrition curriculum.

This year, they will help fulfill a need in the community by donating most of their harvest to the Interfaith Social Services (ISS) food pantry.

Michelle Andrews, a teacher at Cornerstone Campus, learned that Keohane Funeral Home provides free plantings to individuals and groups in exchange for donating a share of their harvest to the ISS food pantry.

"I made one phone call to Joe Reardon, at Keohane's, and the vegetables were on their way. That is how easy it is to participate in this program" said Gail Macdonald, director of Cornerstone.

Once the garden was planted, the school invited John Keohane and Rick Doane, Executive Director of ISS, for a visit. Doane spoke to the children about the role of the food pantry and how it helps families in need.

"We are always looking for fresh produce at the pantry," Doane said. "As soon as we get it, it goes right out the door" he added.

"This garden goes a long way to teaching the importance of eating healthy, local food. Now with the additional support of Keohane's we can help children begin to understand the needs of their community.

The parents are also involved, as they will be tending the garden throughout the summer months when school is not in session" Macdonald said. "This is a program in which everyone benefits."

Board Suspends Downtown Club's Liquor License 3 Days

By EMILY TAFT

Following a stabbing incident at the establishment last month, the Quincy Board of License Commissioners voted unanimously June 26th to suspend the liquor license of Club 58 in Quincy Center for three days: July 19th, 20th and 21st.

The vote came following some heated discussion between Club 58 owner James Pansullo and Police Chief Paul Keenan. The chief made the motion to suspend the license because he said the club is responsible for the actions that occurred June 7 at Club 58 located at 58 Ross Way in Quincy Center. The motion was seconded by Building Inspector Jay Duca and the vote to suspend was 5-0.

At the meeting, Pansullo told the commissioners there were 38 people at the club the evening of June 7 to attend a rap show. During the show, the unknown suspect and the victim entered the men's bathroom. As they were both leaving the bathroom, the suspect stabbed the victim with a knife and then fled the scene leaving the knife in a pocket of one of the pool tables at the club.

"We're not looking to crush your business here," Keenan told Pansullo. "The thing is, enough is an enough. We are looking to control what goes on in the establishments in Quincy, and I think a message needs to be sent. We've worked with you in the past. You've hired extra details, you've tried to work with us, and we're not looking to crush anybody. Ultimately I think you are responsible for what goes on in your establishment, whether you could control it or whether it was intentional that could be up for an appeal."

According to Pansullo, the club spends an average of $25,000 per year on police details. That amount, Pansullo, has totaled more than a half million dollars since the club opened some 25 years ago. The club, according to Pansullo, has had no liquor law violations in its 25 years of business.

"Club 58 has an impeccable record with the city and the state. We have never been found in violation of any state or city liquor laws. We have always taken underage drinking, safety, and over serving very seriously," said Pansullo. "Quincy is not the same city I grew up in, and unfortunately not many cities are. I am not the problem, my business is not the problem, and I have done nothing wrong."

Pansullo added, "I feel as though I have done nothing wrong, I cannot foresee the actions of every person who walks into my place. My staff is TIPS certified, trained to spot potential problems and act accordingly. My floor staff was on the scene in less than three seconds, the entire incident took less than one minute. The police were called right away by my staff and we closed the place seconds after the incident."

Pansullo and his attorney Louis Cassis believe that the fault and blame should not be placed on Pansullo or the club.

"The bar has to have permitted the disorder, the disturbance, or the illegality," said Cassis. "And the word permitted is in the statute. In order to find someone guilty of this regulation, or your regulations, there has to be some sort of act that the owner did that would have encouraged, fostered, or allowed that to happen, and there is nothing like that here at all. There is nothing he could have done, or didn't do, that would have prevented this from happening."

A lifelong Quincy resident, Pansullo has owned and operated the bar for almost 25 years and says his employees and himself have cooperated fully with the police since the incident occurred.

"First and foremost, I take the safety of our customers and our staff very seriously. We take every possible precaution to ensure that everyone entering our establishment is here to enjoy themselves and not cause problems," said Pansullo as he addressed the board.

"As far as the issue at hand, we have cooperated fully with the Quincy Police Department as we always do. I can't control the acts of some nitwit with a knife."

Keenan said that although Pansullo might not have been able to control the incident occurring, he can control the clientele he is bringing into the club.

"You realize you're responsible," Keenan asked Pansullo. "We've had conversation, you've had conversation numerous times with the Lieutenant (Peter Turowski) about the clientele you're attracting up there, where you're advertising, where the people are coming from, and their gang affiliations. And we've notified you of certain individuals that frequent your establishment that have been identified as known gang members to the Boston Regional Intelligence Center."

According to reports, there were a number of other incidents that have occurred in the parking lot of the club, and one incident that caused Pansullo to close his club on a Friday night. On Dec. 30, 2011, Pansullo said he received a call from Turowski informing him of some gang members that might be heading to his club.

"I've had conversations with Lt. Turowski regarding possible intelligence from other police departments that there may be people "undesirables" frequenting my establishment," said Pansullo. "I got a phone call from Peter (Turowski) at 5 p.m., who said that he heard from another police department that there may be two groups of people coming down who were possible gang members and that they had issues with each other in the past. Without hesitation I decided to close my place of business. I called all my staff, I called Peter and cancelled all details, and closed up on a Friday night."

Another incident that was brought up during the board meeting was a shooting that occurred on May 1, 2010. The shooting had occurred in the parking lot and Pansullo was given a warning about the activity that happens outside of his club.

Pansullo said that there was never any evidence that the individuals involved in the shooting were ever in his club and that the parking lot the shooting took place in caters to 17 different bars in the area.

Keenan argued that the club is attracting the wrong clientele because of the type of music, the way the club advertises and the fact that they pat down every person who walks in the door, and that is why these incidents continue to occur.

"I disagree with patting people down, and having metal detectors, and you can control the music you provide," said Keenan. "I think it sends the wrong message, and that if you have to do that you are attracting the wrong clientele. I don't see it in a lot of the other establishments in the city."

In response, Cassis told Keenan that just because a certain type of music plays in the club it doesn't mean there will be violence. He also said that even though Keenan is against metal detectors, it might have prevented the stabbing. Cassis added there is nothing Pansullo did to create a situation where a stabbing would occur.

"You can't turn people away from what they look like. There is no such violation that it happened, you have to let it happen or you have to foster its ability to happen, or you have to set in motion of events that make it happen," said Cassis.

"Having certain kind of music doesn't make violence happen, you can't make that jump. There is nothing he did wrong here that made this event happen that night."

Other License Board News

The Board of License Commissioners spoke to the manager of The Water Club, Virginia Berry, about the noise ordinance and complaints they received on June 10th.

The club had amplified music playing outside on the boardwalk on June 10th, which is prohibited according to an agreement all business owners have with the board from a May 17, 2011 meeting. According to board Chairman Joseph Shea, he had received a note June 14 from board member Jay Duca, the city's director of Inspectional Services, asking to put the Water Club on the agenda to review and discuss the violation.

"We are just here to affirm the regulations that were in place last year prohibiting outdoor amplified music on the boardwalk," Duca said to Berry and fellow commissioners at their meeting June 26.

"I think it is important we have the regulation in place so we have a fair and constant way that everybody can follow the same rule down at Marina Bay," Duca said. "There has been a lot of hard work in putting this ordinance in place from the mayor (Tom Koch) all the way down to (Ward 6) Councillor (Brian) McNamee so we want to make sure it continues to work and its consistent."

According to Duca the club had a disc jockey with an acoustical set up, a microphone, and some music playing on the boardwalk on June 10th. In addition to outside music, the club also violated the noise regulations.

Duca said that at the time of the incident, he wrote the Water Club a ticket for exceeding the noise limit that is allowed. During the meeting, Shea read a summary of what the agreement was between the license board and business owners. The agreement stipulates no amplified music or entertainment on the boardwalk, and outside music is allowed with amplified voice speakers only. All outside music and entertainment can be done by 11 p.m. Outside speakers are allowed but only with outside dining music.

Duca said that the Water Club has been very cooperative and has done a lot of work with their speakers to mitigate the noise problems.

"I do want to say you have done a really good job with the noise. I know you've done some technical work with your speakers. I know you've done a lot of work to mitigate the noise problems," Duca said to Berry. "I think so far it's been a success. The noise problems have been mostly very good; we are off to a good start this year."

The board voted unanimously to place the matter on file.

The board also voted unanimously to grant a one-day license to Beechwood Knoll Elementary School for the 15th Annual Fall Festival that will be held Saturday, Sept. 29 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Other events the board voted on was a permit for the 20th Annual Merrymount Road Race, a one-day wine and malt permit for the Merrymount association July 3rd festivities, a one-day wine and malt license for Elenas Café for a private function, a Common Victualer license for Napoli Pizza and Open Rice Bistro, formerly Lucky 68 Restaurant, along with granting Packing Center (doing business at Stop & Shop), 65 Newport Ave. to alter the premises in the section of the beer and wine area, and new officers and directors.

The Maria Droste Fashion Gala held recently at Lantana's in Randolph raised $60,000 for counseling and therapy services provided by Sisters of the Good Shepherd.

The evening featured fashions modelled by friends and supporters of Maria Droste. The gala also included cocktails, dinner, music and a silent auction.

The event is dedicated and named in honor of Darlene Sheehan. Some of Darlene's friends and other male and female models took to the runway to model spring ensembles from Caryn's Corner and Grandasia in Quincy as well as Natalie's of Hanover and Hajjar's in Quincy.

Hair and makeup were provided by the Luminosity Salon in Quincy.

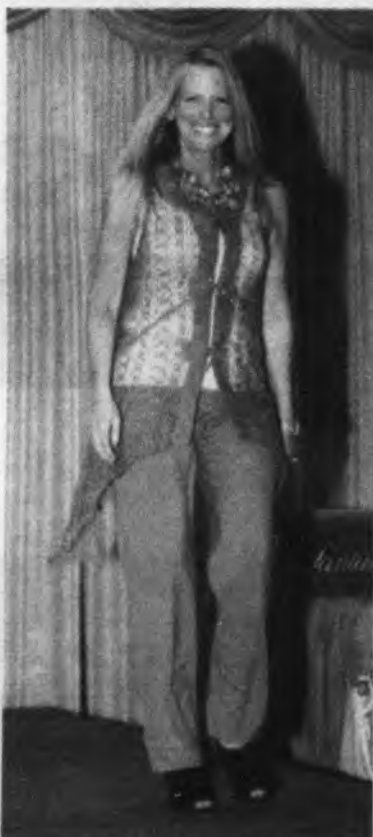

The Maria Droste Agency is staffed and operated by the Sisters of the Good Shepherd and several clinically trained professionals who serve as volunteers. Since opening as a counseling service in Quincy Center in 1992, the agency has provided critical support to individuals, couples and family groups in need of compassionate understanding.

Staff and volunteer clinicians have provided hundreds of counselling hours serving clients as young as five and as senior as 75 years of age, on a sliding fee scale structured to the client's ability to pay.

CYO Nationals Drum & Bugle Corps Tribute Show Friday

Music, Pageantry Returns To Veterans Memorial Stadium

For a second year, the city of Quincy will host the Boston Crusaders Drum & Bugle Corps at Veterans Memorial Stadium. This year's CYO Nationals Tribute Show is set for Friday (July 6) at 7 p.m.

The 10-time Drum Corps International World Champions The Cadets, 150 young adults who devote their entire summer to creating a highly polished, precise, musical production, are the featured performers in this year's local competition, hosted by the hometown Boston Crusaders.

"Part of what makes the live drum corps experience incomparable is the sheer power and emotional connection audiences can feel when the production is right. This is an event you'll need to see live," said Crusaders Executive Director Thomas I. Spataro.

Other CYO Nationals Tribute competitors include: Carolina Crown of Ft. Mill, South Carolina; Crossmen of San Antonio, Texas; Colts of Dubuque, Iowa; Jersey Surf of Camden County, New Jersey; 7th Regiment of New London, Connecticut, and the Spartans of Nashua, N.H.

Drum corps offers young people the chance to entertain vast audiences with a unique style of music, movement and showmanship. As an activity where championships may be won or lost by a tenth of a point, it also requires the stamina and precision of highly competitive team sports.

Tickets start at $20 and are on sale now. Group tickets are also available. To purchase online go to <http://bostoncrusaders.com/events/tickets> or call 617-268-4600.

CYO NATIONALS Tribute Show Friday at 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium will feature The Cadets, a 150-member world championship drum corps. The show is hosted by the City of Quincy and Boston Crusaders Drum and Bugle Corps.

19-2 Win Over Jamaica Plain Last Friday A Walk In The Park For Morrisette

By SEAN BRENNAN

Morrisette's 19-2 victory over Jamaica Plain on June 29 at Adams Field was literally a walk in the park.

Post 294 finished with only seven hits, but drew 16 walks, including nine free passes in the first two innings after two outs had been recorded as Morrisette jumped out to a 7-0 lead before the visitors even knew what hit them.

After starting pitcher Tim Liuzzo (five innings, five strikeouts) mowed down JP on ten first inning pitches (strikeout, pop up, fly out), Jason Pekkinen drew a two-out walk and Joe Alibrandi took a fastball between the numbers to put runners on first and second for catcher Kevin White. White launched a double into the gap in right-center to score both Pekkinen and Alibrandi. Bob Kozlowski and Tom McDonald (single, double, triple, 5 RBI) reached via base-on-balls, but Morrisette left the bases loaded.

Liuzzo then got the first two JP batters in the second before issuing a walk. He got out of the inning with his second strikeout of the game, and Post 294 worked more two-out magic in the bottom of the second. Matt Davis drew another walk and stole second. Pekkinen walked, Alibrandi walked and White collected his third RBI in as many innings by drawing Morrisette's seventh free pass of the game.

Kozlowski reached and Davis scored on an error by the JP shortstop, and McDonald cleared the base paths with a towering triple to straightaway centerfield. Two more walks to Andrew Currie and Patrick Verhault loaded the bases, but Chris Connolly struck out looking to end the threat.

Jamaica Plain took advantage of some sloppy Morrisette defense in the third (three errors) to cut the lead to 7-2, but after Post 294 went quietly in the home half, Liuzzo fanned two in the top of the fourth to get back on track.

With one-out in the bottom of the inning, McDonald singled, Currie walked and Verhault reached on a two-base error, which scored McDonald (8-0). Connolly, who had fanned his first three times up, beat out an infield single (scoring Currie), and Davis plated Verhault with a lazy sacrifice fly to right.

Liuzzo finished up a strong performance by getting JP 1-2-3 in the fifth, and Morrisette's offense put the game out of reach in the bottom of the inning with a nine-run explosion.

It started with a White walk. Kozlowski moved him into scoring position with a single and both runners scored on McDonald's double to left. After a pitch hit Currie and Verhault flew out to center, Connolly reached on a bunt single. Currie came around to score on a RBI single by pinch-hitter Sam Lawlor (11-0), and McDonald scored after Pekkinen walked for a third time.

Alibrandi then walked and White plated another run with a 4-6 force out. Two more free passes to Kozlowski and McDonald were followed by a two-run double by Currie as Morrisette went up 19-2.

First-year pitcher TJ Hobin (strikeout) sat down JP 1-2-3 in the top of the sixth and the game was called an inning short of the usual seven.

Team Notes

Morrisette came into the weekend with a 4-5 record, but following the 19-2 blow-out of Jamaica Plain, Post 294 upended Weymouth, 3-1 on Saturday night and knocked off Stoughton, 9-3 on Sunday to improve to 7-5 overall.

This three-game winning streak has placed Morrisette in fourth place in District 6 East, two games behind first-place Hyde Park (9-3) with 14 points.

Post 294 holds its destiny in its own hands this week. The team will host second place Milton tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. and third place Braintree on Friday night. Both games are at Adams Field. Morrisette closes out the weekend with a 7:30 p.m. home game against Jamaica Plain.

21 Up, 21 Down Against Holbrook On June 26 At Adams Field

Lawlor Throws The First Perfect Game In Morrisette's History

By SEAN BRENNAN

Sam Lawlor's performance on the mound against Holbrook Legion on June 26 can be summed up in one word: Perfection.

The third-year pitcher from Squantum faced 21 batters and retired all of them – no hits, no walks, no anything, just perfect. A Norfolk Aggie graduate and current Massasoit College student and ballplayer needed just 77 pitches

(a ridiculous 56 strike-to-21 ball ratio) to complete the first perfect game in the long and storied history of Morrisette American Legion baseball.

"I had an idea that something could happen in the second inning," Lawlor said. "I just pounded the strike zone and let my defense make the plays behind me."

No matter at what level a perfect game occurs, from high school to college to the pros, there is always a defensive play or two that saves perfection. Against Holbrook, third baseman Jason Pekkinen made two sterling stops at the hot corner, but it was centerfielder Chris Connolly who made a dandy of a catch in the first inning that proved to be the play of the game for Lawlor.

"Chris made a really nice play going back on the ball early in the game," Lawlor noted. "In high school baseball anytime a ball gets put into play it can be an adventure, but at the Legion level and with the guys I have playing defense behind me, I am always confident that the plays will be made."

With his teammates and coaches abiding by old-time baseball etiquette in regards to a pitcher throwing a perfect game or no-hitter, the dugout bench gave Lawlor his space between innings hoping not to be the person that ruined the moment. For Lawlor it was just a matter of keeping focused at the task at hand.

"I have never thrown a perfect game or a no-hitter at any level," he said. Lawlor went to a three-ball count against four Holbrook batters, but came back to strike out three of them. "I was just focusing on pitching well enough to get us the win."

In the top of the seventh and three outs away from making history, Lawlor got the first two batters out, setting the stage for an unforgettable moment. Batter 21 tapped a slow roller between the mound and first baseman Bob Kozlowski. Lawlor picked up the baseball and made the quick decision to race to the bag. He dove and tagged first right before the runner could reach; pandemonium ensued.

"It was hit right between the mound and Bob," Lawlor remembered. "I didn't think I would have time to flip the ball to him, and there was no way if he picked it up I would have been able to get to the bag in time."

"It was crazy. The next thing I knew I was being carried across the field. It was really cool to do it at Adams Field. There were probably 20 people here, but it sounded like 1,000."

Lawlor now joins his father John in the Morrisette history books. The elder Lawlor started a game at the 1975 American Legion World Series for Post 294. But he never threw a perfect game. No one had until Sam Lawlor did last week.

SAM LAWLOR threw the first perfect game in the history of Morrisette Legion Baseball on June 26 versus Holbrook. Lawlor needed just 71 pitches to reach perfection.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

WIRED FOR SOUND HEALTH

Virtually every tissue in the human body is controlled by nerve impulses that travel through 31 pairs of nerves that emerge from the spine and carry information back to the brain. Thus, nerve impulses control a great number of body functions, ranging from conscious actions such as moving your fingers to involuntary actions such as breathing. Just as a downed wire on the electric grid cuts power to the community it serves, "subluxations" (spinal misalignments) interfere with the body's ability to send and receive messages. By performing adjustments that move the vertebrae back into their normal positions, chiropractors can free nerves to send proper information to the body that will help to restore health.

Chiropractic is concerned with the care of the entire body.

Vaughn Driscoll channeled his inner-Paul Revere following the Quincy Militia's disappointing season last summer.

The Quincy-based Eastern Football League's affiliate had just finished with a 1-9 record during a season that saw more than 80% of the roster up and leave, but Driscoll, the team's General Manager and Head Coach was determined to get the word out and to begin rebuilding his program from the ground up.

Driscoll didn't jump on horseback and ride through the streets of Quincy like Revere supposedly did on the night of April 18, 1775, but Driscoll, along with several team mainstays and a dedicated coaching staff began an intense recruitment campaign that has since paid dividends.

The recruitment process as fully stocked the Militia's roster with talent, and most importantly, depth. Driscoll and his staff have 65 players who have given their sweat, blood and tears during months of preseason sessions, all with a collective goal of putting Quincy at the top of the semi-pro football map.

This summer the Militia is back in full force as they prepare for Saturday's season-opener against the Bay State Bucs down at Bridgewater State College.

"This year we have really turned it around," Driscoll said last week before practice at Pageant Field. "Last year we didn't have a depth chart and we finished the season with about 20 guys. The last game we played with 13 players."

"This year we came in as a staff, and also some returning players, and we recruited heavy and now we are deep at every position. Competition brings out the best in everybody; our team has improved from top to bottom."

Entering its fourth season in the EFL, the Militia has a history of success on which to build on. In its inaugural 2009 season, the Militia lost to Clinton in the EFL Championship game, and back in 2010 the team finished the regular season at 6-5 and qualified for the EFL playoffs.

Driscoll and his staff have already moved past last season's disaster. They knew what they needed to do get better and they went out and got it, and according to Driscoll, the rest of the EFL best beware.

"This is our fourth season and we knew what we were looking for after last year. We were weak in a couple of areas; one was middle linebacker and another was on the defensive line," explained Driscoll. "Our O-Line was playing D-Line last year and there were only four of them; they played their hearts out, but in this league you can't do that. You get beat up and worn down."

"This year we have ten strong offensive linemen and on the defensive line we have at least ten strong players. We improved at middle linebacker and we have picked up a few veterans from another team to help in other areas. What happened was the guys that survived last year and finished that (final) game with just 13 players earned the respect of the league. We stuck together and built to where we are right now."

Where the Militia is at right now is in a good place. The majority of the roster are players in their twenties (according to Driscoll 50 of his 65 players are between 20-29). Almost every player played football at the collegiate level and, unlike last season, there is speed and size up-and-down the depth chart.

Let's start with the offense.

"I have five guys over 300 (pounds) on the O-Line, but we are big from top to bottom," Driscoll said. "We have three quarterbacks; our wide receivers are set, and we have three running backs and two strong fullbacks. We are going to be a 'ground-and-pound' offense. In this league you pass to score but you run to win."

Offensive Assistant Moe McNeil, one of Driscoll's trusted lieutenants, expects his offense to be a huge pain in the rear for opposing defenses.

"I want to change the outlook this year," said McNeil. "We have players this season; instead of 1-9, we want to be 10-0 or 9-1. I am thinking big because if you think little, you'll be little."

"As far as these guys go I see a big change for Quincy Militia football. We are serious this year. Last year is behind us and we want to build something bigger and better, something we can be proud of. A balanced offense is the goal; we are going to move the ball and initiate contact. We mean business."

On the defensive side of the field, Driscoll and Assistant Head Coach/Defensive Coordinator Kevin Callahan believe this unit could be among the more physical and most intimidating in the entire EFL.

Ready To Answer The Call

Quincy is big and quick up front, and with a strong pass rush and an improved linebacker core, the Militia's defensive unit could be a turnover machine.

"I have a whole crop of new faces this year," said Callahan. "Last year we were juggling people around to play positions they weren't comfortable in just to keep going. In this league the thing that wins championships, I believe, is depth.

"It is a summer league and you have to keep players fresh and you need depth, and on our defense right now I have 42 players; I have three players at every position so I can rotate in and out. Keeping people fresh is key. One thing I can guarantee is that we are going to play physical. It is going to be a real joy."

A Fabric Of The Community

Driscoll and his team do not take lightly the fact that they have "Quincy" in their franchise's name.

The Militia wants to build a fan base and become an elite EFL team in the mold of the Randolph Oilers and the Middleboro Cobras, but they also want to become synonymous with giving back to the community.

In some respect, that is as important to Driscoll than winning and losing football games.

"I love Quincy," he said. "I want us to be similar to the Cobras and Oilers, we would like that recognition. When you mention those names people know who they are because they have been around so long. They built tradition in their hometowns and that is what we are trying to accomplish on the football field. We want to build a fan base.

"But we also do a lot of community action work. We work with the Quincy Crisis Center and during the holidays we deliver food to the needy; we have been doing that for four years. We have also been involved as a team for three years with the Pilgrim Outreach Program, which is in Braintree and is more or less a teenage third-strike program.

"We have also been involved with Cleaner, Greener Quincy the past four years and we are actively involved with Quincy community and charitable organizations. I want folks to know that we are more than just a football team."

This year the Quincy Militia marched in the Quincy Flag Day Parade and plan on marching in the fall in the annual Quincy Christmas Parade.

Road To A Championship

The Eastern Football League is no joke. Entering its 52nd year of operation offering elite top-quality men's 18+ amateur full contact football in the New England area, the EFL holds games from June to October. (The Militia plays home games on Saturdays at Veterans Memorial Stadium.)

With 13 teams competing for a championship, the road to a title is not an easy task. Joining Quincy this summer in the EFL are the Bay State Bucs, Charlestown Townies, Clinton Irish Blizzard, Granite State Knights, Eastern Mass Seminoles, Maine Sabers, Metro West Mavericks, Middleboro Cobras, Randolph Oilers, Taunton Gladiators, Twin City Blue Raiders, and the Worcester Mass Fury.

"This league includes a couple of guys that had a cup of coffee in the NFL," said Driscoll about the level of competition in the EFL, "but we can't wait to get started. I think teams will be surprised because when they come and face us, they are going to be in for a world of hurt.

"The guys that are here this season are here because they know we are going to get that ring."

Cheerleaders Wanted!

Jordan Would Like To See Four Legion Teams

By SEAN BRENNAN

Although his young and inexperienced Wollaston Legion baseball team is having a rough season with a 0-4 record, Coach Bob Jordan vehemently disagrees with those who think there shouldn't be three Legion teams in Quincy.

"People have said we shouldn't have revived baseball last year and some have even said there should be only one team in the city," Jordan said. "I heartily disagree with this. In fact I would like it if there were four teams. The more teams the merrier."

"After all, if there was only one team, there would be only 17 or 18 boys playing Legion ball in the city. What would our 17 players be doing if we didn't have a team? I am in favor of giving as many boys as possible a chance to play ball."

Jordan said he has lost some boys to other Legion teams in the past but this year the coaches and athletic officers of all three Quincy Posts (Wollaston, Quincy and Morrisette) agreed no players were to transfer from one team to another.

Meanwhile, Morrisette leads Zone 6 with a 7-1 record while Quincy is right behind at 6-2 overall.

LINCOLN-HANCOCK COUNCIL RAISES $125 FOR CAHILL

The Lincoln-Hancock Community School Council raised $125 to help defray expense for Quincy High wrestler Tim Cahill at the U.S. Olympic Training Camp in Brockport, New York.

The money was raised in a direct response from the community at large with members of the Council making the first donation. It is estimated that Cahill will need about $300 for expenses at the training camp.

Tim Cahill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Cahill of 35 Packards Lane, Quincy Point, and co-captain of the QHS wrestling team, attended the John Hancock School where he first wrestled in the seventh grade.

Carmen Mariano is Cahill's wrestling coach.

McGILVERY (1), CATALANO (2) IN ST. MARY'S ROAD RACE

Joe Catalano, QHS winter track and cross-country coach, was edged in St. Mary's 10-mile road race and finished second. Earl McGilvery of North Quincy took first.

"I was gaining on (McGilvery) and I might have had a chance if the race was a quarter-mile longer," Catalano said.

Catalano was followed by Chuck Riley and Mike Baxter, while Jan Greaney of Liberty Athletic Club was the first woman finisher in a time of 1:15.30.

Slow Start Dooms Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth

By SEAN BRENNAN

In a meeting between the first and second place teams in Senior Babe Ruth's South Shore League, the final outcome came down to one-half inning - the bottom of the first.

Milton took advantage of Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth's sluggish start, scoring four runs on four hits, a walk and five stolen bases to jump out to a 4-0 lead, before holding on to win 6-3 despite a three-run fifth inning rally by Wollaston on June 27 at Adams Field.

The loss dropped Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth to 7-4 overall.

"(Slow starts) have been our downfall this season," said Coach Steve Reardon about his team's propensity to begin games by falling behind early. "We give it away and then we have to struggle back, but this game is behind us. We haven't had two losses in a row all season, so we are confident that the team can turn it right around."

The start of the game was delayed about 30 minutes, as Wollaston had to wait for Milton to arrive from an earlier 5:45 game. But according to Coach Bob Griffin, his team was not going to use that as an excuse for their slow start.

"Milton was coming from a game, so there are no excuses," he said. "It is hard to say it was unfair. Right now we are in second place and we are on track to make the league playoffs."

Fresh off a win in the late afternoon, and after Wollaston went 1-2-3 in the top of the first, Milton put the foot to the gas right off the bat against Wollaston and starting pitcher Dillon Darcy in the bottom of the inning. (This game was originally scheduled to be played in early June in Milton. Adams Field was the only available field, therefore Milton was home and Wollaston was away.)

Darcy allowed a leadoff single (that runner quickly swiped second base) before striking out the first of six batters for the first out. With one out and a runner in scoring position, Darcy fanned Milton's number three hitter with a sharp curve; however the ball skirted through the legs of catcher Eric Kelly, allowing the batter to reach first and the runner at second to advance 90 feet to third.

A RBI single by Milton's cleanup hitter scored the game's first runs and following a free pass to the number five hitter, Milton plated two more on a double to left. Darcy finally got out of the inning by inducing a pop up to shortstop Tyler Braun.

Ed McDonough, Kevin Jackson and Braun went 1-2-3 in the top of the second, but Darcy put his tough first inning behind him and began to settle down in the second. After walking the leadoff batter and allowing a single, the Quincy High right-hander bore down and got a pop out to Mike Pugsley at third for the first out. Darcy then induced a short fly to Jackson in centerfield for the inning's second out.

With two out, Milton put both runners in motion, executing a perfect double steal to place runners on second and third. However, Darcy held serve by fanning his third batter of the game to end the threat.

"Dillon didn't give up tonight," said Reardon about his starting pitcher's ability to not give in after a rough beginning. "After having to throw an extra 30 pitches (in the first) he really settled down nicely."

Wollaston finally got something going in the top of the third as Chris Kerin took a walk and stole second. Jonathan Leveillee's 4-3 putout moved Kerin to third, but the North Quincy product was left stranded when Kevin Mullin struck out and Darcy grounded out to shortstop.

Milton tacked on another run in the bottom of the frame. A one-out walk by Darcy came back to haunt him when he allowed a double to left center before getting a groundout and strikeout to keep the score a manageable, 5-0.

John Marsinelli, Pugsley and Kelly could do little offensively in the away-half of the fourth, but Darcy fanned two, working around a two-out walk in the home-half of the fourth, setting up Wollaston's fifth inning rally.

Pinch hitter Mike Haley got it started by drawing a leadoff walk. Jackson followed with a clean hit to center and Braun loaded the bases with no outs with a flare to right. After Kerin struck out, Leveillee roped a two-run single, scoring Haley and Jackson to cut the Milton lead to 5-2.

Left-handed pinch hitter Ben Martin sliced the Milton advantage to 5-3 with a clutch RBI single, but Darcy fanned and Marsinelli grounded out 5-unassisted to end the inning.

"The subs came through for the team," Reardon noted about the production of his bench. "Mike Haley led off the inning with a walk and we took it from there. He made the Milton pitcher throw 12 pitches and we took advantage."

"That is the way we do a lot of things. We use small ball. We aren't going to pound the ball, and we don't hit triples and home runs, mostly singles and doubles. It worked in the fifth."

Chris McMahon (two innings, two strikeouts, walk) came on in relief of Darcy to pitch the bottom of the fifth and got Milton 1-2-3, but Wollaston couldn't sustain momentum in the sixth, striking out three times. McMahon allowed a run in bottom of the sixth (6-3), and the Wollaston bats went quietly in the seventh.

Team Notes

Wollaston rebounded from the Milton loss with an 8-2 win over ADSL. Tyler Braun pitched six innings and allowed three hits, improving his record to 5-0. Chris McMahon pitched the seventh, and Scott Higgins and Ben Martin each had two RBI. Other players making offensive contributions included Jonathan Johnson-Tatelbaum, Michael Pugsley, Eric Kelly, Kevin Jackson and John Marsinelli.

On Sunday, Wollaston lost to the West Division leaders Dedham, 6-3. Matt Kerin blasted a home run and his brother Chris Kerin had two hits. Pugsley and Mike Gallotto also finished with base hits.

Wollaston's record currently stands at 8-5 overall.

Openings Exist For Three Recreation Clinics

There are limited openings remaining for three workshops and clinics that will be conducted July 9-13 according to the Quincy Recreation Department.

The Arts & Crafts workshop will be held at the Recreation Department, located at One Merrymount Parkway. The workshop offers simple projects that may include decorations, arrangements, painting, ribbons, and lace work that would result in a completed project. The clinic is open to boys and girls entering Grades 2-9 and will run from 8:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. The cost of the clinic is $75 and includes a t-shirt for each participant. Participants need to bring $3 a day to the instructor for materials.

The second session of Baking & Decorating also has openings available. The workshop will be directed by Jacqui Niosi, local business owner and former culinary arts instructor at QHS. Participants will prepare basic recipes for various cookies, cakes, frostings, and other treats. The fundamentals of decorating pastries and desserts will be covered. The clinic is open to boys and girls entering Grades 5-9, and will run from 12:30-4:30 p.m. The cost of the clinic is $82.

Elementary Tennis is once again under the direction of Meghan Matthews, Girls Varsity Tennis Coach at QHS. This clinic is for boys and girls entering Grades 3-5 and will be conducted at the QHS Tennis Courts on Russell Park next to the high school. Fundamentals on groundstrokes, volleying, serve, and game strategies are a few of the skills included in the program. Children should have their own rackets - the time of the clinic is 8:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m.

Registration may be done online at www.QuincyRec.com or in person at the Recreation Department, One Merrymount Parkway. For questions call 617-376-1394.

Hancock Pool Opening & Summer Schedule

The Quincy Recreation Department announced last week that the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool would reopen for the summer season and recreational swim programs on Thursday according to the following schedule:

Weekday Schedule

Youth Swim - Mon-Friday from 5:55-8:45 p.m.; Family Swim - Mon-Friday from 6:55-8:45 p.m., and Mon, Wed, and Friday from 7:45-8:45 p.m.; Senior Swim - Tuesday and Thursday from 7:45-8:45 p.m., and Adult Swim - Mon-Friday from 7:55-8:45 p.m.

Saturday/Sunday Schedule

Youth Swim from 1-1:45 p.m.; Family Swim from 1:55-3:45 p.m., and Adult Swim from 3:55-4:45 p.m. The summer schedule will continue until Aug. 30. The pool is open to Quincy residents of all ages, and memberships for recreational swimming can be purchased in the lower lobby of the pool at the Water Street entrance.

For additional information, call the Quincy Recreation Department at 617-376-1394.

Even though our city has many large brooks, running through our wards and neighborhoods (Sachem, Cunningham, Furnace and Town to name a few); I have come to realize how much about brooks I do not know.

Our city is also part of three different watersheds: the Neponset River, the Fore River, and the Boston Harbor Watershed. Most residents know about Quincy's miles of ocean shorelines, marshes and beaches. But what do we know about our watersheds with their many streams, springs, brooks and wetlands, a place where trickles and drizzles are important as currents and tides. From Ward 4, through Wards 5 and 2, and finally ending in Ward 1 - the Town Brook flows.

A geologist friend explained to me that Quincy is full of brooks because of the "dense glacial debris" upon which our city and its neighborhoods rests. The glaciers left an area that has so many fissures, cracks, breaks, and artesian wells that water runs off from higher elevations in the Blue Hills and flows to the sea through Quincy in many directions, with many smaller tributaries flowing into it. We might not have a river like Providence, but what we do have flows as strong and certain.

On a recent Town Brook exploration tour with a group of Quincy Environmental Network/Wollaston Garden Club friends we followed the brook from source to end, photographing the brook along the way. I was moved by the brook's resilience, never stopping, always flowing downward to the sea.

I come from haunts of coot and hern,

I make a sudden sally,

And sparkle out among the fern,

To bicker down a valley.

The Town Brook is fed by and begins in a valley between the highlands of the Braintree Five Corners and the Blue Hills and has been contained in a man-made reservoir - Braintree Dam (Old Quincy Reservoir). The brook flows from the dam, open and day lit, and then as an open brook through the residential area built between the expressway and the South Shore Plaza. It gathers in a pool behind St. Catherine's Greek Orthodox Church for its trip through two culverts under Route 93 near the Braintree/Washington Street exit and Burgin Parkway exit.

We never found the culvert on the Quincy side of Route 93 but what we did find was a huge wetland expanse. The entire area behind the Home Depot on Center Street is part of this Town Brook wetland. I began to appreciate the role these swampy wet lands play in holding purifying water, even though they are wild places - they work to keep the brook healthy and keep nearby neighborhoods from flooding.

By thirty hills I hurry down,

Or slip between the ridges,

By twenty thorps, a little town,

And half a hundred bridges.

At Center Street and Burgin Parkway, right in the middle of the intersection, is the Center Street Junction Box, an underground chamber the size of a small garage, which is the first structure in Quincy to control the water flow of Town Brook.

The original course of Town Brook flows on a 'Bridge Weir' essentially an aqueduct to carry water over a much larger drainage culvert called the Burgin Parkway Conduit, which flows directly down Burgin Parkway to the Deep Rock Tunnel Inlet at School Street. The 'Bridge Weir' at Center Street has very low sides, so that if Town Brook rises during heavy rains, it will overflow into the Burgin Parkway conduit below.

When Crown Colony was developed, there was great concern that the runoff from this former stone/gravel works would severely contaminate Town Brook. According to the MDC engineer who was involved with the project, it was decided to channel the Crown Colony runoff directly into the Burgin Parkway Conduit, and thus that water flow is not part of the "natural course" of Town Brook.

As it turns out, the drainage and runoff treatment was implemented so well that much of this clean water does not flow into Town Brook at all, leaving Town Brook without much of its flow and force. Right next to the newly built expressway ramp, the brook emerges day lit and running strong a short distance along the entrance way to the new Lowe's, before disappearing into a large culvert, unchanged from when the front access way to Lowe's was Penn Street.

The Town Brook and its feeder streams remain in and sometimes out of culverts through many of the West Quincy neighborhoods following somewhat along the path of Brook Road, under Water Street, along one side of the Lincoln Hancock School, where a large wetland provides an aquatic filter, and then under School Street.

At a garden ceremony a few years ago at the school, a dragonfly flew into the audience of students gathered. The students screamed in fear and surprise as the school principal allayed their fears about this insect that controls the mosquito population - I wondered where it had come from in this urban area - I now know - the Town Brook. All through these Ward 4 neighborhoods small streams, and springs feed the brook.

I chatter over stony ways,

In little sharps and trebles,

I bubble into eddying bays,

I babble on the pebbles.

Behind Star Market/Shaw's is where, in 1997, the Army Corps of Engineers completed the large School Street Deep Rock Tunnel Inlet and Diverter. The Tunnel part is a huge drain, running straight down for 150 feet, then beneath Quincy Center to emerge back into the Brook at Pond Street, just upstream of the historic Souther Tide Mill site.

The key to flood control in the areas close to Burgin Parkway is the huge culvert. So it turns out that Town Brook has two 'flood diversion' structures, the first being a mile upstream at Centre Street, and the second at School Street.

The School Street site takes storm water from the huge box culvert under Burgin Parkway to control flooding mainly from the area around the original course of the Brook. School Street is also a key to flood control to many downstream points on Brook, mainly the Ward 2 and 5 neighborhoods between Revere Road and Bigelow Street. This is done again by allowing excessive Brook flow to spillover into the Deep Rock Tunnel.

I was impressed at the volume of the water coming out of the West Quincy neighborhoods and the overall cleanliness.

I began to appreciate the job that the DPW does in cleaning culvert gates and making sure the brook is not filled with debris.

The only place the Town Brook is day lighted (for about 10 feet) in Quincy Square is behind the Terra Brasil restaurant, adjacent to the Hancock Parking lot. The brook flows in a culvert under the Hancock Parking lot. Less than a century ago, it flowed along here, open and free.

The brook emerges in an open culvert behind the American Legion on Revere Road. Long time neighbor Arline Goodman, reports that it is in this area where she has regularly seen the smelt spawning, usually at the end of March. The spawning time can last a few days or even weeks.

We followed the brook as it crosses under streets, Bigelow, Miller Stile Road, and back to Bigelow again. At each viewing spot, the water was fast and flowing, and the sound of the brook, rather loud and unforgettable.

The Town Brook along these Ward 2 neighborhoods was clean and clear. I thought about how delightful the brook must be to live next to. I also realized that this brook had now maneuvered its way through miles of human development and underneath an unforgiving city downtown, yet it still flowed, with an air of urgency.

I wind about, and in and out,

With here a blossom sailing, and here and there a lusting trout, and here and there a grayling.

The Town Brook goes into a culvert in the intersection area of Elm and Washington Street and then opens up along McGrath Highway for a short distance. I had heard about the Town Landing that used to be located in this area and the canal connecting it to the river, which carried stone from Quincy's quarries to ports near and far.

Today, a major highway sits where a canal once operated. Some of the large granite slabs of rock which line the sides of the McGrath Highway culvert have caved in, leaving boulders in the brook's path. However, the brook moves on.

On the other side of the Elm Street extension, off McGrath Highway, near Yellow Cab, the brook breaks open into a wider expanse (site of the original canal) as it hurries along its way bordered by Brackett Street and then Pond Street.

The character of the brook changes into a sunny, less shaded, brackish tidal waterway, with salt marsh vegetation framing the sides. It begins to feel less like a brook and more like a shallow river estuary. At this place, the Deep Rock Tunnel empties into the brook, increasing the brook's size and flow.

I slip. I slide. I gloom. I glance,

Among my skimming swallows,

I make the netted sunbeam dance

Against my sandy shallows.

Under Route 3A, Town Brook goes passing the Souther Tide Mill, where a group of dedicated citizens have worked to restore the historical building and plan to bring its story to the people of our city and the outside community. The Town Brook emerges from this canal area into the Town River.

It is no longer a brook; recreational and lobster boats hug the shore and wharfs. The Town Brook has just about completed its journey - it is now the Town River.

I thought of the brook's journey and how difficult human development had made that journey. I am proud of where our City has protected and helped it, and saddened at how the Shoppers World development of Quincy Square in the 50's and 60's hampered its flow and health. To this day, the City has not figured out how to maintain sufficient water flow in the brook and how to use "flood control" the way it was intended.

We now have an opportunity in the new development of Quincy Square to "take care of the brook." We need to make sure the re-location of the brook does everything possible to protect this wonderful environmental treasure for future generations.

We need to do it for the fish, animal and plant life that depend on it; for its interdependent connection to all other waterways; for its role in providing its citizens the joy of being close to a natural waterway and a reminder of its prominent place in the history of our city's downtown; and for what this small brook can teach us about resiliency and perseverance.

And out again I curve and flow

To join the brimming river,

For men may come and men may go,

But I go on for ever.

Closet Door Sticks, Scrapes the Floor

Q: I've got a closet door that scrapes the floor when I swing it open or shut, and it sticks when it's closed. Is there an easy way to fix this, or is something seriously wrong?
—Harriet C., Denver

A: Chances are the door just needs a bit of adjustment. Over time, as houses settle and temperature or humidity changes warp the wood of a door or its frame, the door doesn't open or shut just right. Grab a helper and a prybar or hammer, and prepare to fix this door.

First, check the overall condition of the door, its frame and the surrounding hardware (the doorknob and latch, hinges and the hinge plates where they're screwed into the door frame). Make sure all of the hardware is screwed in properly and not loose or tearing away from the frame. Make sure there is no visible damage or warping of the door or frame — usually there isn't, unless the door suffered a serious calamity such as flood damage.

If the overall condition checks out as good, adjusting the hinges or shimming the door so it swings freely again is the likely course of action.

Shimming is a way of very slightly changing the angle at which a door is hung. You do this by adding a shim behind a door's hinge to lift it slightly — and then adjusting that angle up or down. Shim kits also are available at home-improvement stores.

Since the door's angle has shifted slightly downward, first try adjusting the top hinge on the door-frame side by simply screwing all the hinge screws in a half-turn or so. This alone may lift the door just enough to even it out.

If that doesn't work, you can either unscrew the top hinge and carefully shave away a paper-thin amount of the wooden frame in order to set the hinge slight back. Or, if you don't want to damage the frame, shim the lower hinge in order to lift the door upward.

Unscrew the frame side of the bottom hinge, as your helper holds the door steady. Insert a very thin shim piece (the kits are usually cut to size, or you can use a wafer-thin piece of plywood or even a playing card to shim, and trim yourself) and place the hinge over the shim, using a power drill to drive the hinge screws through the shim into their usual place.

Shimming or adjusting the angle can take time and a few attempts. Be patient, and you'll soon have your door swinging freely.

HOME TIP: For doors that slightly scrape the floor as they open, place a rough piece of sandpaper underneath the sticky area and open and close the door several times — this might smooth out the bottom of the door just enough to end the scraping.

National Grid Urges Customers: Work, Play Safely Around Utility Equipment This Summer

For many people summer means barbeque, the beach, vacation and outdoor projects.

National Grid reminds customers to keep safety in mind when working or playing around electric and natural gas equipment and during summer storms.

"By keeping a few simple safety tips in mind — such as looking before you climb a ladder, or calling before you begin a digging project — you can enjoy the summer months without injury," said Karen Klimas, vice president, Safety, Health and Environment for National Grid in the US.

Stay Safe Near Power Lines

Steps to be prepared and stay safe this summer include:

- Maintain a minimum clearance of 10 feet around power lines common to local streets and neighborhoods. Transmission or high-voltage lines require an even greater clearance.

- Remember that overhead wires usually are bare or only weather-protected and can carry extremely high voltages. It's safest to assume that all overhead wires are live electric wires.

- Avoid touching of your body or with a ladder conduct electricity, so power lines with any part der. Metal parts and moisture don't use an aluminum ladder or a damp wooden ladder within 10 feet of power lines. Before erecting a ladder, ensure it will not come into contact with any power lines. Always carry ladders horizontally to keep them from tangling with power lines.

• Kites, model airplanes and other toys should be flown only in open spaces, far from any trees and power lines. If a toy gets tangled in a power line, the safest thing to do is leave it there and call National Grid at 1-800-322-3223 in New England.

Call Before You Dig

National Grid supports the New England Dig Safe organization and their public education efforts targeting consumers and construction and landscape contractors who dig near gas and electric lines. Dig Safe operates the "811" call number for anyone planning a digging project, and works with the proper organizations to have lines marked before digging.

Anyone planning a project or work that requires digging or excavation should contact Dig Safe at least two full days prior to any construction or excavation work. In Massachusetts and Rhode Island, contact Dig Safe at either 811 or 1-888-DIG-SAFE (888-344-7233). For more information, please visit <http://www.digsafe.com/>.

Summer Storm Safety

Summer weather can be unpredictable, especially when warm, unstable air brings about sudden and severe thunderstorms. Planning ahead can help everyone stay safe before, during and after a storm.

• Learn about your local community's emergency warning system for severe storms.

• Pick a safe place in your home for household members to gather during severe storms. This should be away from windows, skylights and glass doors that could be broken by strong winds or hail. Make a list of items to bring inside in the event of a severe storm.

• Make trees and shrubbery more wind-resistant by keeping them trimmed and removing damaged branches.

• Get trained in first aid and learn how to respond to emergencies.

• Put together an emergency preparedness kit (visit www.redcross.org) for a free tip sheet to help you build your kit.

• Postpone outdoor activities if thunderstorms are likely to occur. Many people struck by lightning are not in the area where rain is occurring.

• After storms have passed, help people who may require special assistance, such as infants, children and the elderly or disabled.

• Stay away from downed power lines and report them immediately.

• Watch your animals closely. Keep them under your direct control.

Dollars and sense

Paying More for Less

If your family has been going through jar after jar of peanut butter, it might not be that they're eating more. Peanut butter jars, as with so many other products, have shrunk in size.

Tuna used to come in 6-ounce cans. Now it's 5 ounces. Juice used to be 64 ounces. Now the cartons contain 59 ounces. Ketchup, canned vegetables, ice cream, cereal, boxed pasta, coffee -- they all have less in the package.

Some manufacturers are trying to put a positive spin on it. With crackers, for instance, one manufacturer is trying to tell us that the product will stay fresher longer with less in the box. Or the package is better for the environment. Or it's healthier.

With some products they're not 'fessing up with excuses, they're changing the shape of the package just enough so that it fools the eye into believing we're getting the same amount as before: slimmer packages that are the same height as before, boxes that are just as wide but not as deep, caved-in bottoms on jars, or bright splashes on the front that say "improved flavor" or "easy pour" to distract us.

No matter the excuse, the bottom line is that we're getting less in the packages of food while, of course, the prices aren't dropping.

Price isn't the only implication. If you're on a special diet (say if you have diabetes) and know that in the past you could eat one-quarter of a box of pasta, and the box is now smaller, you won't be getting the nutrition you used to get. That could have an impact on your insulin dosage.

Recipes can take a hit, especially ones you've made for years. If you're used to using a one-pound package of rice, that package may no longer contain what you expect it to. Food that used to feed a family doesn't go far enough now.

It's more important than ever to read the packaging and know what you're getting. Read the price label on the shelf and do the per-unit math: the largest size might not be a bargain anymore, with two packages being cheaper. Compare brands. Try something new. Make notes on the staples you buy for future comparison.

Above all, don't be fooled. Know what you're getting and decide if you want to give the manufacturer your money.

David Uffington regrets that he cannot personally answer reader questions, but will incorporate them into his column whenever possible. Write to him in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475, or send e-mail to columnreply@gmail.com.

North Quincy High School Health/Safety Fair

The sixth annual health and safety fair was recently held in the gym of North Quincy High School.

All students had the opportunity to visit the tables of the various agencies to learn about contemporary health issues.

Displays were provided by the Quincy Police Department, Body Extremes, The Department of Public Health, Polished, Impact Quincy, Manet Community Health Center and the students enrolled in the Health and Human Services class.

High school Nurse Kristin Houlihan, who organized the event along with Mary Jane Callahan, RN and Health Office Paraprofessional Paula Nicholson, explained that the goal of the health fair is to provide students with the tools necessary to make informed and responsible decisions regarding personal health and to provide information on a wide variety of health related topics.

A Job Well Done

On Saturday, June 23, at approximately 11 a.m., Detectives James Dentrement and Paul Pieper were notified by the Weymouth Police Department of a bank robbery that occurred earlier in the day in Weymouth at the South Shore Savings Bank. There was information that the suspect was last seen headed toward Quincy.

LT. DAN MINTON

The Weymouth Police Department provided a photograph of the suspect from the bank's surveillance camera. The detectives then went to Father Bill's Homeless Shelter in Quincy to show the photograph of the robbery suspect to several of the shelter's staff. They were able to identify the robbery suspect as a current resident of their shelter, who as of the night before the bank robbery slept at Father Bill's.

The detectives, using the suspect's Registry of Motor Vehicle photograph as a secondary identification, were able to confirm the suspect's identity. Detective Dentrement contacted the Weymouth Police to let them know that the suspect had been identified and the search was broadening for the suspect. The detectives started their search at the Fore River Bridge and worked their way through the local bars on Washington Street after learning that the suspect liked to drink.

At one bar, an employee said that the suspect was in at approximately noon time, had a beer, left a 50 cent tip and left alone on foot. A further check of local bars in the downtown area had negative results, so the detectives drove down to the President's City Inn to see if the suspect had checked into one of their rooms. At approximately 2:48 p.m., as the detectives neared the President's City Inn's parking lot, they observed a taxi cab parked in front of the main office. They observed a man matching the suspect's description crouching in the rear seat of the taxi cab. At this time, a female exited the main office and went to the taxi. The detectives approached the taxi and removed the suspect.

Officers Paul Matthews, Kristen Bowes, and Roger White arrived on scene to assist. The suspect was still wearing the same clothing as seen in the bank's surveillance photograph. With the suspect outside the taxi, the detectives could see a large bulge in the suspect's front pockets which turned out to be U.S. currency amounting to $3,070. The female with the suspect had $120 in cash in her possession. The female stated that the suspect had given her the money to rent a room for the evening and he was waiting in the taxi until she came out with the key.

The suspect, a 48 year-old Father Bill's resident, was placed under arrest and charged with Bank Robbery. The taxi driver said he picked up the suspect and the female at the Quincy Center train station and brought them directly to the hotel. The female said that she met up with the suspect at the main library at approximately 2 p.m. He asked her if she could rent a room for him because he didn't have any identification with him.

She said they first walked to the Dollar Store in Quincy Center, where the suspect purchased a $10 phone card, then walked to the train station to take the taxi to the hotel. The female also added that the suspect told her that "he was going to sit back and watch the news tonight - that he'd probably be on it." She said she had no idea what the suspect was referring to but became nervous and hoped that the hotel clerk would not rent her the room. She left the hotel desk area when she saw the Officers approach the taxi.

It was determined that the female was unaware of the bank robbery and she was released. When the Weymouth Police detectives arrived at the Quincy Police station, the monies were turned over to them. Miranda rights were waived by the suspect, who confessed to robbing the bank.

After the interrogation, the suspect was transported to the Weymouth Police Department for booking.

Nice Work!

Entries in the Quincy Police Hot Spots are compiled and submitted by the Quincy Police Department.

They are published by The Quincy Sun as a public service to make local residents more aware of any crime activity in their neighborhood. Questions concerning the Hot Spots list should be directed to Crime Prevention Officer Lt. Dan Minton, 617-745-5719.

Houghs Neck Congregational

Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave., Quincy, will hold its Sunday worship service at 10 a.m.

All are welcome.

Pastor John Castricum will be on vacation. In his absence, Bryan Logue will deliver the sermon "Making time for God." Martha Chase and Joe Giggey will serve for the Diaconate.

A fellowship coffee hour will follow the service.

Registration Open For Vacation Bible School At Squantum Christian Fellowship

Squantum Christian Fellowship announces it will hold a Vacation Bible School from July 9-13 from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. each day for children ages 4-11 in the Squantum School Media Center.

The Bible school will feature songs, crafts, stories of faith, games and treats.

Every day fun and interesting activities are planned.

Children are divided into crews and travel to various stations during the morning. They will apply what they've learned by serving others.

The kids will be hearing about a children's center in Afghanistan where 250 poor kids get a quality education, a hot meal every day, and learn French bakery skills.

The kids here will be collecting warm socks to send to the Afghan boys and girls, and also be seeking contributions to buy simple roller skates and other recreational equipment. Each child in the center has a tragic story to tell, but they now have a chance for a better life.

Gifts from children in Quincy will show them that they are valued and prayed for.

For more information call 617-328-8771 or visit www.squantumcf.org for a registration form.

The fee is $25 per child or $35 per family. All children must be pre-registered by July 1.

Carole Neitlich
Founding Board Member Of DOVE

A service for Carole Neitlich, of Stoughton, formerly of Quincy, was conducted June 29 at Ahavath Torah Congregation, Stoughton.

Mrs. Neitlich died June 27 at the Golden Living Center in Norwood.

She received her Bachelor's degree from the Eliot-Person Department of Child Study at Tufts University and a Master's degree in Education from Wheelock College. After finishing her formal education, she spent 33 years teaching in the Jewish Community Centers of Greater Boston.

She began at the JCC in Quincy, where she became the Regional Director of Early Childhood Education and eventually moved to the Striar Jewish Community Center in Stoughton.

During her time as director, she oversaw the region's three preschool programs, founded the Striar Center's transitional kindergarten program, and began the Ledgewood Special Needs Unit of the JCCs of Greater Boston. She also initiated the Department of Early Childhood at Quincy College where she taught several evening classes.

She played an active role in the community; she was a part of serving as vice chair of the Mayor's Commission on the Family as well as a member of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, both in Quincy. She was involved with community organizations such as Rosie's Place and the Pine Street Inn in Boston, Project

Helpline and MainSpring House in Brockton.

Mrs. Neitlich also helped start a newborn home-visiting program in Quincy as well as a parent-child early intervention literacy program. Furthermore, she was a founding board member of DOVE, Inc., a shelter for domestic violence.

Her commitment to her Jewish faith and family values resonated most strongly with her unconditional patience and love for her own family. She developed and ran workshops and conferences for parents and families to learn about and discuss fathering, mothering and interfaith relationships. Her work has impacted over two generations of students and families directly and has created a sustainable systemic change in the early childhood education of Greater Boston and Massachusetts. She left a legacy that will last beyond her place in education and beyond her life.

Wife of the late Herbert L. Neitlich and for the last three years Phillip Chapman; mother of Dana Neitlich and Howard Levy, Russell and Colleen Neitlich and Drs. Jeffrey and Tyler Neitlich; grandmother of Samara, Yakira, Russell, Michael, Nathan, Ariel and Joshua; sister of Roberta Bernstein and the late Herbert Goldberg.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)
You clever Ewes and Rams love nothing more than to rise to a challenge. So, by all means, if you feel sure about your facts, step right up and defend your side of the issue.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)
You've done some great work recently. Now it's time to reward yourself with something wonderful, perhaps a day at a spa or a night out with someone very special.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)
You love to talk, but don't forget to make time to do a little more listening, otherwise you could miss out on an important message someone might be trying to send you.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22)
Your aspect indicates some uncertainty about one of your goals. Use this period of shifting attitudes to reassess what you really want and what you're ready to do to get it.

LEO (July 23 to August 22)
Your social life is picking up, and you'll soon be mingling with old friends and making new ones. But 'twixt the fun times, stay on top of changing workplace conditions.

VIRGO (August 23 September 22)
A trusted friend offers understanding as you vent some long-pent-up feelings. Now, move on from there and start making the changes you've put off all this time.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22)
You might well feel uneasy as you face a difficult situation involving someone close to you. But you know you're doing the right thing, so stick with your decision.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21)
You're a good friend to others. Now's the time to allow them to be good friends to you. Rely on their trusted advice to help you get through an uncertain period.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21)
Family and friends are always important, but especially so at this time. Despite your hectic workplace schedule, make a real effort to include them in your life.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19)
That project you've been working on is almost ready for presentation. But you still need some information from a colleague before you can consider it done.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18)
Don't let those negative attitudes that have sprung up around you drain your energies. Shrug them off, and move ahead with the confidence that you can get the job done.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20)
Aspects favor some dedicated fun time for the hard-working Piscean. A nice, refreshing plunge into the social swim can recharge your physical and emotional batteries.

BORN THIS WEEK: You love to travel and be with people. You probably would be happy as a social director on a cruise ship.

How Early Quincy Celebrated The Fourth - 136 Years Ago

Here's a look back at how the City of Quincy celebrated Independence Day in 1876 - 136 years ago this week. The year 1876 marked the centennial signing of the Declaration of Independence July 4, 1776.

Hancock and Washington Streets were literally alive with people in the glare of the new calcium lights, tended with infinite care by Supt. Nathan A. Brickett in the belfry of First Parish Church.

Particularly the fine decorations were noted at the homes of the leather merchant E.B. Pratt on Hancock near Adams St., where the trees were hung with gaily colored lanterns and Deputy Sheriff Washington M. French on Washington near Temple St.

As the clock struck midnight, cannons roared and the flag went up the pole at the Hose House on Washington St. amid the rockets red glare and the Fire Company sang the Star Spangled Banner under the direction of Galen Bowditch, the expressman.

It was July 3, 1876, in Quincy, the eve of the Centennial of American Independence.

Independence Day, 100 years after, began at sunrise with the ringing of church bells and a salute fired from 50 guns.

The parade formed at 5 a.m. on the new road that ran from the Poorhouse on Sea St. to Greenleaf St. and, shortly after 6 a.m., the marchers stepped off down Greenleaf led by Wash French and a platoon of mounted police.

Chief Marshal Edward Whicher was at the head of the line in a chariot drawn by four horses and the First Division featured a float with a large axe marked: "Father, I cannot tell a lie. I did it with my little hatchet."

The parade wound down Greenleaf to Hancock to South Quincy, turning at the corner of Water and Pleasant Sts., thence to Quincy Ave. and Washington St., and back to the Square to disband at the Stone Temples.

The main event took place in a 115-foot by 85-foot tent pitched in a field off Granite St. across from the home of the late Capt. Lewis Bass. The audience was admitted at 1:30 p.m. and soon the 1,000 seats were filled.

James H. Slade, a stenographer from Quincy Point, presided and the Declaration of Independence was read by six selected grammar school girls: Nettie Crocker, Alice Spear, Amanda Sylvester, Ida Paine, Nettie Penny and Nettie Randlett.

By the time Charles Francis Adams Jr. began the opening address, a general review of the history of Quincy, it was sweltering hot and the audience was restless when School Dept. Col. Francis W. Parker rose to deliver a history of the city's public schools.

The speech-making droned on into the early evening, for what would the Fourth of July be like without the oratory of the Rev. Reginald Howe of Christ Church, Prof. William R. Dimmock of Adams Academy and Josiah Quincy.

The biggest applause of the day, undoubtedly, went to the Rev. Edward Norton and Insurance man Charles H. Porter, who announced they would not speak but gave texts of their orations to be printed in the weekly paper, the Patriot.

The oratory ended, mercifully, at 6:40 p.m. and everyone adjourned to the Fireworks Grounds at the rear of the railroad station in South Quincy for a band concert at sunset and a display of fireworks after dark.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN

"Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer 3 consecutive days, and then you must publish and it will be granted to you. Lady

Retiring 'Old Glory' At Proper Flag Disposal Ceremony

AMERICAN FLAGS are deemed unserviceable after an inspection by Marc Connolly, commander of the Quincy Veterans Council. The flags were properly disposed at a ceremony held outside the Quincy Lodge of Elks and sponsored by the Quincy Veterans Council with assistance by Quincy Boy Scouts of America. Holding the flags are Life Scout Paul Trybiano (left) and Tender Foot Lucien Theberge, both of Troop 42. Assisting is Sgt.-at-Arms Richard Keene.

AN UNSERVICEABLE FLAG is disposed of by burning by Thomas Stansbury, director of Quincy Veterans Services. Saluting is Marc Connolly, commander of the Quincy Veterans Council and Color Guard of the Sons of the American Legion Squadron 294 led by Commander Paul Moody.

Visitors Up At Historical Sites Election, Events, Adams Interest Boost Tourism

By SCOTT JACKSON

Visitors at Quincy's historic sites might notice a big change this year — more tourists.

The Adams National Historical Park has had over 60,000 visitors so far this year, according to the park's Deputy Supt. Caroline Keinath. That's 30 percent more than at the same time last year. She attributes the increase to the presidential election, which she says boosts people's interest in politics.

"Being an election year has something to do with it," Keinath said. "People are interested in the history and the art of politics and just interested in the process."

Politics aren't the only thing drawing up interest. Keinath said numerous events held at the site's properties have drawn in additional visitors. Those events include a special lecture held on John Quincy Adams' role in negotiating the Treaty of Ghent, and activities on Bunker Hill Day, which fell on Father's Day this year and drew in

Police Crack Down On Crosswalk Violations

Quincy police are cracking down on crosswalk violations to help improve pedestrian safety in the city.

For four hours on weekdays, officers are setting up sting operations in crosswalks throughout the city, according to Police Capt. John Dougan. A plainclothes officer will look both ways and enter a crosswalk safely, while another officer sits nearby ready to stop any driver who doesn't yield to the plainclothes officer.

Drivers who fail to yield can be cited with a crosswalk violation, which brings a $200 fine. A warning could also be issued at the discretion of the officers on scene.

The sting operations, funded by a state grant, started July 2 and will last between two and three weeks. Dougan said the operations have been "too successful" so far because of the number of tickets issued. On the first day alone, 12 citations were issued in four hours.

While this campaign is targeting drivers who fail to yield at crosswalks, Dougan said pedestrians still need to do a better job of allowing vehicles enough time to stop at crosswalks.

"This is for pedestrians, too," Dougan said. "Sometimes pedestrians just walk in front of cars. They need to give [motorists] enough time to stop."

Public Hearing Wednesday On Fire Chief Selection

An independent panel of firefighters conducted interviews this week to determine whom Quincy's next fire chief will be as part of a process ordered by the State Civil Service Commission.

Alexandria, VA Fire Chief Adam Thiel chaired the panel. Joining him are San Antonio Fire

Chief Charles N. Hood and retired Buffalo Battalion Chief Michael Lombardo. The city paid Arizona-based Facets Consulting $12,000 to put together the panel.

The panel interviewed Provisional Chief Joseph Barron and Deputy Chief Gary Smyth yesterday (Wednesday) and today (Thursday). Additionally, a public meeting was held Wednesday night at 7 p.m. in the Park Department's community room at 1 Merrymount Parkway.

The interviews themselves were closed to the public. Mayoral spokesman Chris Walker said that decision was made by the consultant and not the city.

"The firm that the city hired has given no indication that [the interviews] would be (open to the public)," Walker said Tuesday.

Walker said the city has abided by the Civil Service Commission's ruling and taken a hands-off approach to the process. The only support Quincy has given Facets is technical and logistical support, such as booking space for the public meeting.

But the chairman of the City Council's Public Safety Committee, Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, said Facets should have allowed the interviews to take place in public. He cited the lengthy legal wrangling over Barron's appointment.

Local Teen Parents Win Award

Two local teen parents were recently honored by the Brigham and Women's Hospital Center for Community Health & Health Equity.

The parents – Cassandra Walsh and Kevin Failla – were recognized for their strength and determination in overcoming many obstacles of teen parenthood and being role models for other teen parents.

They were presented "The Young Families Moving Forward Award" at a day long conference entitled "Summit for Teen Empowerment, Progress, and Parenting Success" – STEPPS at Northeastern University. Over 120 teen parents attended this second annual conference which was co-sponsored by the Massachusetts Alliance on Teen

Sea Street Among 10 Roads To Be Repaved

By SCOTT JACKSON

Paving on Sea Street and nine other city roads will take place this summer after Quincy received $1.9 million in Chapter 90 funds.

The funds had been tied up as part of a dispute between the state Senate and House of Representatives over a larger transportation bill. The dispute was resolved late last month and the state released the money last Tuesday.

Paving on Sea Street began Monday, according to Public Works Commissioner Dan Raymondi. He said the portion of Sea Street in Houghs Neck that will be repaved was in dire need of repaving, especially after a water main under the street was replaced last summer.

"This is a reconstruction project that was long overdue," Raymondi told the Sun.

The other streets that will be repaved are Quincy Point's Massachusetts Avenue and Hannah, Beechwood, and Follett Streets; Governors Road in West Quincy, Pratt Road in Squantum, Douse Road in Wollaston, Conant Road in North Quincy, and portions of Samoset Avenue in Merymount. Like Sea Street, many of those roads had water mains replaced last year, though some didn't.

Raymondi said all the roadwork will be completed by the time the construction season ends later this year. The city had already reached an agreement with a contractor to begin the repaving, but nothing could be done until the Chapter 90 money was in place.

"Unfortunately the funding delayed us," Raymondi

Chapter 90 funds are distributed using a formula based on road mileage within a community, population, and employment. The city received roughly the same amount this year as it has in prior years.

But unlike previous years, Raymondi expects to have about $100,000 in surplus Chapter 90 funds after this year's construction season comes to a halt. That money would be used for sidewalk repair, allowing the work to begin in next spring before the next fiscal year starts in July 2013.

The budget for this fiscal year that started July 1 included an extra $250,000 for sidewalk repair, and Raymondi said his department has made tremendous progress so far.

Keenan Bill Aimed At Double Utility Poles

Sen. John Keenan wants to give cities and towns throughout Massachusetts the ability to fine utility companies who don't remove double poles promptly.

Under current state law, utilities have up to 90 days to remove double poles. But double poles often stay in place for years because municipalities can't enforce the law, according to Keenan.

To the end, Keenan is co-sponsoring Senate Bill 1654 which allows communities to fine companies up to $200 a day for each double pole that isn't removed quickly enough. The bill has been stuck in committee for a year-and-a-half, and Keenan sent a letter urging the committee to vote on it.

"Our cities and towns currently have little recourse to deal with what is a clear violation of state law," Keenan wrote in a letter to the chairmen of the Joint Committee on Telecommunications, Utilities, and Energy. "I support Senate Bill 1654 because it finally gives municipalities the authority to enforce the law, by allowing them to levy a $200 a day fine against utility companies who violate the law."

The committee did put together a special panel to review the bill. That panel recommended creating a statewide database of double poles and the creation of a special task force to suggest oversight regulations. But Keenan isn't in favor of either change.

"Simply allowing cities and towns to enforce the law by way of fining utilities, as provided for in Senate Bill 1654, is the most common-sense way to address this problem," Keenan said.

There are 200 double poles in Quincy alone, according to Keenan. The City Council, led by Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, held hearings on double poles last fall. Palmucci, who served with Keenan on the Council, voiced support for this bill Monday in a phone interview.

"I'm absolutely supportive of that," Palmucci said, "100 percent supportive of that."

Though Palmucci supports the bill, he said he was disappointed it would take an act of the legislature for utilities to start removing double poles.

Representatives of both National Grid and Verizon attended the council hearings last fall; the two share ownership of each pole and Verizon is responsible for removing and replacing poles within Quincy. There was an agreement at the time that they'd work with the city to remove double poles quicker. Palmucci said he's noticed that double poles, or in one case a triple pole, are starting to come down in his West Quincy ward.

"It's a result of us holding their feet to the fire," Palmucci said.

During the council session that ended in December, Palmucci proposed a series of ordinances dubbed the 'Utility Responsibility Package,' part of which would fine the owner of double poles. He reintroduced it this year and expects the council to take up the issue again when it reconvenes in the fall.

The Legislature's session ends July 31. Matters can still be taken up after that date, but they would require a unanimous vote to be approved.

Quincy Masons Moving From Masonic Temple

Group Hopes To Remain In City

By EMILY TAFT

After over 85 years of residing at 1170 Hancock St. and over five years of discussion, the Quincy Masons have decided to move to a different location.

"It has been a very painful decision," said board member David Smith. "We are hoping to find another place in Quincy, but we are still looking around and have a couple in mind."

The Quincy Masonic Temple is a Neoclassical building with three floors. Features include a theater/ballroom, three separate lodge rooms, elaborate anterooms, and an oak-paneled library.

Smith said that they are trying to sell the Quincy Center landmark building for $3 million and have already had three offers on the price. Paying for the temple, which is a meeting place for Masonic groups, has become something that cannot be done anymore according to Smith, which ultimately was the deciding factor in selling the building. Smith said that the number of members and Masonic organizations have decreased in the past few years making it difficult to maintain the building expenses.

Since its inception, the Masons organization has had over 12 U.S. Presidents as members. When the organization first began those interested in joining had to ask a member if they could become a member. Now the organization is advertising in hopes to recruit more members.

"If you wanted to be a masonry you had to ask," said Vice President of the board David Elsner. "Now, for the past 15 years, because of the decline in membership we are advertising asking for members."

Each year, the organization helps with charity work throughout the city, including donating around $15,000 to children in need in the Quincy Public School system, donating to Shriners Burn Institute, the armed forces, and last year they donated a handicapped bus to the school system. The organization also helped set up a child identification program, and put EpiPens and defibrillators in all Quincy public schools within the past 10 years.

"We take care of our own, which includes the community," said Elsner. "We stay active in the community by strengthening the community in a positive way. We are quite involved in the community. We try to take good men and make them better."

The three organizations that reside at 1170 Hancock St. will be going their separate ways, according to Elsner. The Macedonian Lodge and the Milton Lodge will be looking to move outside of the Quincy area while the Rural Lodge is hoping to stay somewhere in Quincy.

"When the organization started it was one of the only sources of entertainment," said Elsner. "Now as times have changed so haven't the sources of entertainment."

Elsner said that the different groups meet once a month, while other fraternal organizations rent out the building the rest of the time. Due to the decline in memberships, the rental fees had to be raised, and Elsner said that because of the rise in prices those groups and organizations that did rent the space decided to rent elsewhere for a cheaper price.

"We are suffering from the same thing as everyone else is," said Elsner. "As times have changed so have values and what people do."

The future of where the members will meet when the building is sold is still uncertain, according to Elsner. He said they may rent or buy but wherever they end up, Elsner said, they will make sure it is somewhere in Quincy.

QUINCY MASONIC TEMPLE, 1170 Hancock St., Quincy, is for sale. The Quincy Masons plan to move to a new location. The building is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Electric Chair May Have Sparked Fire

An electric chair is being investigated as the cause of a house fire at 144 Pine St., Wollaston during the afternoon of July 4th.

According to Quincy Deputy Fire Chief Gary Smyth, the cause is still under investigation but it appears that it started with a chair that has some type of electric system installed in it.

"It appears the fire started in an enclosed porch where the electric chair was and went unnoticed until the windows blew out and that's when the neighbors reported it," said Smyth. "I believe the damage is around $250,000 which is a total loss."

The fire was reported around 2:30 p.m. and was under control about an hour later, Smyth said.

"When we arrived, there was heavy fire on both floors of the house," said Smyth. "There was no one home at the time, and no civilians or firefighters were injured during the incident."

Smyth said due to the humidity and high temperatures that afternoon, Fallon Ambulance was on the scene along with other volunteer groups to provide water and Gatorade to firefighters. He also said that firefighters rotated in and out to prevent dehydration because of the high humidity and high temperatures.

There was some damage to a neighboring house due to radiating heat from the fire. The heat caused the siding to melt, and Smyth said firefighters went in with a thermal detector to check for any flames that may have started due to the heat contact.

Fire crews had the blaze under control by 3:30 p.m. and left around 5 p.m. The Red Cross was there for the family if they needed assistance.

Medal Remembers 'Forgotten War' Vet

Gone but not forgotten. You can say that about Al Trotman who has many fond memories of his late brother, Robert, who died in a prisoner of war camp during the Korean War.

And you can also say that about the U.S. Army that recently notified Al that Robert, an Army sergeant who was also a decorated veteran of World War II, had been issued posthumously the Republic of Korea War Service Medal in recognition of his service in the Korean War.

Alfred received the medal in the mail earlier this year - more than 60 years after Robert went missing.

"I was shocked. I couldn't believe it," Al said in a recent interview. "I've moved around a bit from Boston to Shrewsbury to Quincy and I couldn't believe the Army is still interested in this and doing these things for the families of deceased veterans."

"They're trying to do something right," he continues. "It shows the Army does care. My brother was never found and he never came home. But they didn't give up giving him the proper tribute he deserves."

The service medal was designed and initially issued by the Republic of Korea in appreciation for the service and sacrifice of nearly two million Americans during that brutal war that began June 27, 1950 and ended July 27, 1953 - 59 years ago this month.

In a letter to Al about his brother's medal, Col. Jason T. Evans, the Army's Adjutant General, said the medal "is especially appropriate for those who remain unaccounted to continue to receive recognition for their sacrifices. . . We are honored to present this medal to you on behalf of your loved one. The U.S. Army will never forget Sergeant Robert C. Trotman's sacrifice for this nation."

Al Trotman is 83 - the last of seven brothers. He and his wife Patricia have lived in Quincy for 20 years. He grew up in Boston and later owned Al's Variety on Babcock Street in Houghs Neck for about seven years some time ago.

He had six brothers - two of whom served in the military during World War II. One brother, George Trotman, served under Gen. George S. Patton.

His other brother, Robert, enlisted in the Army Dec. 8, 1941 - the day after the Japanese sneak attacked U.S. naval vessels at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. He was stationed in Germany and was wounded in combat and received the Purple Heart.

After World War II, Robert remained in the service. He was doing police work helping to transport prisoners but then asked to be transferred to Japan for a change of scenery.

"He volunteered to go to Japan. He wanted to see the countryside. He saw all of Europe while serving during World War II. He figured he'd like to see what Japan was like," Al explains.

"On the way to Japan, the war in Korea broke out. As soon as that happened, they shipped him off to Korea," Al says. "We got three letters from him. He said in one letter that Korea was nothing but death, valley to valley."

The casualties and conditions were terrible, he told his family.

"They were the worst he had ever seen," Al says. "Robert said Germany was never like this (during World War II)."

He also wrote a letter saying he had a soldier - maybe 17 or 18 - under his command. He thought the boy was too young to be in harm's way.

"He told us he wanted him out of there. That was the last we heard from him until the War Department notified us he had been taken prisoner."

Robert had only been in Korea for about a couple of months before his family was notified he was a POW.

The news devastated the family. Their mother, Eva, had a heart attack upon hearing the news and later passed away. Their dad, Fred, owned a grocery store in Boston and after work he'd come and sit in front of the television waiting for news bulletins on the names of prisoners being released.

AL TROTMAN of Quincy holds the Republic of Korea War Service Medal presented posthumously to his brother, Robert, who died while serving during the Korean War.

"He'd watch to see if Robert's name would come up. Nothing. It was hard for the family," Al says.

News on Robert's whereabouts was scarce. After the war, the family was notified that he had died in a prison camp from malnutrition.

"That's what the Army told us," Al says. "We never got a body. . . We really don't know everything that happened."

He presumes his brother was buried in a mass grave with other deceased POWs.

A memorial service was held for Robert at the Salvation Army at the old Boston Palace Corps in Boston.

"It was a nice service for him," Al says.

That was more than 60 years ago.

The family hadn't heard anything about Robert until Al received the letter and medal in January.

Al says the medal doesn't bring closure to his brother's life because the circumstances of his death are still a mystery. But the medal does lend some comfort knowing Robert's sacrifice serving his country has not been forgotten.

"The medal shows the Army does care," he says.

Robert, Al says, was a rugged fellow. "He was a tough guy. He was the head honcho of a group of guys who hung around the South End (in Boston)."

He has many fond, funny stories from when they were kids together.

For instance, one day while Al and some of his friends were playing in the street a motor vehicle tried to travel down the same street.

"When we were kids we played in the street and the street was closed. But one day this car started coming down the street towards us. The kids had to get out of the way because we were playing."

"My brother saw the car coming and ran in front of the car. He made the guy stop and turn around and go back the other way."

"Robert told him, 'get outta here.'"

The motorist tried to explain what he was doing but Robert would hear none of it.

"Get out of here," Robert repeated.

"He was tough but we got along good," Al says today.

"Those days are gone. All you have are memories."

And now, thanks to the Army, recognition and a permanent keepsake that Robert Trotman's sacrifice serving his country will never be forgotten.

SUGGESTION: Move the "No Left Turn" sign from the sidewalk next to the Bank of American building on Chestnut Street across the street to below the stop sign on the corner of Chestnut Street and Maple Street.

The present position is poor visibility and motorists unfamiliar with the "no left turn" from Chestnut to Hancock Street have been seen taking this left, creating a dangerous situation for motorists and pedestrians alike.

And, while someone is at it, how about installing a "Maple Street" sign at this corner? The sign is missing.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1910 postcard view of the Cranch School on Maywood and Whitwell Streets near the Quincy Hospital (today, Quincy Medical Center). It was built from the same architectural plans as the Massachusetts Fields and Gridley Bryant School buildings. It was one of the few Quincy schools that never had an addition and it remains pretty much like this view except that it was sold by the city and converted into condominiums in the 1980's. The school was named for Richard Cranch, who owned a large farm here in colonial days. He was married to

Abigail Adams' sister and it was he who proposed the name Quincy for the new town established here in 1792. Colonel John Quincy for whom the town was named was his wife's grandfather. The farm and all the other land on this hill eventually became part of the Adams family properties that were sold and divided into house lots in the 1890's, creating the need for this school. Streetcar Tracks Aid War Effort Purchasing Agent John T. Lane announced at least 170 tons of old street car rails will be removed from Quincy streets this summer and turned over to the U.S. Government scrap drive.

Lane said the city will receive $14 a ton for the metal, more than $2,000 in all, which will be dug up by Works Progress Administration (WPA) workers and removed by private contractors.

Most of the rails will come from the old Squantum route, traversed Atlantic from Quincy Shore Boulevard to Hancock Street via Sagamore, Newbury, Billings and East Squantum Streets until ten years ago.

Others will be salvaged from Quincy Ave, near Scammell Street and from Farrington Street, Wollaston.

OLDEST VET DIES

Frederick J. Watson, 81, a retired Navy petty officer who was the oldest legionnaire in the city, died at his home, 137 Bryant Ave., West Quincy.

Watson, who spent 36 years in the Navy serving in the Spanish American War and World War II, was a member of the John A. Boyd Camp, USWV, and a charter member of the Quincy Legion Post.

AID RAID TEST "SATISFACTORY"

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin pronounced the city's surprise daylight test air raid "highly satisfactory."

"Traffic stopped almost immediately and seconds after the siren sounded there was no one in the streets as far as one could see on Hancock Street."

A Student's Tribute To Teacher Miss Julie Callahan

I remember every teacher I have had; they were all special in their own way.

There was one teacher in particular who will always stay close to my heart. Her name was Miss Julie Callahan. She taught first and second grade at St. Agatha's School in Milton. I had her for both grades.

Miss Callahan was a smart, funny, entertaining, and exciting teacher. I remember I was her favorite student (she used to tell me so). I have so many happy memories of Miss Callahan's class.

Some of my memories are very funny. I remember one day we were having a contest for who could eat an oreo the fastest. There was a certain way you had to eat the oreo (cream first). It was hard not to laugh!

Then there was Halloween when Miss Callahan would dress up in a St. Agatha school student uniform. Miss Callahan would joke with me all the time. I learned so much from her. I liked how she taught math.

One day she was teaching us that 3 + 5 was the same as 5 + 3. Then she tipped Matthew upside down to show that it didn't matter what order Matthew was in, we still had the same Matthew. Everyone was laughing, including Matthew, and we never forgot the commutative property of math. Miss Callahan liked teaching about God and singing religious songs. I loved to sing too, so that was something we had in common. Mostly I remember that Miss Callahan really liked me. Even when I was no longer a student in her classroom, Miss Callahan was always there for me, until that dreadful day.

The day Miss Callahan found out she had cancer, I was in the 4th grade. My classmates and I didn't believe it. We thought it was a rumor. Miss Callahan was so healthy, or so we thought.

One day, I asked her, "Do you have cancer?" I do not remember her reply, but I felt bad for asking. I remember my mom told me not to feel bad about asking her that question because I was just a little girl who was worried about her teacher. Soon afterwards, Miss Callahan couldn't come to school. The kids at school were a little worried, but we didn't really know what was going on. We didn't suspect anything too serious.

I will never forget the day Miss Callahan died. One of my classmates, a boy, overheard the teachers talking about Miss Callahan's death. I didn't want to believe the boy's comment.

When I got home though, my mom told me the devastating news. Miss Callahan died of cancer. She was only 49. My mom and I cried for a long time. I was really upset!

I was so close to Miss Callahan. She was a loving and fun person. I went to her funeral. I just cried and cried into my mother's shoulder. It was very sad. The next day there was school. The school looked like it always did, but St. Agatha's would never be the same without Miss Callahan.

I am now 14 years old and I go to another school. I have had many great teachers since I left Miss Callahan's classroom in second grade. Miss Callahan is still my favorite teacher. I have a plant, a Christmas cactus, that belonged to Miss Callahan.

After Miss Callahan died, another teacher, Mrs. Athas, gave me the plant. Mrs. Athas said she knew Miss Callahan would want me to have this plant. I have taken good care of the Christmas cactus for four years. The cactus has bloomed every year - beautiful, bright pink blossoms. They remind me of Miss Callahan's lively spirit.

Maybe someday, the Christmas cactus will die too, but I know that the love Miss Callahan gave me will live on in my heart forever.

This Year's Theme: 'Get To Work!'

In Sync Center Of The Arts 16th Annual Recital Weekend

Milton High School was a frenzy of glitter, bobby pins, and tights at In Sync Center of the Arts recent 16th annual recital weekend.

A total of seven recitals were held during the weekend, with five "mini" recitals on Saturday and two "full" recitals on Sunday.

The "mini" shows featured dancers in preschool through 2nd grade. The "full" recitals showcased dancers in grades 3-12.

This year's theme was "Get To Work!" and dancers danced to "She Works Hard for the Money," "Heigh Ho," "Workin' 9 to 5," and many other working themed songs.

During the "mini" recitals, all dancers were brought on stage prior to perform and received a pep talk from the owner, Teri Mangiaratti, to calm their nerves before their final performance of the year. Of course, all nerves were calmed as soon as the children saw their parents waving and cheering them on from the audience.

One great part of the "mini" recitals was the annual father-daughter routine. This year, the dancers and their fathers danced to "Mr. Mom." The routine was truly unforgettable, with fathers donning aprons and tossing baby dolls.

"The father-daughter routine is always a big hit," Mangiaratti said. "They are always so proud to take the stage with their daughters, and we're so happy to give them that memory."

As In Sync wraps up another successful year, they are also welcoming aboard some new staff.

Among the new faces is Starleen Baylon, a local school teacher and dance instructor. Baylon is also beginning a Dance Therapy Master's Program at Lesley University this coming September.

Also new to the staff is Alison Palmucci, who will be teaching the In Sync art classes. She holds a B.A. in art and psychology from Hartwick College, and has taught all throughout Haverhill, Hingham, and Quincy.

In Sync is also welcoming back alumni Mary Quigg, who graduated from In Sync in 2011. During her time at In Sync, she danced the title role in the ballet show, Cinderella, as well as competed on the In Sync Dance Company. They are all excited to join the In Sync community and will be joining the staff of instructors this September.

In Sync also announces week-long programs are being held this summer.

Harry And Irene Messina Celebrating 60th Anniversary

Harry and Irene (Bunny) Messina of North Quincy will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary with their children and grandchildren Thursday, July 19.

Harry and Irene are the parents of the late Jackie Messina, the late David Messina, Paul and Claire Messina of Randolph, Carole and Paul Gallo of Hampton, NH; Mark and Jacinta Messina of Nashua, NH; and Scott and Debbie Messina of Plymouth.

They also have eight grandchildren: David and Michael Messina, Taylor and Brett Gallo, Marquis and Jackie Messina, Emily and Alyson Messina.

Harry and Irene were both born in South Boston and graduated from South Boston High School. Harry will be 84 in September. Irene recently celebrated her 80th birthday.

They have lived in North Quincy for over 54 years.

Harry is a retired General Foreman from the City of Boston. He played football for the South Boston Chieftains and is in the South Boston Football Hall of Fame as well as the North Quincy Hockey Hall of Fame as a friend of the program. He is a former president of Quincy Youth Hockey.

Irene is a retired pharmacist's assistant from CVS and is an avid bowler and long-time Red Sox and baseball fan.

They both enjoyed watching their children participate in sports and perform in the arts and now spend time doing the same with their grandchildren.

HAPPY MILESTONE - Harry and Irene (Bunny) Messina of North Quincy will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary

July 19. At right, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Messina walk down the aisle after being married in St. Bridget's Church in South Boston July 19, 1952.

A Loving Tribute to Their Parents Harry & Irene (Bunny) Messina From Their Children - July 19, 2012

Sixty years ago on a Saturday morning at St. Brigid's Church in South Boston, MA, Joseph and Mary Feeney gave the hand of their daughter Irene to Harry Messina, son of Harry and Laura Messina. Sixty years later your children would like to tell you that your parents would be so proud. Friends, companions, Husband & Wife
A time now to celebrate 60 years of life,

Sharing the joys of marriage and parenthood,
While reaching a pinnacle that not many would,

There were days of sorrow and pain to endure,
Enough to say Lord, we cannot take any more,

But with commitment to family and faith in God above,
You filled our lives with conditional and everlasting love,

A better friend, Uncle/Aunt or Grandparent, anyone ever had
All that pales in comparison to your job as Mom & Dad.

Happy Anniversary from Paul & Claire, Carole & Paul,
Mark & Jacinta, Scott and Debbie

Town Brook Should Be Seen 'In All Its Glory'

Thank you for printing the incredible Town Brook article written so well by Pat Artis, president of Wollaston Garden Club and a longtime advocate for the day lighting of the Town Brook. I could just close my eyes, see and hear the babbling brook. And the poem, wasn't that lovely?

Pat has such a vision and has inspired others to join her in trying to reason with "the powers to be" to make the investment now while the opportunities are presenting themselves during the redevelopment of the downtown to truly open the brook to residents in the actual downtown, not along a busy new roadway.

Street Works and the City can pat themselves on the back, invite state officials, pose for photos and try to convince the citizens of Quincy that this is a wonderful idea but the facts speak loudly and clearly that the Mass Works Grants is not being spent wisely.

We deserve to see the brook in all its glory run through our city as nature intended. Now is the time to correct mistakes made by past administrations. There are those who say the project shows residents who expressed concerns over the downtown that the project shows residents who expressed concerns over the downtown that the project is coming to fruition. Hold on a minute. A project, not the Town Brook project as envisioned by forward thinking citizens like Pat Artis, Laura Innis, Steve Perdios and others.

The state Department of Environmental Protection allowed the city to use its preferred route. That does not say it is the best route.

I commend the Quincy Environmental Network for the lawsuit they have filed to block the project. We will all benefit from their tireless efforts to right this wrong.

Quincy Beach Groups Receive $1,000 Grants

Quincy groups have been awarded $2,000 in grants from the non-profit organization Save the Harbor/Save the Bay to support summer beach activities.

The Friends of Wollaston Beach has received $1,000 to support the sixth annual Kids Fest this summer and the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission has received $1,000 to support Pumpkin Fest in the fall.

In addition to the grant, Save the Harbor/Save the Bay also gave each group 22 one-inch diameter blue marbles to scatter on their respective beaches. Anyone who finds one of these marbles between now and the end of the summer will be entered into a drawing to win one of five prizes of 40,000 TrueBlue points from JetBlue Airways.

Marie's Kitchen

Suzanne's Drunken Chicken

My son Jim recently called me from New York, and told me about a delicious chicken dinner his wife Suzanne had made for Father's Day.

The next day, she gave me the recipe for grilled drunken chicken. I thought I knew almost all chicken recipes until I read this one.

DRUNKEN CHICKEN

1 can beer
Salt and pepper
2 teaspoons thyme butter for rubbing the chicken
Aluminum foil pan

Set the grill from low to medium. Season the chicken with the butter rubbing it under the skin or over. Add the thyme, salt and pepper.

Open the can of beer, and place it inside the foil pan. Set the chicken over the can and grill for about 2-3 hours depending on the size of the chicken. During the grilling, the beer can gets warm and the beer comes out sporadically and gives then chicken a distinctive flavor without the taste of the beer itself

With it she served a mixed array of fresh vegetables-yellow, red, green pepper, red onion and fingerling potatoes. She roasted these in a 350 degree oven, seasoned with salt, pepper and olive oil until done (about 25 minutes.)

Her salad consisted of baby spinach, strawberries and walnuts dressed in olive oil and Balsamic vinegar.

No wonder Jim raved over this dinner!

Apple Custard Pie

One of the desserts I always bake for family events is an apple pie. I've also made apple tarts and turnovers.

Recently I found a great recipe for apple custard pie. It's so different and a wonderful recipe to try.

APPLE CUSTARD PIE

6-8 Granny Smith apples (pared and cored in pieces)
¾ cup sugar
3 tablespoons flour

½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup light cream
Cinnamon for sprinkling

Arrange the apples in a 9-inch unbaked pie shell. In a bowl, mix the sugar, flour salt and stir in the cream. Cook until well blended. Pour the mixture over the apples and sprinkle with cinnamon.

Cover loosely with aluminum foil and bake in a 375 degree oven for one hour.

Remove the foil and bake for another 15 minutes. Serve warm.

Theater Group Offers Free Children's Show

The theater group "Play Around" will perform a free show for children Tuesday, July 17 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

The performance will offer the chance for audience participation and feature the following stories, which are appropriate for children of all ages: "Go to Sleep, Gecko" (based on a Balinese folktale), "Dream Wolf" (based on Native American legends) and the fairytale "The Well at the End of the World."

Play Around is a non-profit organization that provides live theater performances via community outreach. Visit www.playaroundma.com for more information.

YOUR SIGNATURE STYLE

Signet rings may no longer be widely used to validate legal documents with their owners' proprietary stamp, but they are still highly representative of the wearer's individual style. The ancient Romans' signet rings were essential pieces of engraved or intaglio jewelry that served as seals and were also quite decorative. Today, they serve, in effect, as one's signature. When the flat shield affixed to the shank of the ring is decorated with the owner's initial(s) or family crest, it serves as a personal identifier. Not only have signet rings never gone out of style, but they have again become quite popular.

gracing the pinky fingers of men and women alike. Signet rings say something special about those who wear them.

Signet Rings help celebrate life's great moments, whether it be holidays, births, anniversaries, graduations, or even just a gift to yourself. Be a king or queen with your own signet ring. Election, Events, Adams Interest Boost Tourism some 250 people.

"I'm attributing it to not only the day-to-day visitors, but also to special events we've had," Keinath said. "Collectively we've had an opportunity for more people to come."

A majority of visitors to the Adams Park, according to Keinath, live in the United States and most come from Massachusetts. Virginia, another state with its own proud history, has sent the second highest amount of visitors, followed by California, New York, Connecticut, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, and Ohio. Most foreign tourists are from the United Kingdom.

The First United Parish Church is also seeing an increase. Gary Haynes, who oversees the visitors program there, said the church had 1,500 visitors in June. And they've been busy throughout the day.

"When we open the doors at 11 (a.m.)," Haynes said, "it's basically non-stop until we close at quarter of five."

The church is also known as the Church of the Presidents as it houses the bodies of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams, and their wives Abigail and Louisa Catherine. Haynes said having the Adams crypts has been drawing people in to the 184-year old church.

"A lot of it has been from being part of the Adams experience," Haynes said.

The church's tourism has seen of a boost in recent years. Haynes said a 2008 HBO miniseries on John Adams - which won 13 Emmy awards and four Golden Globes - and the 2001 Pulitzer Prize-winning book by David McCullough it was based on, have both driven up tourism.

"There is a very huge interest in John and Abigail," Haynes said. "People have seen the HBO series and read David McCullough's book and they're interested."

Jay Williams, a resident of Houston, TX, is one such visitor who was drawn to Quincy because of its ties to the Adams Family. He and his wife Barbara, and their friends Ron and Ginni Zapf from Indianapolis, IN visited over the weekend. They saw both the United First Parish Church and Adams National Historical Park.

"We selected Quincy primarily for the Adams home sites," Williams said. "The Church of the Presidents was a great bonus and the home sites compared favorably with Monticello and Mt. Vernon, but with a different focus."

Williams also said that while he was drawn to Quincy's history, he didn't imagine the city to be as charming or beautiful as it actually was.

"We have always been interested in the pre- and post-revolutionary history of America, especially presidential information," Williams said. "This area is central to so much of that period, and Quincy is a friendly navigable area to visit. We were not expecting the charm and beauty of the town, and that was a definite plus. I do not think a visit to New England would be complete without a stop

Williams and his friends are far from the first tourists from out of state to stop by the church. So far this year, tourists from every state in the union except for North Dakota have visited, according to Haynes.

Visits down the street from the church at the Quincy Historical Society's museum at the Adams Academy have largely stayed the same, according to Ed Fitzgerald, the museum's executive director. He said the museum's averaged about 20-25 visits a day since Patriots' Day. The monthly average of about 500 visitors is right on par with previous years, though the number of visitors has been steadier with fewer boom or bust days.

Fitzgerald said the numbers have been consistent because more people are interested in solely learning about the Adams family, whereas the museum's exhibit the history of the city as a whole.

"There are a number of people only interested in the Adams site," Fitzgerald said. "People budget their time for the Adams sites and maybe a trip down to Plimoth Plantation."

But Fitzgerald said the museum has attracted people from states as far away as California, New Mexico, and Alaska lately. And while most visitors are from the U.S., they've had tourists from Sweden and even a tour group from Iceland stop by. The feedback from visitors has been largely positive.

This past Saturday was one of four Discover Quincy Days. Fitzgerald said the day was positive for the museum, bringing in 60 visitors. "Discover Quincy Day was quite successful, we had a steady stream of visitors," he said.

The Josiah Quincy House was also featured as part of the Discover Quincy Day. The museum's operations manager, Melinda Huff, said they had 44 visitors in three hours Saturday and have had close to 100 visitors total for both Discover Quincy Days, which are also the only two times the house has been open to the public.

But they've already given six group tours, each of which had at least 15 people in attendance. Huff said the Discover Quincy Days have stirred up interest in the site, leading people to consider arranging tours.

The Dorothy Quincy Homestead had 61 visitors on Saturday, according to Karen Melican. A member of the group that runs the house, the Colonial Dames, Melican said they've 180 people to the homestead on the four days its been open to the public. She said that feels like a slight drop-off from past years, and says the weather is to blame.

"Given the fact that the Saturdays have been so hot or so rainy hurts," Melican said.

Like the Josiah Quincy House, the homestead offers group tours on days when it's not open to the public. To date, Melican said they've had four tours, with a larger one scheduled for later in the summer. Those numbers are pretty consistent with past years.

Charles Phelan New Quincy Lions President

Charles Phelan was installed as the new president of The Quincy Lions Club at its recent installation reception and dinner held at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Other officers are:

Jeff Poirier, first vice president; Lola Tom, second vice president; Sean Glenon, third vice president; Loretta McTiernan, secretary; and Karen Giovann-

CHARLES PHELAN iello, treasurer.

During the installation ceremony, club members thanked outgoing President Donna Muller for her service and welcomed new president Phelan, who also received the club's Lion of the Year Award.

Phelan, a Wollaston resident, is the chief information officer for the City of Quincy. His wife, Michelle Lydon, served as president of the Quincy Lions Club from 2009-2010.

Decision On Hiring Lifeguard At City Pier Expected After Drowning Investigation

The city will not make a decision on hiring lifeguards until after the investigation into the drowning death of a Quincy High senior concludes.

On July 1, Lamar Thompson, an 18-year old Houghs Neck resident, jumped off a city-owned pier near the Quincy Yacht Club and attempted to swim to the boat docks. He made it about halfway when he went underwater because of some sort of distress.

No lifeguard was on duty at the pier, and Mayoral spokesman Chris Walker told the Sun the city is waiting for an investigation to finish before deciding to hire lifeguards.

"The investigation is ongoing," Walker said. "Those sorts of determinations will be made after the investigation."

Walker further added that Quincy has never had lifeguards on duty at the location.

"I would prefer the independent panel to have more of a public process," Palmucci said in a phone interview Monday. "Given the history of the situation it would behoove them to do so."

Mayor Tom Koch named Barron chief in 2008. By choosing Barron, he bypassed Smyth because Smyth edged Barron by one point in the Civil Service ranking. A third candidate, Ed Fenby, actually scored highest on the list but declined the chief's post and was instead named a deputy chief.

Because he was by-passed, Smyth took his case to the Civil Service Commission. In September of last year, the commission found in Smyth's favor and ordered that an independent panel, and not the mayor, should decide between Barron and Smyth.

Walker said that Koch will appoint the candidate the panel chooses, but did not know how long it would take the panel to make its decision.

Social Security Website

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Do your parents spend much time online?

Sometimes older parents can be apprehensive about using the Internet and conducting business online. There is no reason they should be when it comes to Social Security's online services at www.socialsecurity.gov, which are consistently rated not only the best and easiest to use in government, but in the private sector as well.

What are some of the reasons your parents may want to visit www.socialsecurity.gov? Allow us to show you around so you can give Mom and Dad the proper tour.

Front and center, there is always a series of illustrated panels. This is where we share new messages, initiatives, and items of interest, such as breaking news and tips on new or improved online services.

To the right, you'll find a big question mark: that is where you can find our most frequently asked questions — and the answers to them. If your parents have a question about Social Security, chances are someone else had the same question. We have collected them on our website, and it is easy to search for questions on a variety of Social Security topics.

Smack dab in the middle of the page is where you can find press releases and the latest news about Social Security.

To the left of the page you will find our top services. Virtually anything you want to do online can be found here: apply online for retirement, disability or Medicare benefits; get an instant, personalized estimate of future benefits with our online Retirement Estimator; and obtain information about how to get or replace a Social Security card.

One of the hottest new services is getting your Social Security Statement online. Just complete the authentication process, much like the sort you would go through when requesting a credit report online, and you'll be able to set up your online Social Security account. Once you do, you will have online access to your Statement, which includes detailed estimates of future benefits, and a summary of your work history through the years. This is especially helpful for parents who may be planning for retirement.

Our website offers many other services as well, such as online forms and publications, an easy application to apply for Extra Help with Medicare prescription drug costs, icons to our Facebook, Twitter, and YouTube pages, and information categorized by subject matter or by audience.

Take your parents for a visit to www.socialsecurity.gov. It is one small way you can give back to those who have given so much for you.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

OVERDENTURES SUPPORTED BY IMPLANTS

In cases in which a patient cannot tolerate wearing traditional dentures, or bone loss prohibits traditional denture wear, a removable overdenture supported by implant anchors may offer the best solution. This prosthetic treatment begins with the implantation of several titanium anchors in the upper or lower dental arch or both. After five to six implants are anchored into the bone of the upper arch, and/or four or five are inserted into the lower arch, each group of implants is connected by a stabilizing bar. At the appropriate time, a custom-fabricated overdenture is placed over the bar by means of a silicone gasket, which comfortably hold the denture in place as an interface with the implants.

We encourage you to talk to us about oral issues. Your health is our first priority. Preventing dental disease is less costly and more rewarding than correcting the problem once it occurs. We will show you how to care for your teeth. After all, teaching you how to prevent dental disease is our primary goal. We provide quality, personal dental care in a comfortable, immaculate, professional environment at 44 Greenleaf Street. Let us help you bring out that natural smile. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a full trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Implants may serve as stable abutments to bridges and partial dentures.

Children's Programs At Crane Library

By JULIE RINES

Thomas Crane Public Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library announces the following programs for children.

Children's Movie: We're Back a Dinosaur's Story

On Friday, July 13th at 2 p.m. in the Main Library Large Meeting Room join Captain New Eyes as he travels back in time and feeds dinosaurs, Rex, Woog, Elsa and Dweeb, his Brain Grain cereal, which makes them intelligent and non-violent.

They agree to go to the Middle Future (our era) in order to grant the wishes of children in New York City. They are to meet Dr. Bleeb of the Museum of Natural History, but get sidetracked with their new friends, Louie and Cecilia. Then they run into the Captain's evil brother, Professor Screw Eyes, who has other plans for the dinosaurs.

Rated: G, suggested for preschool and older Run time 72 minutes. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library.

Eyes on Owls

On Monday, July 16th at 2 p.m., at the North Quincy Branch Library.

Everyone loves owls! Yet, how many of us have ever seen a live owl up close? Here's your chance.

Join naturalist Marcia Wilson and photographer Mark Wilson in sharing their passion for owls! Who's Watching You? Owls of the World will introduce you to the owls of New England and beyond.

Some owls such as Great Horned, Barred and Eastern Screech Owls are more common than you may think. Boreal owls and Great Gray owls are a rare find here, yet are found on other continents, too.

Others like Snowy Owls, Eurasian eagle owls and familiar Barn Owls feature in popular movies and nature programs.

Mark and Marcia will share the field marks, signs and naturalist's skills that you can use to find wild owls without disturbing them, while introducing you to six live owls up close. Everyone is treated to a hooting lesson, as well as tips on how to attract and protect owls near you.

Adults and children of all ages are welcome but this program is best suited for children ages 5 and older as there is quite a bit of talking about the animals.

While everyone will get to see the birds close up this is not a petting program. No registration is required. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library.

Art-to-Go

Monday, Main Library;

Tuesday, Adams Shore; Wednesday, North Quincy; Thursday, Wollaston.

Drop in from 2 to 4 p.m. - all ages.

Art-to-go is an eight-week series of drop-in art activities that travel throughout Quincy. Supplies for the week's project will be available on Mondays at the Main Library; Tuesdays at Adams Shore; Wednesdays at North Quincy and on Thursdays at Wollaston so stop by anytime from 2 to 4 p.m. and make a craft.

Projects are open ended to accommodate a wide age range. They are easy enough for toddlers and preschoolers to do with an adult's help and free form enough for school age children to add their own personal touch. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library. Week of July 16th - Starry Night Windsocks

Summer Storyteller's Series

On Tuesday, July 17th Play Around Theater Troupe presents Dream Big with Books. Through narration, movement and audience interaction, costumed actors will bring to life three exciting children's stories: Go to Sleep, Gecko by Margaret Read MacDonald, Dream Wolf by Paul Goble, and the folk-tale The Well at the End of the World.

This program for ages 5 and older is full of magic, comedy and audience participation. Sponsored by the Quincy Arts Council.

The Summer Storyteller Series will continue into August with appearances by some of our favorite performers, Storyteller Diane Edgecomb, Magician Mike Bent, the Activated Storytellers and Storyteller Sharon Kennedy so join us on Tuesday evenings for stories, magic and more.

"Let's Play Together" Pajama Storytime

On Wednesday, July 18th at 6:30 p.m. Storyteller Diana Kane of Creative Connection presents "Let's Play Together," pajama storytimes designed especially for children ages 2-5 and their parents.

Every Wednesday evening will be filled with activities for children and adults to do together. Come see Ms. Diana for an hour of interactive stories, partner dances, playing in a band and singing together.

Ms. Diana is a music specialist and storyteller who has prepared a six week program that is designed for adults and children to enjoy stories and songs as a family. This is a great time for you and your children to sing, dance, listen and talk with each other.

This program series will continue on Wednesday evenings until Aug. 15th. This program is sponsored by the Quincy Arts Council.

NQHS Air Force Junior ROTC Competes In Academic Bowl

The competition, held in Washington D.C. on the campus of George Mason University, is sponsored by the Air Force Junior ROTC program and conducted by College Options Foundation.

In the preliminary rounds, the North Quincy High School Air Force JROTC team defeated five of their six opponents, earning a spot in the elite eight, a single elimination tourney for a place in the finals. Each individual match consisted of four fast-paced rounds in which the students were quizzed on their knowledge of English, Math, Science and current events, using SAT/ACT-type questions. The North Quincy team scored very well advancing to the semi-finals.

In the second match, a round of four teams, North Quincy was eliminated by the eventual Air Force champion. North Quincy's team was the only team in the final four who had never competed in the finals round. The team performed brilliantly, but lost in the final phase of a match that was tied entering the final round of questions.

They are to be congratulated and deserve the high praise coming from their coach, Lt. Colonel Greene, the Senior Aerospace Science Instructor in the Air Force Junior ROTC program at North.

"This is an excellent showing by our school, especially considering the team made it to the final four during their first time at the competition," Col. Greene said.

"They performed very well against teams much more experienced. Finishing fourth among 650 competitors worldwide is a great accomplishment."

"Kudos to Cadets Cyril Caparanga, Johnson Fong, Simon Quach and Yvonne Fong. They learned a lot about the competition format and its furious pace. I have no doubt they will use this experience to prepare an excellent team for next year's competition."

The JROTC Leadership Symposium and Academic Bowl is a nationally recognized academic competition created exclusively for JROTC students. By participating, cadets learn the values of citizenship through academic competition. The competition creates tremendous opportunities for JROTC cadets, allowing them to demonstrate their leadership, team building skills and academic abilities.

College Options Foundation is a non-profit organization dedicated to enriching the academic development of high school students and assisting them in their preparation for higher education. Utilizing academic competitions, college exam study guides, college admissions tutorials and personalized counseling, College Options Foundation has assisted the nation's 1.1 million JROTC cadets.

Croall To Hold Coffee Hour Saturday

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall will host a "Talk and Coffee" for constituents Saturday, July 14 from 9 to 10 a.m. at McKay's Breakfast, 144 Franklin St., Quincy. All Ward 2 residents and/or business owners are invited to stop by and discuss issues and share ideas. Coffee will be provided.

Darcy's Pub's Pizza Voted Best In Ward 4 For 3rd Straight Year

Darcy's Pub reined supreme over the competition and was voted as having the best pizza pie in all of Ward Four at the Fourth Annual Palmucci Pizza Challenge.

Darby's was voted top pie for the third straight year.

The annual event hosted by Ward 4 City Councillor Brian Palmucci matches pizza from various eateries throughout South/West Quincy. Competing for the crown of best pizza this year were pies from Copeland Pizza, Spukies, Railroad Café, Unchained Pizza, The Pasta & Pizza Café at the Common Market Food Court and Darcy's Pub.

The recent event was attended by nearly 100 pizza connoisseurs of all ages from throughout the city, each with their own criteria for what comprises the best pizza. After the many votes were tallied, Darcy's Pub

"cooked" the competition, receiving nearly 50 percent of all votes cast in the 'Best Overall Pie' category.

"Darcy's has proven to be king of the hill in West Quincy, yet again, I trust that the others will step up their game for next year" Palmucci said.

How to Cut Mortgage Interest Payments

The average interest rate for home mortgages recently fell to a 30-year record low. According to Freddie Mac, the rate for a 30-year loan went to 3.66 percent from a previous 3.71 percent.

Many potential homebuyers look at that drop in the interest rate and consider it significant. But look at the figures: A $100,000 loan at 3.71 percent will cost you $460.85 per month in payments. A $100,000 loan at 3.66 percent will cost you $458.02 per month in payments.

That's a savings of only $2 per month ... unless you calculate the savings over the life of the loan.

At 3.71 percent, that $100,000 loan will cost you $65,905 in interest alone, which means you'll pay $165,905 over the 30-year course of the loan.

At 3.66 percent that $100,000 loan will cost you $64,888 in interest alone, and you'll pay $164,888 over the thirty years.

That's a savings of just $1,017 spread out over 30 years.

There's a much better way to cut the amount the interest you pay.

What if you send the mortgage company $25 extra per month? Your interest, at the 3.71 rate, drops to $59,207 and you cut a year and a half off your mortgage.

Let's increase that to $100 extra per month. Your interest, at the 3.71 rate, will drop to $45,583 and you'll shave approximately eight years off the life of your 30-year note.

If the idea of paying off your mortgage early appeals to you, let's increase that extra amount per month to $200 and look at the figures. The interest over the life of the loan drops to $35,042, and you pay off the loan 12 years early.

That, not in the tiny drops in interest rate, is where you'll see your greatest savings.

If you're ready to buy, don't quibble about small changes in the interest rate. Do your homework: Get your credit in good shape, assemble your documents (such as tax returns and bank statements) and when it comes to buying, spend less than you've been approved for. Send those extra dollars in with your payment each month and watch your balance drop.

Two Residents On PC Dean's List

Two Quincy students have been named to the Dean's List for the spring semester at Providence College.

They are:

Shannon Galvin, a member of the class of 2015; and Xiaodan Situ, a member of the class of 2013.

in Newton.

"I wanted the knowledge that the CRP credential stands for more than the title itself," said Stevens, who heads the Relocation Division of the Jack Conway Real Estate Company, headquartered in Norwell.

"I learned so much about the U.S. domestic relocation industry and the whole gamut of issues involved in corporate transfers, including third party relocations and global moves. I'm so excited to have my CRP training and designation."

More than 250 candidates were tested across the country on their knowledge of relocation appraising, real estate, corporate mobility policies, tax and legal issues, family moves and relocation strategies. The 2012 Worldwide ERC exam was given in 15 locations throughout the nation.

A Job Well Done

On Wednesday, July 4, at approximately 3:25 a.m., Officers Michael Flaherty, Patrick Folan, Cheryl Potter, Robert Kelly and Patrick McDermott responded to a Washington Street apartment complex on a report of a "Breaking and Entering in progress."

LT. DAN MINTON

While enroute, Quincy Communications radioed that the victim/caller believed the suspect was still in the apartment. Upon arriving at the apartment building, Officer Flaherty observed a female standing outside the main entrance waving her hand in the air attempting to get his attention.

The female, who appeared to be frightened and upset, stated that she just returned home to her ground level apartment and believed that someone was inside. She said that as she approached her main door and unlocked it with a key, the door opened only a few inches because the inside security chain to the door was attached. The lights were also on. She added that she always turns the lights off and the chain guard could only be on if someone was inside. She fled the building and called the Police.

As Officer Flaherty gathered information from the victim/caller, he informed responding Officers of the situation. Officers Folan and McDermott covered the exterior of the building while Officers' Potter and Kelly joined Officer Flaherty checking the interior of the apartment building. The officers first went to the victim's apartment and observed that the door was metal and that the security chain was still on. Officer Flaherty kicked the door in and saw that the room had been ransacked, with drawers emptied out and clothing scattered about the apartment.

The sliding door to the back deck was open along with an open window in the bedroom, appearing to be the point of entry. A search of the apartment indicated that no one was in there. It appeared that the suspect cut the ground level screen to the bedroom, removed the screen and pushed the window up to climb inside. Seconds later, officers posted outside observed a male walk around the corner from the rear of the building. As soon as this male saw the Officers, he turned around and ran, throwing away a backpack. The officers gave chase and as they neared they instructed the suspect to get on the ground. He complied immediately and he was placed into custody. Inside the backpack was a knife. There were also several bottles of perfume, later identified by the victim as hers. After giving the suspect Miranda rights, the suspect was asked if he broke into any other places and he said, "Two - the Quincy Auto School. The auto school door was open, so I went in there."

Officer McDermott asked the suspect what he took from the auto school and the suspect said he took a key and a mirror. The officers also found a pair of sneakers on the ground. When asked why they were there, the suspect said, "Those are mine." When asked why he had two pairs of sneakers (he had one pair on his feet) he replied, "These are the ones I stole." (Meaning the ones on his feet).

The suspect, a 16 year-old Quincy resident, was charged with breaking and entering in the nighttime (2 counts), receiving stolen property (2 counts), possession of burglarious tools (knife used to cut screen and pry door open to Auto School) and malicious destruction of personal property. Nice Work!

In this case, the victim made all the right moves. She came home and detected that someone had to be inside her home, so she fled to the main street. Staying in a public place visible to others, she placed a call to the Police via "911" and then flagged down the Officers to inform them as to what was occurring.

Nice Work!

Entries in the Quincy Police Hot Spots are compiled and submitted by the Quincy Police Department.

They are published by The Quincy Sun as a public service to make local residents more aware of any crime activity in their neighborhood. Questions concerning the Hot Spots list should be directed to Crime Prevention Officer Lt. Dan Minton, 617-745-5719.

Beat Braintree 10-4 Monday; Have Won 6-of-7 Morrisette Is Heating Up At The Right Time

By SEAN BRENNAN

July's warm weather has got nothing on Morrisette Post 294. The defending District 6 champion is sizzling hot.

After Monday night's 10-4 dress-down of second-place Braintree Post 86 at Adams Field, Post 294 has won six-of-seven to jump from 4-5 overall to 10-6 overall in a matter of two weeks; with just six regular season games remaining, Morrisette is shooting up the District 6 East standings with a bullet.

Post 294 is playing its best ball with the District 6 best-of-three playoff round right around the bend — just ask an overconfident Braintree team that got it handed to them by starting pitcher Tim Liuzzo, second baseman Pat Verhault and the rest of the boys wearing the Morrisette colors.

Liuzzo was outstanding. The big righty threw six innings of two-hit baseball, giving Post 294 an A+ effort, while Verhault, a first-year player, finished 2-for-3 with two RBI and two runs scored to lead a 13-hit attack that bruised and battered Braintree into submission.

"That was a huge win," said Coach Steve Maze. "Timmy gave us a great start, which was just what we needed. Pat Verhault is playing out of control right now. You can't throw the ball by him and he isn't making any errors (at second). He is playing unbelievable baseball; he is as hot if not hotter than anybody else we have on this team."

Braintree ignited a fire under Post 294 before a pitch had even been thrown. Liuzzo was expected to match up against Post 86 ace Pat Delano, a recent draft pick of the Boston Red Sox, but Braintree decided last minute to save Delano for Tuesday's game versus Hyde Park. Bad idea.

Liuzzo began his outing by getting Alex Alexander to fly to Chris Connolly in center before walking Matt Bickford on four pitches. He came right back to strikeout Steve Lee for the second out. After clipping Delano with a pitch, Liuzzo ended his first by getting Joe Hock to pop to Verhault at second.

Connolly laced a double to lead off the bottom of the first, but was eliminated in a rundown on a Matt Davis (RBI) groundout. Kevin White (two hits, two RBI) then forced Davis at second, but Joe Alibrandi and Jason Pekinen walked to load the bases against Braintree's Mark Buckley. Post 86 escaped trouble when Buckley got Tom McDonald to fly to center, but the tone at been set by Post 294.

In the top of the second Liuzzo was the model of efficiency. He sat down Gino Larossa, Steve Donovan and Garrett Hurley 1-2-3, and his offense built off his quick work in the bottom of the frame. First baseman Bob Kozlowski (two hits, three runs) walked to leadoff of the inning before Andrew Currie

(two hits, three RBI) flew out to left. Verhault followed by reaching on a throwing error by Buckley and Connolly singled to load the bases for Davis. The first-year outfielder plated Kozlowski with the game's first run on a sacrifice fly to center. White made it 2-0 with a double that scored Verhault.

Liuzzo worked around a one-out walk to Alexander (he later stole second) in the third by getting Bickford on a 6-3 groundout and Alexander on a 5-4-6 putout at third off the bat of Lee. And again, the Morrisette bats responded to Liuzzo's effort with another two-run rally in the bottom of the inning. Pekinen (two runs scored) started it by drawing a walk. After McDonald lined out to shortstop, Kozlowski doubled Pekinen to third, and Currie plated both runners with a clean single into left-center to give Post 294 the 4-0 lead.

Braintree finally got a run across in the top of the fourth when Delano drove a Liuzzo offering deep into the woods in left. It was a bomb, but no matter how hard he hit it, it still only counted for one run. Liuzzo recovered and got Colin Pratt to pop to second to close out the inning, allowing just the one run after two more Braintree batters had reached base.

"(Tim) threw one bad pitch (Delano's homerun), but that is all it was and you know what, at the time we were up 4-0; 4-1 doesn't beat us," Maze said about

Liuzzo's stellar performance. "He hit it, ran the bases and everyone oohs and aahs and then we get right back to it."

Morrisette went quietly in the bottom of the fourth as Davis, White and Alibrandi couldn't muster anything off Buckley, but Liuzzo picked up his teammates by getting Alexander (pop to second), Bickford (fly to right), and Lee (5-3 groundout) on six pitches in the top of the fifth.

Post 294 slammed the door shut immediately after Liuzzo's economical fifth by putting up a six-spot in the bottom of the inning. Pekinen walked, McDonald singled and Kozlowski singled to load the bags for Currie; the first-year leftfielder drew a walk (5-1) scoring Pekkinen. Verhault then sliced a double down the right field line that scored McDonald and Kozlowski, drawing a loud cheer from the Morrisette bench and Maze in the third base coaching box.

Currie came around to score on a Connolly sac fly, and after Davis grounded out 4-3, White scored Verhault with a RBI single, and following a base hit by Alibrandi, Pekinen plated White with the inning's sixth hit, which gave Post 294 a 10-1 lead.

Liuzzo ended his evening in the sixth by walking Delano before getting Hock and Larossa to fly out. He mowed down Donovan to end the inning and left the mound to a mob of excited teammates.

"At the beginning of the year we weren't building of each other and now we are," explained Maze about how his team has surged in the latter part of the 2012 season. "Before the fifth inning I told Tim this would be your last inning, and he goes boom-boom-boom. I gathered the team and said this is the time right now and we go out and threw up a six-spot."

"They built off Tim. It was a hit here and there. Braintree is a good team. We played very well tonight."

Note: Morrisette and Weymouth play tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. at Adams Field.

10-6 Record With Six Games To Go Post 294 Has Sights On District Playoffs

By SEAN BRENNAN

Massachusetts American Legion Baseball had a busy off-season. The regular season was unanimously expanded from 18 games to 22 games, but the more drastic change was the revamping of the post-season schedule.

In 2012, Massachusetts Legion Baseball is holding its inaugural Senior Division National Bound Tournament.

This is how the Senior Division National Bound Tournament will work: The eight district champions (standings are based on the first 18 games of the regular season as of July 9) will meet on July 16 in four games across the state to determine four state semifinal participants. These four winners will square off in two games on July 17 at Worcester Academy to determine the Massachusetts National Bound champion. The tournament is single-elimination.

In District 6, which is Morrisette Post 294's home base, things went differently than anywhere else in the state. District 6 took the first place teams from its East and West divisions (records as of July 9) and had them play in a one-game playoff on July 11.

The two teams that qualified for Wednesday's play-in game were Hyde Park (12-4) out of the East Division and Norwood (15-3) out of the West Division. The winner moved into the Senior Division National Bound Tournament.

So where does that leave Morrisette Post 294 — last year's District 6 state final representative — for the rest of the season?

Morrisette (10-6 overall) will not get the chance to finish what it started last summer when they were four wins away from winning a state title and representing Massachusetts at the Regional Round, but Post 294 can still make waves in the race for the Massachusetts American Legion's Commander's Cup.

The Commander's Cup is basically an American Legion state championship. Everything about last year's playoff format remains the same: The top-5 teams from District 6 East and West advance into a District Playoff round (July 24-July 27) with the top team from the East playing a three-game series against the lowest seed from the West and vice versa.

The winners of these District series then move into the round-robin Sectional Tournament round on July 29 and Aug. 2, with the champion of the Sectional round advancing into the Commander's Cup State Tournament on Aug. 4-8.

As of Tuesday morning, Morrisette had six regular season games remaining and were locked into a top-5 spot in District 6 East, two games ahead of Cohasset — a team they beat over the weekend, 5-1.

After a sluggish start to the season, Post 294 has picked up momentum over the last two weeks. Starting with a 19-2 victory over Jamaica Plain on June 29, Morrisette has won six-of-seven. Post 294 followed the JP win with victories over Weymouth and Stoughton; after dropping a road game at Milton last Thursday, the team rebounded with a double-header sweep over Cohasset and JP (again) on Sunday before smacking Braintree on Monday by a 10-4 score.

Morrisette played at Cohasset on Tuesday and are scheduled to host Weymouth today (Thursday) at 8 p.m. before taking the show on the road to Holbrook on Friday evening. Hyde Park invades Adams Field on Sunday in a 7:30 start and Post 294 travels to Jamaica Plain on July 17.

Jonna Green Joins Swim Across America

Jonna Green of Quincy has joined Swim Across America to make a splash for pediatric cancer survivorship programs at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. The 19th annual Boston Harbor 22-mile relay swim is Friday, July 13, and the 15th annual DCR Nantasket Beach one-mile and half-mile swim is on Saturday, July 14.

"The swims are a great way for people to come together and participate in a sport they love alongside Olympic swimming legends while raising critical funds for the David B. Perini, Jr., Quality of Life Clinic at Dana-Farber," said 1988 Olympic Silver Medalist Janel Jorgensen McArdle, executive director of Swim Across America, in an email to The Quincy Sun. "This year Craig Beardsley and Daniel Waters are among the Olympians scheduled to swim."

Every stroke and dollar Green and other raise makes a difference in the fight against cancer. The Boston Harbor swim is an all day event that starts from behind the Boston Harbor Hotel at Rowes Wharf. Swimmers like Green pledge a minimum of $1,500 to participate; swimmers taking part in the one and half-mile competitive ocean swims at DCR Nantasket Beach in Hull must raise a minimum of $250 each.

Swim Across America is a non-profit corporation that runs swimming events from Boston to San Francisco to support cancer research, prevention and treatment at some of the country's finest institutions. Proceeds from the Boston-area swims go directly to the David B. Perini, Jr., Quality of Life Clinic at Dana-Farber.

Lost 21-0 To Bay State Buccaneers Militia Let One Slip Away In Opener

By SEAN BRENNAN

The Quincy Militia won the physical battle, but lost the mental battle, as the Bay State Bucs scored two second half touchdowns to claim a 21-0 victory in the Eastern Football League (EFL) opener for both programs last Saturday at Bridgewater State University.

The Militia (0-1 overall) will look to get on track when they kickoff the home schedule on Saturday at 8 p.m. against the Eastern Mass Seminoles at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"Physically, we matched (the Bucs) hit for hit - we actually had the edge in that department," said Head Coach Vaughn Driscoll on Monday. "But in the mental game, they got us. It was an emotional opener and we now need to work hard at practice on Wednesday and try and work out the kinks."

The Militia had a unfortunate beginning against the Bucs, as running back Darryl Cyprien, who was expected to form a devastating 1-2 running punch with Dolan Reid out of the backfield, broke his ankle on his first play from scrimmage.

The injury to Cyprien was compounded later in the half when the referees bungled a call, which allowed the Bucs to jump ahead 7-0.

"Darryl took a draw up the middle for a five-yard gain and in the process broke his ankle," Driscoll said. "It was tough because he had worked very hard the last four months to get ready for the season and to have that happen on his first run was discouraging."

The play in question came on a third down and 15 for Bay State. The Militia defense, which was playing a soft cover to prevent a first down, gave enough space for the Bucs' slot receiver to make a ten-yard catch on a slant. The receiver hit the ground, and with his team walking back to the huddle, and despite the fact that a Militia defender touched the receiver as he was on one knee (down by contact), the referees didn't blow the play dead. Instead, the Bucs' receiver stood up and bolted downfield toward the end zone for the six points.

"It was third and long and they ran a quick slant for ten yards," Driscoll explained about the missed call by the officials. "The receiver was just laying there and we had three defenders around him. As he was on one knee, one of my guys is grabbing his pads to help him up and he just runs down the field and scores. It was a missed call and it hurt us. It should have been 0-0 at the half."

Despite the missed call and the injury to Cyprien, the Militia will look at the game film and rue the two chances they had to score from inside the Bucs' five-yard line later in the game, as well as several mental mistakes that cost them field position.

Trailing 14-0 in the second half, Reid broke free for 48 yards to set up Quincy in the red zone. With the offensive line dominating the line of scrimmage the Militia faced a fourth and goal from the two-yard line, but instead of ramming it down the throat of the defense, the call from the booth was for play-action.

Quarterback Aaron Cobbs got the defense to bite, but his pass to an open receiver was off target and the Militia failed to get any points. Quincy's second trip into the shadow of the goal line was nixed by penalties.

"The offensive line played great; they dominated the line of scrimmage all game," said Driscoll. "We ran the ball great as a result and maybe we should have just run it on fourth and goal. We are going to talk as a staff about the play calling, but the defense took the bait, we just didn't convert."

"The next time down we just had too many penalties. These are things that we really need to get straightened out before Saturday."

Driscoll feels like his team will be prepared for the Eastern Mass Seminoles. The Seminoles are a tough and physical team so he is looking forward to seeing how his guys respond at home.

"We are going to have to play a mistake-free game," he said, "but we are going to be ready for the home opener. Eastern Mass is a good team and very solid and tough. I hope we can get a big home crowd."

Militia Miscellaneous

Quincy hits the road to play the Charlestown Townies on July 21 and the Randolph Oilers on July 27 before hosting the Taunton Gladiators at Veterans Memorial Stadium on Aug. 4... The Militia Football Program is actively looking for outgoing, energetic cheerleaders and dancers to join the 2012 team. If you are interested in becoming part of the cheerleading team, contact GM Nancy McNulty by email at cheermancycbeer@aol.com.

Eight-Team Pool Play Eastern Massachusetts Tournament July 20-26 At Adams Field

QYB To Host 14-Year Old Babe Ruth Tournament

By SEAN BRENNAN

Adams Field will be turned into a Field of Dreams for hundreds of young baseball players later this month when Quincy Youth Baseball & Softball hosts two major Babe Ruth Baseball tournaments.

As had been reported in this paper back in March, the 15-Year Old Babe Ruth Regional Tournament - with teams flocking to the city from across the New England region - will be held from Aug. 2 thru Aug. 8, but in a surprise announcement from Quincy Youth Baseball & Softball last week, Adams Field is also going to play host to the Eastern Mass 14-Year Old Babe Ruth State Tournament on July 20 thru July 26.

This eight-team, pool play tournament will feature the best young talent in the area. Quincy Youth Baseball will have a team in the tournament. Mark Jaehnig and Gerry Shepherd will coach the QYB team.

"This tournament is something that we had been asked to host awhile back and we decided to go for it," said QYB President Mike Lynch in a phone interview on Monday. "There will be a Quincy Youth Baseball team from the 14-year old level playing as well as the District Champions from Eastern Mass. It is going to be a busy weekend."

The eight-team field will be split into two pools of four teams. Each team is guaranteed to play three games with four games scheduled at Adams Field on Sat., July 21 and Sunday, July 22.

The QYB representative will play on July 21 at 8 p.m., July 22 at 7 p.m., and Monday, July 23 at 4 p.m. The championship game is tentatively set for Thursday, July 26.

"It is going to be a fun weekend," Lynch added. "On Saturday (July 21) we will hold an opening ceremony at 2:30 p.m. along with skills competitions and games throughout the day. We are expecting a big crowd."

Lynch estimates that between the 14-Year Old Eastern Mass Tournament and the 15-Year Old Regional Tournament, over 250 families (plus fans) will be traveling to Quincy to participate.

According to Lynch, during these weeklong events QYB will be selling programs with important tournament information. QYB is offering the opportunity for families to send a personal message to their favorite player or for local businesses to promote their company and attract business to the hundreds of people that will be visiting Quincy from across New England.

The following are the options for sponsorship opportunities:

Platinum - $1000 Four-foot banner hung along field entrance, part of tournament facility includes sponsors name, and PA recognition during each game, and sponsorship appears on cover of program.

Gold - $500 PA recognition during each game and full-page sponsorship.

Bronze - $100 quarter-page sponsorship.

Personal - $50 quarter-page message to player of your choice.

EXCESS POUNDS BURDEN BACK

Recent research confirms what most people already suspected—that overweight and obese adults are at increased risk for lower back pain. Specifically, the extra weight significantly increases the risk for lumbar spine disc degeneration. The study, which involved more than 2,600 men and women over the age of 21, revealed that narrowing of the disc space was more pronounced among obese individuals. As a result of excess stress being exerted on the discs, which function as "shock absorbers" between vertebrae, they degenerate (bulge and herniate). Fat cells may also play a role in back pain by causing chronic low-grade inflammation. It is hoped that these findings give overweight individuals added reason to rid themselves of excess pounds.

As physicians, we can easily address the issue of overweight or obesity, starting right now. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we provide safe and gentle chiropractic care for the entire family. Rather than just treat the symptom, we find the underlying cause for your ache or pain, and then help to correct it. Call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment and let us help you feel better the natural way - the chiropractic way. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. A bulging/herniated disc may impinge on an adjacent nerve root, resulting in pain, numbness, tingling, muscle weakness, and/or organ dysfunction in any part of the body served by the nerve in question.

Eleven Quincy Kids Win Hershey's Track State Championships

In the early weeks of June, the Quincy Recreation Department held its annual Hershey's Track and Field City Qualifying Meet - 31 of these city champions qualified and advanced into the Hershey's State Meet, which was held on June 23 at the Morgan Bowl Track in Hudson.

At the state meet, Quincy was golden, as eleven city champions won the state championships in seven different events.

Devin Hiltunen won the Girls' 11 & 12 200-meter dash event in a time of 30.95 seconds, as well as the 400-meter dash with a time of 1:07.73.

Rosheline Molina won the Girls' 11 & 12 softball throw with a distance of 127 feet and 1.5 inches.

Kayla Mathieu took the state championship in the Girls' 9 & 10 100-meter dash with a time of 15.62. Mathieu was also part of the winning Girls' 9 & 10 4-x 100-meter relay team with Esme Link, Kenzie Matulonis and Sorcha Quinn with a time of 1:08.44.

Harry Theodore won the Boys' 13 & 14 softball throw with a distance of 184 feet and 6.5 inches.

Rounding out the Quincy state champions were the Boys' 13 & 14 4-x 100-meter relay team, comprised of Paul Tegan, Michael McNelley, David Pham, and Ryan Hayes.

The champions of the individual events, as well as the Boys' 13 & 14 relay team had their times and distances submitted to the Regional Coordinator of District 6. Included in District 6 are the six New England states and four of the Canadian Provinces. The best competitors in each event from the District 6 region will advance to the North American Final Meet in Hershey, Pennsylvania on Aug. 4.

Placing in the Top-5 in their state events were:

Bobby Long in the Boys' 9 & 10 softball throw, Tyrese Marshall in the Boys' 11 & 12 100-meter dash and 200-meter dash, Ty Finn in the Boys' 11 & 12 softball throw, David Pham in the Boys' 13 & 14 100-meter dash, Ryan Hayes in the Boys' 13 & 14 200-meter dash, Michael McNelley in the Boys' 13 & 14 standing long jump, Harry Theodore in the Boys' 13 & 14 800-meter run.

Kenzie Matulonis in the Girls' 9 & 10 50-meter dash, Kayla Mathieu in the Girls' 9 & 10 200-meter dash, Emilia Henry in the Girls' 9 & 10 400-meter run and softball throw, Emma Carney in the Girls' 11 & 12 100-meter dash, Mia Healy in the Girls' 13 & 14 100-meter dash, Grace Anderson in the Girls' 13 & 14 800-meter run, and Molly Donahue in the Girls' 13 & 14 1600-meter run.

The local Quincy Champions who also competed in the state meet were:

Peyton McGaffigan, Dylan Sullivan, Owen Smyth, Danielle Dentremon, Charlotte Shapiro, Sarah Gabriel, Kenya Mathieu, Whitney Tang and Lauren Petrie.

Members of the staff of the Quincy Recreation Department conducted the Quincy meet. Geoff Hennessy of the Quincy Track Club served as the meet director.

Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, congratulated the eleven state champions on their great accomplishment and praised the commitment of Hershey's Chocolate for more than 30 years of sponsoring this great activity. "There's no equal to the Hershey's program. Quincy boys and girls have benefitted for many years and have had the opportunity to test their skills on the national stage."

QRD Boating Registration

Canoe, kayak, sail, or row at Blacks Creek in the heart of Quincy as the Quincy Recreation Department William F. Ryan Boating and Sailing program located in Merrymount Park continues to offer ongoing registration for the summer of 2012.

The popular low-cost program is not just for kids, and according to Recreation Director Barry Welch, the program also offers adults an opportunity to take lessons in sailing, kayak, canoe or rowing and once they are proficient in the skills of the craft they may use the boat upon request.

The facility is open 7 days a week until Aug. 15, and although the program is open exclusively from 4-7:30 p.m. weeknights for adults, there are opportunities for daytime lessons or general use during the day and on weekends. A twilight kayak in the shelter of the Blacks Creek Lagoon on a summer evening is the perfect way to end a workday.

Welch also pointed out that there is still the possibility for children who may have missed registration in the hectic week surrounding the Fourth of July to register for the youth programs. Youth must be eight years of age and pass a qualifying swim test.

"Much of the summer remains and we welcome new participants at any time," Welch said.

Youth programs also include basic seamanship, rowing, kayaking, canoe and instruction from beginner to advance in the O'Day Widgeon sailboat fleet.

Registration is available at the facility weekdays from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. and noon to 5 p.m. on weekends. A variety of memberships include: family, adult, all-season, or short-term adult kayaking and canoeing.

Potential participants may drop by the facility or call 617-592-5992 for additional information.

QHS Soccer Alumni Game July 29

nigame.wufoo.com/forms/z7x3x5, otherwise registration is $15 on the day of the game.

The fee includes a t-shirt.

QHS soccer hopes to see you all there.

Joy's Sports Programs Registrations

Joy's Sports Programs-Summer Camps 2012 are currently accepting registrations for weekly camps for boys and girls ages 6-14.

Participants may choose from basketball, soccer or multi-sport sessions beginning July 23 and ending the week of Aug. 13. The camps are held at the Broad Meadows School and Joy Hanlon Field on Mound Street from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Family discounts are available.

For information contact Director Rich Hanlon at 617-827-8697.

Openings For Recreation Session #2 Swimming

Director of Recreation Barry Welch announced on Tuesday that the Quincy Recreation Department would conduct swimming lessons at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool weekdays during July and Aug. Lessons are taught by Water Safety Instructors and Lifeguards trained in accordance with the standards set by the American Red Cross.

There are limited openings in Session #2 and in order to insure the most possible participants the opportunities for lessons, persons currently enrolled in the July learn-to-swim classes are not eligible to register for Session #2 at this time. Session #2 begins July 24 and ends Aug. 14; lessons are for children who are age six and over and are Quincy residents.

The following classes are offered and conducted in accordance with the standards of the American Red Cross:

Level I/II Water Exploration and Primary Skills; Level III Stroke Readiness; Level IV Stroke Development, and Level V/VI Stroke Refinement and Proficiency.

Registration for all classes will be held at the Water Street entrance of the Pool according to the following schedule: Session #2 (July 24-Aug. 14) will be held Monday, July 16 from 10:30 a.m. until Noon.

For more information, call the QRD at 617-376-1394.

QRD Has Openings In Two Summer Clinics

The Quincy Recreation Department announced on Tuesday that limited openings still remain for two workshops and clinics that would be held July 16-20.

The Sports & More clinic will be held at the Recreation Department, located at One Merrymount Parkway. This clinic provides a week of traditional activities under the supervision that will include group games and organized play including capture the flag, dodge ball, and scavenger hunts, board games, arts & crafts, sports and more.

This recreational experience will be planned and informal, spontaneous, and organized with plenty of fun. The clinic is open to boys and girls entering Grades 3-9, and will run from 8:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. The cost of the clinic is $82.

Boys' Soccer also has openings. Under the direction of Mark Scanlan, high school coach, the focus of the clinic will be on the fundamentals of soccer with particular emphasis on the skills of passing, trapping, heading, dribbling and shooting. Children will receive instructions from high school coaches as well as local high school players through lectures and demonstrations.

This clinic is for boys entering Grades 3-9 and will be conducted at Veterans Memorial Stadium from 8:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. The cost of the clinic is $82.

Registration can be done online at www.QuincyRec.com or in person at the Recreation Department. For questions, call 617-376-1394.

Lane of NH, Kathleen Kerwin of Marshfield, Ann Marie Tulis and her husband Joseph of Marshfield, and the late Michael Kerwin; stepfather of Tommy and Bridget Moylan, Billy Moylan and Leslie, Jack and Robin Moylan, Gary and Cindy Moylan, Rick and Jane Moylan, Chuck and Theresa Moylan, Pam and Sean Coady, Jeff and Helena Moylan, Nancy Moylan; bother of Elizabeth, Joslin, Robert Kerwin and the late Thomas Kerwin; son of the late Thomas and Elizabeth Kerwin.

He is also survived by 28 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Interment was private.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Chapman, Cole and Gleason Funeral Home, West Falmouth.

William J. Burke, 59

U.S. Air Force Veteran

A private funeral service for William Joseph Burke, 59, of Quincy, was conducted through the Hamel Funeral Care & Cremation Service of MA.

Mr. Burke died June 29.

Born in Boston, he graduated in 1971 from Quincy High School. He joined the United States Air Force after high school and served in Turkey during Vietnam as a Military Policeman.

Following his service, he worked on the South Shore for many years at the Quincy Shipyard and in construction.

Brother of Thomas E. Burke and Joseph M. Burke, both of Quincy and the late James Burke; companion of Dianne Faubert of Quincy and her two daughters Patricia and Michelle; son of the late William and Helen Burke.

Interment was private.

Memorial donations may be made to The Hospice of the South Shore, 100 Bay State Dr., PO Box 859060, Braintree, MA 02185.

Samuel D. Adair, 86

Retired Navny Chief Hull Technician

Private funeral services were held for Samuel Douglas "Sammie" Adair, 86, of Quincy, chief hull technician, U.S. Navy, retired. Mr. Adair died peacefully July 3 at Quincy Medical Center.

Born, raised and educated in Tulsa, OK, he had lived in Quincy for 44 years.

Mr. Adair served in the U.S. Navy for 28 years. He was a World War II, Korean War and Vietnam War veteran.

He retired in 1972 with the rank of Chief Hull Technician. During his career, he served at various Naval Air Stations, U.S. Navy facilities as well as sea duty onboard many ships, especially destroyers and the destroyer tender, U.S.S. Puget Sound, AD-38.

After his military service, Mr. Adair worked as a ship fitter for several years at the former Fore River Shipyard in Quincy for both the Bethlehem Steel and General Dynamics Companies.

Beloved husband of the late Mary A. (Vincent) Adair,

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)
Aspects favor socializing with family and friends, but an irksome workplace situation could intrude. No use grumbling, Lamb. Just do it, and then get back to the fun times.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)
There's still time for you Ferdinands and Fernandas to relax and sniff the roses. But a major work project looms and soon will demand much of your attention through the 23rd.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)
Your enthusiasm persuades even the toughest doubters to listen to what you're proposing. But don't push too hard, or you'll push them away. Moderate for best results.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22)
Your energy levels are rising, and you feel you can handle anything the job requires. That's great. But don't isolate yourself. Keep your door open to your workplace colleagues.

LEO (July 23 August 22)
A workplace change could lead to that promotion you've been hoping for. But you'll have to face some tough competition before the Lion can claim his or her share of the goodies.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22)
Your rigidity regarding a difficult workplace situation could be the reason your colleagues aren't rushing to your assistance. Try being more flexible in your demands.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22)
That uneasy mood could be your Libran inner voice reminding you that while it's great to be with your new friends, you need to take care not to ignore your old ones.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21)
A sudden spate of criticism could shake the Scorpion's usually high sense of self-confidence. Best advice: You made a decision you believed in -- now defend it.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21)
Your reluctance to help restart a stalled relationship could be traced to unresolved doubts about your partner's honesty. Rely on a trusted friend's advice.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19)
The capricious Sea Goat is torn between duty and diversion. Best advice: Do both. Tend to your workaday chores, then go out and enjoy your well-earned fun time.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18)
Cutting back on some of your activities for a few days helps restore your energy levels. You should be feeling ready to tackle your many projects early next week.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20)
A co-worker might be secretly carping about your work to mutual colleagues. But associates will come to your defense, and the situation will ultimately work to your advantage.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your ambition makes you a success at whatever you choose to do -- especially if it's in the world of the performing arts.

A fishing enthusiast, he was a past president of the Hub Rod and Gun Club in Dorchester. In the early 1980's, he purchased the design for a lobster boat from Royal Lowell, a well-known marine designer based in Maine. In the two years that followed, and with the assistance of a professional boat builder, they created the vessel known as the Dorothy M.

The devoted husband of Dorothy (Dalrymple) Jackson.

In addition to leaving behind his beloved wife Dorothy, he was the loving father of Dorothy L. Ostiguy and her husband William of Quincy, Thomas J. Jackson, Jr. and his wife Nancy of Braintree, Edward S. Jackson and his wife Annette, also of Braintree. Thomas was cherished and loved by eight grandchildren, 10 great-grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Interment with Military Honors was at Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy Center.

Memorial donations may be made to: The American Stroke Association, 20 Speen St., Framingham, MA 01701 or, The Home for Little Wanderers, Development Dept., 271 Huntington Ave, 2nd Floor, Boston, MA 02115.

DURING HER TRIP to Africa, 21-year-old Fiona Leung of Quincy visited many different areas and places but the reason she volunteered to be a part of a conservation project was to help work with wild animals including Cheetahs. Photo courtesy Of Fiona Leung

Local Girl Trained As Lifeguard At YMCA Fiona Leung Saves Drowning Man In Indian Ocean

By EMILY TAFT

While on a volunteer conservation trip in South Africa, 21-year-old Quincy resident Fiona Leung found herself using the skills she learned back home as a lifeguard to more extreme measures when she saved a fellow volunteer from drowning in the Indian Ocean.

"I don't think I would have went over to help so quickly if I didn't have lifeguard training," said Leung. "I did what I had to do and I didn't think twice about what I was doing. It was all instinct."

Leung, a University of Rhode Island senior animal science major, volunteered to take a five-week trip, from May 25th to the middle of June, to South Africa as a part of the International Student Volunteers (ISV) program. ISV has had over 20,000 volunteers and over two million volunteer hours completed in over seven different countries.

During the five weeks, Leung did volunteer work with wild animals, visited orphanages, and went to South Africa, Swaziland, and Mozambique among many other places. She volunteered for three weeks at The Ann Van Dyk Cheetah Centre in South Africa where she helped build enclosures and fix the centre. The remaining two weeks of her trip she was able to go rafting, snorkeling with a whale shark, and go micro-lighting. Leung said that during her adventure weeks she also decided, along with the 30 plus other volunteers, to visit an orphanage and buy fruits and vegetables for the children there.

Half way through her trip Leung, who is a lifeguard at the South Shore YMCA in Quincy, was playing around in the Indian Ocean with other volunteers when she noticed a woman who looked like she needed help and instinctively Leung began to swim over to help.

"I immediately swam over to her. At first all I saw was this woman who looked like she was having trouble swimming," said Leung. "When I got closer to her I realized she had been trying to help a man who was drowning."

Leung, who is a graduate of Fontbonne Academy, became a lifeguard at the YMCA in Quincy when she was about 16. She decided to become a lifeguard after swimming and competing since she was seven years old. Leung said she has helped a few people in the five years she has been there, but nothing ever this serious or difficult.

"I have saved people before in the pool or during a camp at the Y," said Leung. "It was different though because I would just jump right in and be next to the person when I would help someone at the Y."

"That's not how it was that day (in South Africa)."

Leung said the entire group of volunteers at the ocean that day had been only up to their knees in water because of the high waves. The 20-something year-old man who was drowning couldn't swim and had been swept up by one of those waves, causing him to panic.

"The waves are just so different and bigger there than they are here," said Leung. "I knew I had to keep my cool, and keep him calm, but at one point I thought we might both be in trouble."

Leung said there were a few times where she was pushed under but she focused on keeping them both safe.

She said that she treaded water as she tried to keep the man calm and get them both back to shore safely.

"I didn't think twice about myself," said Leung. "I used the waves to push us to land because I didn't have any equipment to help."

Leung said during the entire time she was trying to save the man, who was a volunteer as well, she was yelling for help, but no one could hear her over the waves. She later found out that during the same time she was helping the drowning man, another volunteer was having trouble swimming and was being helped by those she was yelling for help.

"It felt like forever trying to get to land," said Leung. "It probably only took us like five minutes but it felt like 15. I was exhausted the rest of the day."

Leung said before the man left to return home, he thanked her for saving his life in what she described as a very emotional goodbye.

"The last day for him, when he was leaving to go back home it was so emotional," said Leung. "It was so emotional for both of us that day."

Despite that traumatic day, Leung said she enjoyed every minute of her trip and would love to go back again. She said she had learned a lot from her five-week trip and that it has changed her for the better.

"Volunteering was the best thing I could have ever done. It was the best experience and I don't regret going even with everything that happened," said Leung. "I am now open to a lot more things because I saw so much when I was there."

Leung said that because of that day at the Indian Ocean, she has become a better lifeguard.

"Now when I lifeguard, I am always on my toes, because I don't want anything to happen," said Leung. "Rescuing that man was scarier then sitting next to a cheetah."

Presidential Wreath Honors John Quincy Adams' Birthday

By EMILY TAFT

Sixth President John Quincy Adams was honored on the 245th anniversary of his birth July 11 at a ceremony that also paid tribute to his wife, First Lady Louisa Catherine, at United First Parish Church, Quincy Center.

A Presidential wreath from President Barack Obama was placed on the tomb of John Quincy Adams who served as president from 1825 to 1829. Before becoming president he also served as an American diplomat, a Senator, and a member of Congress. He helped negotiate the Treaty of Ghent, which ended the War of 1812.

Barron Appointed Fire Chief

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Following a unanimous recommendation by an independent panel, Mayor Thomas Koch has appointed 34-year department veteran Joseph Barron as permanent chief of the Quincy Fire Department, the mayor's office announced Tuesday as the Sun went to press.

"I accept the recommendation of the independent review panel, and Joseph Barron will be appointed permanent fire chief," Koch said Tuesday after receiving the recommendation from Facets Consulting.

"Based on the results of the interview process and a comparison of the quali-

Adams' Crypt May Transfer To Park Service

By SCOTT JACKSON

The crypt that houses Presidents John and John Quincy Adams and their wives Abigail and Louisa Catherine could be switching hands as part of the fallout of a lawsuit the Woodward School brought against the city.

In February 2011, Norfolk County Probate Court Judge Robert Langlois ordered that the city pay $3 million to the Adams Temple and School Fund, $1.6 million of which would go to the Woodward School, because he found that the city sold 11 trust properties for less than market value.

But a different part of the decision is what spurred the Adams Temple and School Fund's Board of Overseers to request the transfer of the crypts to the National Park Service.

Equipment Failure Seen As Cause Of 4-Alarm Fire

Blaze Guts Dependable Cleaners Building; Four Firefighters Receive Medical Attention

MEMBERS OF Quincy Engine 1 and Boston Engine 16 work on getting a deck gun into operation as the ladder pipes of Quincy Ladder 1, Ladder 5 and Boston Ladder 29 start to flow water on a fire Saturday at Dependable Cleaners building on Quincy Avenue.

By SCOTT JACKSON

Fire officials say an equipment failure may be the prime culprit in a four-alarm blaze that gutted a Dependable Cleaners building on Quincy Avenue Saturday afternoon.

At 2:41 p.m. the fire department was called to the building at 320 Quincy Ave after a fire broke out, according to Deputy Fire Chief Ed Fenby. The building houses both a laundromat and the offices of Dependable Cleaners.

Firefighters initially tried to fight the fire from inside the building. But Deputy Chief Joe Jackson, who was serving as acting chief, said conditions in the building rapidly deteriorated. The air temperature inside got hot enough to potentially spontaneously ignite everything inside the building, and there were concerns about the roof collapsing.

"The fire took off quickly," Jackson. "We had to go into defensive mode outside the building."

The fire quickly escalated to four-alarms. Fenby said that meant all 11 of Quincy's trucks — eight engines and three ladders — were on scene. They were joined by one engine and one ladder from Boston, and trucks from neighboring communities were called in for coverage at Quincy's fire stations.

Upwards of 35 firefighters were on scene, and Chief Joseph Barron came back from his vacation to be there. Making matters worse was the day's hot, humid weather; the temperature in the area reached 91 degrees at 3 p.m., according to the National Weather Service. Jackson said firefighters from both departments did an exemplary job given the circumstances.

"The guys did an outstanding job," Jackson said, "given the weather conditions and given the speed of the fire."

Jackson said that Fallon Ambulance set-up a cooling station to help firefighters beat the heat. Still, two Quincy firefighters were sent to the hospital because of the heat and breathing issues. Another was sent after being cut, and all three were treated and released that day. A Boston firefighter was also taken to the hospital, but Jackson was still trying to get the details on his situation Tuesday.

Firefighters remained on scene fighting the fire well into Saturday night. The last pieces of equipment left around 10 p.m., according to Fenby, and a firewatch was posted throughout the weekend. Jackson said firefighters were still putting out hot spots on Monday.

The investigation into the cause of the fire is still underway, but mechanical failure is thought to be responsible.

"The investigation is ongoing," Jackson said, "but we're looking at some of the dry cleaning equipment."

There was no estimate available for how much damage was done to the building, and it was unknown Tuesday if the building can be saved. Building Inspector Jim Anderson said parts of the roof's structure, especially the front and back portions on the right-hand side of the building, will need to be replaced. A structural engineer will need to check the rest of the building to determine the extent of the damage.

"I told the owner that they'd need to hire a structural engineer," Anderson said. "It's hard to determine, with all the heat, what parts of the steel need to be replaced."

Efforts to reach Dependable Cleaners CEO Christa Hagearty were unsuccessful. But the company issued a statement on their website Sunday, saying that none of their employees at the store were hurt and crediting fire and other emergency officials for their response.

"Thankfully no one was seriously injured by the flames," the statement said. "First responders did an amazing job responding to the call and battling the heavy blaze in the extreme hot weather. We cannot thank the Quincy and Boston Fire Departments, local EMS, and Quincy Police enough for handling the situation."

And while the company's servers were taken offline by the fire, there was hope that many customers' dry cleaning items would've been taken off the premises by that time in the afternoon.

"We remain optimistic regarding the number of items lost in the fire," the statement said. "The fire started around 2 p.m. when, we believe, a good amount of dry cleaning orders had already been safely loaded onto the trucks for transport. We will not know exactly what was lost until our servers are back up and running."

Jackson said this was the largest fire in Quincy since a three-alarm blaze torched a 24-unit apartment building on Falls Boulevard that was torn down as a result. That happened last July, and Jackson was also serving as acting chief at the time.

128 Fewer Tons Compared To Last Fiscal Year City Collecting Less Trash

The amount of trash collected in the city continues to fall, with the city collecting 128 fewer tons of garbage over the last fiscal year compared to the previous one.

According to Quincy's Manager of Energy, Waste and Recycling John Sullivan, 29,175 tons of trash were collected in the city in FY2012, down from 29,302 in FY11. The city has to pay $93.57 for each ton collected, which means it saved about $12,000 in the latest fiscal year.

But the city has saved much more since FY08.

That year, 32,710 tons were collected. But in FY09, that number fell to about 30,000, saving the city $211,000. Sullivan said the switch to single-stream recycling caused most of those savings.

"Since we started single-stream recycling in Fiscal Year 2009," Sullivan said, "trash went down 2,000 tons."

But that number rose in FY10 to 31,257 tons, because of floods that happened in March. Collections in March and April 2010 were both 1,000 tons greater than to the same months the year before.

In FY11, 29,302 tons were collected, saving the city about $178,000 dollars. Altogether, the city has saved nearly $320,000 since FY08 because less trash has been collected.

Recycling was also down in FY12, as 200 fewer tons were collected than in the previous year. Additionally, the city is only receiving $5 a ton for recycling materials. The city had received as much as $10 a ton, but Sullivan said the market value for recycled materials has collapsed over the last few years.

Under the direct supervision of Donald Buckley, Field Supervisor for the Traffic and Parking division of the Department of Public Works, the painting crew plans to paint all of the traffic lights in Quincy this summer. These tasks are part of the City's overall Capital Plan to repair the city's streets and sidewalks.

Bay State Community Services To Assist Substance Abuse Prevention

EDC has been chosen as the new statewide provider of technical assistance for substance abuse prevention by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health's Bureau of Substance Abuse Services (BSAS).

Under the contract, which began on July 1, EDC will direct technical assistance services in close collaboration with Bay State Community Services in Quincy and the Franklin Regional Council of Governments in Western Massachusetts.

Alejandro Rivera, program director for Bay State Community Services, said the collaboration provides a great opportunity to provide technical assistance to groups and coalitions addressing a wide range of substance abuse prevention issues.

"Bay State Community Services, in collaboration with our partners, will be able to provide this assistance not only to groups on the South Shore, but throughout the state. As you may know, Bay State Community Services has a long history of delivering community oriented substance abuse services and our involvement in this partnership, will allow us to develop and strengthen relationship with individuals, groups, and coalitions committed to improving the health of Massachusetts residents."

Impact Quincy is a community-based coalition dedicated to fostering an environment, which strengthens communication and relationships within the community. Impact Quincy provides opportunities for the creation and support of community collaborations, which promote and sustain a drug-free community and healthy living.

Overdose Candlelight Vigil Aug. 10 At Stadium

The City of Quincy will host a candlelight vigil Friday, Aug. 10 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium, 870 Hancock St., Quincy, to bring attention to the issue of substance addiction.

Concerned citizens of Quincy, Braintree, Randolph, Weymouth and other South Shore communities will come together to remember family, friends and community members lost to drug overdose and give hope to others still struggling with addiction.

A list of names of those who have died will be gathered. Candles will be provided and lit when the names are read aloud during the program.

Participants are also encouraged to bring a photo of their loved one.

Registration of names to be read during the program will be collected from 6:30 to 7 p.m. The program will follow.

The event is free and parking is available. Handicap access at the rear of the stadium.

Arthur's Fitting Tribute

The tradition of placing wreaths at the final resting place of U.S. Presidents began in the 1960s at the direction of President Lyndon Johnson.

In Quincy, we're fortunate to have two former U.S. Presidents so honored each year.

John Adams, the nation's Second U.S. President, was born Oct. 30, 1735. His son, Sixth President John Quincy Adams, was born July 11, 1767. The Presidents and their wives – First Ladies Abigail Adams and Louisa Catherine Adams – are entombed in the crypt at United First Parish Church in Quincy Center. It is the only church in the country where two former U.S. Presidents are buried.

Each and every year for nearly 50 years, the city has paid tribute to these two favorite sons with a Presidential wreath laying ceremony.

And, over the years, the ceremony has changed.

For instance, in 1975, the ceremony for JQA was held outside United First Parish Church. Besides the wreath, the anniversary celebration featured a bell from the USS Quincy being rung six times in honor of the nation's Sixth President. Hancock Street was also closed off and a throng of local citizens – many of them sitting in temporary chairs in the street and others standing on the sidewalk in front of City Hall – looked on while speakers extolled the significance of JQA's place in history.

Today, the wreath-laying ceremony is as dignified as it is educational. The event is now held inside the church and has featured many guest speakers, including Sen. Scott Brown who became the first sitting U.S. senator to speak at the Quincy ceremony two years ago.

If you think you know all there is to know about the Adamses, you'll be pleasantly surprised attending one of these ceremonies. The guest speakers seem to always shine a brighter light on the lives of these key historical figures.

But if you were to single out one individual who has made the ceremony what it is today, it isn't a guest speaker at all.

It's the late Arthur Ducharme, the longtime director of Historic Interpretive Program at United First Parish Church. Mr. Ducharme, who served in that position for 15 years, died in January.

Last Wednesday's 245th birthday anniversary of President John Quincy Adams was the first without Mr. Ducharme since he came on board in 1997.

But Mr. Ducharme is not forgotten.

And the Adams family has made sure his memory remains where it should: in the church steeped in so much history.

A plaque in honor of Mr. Ducharme has been placed on a wall in the back of the "Church of the Presidents" by the Adams family.

The plaque reads: "In Memory of Arthur W. Ducharme, director of Interpretive Program at the United First Parish Church, 1997-2012. Dedicated to Preserve the Legacies of Our Second President John Adams, his Wife and First Lady Abigail and Our Sixth President John Quincy Adams, His Wife and First Lady Louisa Catherine."

ARTHUR

Peter Boylston Adams, a seventh generation descendant of President John Adams, said the family wanted the memorialize Arthur in a fitting way. He also paid homage to Arthur for being the architect of what the anniversary ceremonies are today.

"This ceremony has been going on for just about 50 years but Arthur Ducharme managed this for the past 15 years," Adams said in an interview before the JQA wreath-laying last Wednesday.

"He was really the personification of the outreach of the church to show the crypts and so forth and the family wanted to demonstrate its appreciation for Arthur's service which was absolutely selfless.

"He would arrange this entire ceremony quietly, taking no credit whatsoever and we wanted to make sure that was memorialized. He was a wonderful man."

Adams said he first met Arthur about 15 years ago. The encounter led to an enduring friendship.

"I was then an active banker in commercial and investment banking and I came here with my cousin, Charles Francis Adams, who was chairman of the Board of the Raytheon Corporation. That's when I first met Arthur.

"Arthur was a very self-effacing fellow, very quiet, but I eventually gave him the names of my brothers who have come here to speak when I couldn't come. Arthur very carefully arranged the entire thing.

"He was the architect of the entire show. He managed everything. He did it very quietly. When we asked to put the plaque here, the church agreed instantaneously to do so. We were very pleased with that."

Adams said he and Arthur had many experiences together, including an amusing tale about his signature straw hat.

"One of the funniest was when I came here one day simply to visit the church and I left my straw hat upside down on the table that he used to sit at. We went down to the crypt and came back and we found money in the hat.

"Arthur quietly said, 'Mr. Adams, could we possibly borrow your hat for the rest of the time here.'"

Adams, who shares a striking resemblance to his great-great-great-grandfather John Quincy Adams, replied, "Well, I need it on my head.

"It was sort of amusing that people thought (the hat) was the contribution box and Arthur got a good laugh over it."

While this year's July 11 ceremony remembered JQA, Arthur's memory was very much on the mind of Adams.

"I remember Arthur vividly. He was the personification of this. In a wonderful way he would greet people to visit the crypt which was sort of a dribble and a drabble here and there. He waited very patiently for people to show up. It may not have been a huge volume of people but he would bring them down and show them the crypt.

"He did a very quiet job in a very wonderful way almost as if he were invisible. He's missed very much. He was a very nice man."

Adams said Arthur turned historical interpretation into an art form.

"The position of director did not exist before Arthur took it over," Adams said. "It think it was originally a volunteer position and he worked in consort with the City of Quincy and with the National Park Service.

"He was a terrific contribution to this church and to the crypt which when you think about it, visiting crypts cannot be the most exciting thing in the world but Arthur simply made it live which is the art that was so important I think to most of the visitors who come here."

Adams also noted that his family often told little known stories about their Presidential ancestors. Arthur, in turn, would pass these details and anecdotes down to the visitors.

"He would tell the visitors the type of things you wouldn't read in history books."

During his remarks last Wednesday, Adams also paid tribute to his friend. But it was not the customary moment of silence. Instead, Adams led the gathering in three cheers of "Hip, Hip, Hooray" for Arthur.

The gesture would have brought a smile to his face, says Arthur's wife, Alma, who also attended the ceremony and sat in the JQA Presidential Pew with her son-in-law Thomas Kent. Joining them were Adams's wife, Sherry, and their young granddaughter, Tatyana Louisa Catherine Adams.

ALMA

"But on the other hand," Alma added, "Arthur was a very down-to-earth person so I think he would have been humbled by the whole thing."

She called the tribute wonderful and the plaque and ceremony beautiful.

"It was a very emotional day for me," she said, while thanking Arthur's successor, Gary Haynes, for doing a wonderful job putting the ceremony together.

"The music was wonderful and it was such a lovely program. I'm so glad I was able to be there."

Alma also received her own keepsake from the ceremony: a program booklet with the front page colored in by Tatyana.

Arthur would have loved that, too.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1918 postcard is a view of Manet Avenue in Houghs Neck looking north from near its intersection with Sea Street. The church in the right center was on the corner of Winthrop Avenue. First known as St. Francis-by-the-Sea, it was renamed Most Blessed Sacrament when the parish was established in 1917. This church was demolished soon after this picture was taken as a new church was built on Sea Street. The old Catholic Lyceum was in the house in front of and just to the right of the church. The trolley on the left was turning onto Babcock Street. For over 50 years, trolleys traveled from Quincy Square to the end of Sea Street. The trolleys were replaced by busses in 1946. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Granite Railway 'Quarry-To-Wharf' Tours

Massachusetts Bay Railroad Enthusiasts, Inc. (Mass Bay RRE) announces its 2012 schedule of 'Quarry-to-Wharf' tours through the Granite Railway archeological sites in West Quincy and East Milton.

The 3½-hour, fully-guided van tours will operate July 21-22, Aug. 19, and September and October on dates to be announced.

Victor Campbell has led Granite Railway tours for Mass Bay RRE for 27 years. In 2002, he appeared on Channel 5's TV newsmagazine, Chronicle, guiding an on-screen visit to the historic railway sites.

Each Granite Railway tour explores the remnants of the first chartered U.S. commercial railroad (1826), including the preserved Bunker Hill Ledge terminal, the 1830 double-track incline, parts of the abandoned right-of-way, several quarries with spectacular views, the stone Neponset River wharf; and several structures related to the railroading, quarrying and iron-making industries.

All tours meet in the rear parking lot at the Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams St., Quincy Center (one block north of the Quincy Center Red Line/commuter rail MBTA station). Saturday tours leave at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.; Sunday tours leave at 1 p.m. (Sunday 9 a.m. tours run only by appointment.) To arrange group tours at other times, contact Campbell at 617-822-4046.

Advance telephone reservations are strongly advised for a Granite Railway tour; walk-up space may not be available. To reserve space, call Campbell at 617-822-4046.

Mass Bay RRE requests a $10 donation from each tour participant.

Additionally, lectures on the Granite Railway heritage may be arranged for railroad and historical societies or community groups by contacting Campbell.

For further information on Granite Railway tours and other activities such as train excursions, events and meetings with topical speakers, visit the website: www.massbayrre.org.

New England Shipwrecks Slide Show Monday

Diving enthusiast Bruce Bateman will present a free slide show about shipwrecks of New England Monday, July 23 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The program is part of a summer series that spotlights

New England places, people and history, sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Many ships of sail and steam have wrecked along the region's shores over the years, including the U.S. Submarine "Squalus" in 1939, which was later raised and recommissioned as the "Sailfish."

Learn more about the "Squalus" incident and other shipwrecks and examine some of the many artifacts that Bruce has collected over the years.

Bateman has led a fascinating life in the sea and in the air, and has examined many shipwrecks. He was cofounder of the Air Force

Diving Team, which established procedures for jumping out of helicopters and rescuing downed airmen, diving under the ice for body and aircraft recovery, and training police and fire fighters for rescue teams. He was also cofounder and president of the Plattsburgh Air Force Base Diving Club. Mr. Bateman has been a Banner Tow Pilot, a Glider Tow Pilot, an Ultra light Aircraft Examiner and a test pilot of experimental aircraft. He currently serves as a tour guide for Salem Trolley, Hawthorne Tours and Derby Square Tours.

Children's Programs At Library

By JULIE RINES
Thomas Crane
Public Library

The following children's programs are scheduled at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Concert: Big Ryan

On Friday, July 20th at 2 p.m. at the Main Library, Ryan Racette returns to Quincy with Big Ryan's Tall Tales, a program full of original stories, puppet play, music and movement especially suited for a very young audience. So come along and sing a song, meet some puppet pals and hear a story or two.

This program is best suited to children ages 0-4 accompanied by an adult.

It is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library

Art-to-go is an eight-week series of drop in art activities that travel throughout Quincy. Supplies for the week's project will be available on Mondays at the Main Library; Tuesdays at Adams Shore; Wednesdays at North Quincy and on Thursdays at Wollaston so stop by anytime from 2 to 4 p.m. and make a craft.

Projects are open ended to accommodate a wide age range. They are easy enough for toddlers and preschoolers to do with an adult's help and free form enough for school age children to add their own personal touch. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library. Week of July 23rd - Night Sky Collage

Storyteller's Series

On Tuesday, July 24th at 7 p.m. Storyteller Diane Edgcomb presents Night

Lights. Unusual star myths take us on a multicultural voyage across the heavens.

The wonderful collection Diane has gathered features easily observed "night lights" such as Morning Star and North Star as well as favorite constellations. Also included is Diane's hilarious version of the Japanese folktale of Princess Firefly. This program is for ages 5 and older. Sponsored by the Quincy Arts Council.

"Let's Play Together" Pajama Storytime

On Wednesday, July 25th at 6:30 p.m. Storyteller Diana Kane of Creative Connection presents "Let's Play Together," pajama storytimes designed especially for children ages 2-5 and their parents. Every Wednesday evening will be filled with activities for children and adults to do together.

Come see Ms. Diana for an hour of interactive stories, partner dances, playing in a band and singing together. Ms. Diana is a music specialist and storyteller who has prepared a six-week program that is designed for adults and children to enjoy stories and songs as a family. This is a great time for you and your children to sing, dance, listen and talk with each other.

This program series, sponsored by the Quincy Arts Council, will continue on Wednesday evenings until Aug. 15th.

Level3 and Dilly Dilly Live at the Library!

Long before there was One Direction, there was Level3 Luke Dixon, Ryan Hale, and Travis Wyland had taken home two MTV awards and won a Grammy all before they were 18. Then, to the utter shock of their fans, the boys broke up.

But, Level3 is back together this summer for one short tour with Indie girl rocker Dilly Dilly And they are playing at our library!! Why our library and not a club or stadium? Because Level3 has been fictionalized. They appear in Hilary Weisman Graham's new YA novel, Reunited as the band that reunites three ex-best friends for a 2,000 mile road trip to see Level3's reunion show. Reunited's publisher, Simon & Schuster, is sending Level3 and Dilly Dilly on the road to rock the stacks of libraries from Boston to Austin in celebration of the book.

Join us on the lawn on Wednesday, July 25th at 2 p.m. Come for live music, free MP3's from the bands, free chapters from the book, and a photo op inside Level3's tour van.

The show will go on come rain or shine; in case of inclement weather we will move into the atrium. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library.

Max & Suzy

On Thursday, July 26th at 10:30 a.m. at the Main Library join us for a live theater program for children. Max & Suzy are best friends who codirect a theatre troupe of kids on their street, but can never agree on which play to produce. Max & Suzy need your help when their friends don't show up for rehearsal. So come along and watch the show or join the action on stage. I wonder what the show will be?

Kidstock Participatory Theater's Max & Suzy serve up some delicious theatrical fun by involving the audience in their onstage rivalry while simultaneously presenting two familiar stories comically blended into one play!

Two Quincy Garden Clubs Honored For Their Legislative Work Supporting Updated Bottle Bill

Both the Houghs Neck Garden Club and the Wollaston Garden Club recently received a Certificate of Commendation for their outstanding Community Activism on behalf of Legislative Action on the Extended Redeemable Bottle Bill at the Annual Meeting of The Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts, Inc. (GCFM) in Mansfield.

Club Presidents Gail Freel and Pat Artis accepted the award on behalf of their clubs and its members.

Last winter, members of both clubs worked hard to convince their city councilors to pass a Quincy City Council Resolution in Support of the Updated Bottle Bill which would expand to include the redemption and recycling of water, iced tea and other non-carbonated beverages; the vote in the City Council Dec. 5 was 8-1 in support.

Garden club members then polled the Quincy State House delegation, who are all now in full support of the updated Bottle Bill.

HNGC President Gail Freel cited "the impact that the littering of these bottles has on the local environment and the increased cost to the city in trash collection."

Individually, members have written, e-mailed, and called House Speaker DeLeo to register their advocacy of HR890/S1650. The Updated Bottle Bill has the support of more than 77 percent of Massachusetts citizens and now a bipartisan majority of the state legislators, but has been held up in committee for almost two decades through the lobbying efforts of bottle bill industry.

The original MA bottle bill redemption law (1983) requiring the redemption/re-cycling of beer and soda bottles has been highly successful; the GCFM was instrumental in the passage of that law.

Critics frequently say that this would be an additional tax on consumers.

"If this were so," said WGC President Pat Artis, "We consumers should all be filing for tax deductions for each time we redeem our beer and soda bottles."

New Chess Club In Quincy

A new Chess Club comes to Quincy Aug. 1 when local chess enthusiasts celebrate the organization of the new Quincy Chess Club at the Roche Brothers Supermarket's Second Floor Community Center, 101 Falls Blvd. in Quincy at 6:30 p.m.

The Quincy Chess Club is free to join and free to attend club meet-ups and is open to the public of all communities.

Dan Racine of Quincy is the founder of the Quincy Chess Club and will serve as president of the new club. The Quincy Chess Club plans to become an active and visible part of the South Shore community and provide a free service where folks of all ages can learn and play chess, meet other chess enthusiasts, and have fun.

"We are excited to give back to our community. Through chess, we plan to make a meaningful difference in our community," Racine said.

Quincy Chess Club will meet the first and third Wednesday of the month from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Roche Brothers Supermarket's Second Floor Community Center, 101 Falls Blvd. in Quincy. For more information call (857) 888-1531; email quincyChessclub@gmail.com or visit <http://sites.google.com/site/quincyChessclub> and www.facebook.com/quincyChessclub

HINT OF LATE SUMMER

It seems that peridot (the gemstone variety of olivine) is the perfect birthstone for August because its vivid green color with just a hint of gold reminds everyone of a late-summer's day. This gemstone's fine pistachio to olive-green color, which perfectly complements a crisp, light summer wardrobe, has been exceedingly popular for a number of years. Actually, peridot dates back to antiquity, when it was found in Egyptian jewelry from the early 2nd millennium B.C. Today, this lovely gemstone is, once again, highly prized for its beautiful hue and lovely transparency.

Despite its seeming delicacy, peridot has very good wearing qualities and requires no special care. It is a great everyday gemstone that is available in large sizes.

The vivid green of the peridot, with just a slight hint of gold, is the ideal gemstone color to go with that summer wardrobe. Our store is conveniently located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center where we are happy to bring you our exceptional level of service and value. Symposium Celebrating Marian 'Clover' And Henry Adams At Adams National Historical Park

The Adams National Historical park will promote "Art-in-the-Park" to celebrate the life and times of Clover Adams with a week-end of talks, tours, and exhibits July 27-29 featuring noted scholars, authors and historians of Marion "Clover" Hooper Adams, Henry Adams, and the Adams Family.

All programs will take place at Adams National Historical Park, 135 Adams St., Quincy.

The evening of July 27, at 6:30 p.m. in the Carriage House will feature Natalie Dykstra and "Who Was Clover Adams," Peter Drummey: "Meet the Adams In-Laws" and Anne Bentley: "Artistry in Light and Shadows."

Marian "Clover" Adams, wife of Pulitzer Prize-winning author and historian, Henry Adams, was an accomplished photographer and chronicler of the people and places of the "Gilded Age." Clover produced more than 150 evocative photographs that capture the spirit of the age and illuminate the life and times of this remarkable and enigmatic woman. These compelling and often poignant images of a vanished world are preserved at the Massachusetts Historical Society in Boston.

Explore the life and times of Clover Adams with Natalie Dykstra, associate professor of English, Hope College, Holland, Michigan and Fellow, Massachusetts

Historical Society.

Dykstra, in her compelling biography of Marian "Clover" Adams, reveals how Clover's photographs illuminate the outwardly charmed existence of one of America's first female photographers, and the inner tensions, turmoil, and tragedy in the haunting images she captured and preserved.

Examine Clover Adams' use of the photographic medium to reflect her emotional connections to the arts and to her subjects with Anne Bentley, curator of Art, Massachusetts Historical Society. In "Artistry in Light and Shadow," Bentley explores Clover's images and shares her perspective on Clover's inimitable style and her photographic legacy in selected images from Clover's collection of photographs from the Massachusetts Historical Society.

Consider Clover's dilemma and "Meet the Adams In-Laws" with Peter Drummey, Massachusetts Historical Society. Clover Adams and her in-laws, Charles Francis and Abigail Brooks Adams, did not always see eye-to-eye. In a candid image of her in-laws on the porch at Peace field, Clover captured the dynamics of this relationship in one of her most famous and unsettling photographs. Drummey explores this relationship, and others, in his insightful and compelling look at the Adamses and their tragic and "charming blue."

field

On Saturday, July 28, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Peace field, amateur and professional photographers alike will fan out across the property at Peace field to capture, in black and white, photographs that evoke the historic "sense of place" and the vanished world of Henry and Clover Adams.

Photograph Exhibit July 29

Photographs take at Peace field on Saturday, July 28, may be exhibited in the Adams Carriage House on Sunday, July 29, from noon to 5 p.m. Guest curators for this special exhibition include photography students Marisa Carson and Rebecca Ledin, and Professor Hettie Handenschield, Quincy College.

Tours and Exhibits July 27-29

Join the staff of Adams National Historical Park on a "behind-the-scenes" tour of Henry Adams' third-floor bedroom, which will be open to the public on this special occasion, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 27-29. It is also open by reservation throughout the season.

Call the Visitor Center at 617-770-1175 for more information.

These "focus tours" will provide visitors with the opportunity to examine furnishings and other artifacts in the Old House at Peace field that illuminate the life and times of Henry Adams and Clover Adams.

Artichoke Hearts & Tuna Fish Pizza

Who doesn't like pizza? Whether it's grilled or cooked in the oven, it's a wonderful crowd pleaser.

Two of my favorite foods are tuna fish and artichoke hearts, so that's the kind of pizza I recently decided to try with great results.

Artichoke Hearts and Tuna Pizza

2 cans of tuna fish
3 tablespoons olive oil
Large can of artichoke hearts (or frozen)
Fresh mozzarella cheese sliced in 1/4 inch pieces.
Oregano for topping (optional)
1 pound of pizza dough (sold in markets)
6 cherry tomatoes (cut in half)
Preheat oven to 400-425 degrees.
Roll out the dough on a floured surface.
Line the 12-inch pizza pan with the half of the oil. Place the rounded dough onto the pan.

Drain the tuna and separate into chunky flakes. Put in a mixing bowl, then add the other half of the oil and fresh ground pepper or any other favorite seasonings. Place this over the dough. Drain the artichokes. Cut in half and arrange on top of the tuna.

Place the mozzarella cheese and the tomatoes over the top. In place of the oregano, fresh basil can also be used. Bake for 20-25 minutes or until the cheese is melted.

If you don't want to use oil to line the pan, sprinkled corn meal can also be used.

Whenever I make pizza, I bake the dough by itself for about 5 minutes and then remove it and place the toppings. It makes a better crust.

Old Fashion Baked Beans

Anytime my daughter Rita tells me that she is bringing home made baked beans to any family event, we are all happy because they are the best!

And the nice thing about it is that they can be made ahead of time.

OLD FASHION BAKED BEANS

2 packages Navy beans, dry
1 cup molasses
1/2 cup brown sugar
4 teaspoons salt

4 teaspoons dry mustard
8 slices cooked bacon (cut up)
2 onions (chopped)
8 cups water

Soak beans overnight and drain In eight cups of water, boil the beans for one hour.

Stir in the rest of the ingredients and bake in a covered pot for one hour or more. Taste it to see if the beans are cooked as you prefer. The beans are a wonderful side dish and great for a cook-out.

QUINCY RESIDENT Nicole Pitts tastes local foods at the Stone Zoo's recent "A Wild Affair" in Stoneham. The annual 21+ tasting event featured food from 25 area restaurants and caterers. Visitors had the opportunity to stroll among the animals while enjoying a variety of food and drink, a silent auction, and live entertainment from a cappella groups "Blue of a Kind" and "Talk to the Hand."

appoint Joseph J. Barron as the permanent fire chief for Quincy," the review panel wrote in its recommendation to the mayor.

The panel also described the other candidate, Deputy Chief Gary Smyth, as a dedicated and capable member of the Quincy Fire Department.

"He has a lot to offer the community and the fire chiefs panel encourages Chief Barron to utilize the talents of Deputy Chief Smyth. The panel also encourages Deputy Chief Smyth to continue to work hard on behalf of the citizens of Quincy and the members of the Quincy Fire Department.

"Deputy Chief Smyth brought up several issues during the course of the interview that he could contribute to the Quincy Fire Department including plans to deal with the expiration of the SAFER grant and the development of operating guidelines."

Barron joined the Fire Department in 1978. He was appointed lieutenant in 1992, captain in 1996 and deputy chief in 2002. Koch had named Barron fire chief Sept. 30, 2009.

Barron's appointment was contested by Smyth who appealed to the Civil Service Commission. Smyth finished one point ahead of Barron on the Civil Service exam that was topped by then Captain Edward Fenby. Fenby declined the chief's position and instead was appointed a deputy fire chief.

Smyth became a Quincy firefighter in 1987 and was promoted to lieutenant in 1998, captain in 2002 and Deputy in 2006.

Last year, the Civil Service Commission ruled in Smyth's favor and ordered an independent panel – and not the mayor – should decide between Barron and Smyth.

Neither Barron nor Smyth were available for comment Tuesday.

The recommendation to the mayor followed a public meeting last Wednesday and private interviews between the panel and the candi-

The panel was organized by Arizona-based Facets Consulting. Serving on the panel were Charles Hood, fire chief in San Antonio, TX and Michael Lombardo, a former battalion chief in Buffalo, NY. A third panelist was unable to make the meeting and was replaced by Paul Luizzi, a deputy fire chief in Arizona.

Kevin Roche, an acting facilitator and principal at Facets, submitted the five-page recommendation to the mayor. It was signed and dated Monday.

Each candidate, according to the recommendation, participated in four interview components with the interview panel including a resume and qualifications review, an in-box exercise, the development, on short notice, of a presentation for the City Council, and a closing interview.

The recommendation described both Barron and Smyth as "highly experienced and tenured members of the Quincy Fire Department that are clearly dedicated to the citizens of Quincy and the Quincy Fire Department. . . . Their knowledge of the city and the Quincy Fire Department are impressive."

In support of Barron as the city's permanent fire chief, the panel said "Chief Barron set himself apart with a demonstrated ability to think outside the box when faced with complicated issues including the difficult budget atmosphere in Quincy since the beginning of his tenure, his detailed understanding of the operation of Quincy city government and other governmental processes, his desire and ability to work cooperatively with other department heads and organizations, his ability and comfort level with working cooperatively with the firefighter's union, his commitment to seek opportunities for diversity in the Quincy Fire Department, and his ability to develop realistic solutions to problems."

Here's what else the panel said about Barron:

In his mock presentation to the council, Barron distinguished himself by approaching a Council suggestion to modify dispatch operations with an open mind. In his presentation, Chief Barron:

- Carefully examined the current Quincy Fire Department dispatch operation in non-technical terms to facilitate understanding,

- Cited several specific regional alternatives to the current operational approach.

- Explained how the current model provided flexibility in the assignment of injured firefighters and the cost savings that were associated with that flexibility,

- Talked about opportunities and challenges that may be associated with different approaches, including the possible employment of physically disabled people including physically disabled veterans,

- Talked about the possibility of using this as an opportunity to increase the diversity of the Quincy Fire Department, including the opportunity to hire Asian community members with the added benefit of language skills,

- Proposed an inclusive process to study the issue,

- Proposed the vetting of the issue through the Council's public safety committee,

- Proposed to involve his command staff, dispatchers, the firefighter's union, and citizen involvement in the process, and

- Promised to return to the Council with more information and to keep the Council informed on his efforts.

The panel said this was in contrast to the approach taken by Smyth.

"The approach taken to this mock presentation task by Smyth was much more resistant to change. Deputy Chief Smyth explained the benefits to the current dispatch model but did not indicate that he was open to change. His approach to the issue was more confrontational with the mock Council than necessary."

"Deputy Chief Smyth cited other fire chiefs organizations as a resource for further research but was not as specific as Chief Barron in his intent to follow up with the Council."

Each fire chief candidate provided the fire chief interview panel with detailed resumes and backup material about their qualifications, accomplishments, commendations, and other information.

"Chief Barron included a listing of almost $3.7 million in grants and disaster funding that he and his staff had been able to secure. Chief Barron also told the panel about recent accomplishments, including the upcoming life fire training exercises at the Boston Fire Department training facility, the inclusion of four Quincy firefighter recruits in the current Boston Firefighter recruit academy at no cost, the formulation of an MOU with the Boston Fire Department to provide hazmat response and training for Quincy, and the challenges of managing a fire department in the economic conditions present in the past few years," the panel wrote.

Deputy Chief Smyth, the panel continued, "provided the panel with extensive information about his experience and plans for the Quincy Fire Department. He included past commendations from 1998 through 2008, and a copy of the Civil Service Commission on case G2-10-3. Deputy Chief Smyth did not provide the panel with information on more recent accomplishments in his role as Deputy Chief, accomplishments on his part working with the firefighters on his group, or any more recent efforts to prepare for the job of fire chief."

In summation, the panel wrote:

"Based on the results of the interview process and a comparison of the qualifications of each candidate against national standards and best practices for the position, the fire chief interview panel unanimously recommends that Mayor Koch appoint Joseph J. Barron as the permanent fire chief for Quincy."

The panel also described Smyth as a dedicated and capable member of the Quincy Fire Department.

"He has a lot to offer the community and the fire chiefs panel encourages Chief Barron to utilize the talents of Deputy Chief Smyth. The panel also encourages Deputy Chief Smyth to continue to work hard on behalf of the citizens of Quincy and the members of the Quincy Fire Department."

Social Security Goes Country

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Note: It may seem crazy, but there are 20 country song titles or lyrics in this column (including the one in this sentence). Can you circle all of them?

You probably think of July 4 as Independence Day. Did you know that it is also National Country Music Day?

A new holiday? Not by any means. In fact, you might even say it's been around forever and ever Amen. It was in the 1950s that the Country Music Deejay Association decided to start the holiday. It's been celebrated every year since.

Social Security's been around nearly as long as country music — since the 1930s. Social Security was signed into law during the same depression era that found Gene Autry singing "Take Me Back To My Boots and Saddle." Since its dustbowl beginnings, Social Security has helped many silver-haired daddies (and mamas who let their babies grow up to be cowboys) get back in the saddle again.

By helping many older Americans stay out of poverty, Social Security is used to being told "I will always love you" and that "you were always on my mind." Not to mention, "If you've got the money, honey, I've got the time."

These days, retirees live longer than ever. Today's average 65-year old can expect to live another 20 years. About 55 million Americans will receive $760 billion in Social Security benefits this year; the average monthly benefit for a retired worker in 2012 is $1,229.

But let's give them something to talk about: Social Security is more than retirement. The agency could cry, "People who say 'Social Security Retirement' never even called me by my name." That's because Social Security also pays disability and survivors benefits, as well as Supplemental Security Income, or SSI.

Whether you're at the start of your career, working 9 to 5, or well into mid-career, you should give some thought to planning your future retirement. To help you plan, visit our Retirement Estimator at www.socialsecurity.gov/estimator. It'll help you determine how much you need to save to harvest a comfortable retirement.

Are you at the end of a career? Ready to take this job and shove it? There's no reason to walk the line to your local Social Security office, even if you are king of the road. The easiest way to apply for retirement benefits is online, at www.socialsecurity.gov. Being away from your friends at work may make you so lonesome you could cry, but at least you can count on a monthly Social Security payment. They may even begin to sing about the day of the month "when our old-age pension check comes to our door." Or, in most cases, by direct deposit to your bank account.

Here's a word of advice for Lucille and Ruby. You may have picked a fine time to take your love to town, but if you were married for ten years or more, and are not remarried, you may qualify for Social Security benefits based on your ex's work history — whether your exes live in Texas or anywhere else.

Were you able to find all 20 song references? Here's an easier challenge: find everything you need related to Social Security at www.socialsecurity.gov.

More Than A Dozen From Quincy Among 300 Attendees Crime Prevention, Hoarding Focus At D.A. Morrissey's Senior Summit

More than a dozen city residents joined Norfolk County District Attorney Michael Morrissey at his recent 2012 Senior Summit, learning how criminals target older citizens, ways to avoid becoming a victim, and hearing from a national expert on the phenomenon of hoarding.

"Criminals target senior citizens for a number of reasons — many have accumulated substantial assets, from homes owned outright to retirement savings," Morrissey said.

Quincy Council on Aging Director Tom Clasby, Kathy McElroy from Squantum, Marie Locicero, Edward and Eileen Miller, Ginny Bimler, Alice Klumpp, John and Muffy Ventresca, Jane Braun, Gerry Mayer and Mary O'Malley were among more than 300 at the event, held at Christina's function hall in Foxborough.

Members of the audience volunteered information from their own experience that memory problems, physical disability or injury, hearing problems, embarrassment, and a fear of losing independence have led to seniors of being targeted by criminals.

Morrissey and Assistant District Attorney Phil Burr also reinforced some of the warning signs seniors should look for: people who come door-to-door offering home repair or other services; ask for more than 1/3 down on a home repair project; insist on being paid in cash; or start doing work before getting your permission.

"I was very pleased to have Christina Bratiotis, co-author of 'The Hoarding Handbook,' present on the growing public health and safety problem of compulsive hoarding in our communities," District Attorney Morrissey said. "This year we asked the senior center directors and area professionals what safety topic they would most like to hear addressed at the summit, and hoarding was the clear first choice."

In addition to Bratiotis' presentation on current research into hoarding and what friends and professionals can do when they recognize its signs, the District Attorney presented every town's COA head, police chief or fire chief a reference copy of "The Hoarding Handbook."

There was also a presentation from Wayne L. Westcott, Ph.D., author and fitness research director at the South Shore YMCA in Quincy.

Luncheon July 31 To Honor U.S. Cadet Nurse Corps

The U.S. Cadet Nurse Corps (USCNC) will be recognized at an event Tuesday, July 31 at 1 p.m. at Atria Marina Place, 4 Seaport Dr., North Quincy.

The USCNC was conceived by women (nursing leaders) and administered by women. It comprised 180,000 young women who joined from 1943 to 1945.

These nurses supplied 80 percent of the nursing care in more than 1,000 civilian hospitals. These women are on record as a valuable contribution to the nation during and following World War II.

By enlisting in the USCNC, and staffing hospitals, graduate nurses were then able to join the Armed services, and essential public health nurses could remain on the home front to provide care and critical immunizations to the workers in the country's burgeoning war industries.

The Cadets were confronted by epidemics of communicable diseases: Infantile Paralysis (Polio) and other infectious illnesses such as Tuberculosis and scarlet fever. The provided care and saved lives while risking their own. Some cadets were casualties of these diseases.

A significant number of nurses who were already in training in 1943 joined the "Corps" and upon graduation, in 1943 and 1944, went into the Army or Navy. Some went overseas, while others worked in Veteran hospitals.

When a bill to draft nurses was being considered in 1945, over 10,000 graduates of the U.S. Cadet Nurse Corps answered the care — negating the need for the draft.

The 124,000 graduates of USCNC provided nursing care to our nation's citizens for an average of 28 years.

The luncheon July 31 will honor the women who served a critical role for the U.S. during World War II.

Over 20 nurses and their families will be present for the luncheon.

ordered the city to not renew its lease for the Adams Academy building, and instead named an independent trustee to evaluate using the site for commercial use to bring money into the trust. The Quincy Historical Society has a $100 a month lease on the site, which was valued at almost $1.9 million at the time of the ruling and is the largest asset still in the trust's portfolio. Overseers chairman Peter Boylston Adams said the ruling was alarming to board members, which includes Adams family members and city officials.

"When the judge removed our authority over the Adams Academy building, we felt if we were vulnerable on that front we'd be vulnerable at the crypt," Adams told the Sun last week in a phone interview.

The crypts are currently owned by the trust; the church in which they're housed, the United First Parish Church, provides tours of the site to visitors.

The city is currently appealing the decision. Adams said he and his family — who weren't involved in any of the litigation — were shocked at the judge's decision, because he "gave no consideration to the historical background."

Adams said that transferring the crypts to the Park Service would help tie them together with other parts of his family's legacy. The NPS already manages the Adams Mansion and the birthplaces of both presidents.

"We felt it was more appropriate to move crypts to the Park Service," Adams said. "The crypts were out there by themselves."

When Adams mentioned the potential transfer last Wednesday at a wreath-laying ceremony for John Quincy Adams' birthday, it surprised Adams National Park Superintendent Marianne Peak. But Peak said she was honored that the trust decided to transfer ownership to the Park Service.

"I was very complimented by his appreciation of the Park System being stewards of the property — of his family legacy," Peak said.

There's a lengthy process that needs to take place before the site can be accepted, according to Peak. Peak said the decision would be made by Park Service officials above her, starting with the Park Service's regional leadership. The review process will consider issues of funding and sustainability, and there's no guarantee the transfer will take place.

"Sometimes it takes years," Peak said. "Sometimes it doesn't happen at all."

Quincy Historical Society's lease for Adams Academy runs until 2022 with options to renew, according to the society's Executive Director Ed Fitzgerald. He explained that having the society's headquarters at the site isn't taking any money from the trust, since the organization pays for all utilities and repairs.

"We have been faithful custodians of this building for a generation now," Fitzgerald said. "We, in one way or another, have been central to repairs at the building and we pay all utilities. We're not costing the Adams Temple and School Fund money by being here."

The society has leased the building since the 1970s, and Adams said he and his family would consider it a travesty if the society is forced out of the building when the lease expires. Fitzgerald said he was happy to have the family's backing.

"I was gratified by Adams' comment that we should stay," Fitzgerald said.

John Adams established the trust in 1822. Money from the trust paid for construction of the United First Parish Church, and proceeds from rent paid on the land went to the Adams Academy until that school closed early in the 20th century. When the school closed, the money originally went to Quincy's public schools.

Starting in 1953, however, the trust started making annual payments to the Woodward School, which was founded by John Adams' cousin Ebenezer Woodward, instead of sending payments to public schools. In 2007, the school filed suit against Quincy, faulting the city for not disbursing the payments for several years and for selling 15 trust properties between 1953 and 1972 at less than market value.

Langlois determined that 11 of the 15 properties had been sold for less than market value. He awarded the trust $3 million, though the Woodward School had sought $10 million in damages.

be known as the Massachusetts Technical Assistance Partnership for Prevention, or MassTAPP, EDC will provide its trademark customized assistance and support to BSAS-funded substance abuse prevention programs and also to cities, towns, and local coalitions working to prevent drug- and alcohol-related problems. EDC will draw on its experience working with hundreds of school districts, service providers, and communities across the country, using the most up-to-date research on prevention strategies to collaborate more effectively across systems and geographical regions.

MassTAPP will employ a core team of specialists, including experts in the reduction of underage drinking and opioid overdose (BSAS's current priorities), as well as practitioners with experience in planning and implementing drug, alcohol, and tobacco prevention campaigns. MassTAPP will also conduct in-person trainings and networking events, many of which will be open to anyone in the state working in the area of substance abuse prevention and to the community programs funded by BSAS.

"We are so pleased to be chosen by the state to lead these services," said EDC's Lauren Gilman, who will direct the new center. "EDC's experience and reputation for providing these services nationally will serve us well in meeting the needs of Massachusetts cities and towns who are actively working to prevent drug and alcohol abuse in their communities."

EDC will also use cutting-edge technology to offer webinars and other distance learning events to share information and research and bring together communities with similar concerns. In addition, the new center will offer peer-to-peer learning and mentoring opportunities to encourage communities to share strategies and work together.

Madelyn Ferreira Finalist Aug. 4

Quincy Girl Participating In Miss Pre-Teen Pageant

By EMILY TAFT

For 10-year-old Quincy and Abington resident Madelyn Ferreira, participating in a pageant had been the furthest thing from her mind, until she read about the American Miss Pre-Teen pageant from an invitation she received based on a recommendation the pageant received.

Ferreira is a finalist in the National American Miss Massachusetts Pageant that will be held on Aug. 4th in Danvers.

Ferreira, who likes to catch frogs and plays video games when it's raining out, says she wouldn't normally participate in a pageant but she thinks it will be her personality that makes her stand out from the rest.

"I like to go bike riding, I like swimming, I like to hangout with my friends. I am huge on going outside. I like going out into the woods and catching frogs," said Ferreira. "I have a lot of personality, everybody tells me I have a very vivid personality. I have a lot of me."

Ferreira, who has a dream of being famous, thought the pageant could help her start to achieve that dream, because it allows her to be an individual.

"I didn't really know anything about pageants but I always dreamed about being famous so I thought it could help me achieve that," said Ferreira. "As I am getting more into it, I realize it is going to be more fun for me because I get to do all sorts of things I've never done before. I get to show everyone who I am."

The National American Miss Pageants are dedicated to celebrating America's future leaders and equipping them with life-long skills. The pageant is held for girls ages 4 to 18 and has five different age divisions; Ferreira will be participating in the pre-teen division. All activities and talents are age appropriate and girls under the age of 12 are not allowed to wear make-up, and there is also no swimsuit competition.

"This is not a beauty pageant. There is no make up, and there is no sense of competition. The focus from the pageant's perspective is on preparing these girls to be future leaders," said Madelyn's step-mother Denise Ferreira. "They want them to have poise and self-confidence, be able to present themselves to a room full of strangers and speak confidently on whatever topic they choose. The interview aspect is really the primary part of the pageant. They are not only speaking into a microphone in front of a room full of people, but one-on-one with an adult as well."

The scoring is split up into four different categories, 30 percent for formal wear, 30 percent towards the interview, 30 percent for the introduction and 10 percent towards community involvement. Ferreira will also participate in several optional contests including casual wear modeling, miss photogenic, top model, and most promising model.

"I'm looking forward to doing the casual modeling," Ferreira. "You get to walk around, put your hands on your hips and be all spunky. I like being funny and spunky."

During the pageant, Ferreira will be asked questions such as what qualities she looks for in a best friend, what is her favorite television show and her favorite subject in school, and who is her role model.

Ferreira said if her dream of becoming famous doesn't come true, she plans on working in the science profession, which happens to be her favorite subject in school.

"I like animals, I get into really deep conversations about how things work and why," said Ferreira. "I want to be a scientist, one that studies animals, a marine biologist, or a ornithologist. When I grow up I want to go underwater and look at the sharks, and swim next to whales and dolphins."

As for the person she looks up to as a role model, Ferreira said she has to be careful whom she chooses.

"My role model would have to be older kids I see, like the fifth graders," said Ferreira. "But I have to be careful about the older kids that I look up to. I look up to them because I want to be like them when I am older."

Ferreira said that even if she doesn't win this year, or make it to the next round she plans on doing it all again next year, and she might even try other pageants.

"If I don't win this year I can go back next year and try again," said Ferreira. "If I like this one I might try other ones to see how they are different."

In the end Ferreira said that she hopes to come away with memories she will never forget, and new friends she has met along the way.

"I hope to take with me a lot of experiences," said Ferreira. "It gives me a chance to meet new friends."

A fundraising event is underway until July 25th to help Ferreira raise money in order to participate in the pageant. An auction on eBay features a number of different products which have been donated by local business owners. Shoppers can search for the auctions by typing in the keyword NAmis. Ferreira is also conducting an AVON fundraiser by selling Skin-so-soft Bug Guard products. For more information contact Denise Ferreira (508) 994-5950.

Our Search for Home

Home is such a personally significant word, thought, memory and feeling for each of us. In one sense it points backward toward the original experience of union- with Mother-Family-as the foundational seed of a possible and ideal world. It also points forward urging us to bring to fruition in reality the hint and taste of what life can be. "Being at home" though is not just about the memories of bygone days; it also speaks to the inner drive and necessity that sends us looking for our truest selves and who we can be. It is that place within us that enables wholeness and peace in the midst of all of the restlessness, risks and challenges of daily living. One of the rewards we owe ourselves is to take time and be "at home!"-at home with ourselves.

YMCA Appreciation Day Cookout Wednesday

The Germantown Neighborhood Center and South Shore YMCA hosted its annual Appreciation Day Cookout Wednesday from noon to 3 p.m. at its facility located at 333 Palmer St., Quincy.

Some 300 individuals were expected to attend the cookout.

The event recognizes community leaders, businesses and organizations that help make a difference in the Quincy community. The Appreciation Day event also features an award ceremony honoring individuals who have made a significant impact in the community.

Among those being honored this year:

Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts, Wendy Bellow, Pastor Jeffrey Barker, Carolyn Kennedy, Lawrence Norton and The City of Quincy Department of Planning and Community Development under the direction of Dennis Harrington. Special speakers and presenters of the awards/citations included John Ireland, vice president of the SSYMCA. There was also a special performance by the GNC Peer leaders, Campers & Volunteers.

Following the award ceremony, the cookout also featured games, food, drinks, raffles, face painting, and music. There was also a health resource fair with local health and wellness agencies and businesses setting up tables and displaying information.

The Quincy Planning and Community Development Department (PCD) recently completed a green guide for citizens of Quincy.

The guide can be found online at <http://quincycitizensgreenguide.wordpress.com/> or through a link on the city website at <http://www.quincyma.gov/Government/PLANNING/CitizensGreenGuide.cfm>.

The guide contains a wide array of information about living more sustainably, from making simple adjustments at home to taking advantage of local rebates and tax credits on appliances. For example, unplugging a television when it's not in use will cut its total power usage by 10-20 percent.

"By adopting more energy efficient practices, we can slow the rate of global warming, thereby reducing the amount that the sea level will rise in the future," said Planning Director Dennis Harrington.

Quincy residents learned about the effects sea level rise will have and heard about the science behind climate change at PCD's workshop on May 23rd held at the Thomas Crane Public Library. The event featured a presentation by Dr. Ellen Douglas, a professor at UMass Boston, and Chris Watson, a UMass Boston research scientist. They discussed maps that they created that show Quincy under various sea level rise conditions and explained the evidence for climate change. The maps and presentation slides are available in the Sea Level Rise section of the green guide.

The green guide builds on the meeting by providing practical tips and easy-to-understand background information. The Department intends to continue raising awareness about global warming by holding additional workshops with nearby towns.

"PCD wants to have residents as their partners in this effort, and invites residents to share their thoughts on global warming and sea level rise by leaving a comment in the Blog section of the green guide," Harrington added.

Remembering John Quincy Adams: A Favorite Native Son

QUINCY PERSONNEL of the Navy Operations Support Center escort the Presidential Wreath commemorating the 245th birthday anniversary of Sixth U.S. President John Adams into United First Parish Church. The wreath was provided by Clifford's Flowers of Quincy.

PRESIDENTIAL WREATH is carried to a stand near the sanctuary of the church. Looking on are Gary Haynes, director of the Visitors Program at United First Parish Church and (right) Mayor Thomas Koch.

"His intellect, and his contributions were unparalleled in our nation's history," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "Though many authors discuss his lack of warmth and friendship the authors also indicate that there was nobody at his level of intellect at the time. He was so far ahead of his time in the nation's history that the public support would take 100 years to catch up. Today, I stand before you to acknowledge the great contribution of John Quincy Adams."

The ceremony not only honored the former president but the women who stood beside him, Louisa Catherine Adams.

"This year at the 45th wreath-laying ceremony to honor JQA on his 245th anniversary of his birthday, I will also honor Louisa, his wife of 41 years, to whom he wrote verses and whom he had a strong but often difficult marriage," said Commander Helen Furbush, Commanding Officer, Joint Intelligence Center. "Louisa was highly intelligent, quick-witted and had a refreshing forth right manor. She was gracious and charming, she was passionate about anti-slavery and women's rights. She helped JQA get to the White House."

Adams met Louisa Catherine when he was 12 years old and she was four years old. They met again when Louisa Catherine was 18 years old, but the marriage took three more years to happen. During their marriage, they had three sons and one daughter together.

"When learning about the great JQA's (John Quincy Adams) life I couldn't help but admire his wife also, and all she did to support her husband and family," said Furbush. "The first thing you learn about Louisa Adams is that she is the only First Lady to have been born outside of the United States, she was born in London. One of the next things you learn is that, according to the New York Times Company, when Louisa Adams died, both houses of Congress adjourned for the day of her funeral. She was the first woman so honored, and that really caught my attention, why would Congress do that?"

"What was so special about Louisa Adams that they would adjourn to participate in her funeral procession? The more I learned the more I understood why Arthur Ducharme, the former director of the visitors program here at this church, the man who supported this ceremony for the past 15 years, he made it as special as it is today, was in his words dedicated to Louisa Adams."

Furbush spoke of the struggles and hard life Louisa Adams had and said that at many times she was a depressed and sickly woman, but after reading and learning about her she now understands why she received such a tribute at her funeral.

"Now I can understand why Louisa Catherine Adams was paid the unprecedented tribute on the day of her funeral, with both houses of Congress adjourning so they can honor her. She and JQA had spent more than 35 years in Washington D.C. and during that time Louisa was busy making friends, and entertaining politicians, she was not only a popular hostess she was a personal favorite," said Furbush.

"Everyone knows behind every great man there is a great woman. Louisa was that woman, supporting and in some cases empowering JQA. The women who sacrificed her own ambition to support his, a women who if she lived today would have no doubt caused the saying to be reversed."

"Louisa Adams was smart, she was savvy, she was spunky, and yes she was also sickly, but she had a steel core, which somehow gave her the strength she needed to spring back time and time again from adversity, and through it all she stood by her man, JQA, the Sixth President of the USA."

For many at the church it was a day to remember not only John Quincy Adams but also Ducharme who was the director of the visitors program at the church. Ducharme died in January but will always be remembered as the man who loved the history of Quincy and played a big role in each Presidential wreath laying ceremony.

"This is truly a remarkable occasion to celebrate life and many accomplishments of John Quincy Adams, a man who devoted his whole life to this country," said H. Kirkland Switzer II, vice president of United First Parish Church. "Sadly, we're missing two signature people that have been a part of this celebration for many years. Unfortunately earlier this year our long time director of tourism passed away suddenly, Arthur Ducharme, his services will sorely be missed. Also Rev. Sheldon Bennett who served this congregation faithfully for 25 years retired just at the end of this past month."

For Peter Boylston Adams, a descendent of JQA, traveling 1,500 miles from Florida to be at the ceremony was to honor Ducharme.

"The most important reason I came these 1,500 miles for this particular activity was to honor Arthur Ducharme," Adams said to those in attendance. "The standard procedure for people to have a moment of silence for someone they respected and for someone who is now gone on. I would like to change that and have you all stand and give three cheers (of hip-hip hooray)."

Adams brought his granddaughter, Tatyana Louisa Catherine Adams, with him to the ceremony. She is a ninth generation descendant of Second President

PETER BOYLSTON ADAMS

John Adams and is named after Louisa Catherine – the only daughter of Louisa Catherine and John Quincy Adams. She died a year after she was born and was known as the first American citizen born in Russia.

During the ceremony a hymn entitled "When Erst the Fathers of the Land" was sang by the Quincy Choral Society, the hymn was written by Louisa Catherine on Oct. 11, 1832. Quincy personnel from the Navy Operations Support Center

SUN SPORTS

Popular William F. Ryan Boating & Sailing Program Still Accepting Registration

Canoe, Kayak Or Sail On Blacks Creek Lagoon

By SEAN BRENNAN

Located at the backend of Pageant Field, between Furnace Brook Parkway and Quincy Shore Drive, Blacks Creek Lagoon is a hidden gem for aquatic enthusiasts looking to canoe, kayak, or sail in peaceful serenity away from the hustle and bustle of everyday life in Quincy.

And the Quincy Recreation Department, through its William F. Ryan Boating and Sailing program want you to come out and take advantage of this natural beauty. Their popular low-cost program is still offering ongoing summer registration during the week from 9 a.m. until 7 p.m. and on the weekends from noon to 5 p.m.; the facility is open seven days a week until Aug. 15 and is available to anyone from children (age 8 and up) to adults.

"It is a popular program, but we do still have spots available," said Supervisor Nate Schow last week. "It's funny, I have been working here about nine years — this is my third year as supervisor, and every year I get a couple of people who come down and say that they have lived in Quincy their whole life and didn't know (Blacks Creek) was here."

"You can canoe and kayak down creeks that go as far as Furnace Brook and the Beechwood Knoll School. If you were to go down all the creeks and waterways it would take you awhile."

Schow and his staff welcome people of all ages to the facility, but their biggest draw is the youth program for kids' ages 8-16. The Recreation Department starts kids off with a beginner's rowing class where they learn the basics of tying knots, specific parts of the boat and boat terminology. Once a child proves they are proficient in rowing, they get to move onto a canoeing, kayak, or sailing class.

"They start at the age of eight and can go up to the age of 16," Schow said. "For the kids' program the canoeing/kayaking and sailing are probably similar in popularity. There are certainly years when one is more popular than the other, but it is usually a pretty even split overall."

"Some of the kids stay in the beginning sailing for their entire career here and some go on to the intimidate level — those are the kids that have been here for a couple of years and have shown that they really know what they are doing. Those kids get to go out on boats on their own; the beginners have an instructor on the boat at all time."

For the more seaworthy participant, the William F. Ryan Boating and Sailing program also offers an advanced sailing class, which allows young sailors the opportunity to race in the O'Day Widgeon sailing fleet in such events like Quincy Bay Race Week.

"The kids from the intimidate sailing level who show that they are not only good at (sailing), but also want to go on to the racing aspect can do that as well," Schow noted. "We actually go to Quincy Bay Race Week and we usually send four or five boats with three kids in each one."

Everyday around 3 p.m., the kids' classes end and Schow and his staff start adult sailing lessons by appointment, while keeping the facility open until 7:30 p.m. However, anyone can come down and use a kayak or canoe, provided they have a membership through the Recreation Department at any time of the day if vessels are available.

"For adults we have a lot of them who like to do the kayaking," Schow said before adding, "but there is a separate membership just for that, which is very popular. The big thing we like to clarify is that we don't run a rental business; it is a membership, but it is so cheap compared to a rental. It is $35 for the membership and that gets you access to the kayaks whenever we are open and as long as they are available."

Schow isn't just toeing the company line when he speaks so glowingly about the benefits of the boating program and the beauty of Blacks Creek Lagoon. He has been involved, in some way or another, since the age of eight.

"I went through the program and thanks to it I ended up on my high school sailing team," the North Quincy graduate said. "I have seen what it can do for a young kid interested in getting on the water. It is fun and we really would like more folks to come down and give it a try."

A variety of memberships are available including: family, adult, all-season, or short-term adult kayaking and canoeing. Interested parties may drop by the facility or call 617-592-5992 for additional information. You may also contact the Quincy Recreation Department at 617-471-3100.

THIS VIEW OF BLACKS CREEK LAGOON, looking towards Furnace Brook, is just one of several nautical options for folks looking to explore one of Quincy's hidden gems through the Recreation Department's ongoing William F. Ryan Boating and Sailing program.

BLACKS CREEK LAGOON is a popular spot for kayakers and sailors during the summer months.

THE PIER AT BLACKS CREEK LAGOON, looking east towards Wollaston Beach and Quincy Bay, is a busy spot for youngsters and adults alike during the summer months. Registration for is available at the facility weekdays from 9 a.m. until 7 p.m. and on weekends from 12 p.m. until 5 p.m.

THE RECREATION YOUTH SAILING PROGRAM allows kids as young as eight the opportunity to hone their craft on the water. Participants can move from the beginner's level up through the advanced level where many of them race in events including Quincy Bay Race Week.

Post 294 Won 9-8 On July 12; Two Games Left Higgins, Morrisette Hang On Against Weymouth

By SEAN BRENNAN

Over the course of a baseball season there are wins and then there are momentum swinging, season altering wins - the type of victories that can propel a team to a championship.

Morrisette's 9-8 gut-check victory over Weymouth Post 86 last Thursday at Adams Field was just that. It was about as big a win as you'll find this season in American Legion District 6 East. Post 294 entered the game in fifth-place with a 10-7 record, while Weymouth was 11-6 - one game ahead of Morrisette in the standings.

The two teams had already split the first two meetings of the summer, with Weymouth winning 7-4 and Morrisette winning 3-1. The winner of the third game between the two neighboring rivals would have the all-important tie-breaker in regards to District 6 playoff positioning with five games to play in the regular season.

Weymouth jumped out to a 1-0 lead after one inning; took a 3-2 lead after two, and a 5-4 advantage after the third inning before taking a 7-4 lead midway through the fourth frame, but Post 294 didn't back down. Morrisette scored four runs in the home half of the fourth to retake the lead at 8-7, and relief pitcher Jack Higgins (four innings, three strikeouts, win) masterfully navigated his way through a bases-loaded jam in the fifth before slamming the door on Post 86 in the sixth and seventh.

"That was a huge win," said Coach Steve Maze. "Every win at this point in the season is big, but to beat a good Weymouth team and claim all the tie-breakers is huge. We now need to take care of business the rest of the way."

Higgins did his part after taking the ball from starter Sam Lawlor to start the fourth, but it was the production of the Morrisette offense with two outs that proved to be the difference on the scoreboard. Trailing 7-5 with two gone in the bottom of fourth, short-stop Joe Alibrandi (3-for-3, walk, two RBI) singled home Matt Davis (two hits, RBI), and after Jason Pekkinen (double, single, two RBI) and Tom McDonald walked, first baseman Bob Kozlowski gave Post 294 an 8-7 lead with a two-run single to left.

Pekkinen gave Morrisette a much-needed two-run cushion with a clutch two-out RBI single in the fifth that scored catcher Kevin White and gave Post 294 a 9-7 lead. "There is nothing better than two-out hitting," Maze said.

Morrisette caught a break in the top of the first after Weymouth's Brian Biagini led-off the game with a single and Sean McWade walked with two outs. Lawlor allowed a sharp double to Sam McKay, which scored Biagini, but McWade missed the third base bag as he rounded for home (he scored easily) and was called out, ending the inning.

Post 294 took advantage. Chris Connolly struck out to start the inning, but Davis singled and later advanced to third on a wild pickoff throw. After White popped out to second, Alibrandi plated Davis and Pekkinen scored Alibrandi with his double to give Morrisette a 2-1 lead.

To Weymouth's credit, Post 86 roared right back in the top of the second. Luke Luciani walked and Robert Sampson reached on an error by Connolly in center. Drew Saltmarsh advanced both runners with sacrifice, and Pat Murray tied it at 2-2 with an RBI single. Weymouth retook the lead at 3-2 on a Biagini sacrifice fly, but Morrisette had an answer in the bottom of the frame.

With two outs, second baseman Patrick Verhault

(three walks, two runs scored) walked and stole second. He scored on a Connolly RBI single and Connolly then used his speed to give Morrisette back the lead when Davis' fly to right field was dropped. Connolly raced all the way around from first and skipped past the tag at the plate.

Lawlor gave the lead right back in the third when he allowed a lead off triple to Pat Clark. After retiring McWade and McKay (strikeout), he hit Luciani and gave up an RBI hit to Sampson. Morrisette wasted a lead off single from Alibrandi in the bottom of the inning, and the game went to the fourth with Weymouth clinging to a 5-4 lead.

On came Higgins - who struggled with his command at the onset. He allowed a single to Saltmarsh, and walked Murray. Both runners advanced on a passed ball and Saltmarsh scored on another Post 294 miscue (6-4). Following a mound visit from Maze, Higgins got PJ McElroy to ground into a 4-6-3 double play (Murray scored) and Higgins ended the threat by getting Clark on a two-bouncer to Alibrandi at short.

"I just went out there and let Jack know that we had his back," Maze said. "He hasn't pitched much this year, but he is really good. He settled in, got that big double play and really did a nice job for us the rest of the way."

Verhault, again, walked to open the fourth and took second on a throwing error. With one out, Davis doubled to score Verhault, and following a White 4-3 groundout, Alibrandi and Kozlowski came through with two-out RBI hits. Higgins maneuvered around a bases loaded jam in the fifth by getting Murray to pop to short and Pekkinen tacked on an insurance run with his second two-out RBI of the game in the bottom of the inning.

Hayley Parrish In Goalie Competition In Florida

HAYLEY PARRISH, 11, of Quincy will be competing in the International Goaltending Championship July 28-29 in Orlando, FL. She got her start at the Quincy Youth Arena four years ago.

Hayley Parrish is an eleven-year old who likes to stop pucks. And she is really good at it.

The Quincy resident competed back on May 13 in the International Goaltending Competition out in Tewksbury. Parrish competed in the Upper Division for her age even though she is not a full-time goaltender; she also skates out playing center and defense.

At the elite competition, Parrish had the fastest lap time in the speed skating portion for her age and placed third overall, which qualified her for the International Goaltending Championship in Orlando, Florida July 28-29. There she will compete against the top-3 qualifiers from Philadelphia, PA, St. Paul, MN, Chicago, IL, and Toronto, Canada.

The goaltending competitions consists of five shooting stations and three agility stations featuring speed skating, fastest lap around the rink, an obstacle course, and the most up-downs in 20 seconds.

Parrish first discovered her passion for goaltending training with Doug Michals Teams Training four years ago at a summer clinic at the Quincy Youth Arena. She is currently training with Brian Eklund's Mass Crease Goaltending and will also work with Puck-stoppers leading up to the Orlando event.

Higgins allowed Biagini and McElroy to reach and advance into scoring position in the sixth, but retired Clark (fly out), McWade (strikeout), and McKay (1-3 putout) to keep it at 9-7. Weymouth got to within 9-8 in the seventh but Higgins stranded Murray at second to end the game.

Playoff Push

If you follow Post 294 on Twitter @MorrisetteBall (if you don't, you should) you know that over the past month the main message has been for a "playoff push." Morrisette has answered that call.

Post 294 used the big win over Weymouth as a springboard to victories over Holbrook (9-5) last Friday and Jamaica Plain (10-1) on Monday. This three-game winning streak has squarely placed Post 294 in line for a spot in the District 6 best-of-three playoff round, which is expected to begin early next week.

As of Tuesday, Morrisette was tied in third-place with Milton at 13-7 overall. Hyde Park leads District 6 East with a 14-5 record, with Braintree Legion in second at 14-6. With two games remaining (Tuesday night against 5-14 Stoughton and a makeup game on Friday against Hyde Park) in the regular season, Post 294 has an opportunity to move up the standings. When the District 6 playoff round commences next week, the top team from the East will play the No. 5 team from the West and vice versa.

USE IT OR LOSE!

One of the primary objectives of chiropractic treatment is to increase the range of motion of joints so that people can achieve greater mobility and improved health. So, it is of serious concern that many people are subjecting themselves to sedentary lifestyles that may prove quite harmful. How harmful? According to an analysis of self-reported data from over 222,000 people over the age of 45, spending 11 or more hours per day sitting increases the likelihood of dying by 40% over the next three years regardless of how physically active individuals might otherwise be. This finding should be a wake-up call to sedentary individuals. If a chiropractor's help is needed to get you going, just ask.

Strong Showing At Eastern MA State Tournament Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth Qualifies For Playoffs

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth just completed a whirlwind week and a half. The team clinched a South Shore League playoff berth by going 2-1 overall, while improving the record to 10-7, and also made a strong showing in the Senior Babe Ruth State Tournament.

League Play

Last Tuesday, Wollaston traveled to Westwood and won 12-1. Tyler Braun was the winning pitcher and improved his record to 7-0. He limited Westwood to four hits.

Wollaston's offensive stars included Kevin Jackson who had two hits including a bases loaded triple, Eric Kelly, who had two hits, including an RBI triple, Jonathon Leveillee, who had a bases loaded clearing double and Scott Higgins, who had two hits.

On July 13, Wollaston beat Dedham, 9-8. Kevin

Jackson scored the winning run in the bottom of the seventh when he hit a triple and scored on a Dedham throwing error. Earlier in the game Jackson hit a bases loaded triple.

Dillon Darcy pitched the first six innings and limited Dedham to four hits and one run. Matt Kerin, who earlier in the game had banged out a bases loaded clearing double earned the win in relief.

On Sunday, Wollaston lost to Hingham/Hull, 5-0.

This Friday Wollaston plays Hingham/Hull in the first round of a best-of-three games league playoff series. The winner moves on to the Division finals, followed by the South Shore League Championship.

State Tournament

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth participated in the Eastern Massachusetts Senior Babe Ruth State Tournament for the third consecutive year earlier this month.

Wollaston lost to the perennial powerhouse Middlesex County All-Stars in the North Sectional Championship game. Prior to the championship game, Wollaston won the semifinal game by coming from behind to beat the Merrimack Valley All-Stars, 7-5.

Leveillee started for Wollaston and held the Merrimack Valley All-Stars to three hits and no earned runs. Braun earned the victory in relief.

Chris Kerin had two hits and three RBI to lead the offensive attack. Ben Martin had two RBI. John Marsinelli had two hits, a stolen base and forced a balk when he was on third base.

The semifinal victory over the Merrimack Valley All-Stars was Wollaston's first victory in State Tournament play over another league's all-stars.

14-Year-Old Babe Ruth Tournament Begins Friday

By SEAN BRENNAN

The lights will be bright at Adams Field this weekend when eight Babe Ruth programs descend on Quincy's baseball crown jewel to compete in the Eastern Massachusetts 14-Year Old Babe Ruth State Tournament.

Beginning at 4 p.m. on Friday and concluding with a championship game on Thursday, July 26 at 7 p.m., these eight teams from communities including Quincy, Braintree, Dedham, Lynn, Newton, Plymouth, Taunton, and Winchester will be playing for the opportunity to represent the area in the 2012 New England Regional Tournament next month.

Split into two four-team brackets, this pool play format guarantees that each participant will play at least three games. Following a two-game set on Friday - 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. - the weekend is scheduled to have baseball and other activities ongoing at Adams all day long.

Quincy has been placed into the National Division alongside Dedham, Taunton and Plymouth, while the American Division includes Lynn, Winchester, Newton and Braintree.

The following is the tentative schedule from the tournament website at www.baberruthstatequincy.com:

Friday, July 20: Newton versus Braintree at 4 p.m. and Plymouth versus Taunton at 7 p.m.

Sat., July 21: Dedham versus Plymouth at 9 a.m., Lynn versus Newton at 12 p.m., Opening Ceremony at 2:30 p.m., Braintree versus Winchester at 5 p.m., and Taunton versus Quincy at 8 p.m.

Sunday, July 22: Lynn versus Braintree at 10 a.m., Newton versus Winchester at 1 p.m., Taunton versus Dedham at 4 p.m., and Plymouth versus Quincy at 7 p.m.

Monday, July 23: Winchester versus Lynn at 4 p.m., and Dedham versus Quincy at 7 p.m.

Tues., July 24: Rain Date (if needed)

Following the pool play portion of the tournament the top-2 seeds from the American and National Divisions will advance into the single-elimination Championship Round. The Championship Round pairings will be determined by: Point total (2 points per win in pool play) and Head-to-Head competition.

Wed., July 25: American Division #2 seed versus National Division #1 seed at 4 p.m., and National Division #2 seed versus American Division #1 seed at 7 p.m.

Thurs., July 26: Championship Game (coin toss determines home team) at 7 p.m.

On Saturday following the Lynn and Newton noon game, Quincy Youth Baseball, the tournament's host and Massachusetts Babe Ruth Baseball will hold an Opening Ceremony and Skills Competition.

All eight teams will take part in a Parade of Teams, with each program being recognized on the field at Adams. Following the singing of our National Anthem by Jazmin Eltoury of Quincy High School and Opening Remarks and an Invocation by Father John Ronaghan, there will be a Ceremonial First Pitch, which will be followed by a Skills Competition.

Braintree and Winchester get the tournament back into game-mode at 5:30.

The Quincy team - made up of all-stars from Quincy Youth Baseball - will be coached by Mark Jaehnig and Gerry Shepherd.

15-Year Old Babe Ruth Regional Tournament

Adams Field is a popular destination for those seeking baseball immortality. On top of this weekend's (and next week's) 14-year old Eastern Massachusetts Babe Ruth Tournament, the beauty of a ball field will again play host to a major Babe Ruth tournament beginning on Aug. 2 and running through Aug. 8.

The 15-Year Old New England Regional will bring teams from across the six-state region to Quincy. Teams expected to be in Quincy during this time have yet to be announced as individual states are still playing their own state championships.

But Quincy will most definitely have a horse in that race.

The Quincy Sun will have a preview of the 15-Year Old New England Tournament in the July 26 issue.

(If you are unable to attend the Quincy games at the 14-year old tournament or the 15-year New England Regional you can follow me on Twitter @sm_brennan for updates.)

QYB Eight's Runner-Up At Summer Slam Tourney

QUINCY YOUTH BASEBALL's Eight-Year Old representative recently traveled to Canton to play in the annual Eight Year Old Summer Slam Tournament. After going 2-1 in pool play, Quincy won in the quarterfinals and semifinals by a combined score of 22-6 before losing 3-0 to Walpole in the championship game. Quincy's Jackson Murphy was named Co-MVP of the tournament and the offensive firepower came from Coleman Ross, Asher and Ben Wines, and Carson Douglas. The defensive standouts were Kellen Kopp, Timmy Kelly and Andrew Kabilian. Pictured, front row from left to right are: Tommy Gates, Timmy Kelly, Kellen Kopp, Carson Douglas, Cameron Douglas, and Quinlan Perry. Middle row: Owen Coppola, Ben Wines, Brett Collins, Jackson Murphy, Andrew Kabilian, Coleman Ross, Donovan Murray and Asher Wines. To Be Held The Week of July 23-27

Openings Exist For Four Recreation Clinics

The Quincy Recreation Department announced on Monday that limited openings still exist for four clinics to be conducted the Week of July 23-27. The clinics include Girls' Lacrosse, Track, Field & Distance, Middle School Tennis and the first session of Rock Climbing.

The Girls' Lacrosse clinic will be held at Veterans Memorial Stadium under the direction of Kerry Monaco, varsity coach at Quincy High School. The clinic will include a variety of individual skills, with beginner players focusing on catching and throwing, and more advanced players practicing shooting and defense. Competitions and scrimmages will also take place throughout the week.

The clinic is open to girls entering Grades 3-9 and will run from 8 a.m. until noon. The cost of the clinic is $82 and players must provide their own stick, goggles, and mouth guard.

The Track, Field & Distance clinic will be held at Cavanaugh Stadium on Birch Street in North Quincy and will be directed by local track coach Geoff Hennessy. This clinic will focus on the basic fundamentals of sprint, relay racing, hurdling, distance running, and field events.

The clinic is open to boys and girls entering Grades 2-9 and will run from 8 a.m. until noon. The cost of the clinic is $82.

The Middle School Tennis clinic is once again under the direction of Meghan Matthews, girls' varsity tennis coach at Quincy High School. Middle School Tennis is for boys and girls entering Grades 6-9 and will be conducted at the QHS Tennis Courts on Russell Park next to the high school. Fundamentals of ground strokes, volleying, serving, and game strategies are a few of the skills included in the program.

The clinic will be held from 8:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. The cost of the clinic is $82 and participants should have their own rackets.

The first session of Rock Climbing at the Quincy Quarries will held July 23-25. There are still openings available in the morning session, held from 8:30-11 a.m., as well as in the mid-day session, from 11:15 a.m. until 1:45 p.m. Boys and girls entering Grades 5-9 may enroll in the clinic, which is run by David McCarthy and his staff from the South Shore Center for Outdoor Education.

Participants will enjoy learning about the fundamentals of rock climbing, while enjoying the natural climbs during this three-day clinic. The cost for one session is $85.

Registration can be done online at www.QuincyRec.com, or in person at the Quincy Recreation Department, One Merrymount Parkway. For questions call 617-376-1394.

Beach Guide Helps Residents Prepare For Summer

By EMILY TAFT

This year's Quincy Beach Guide is filled with information and activities for residents and visitors of Quincy. The guide, which has been around for 14 years and has over 50 pages of games, events, information and tips, was produced by the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission. The guide is put together throughout the year and printed by the Quincy IT Department.

Leo Kelly, Chairman of the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission said that the guide is very similar to last year's, but with updated information, new tide charts, new pictures and games. According to Kelly the design and information presented in the guide is done during a Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commissions meeting, and that the guide wouldn't have been completed without the help of Mayor Tom Koch and Charles Phelan, chief information officer for the City of Quincy.

The guide includes a map of the 13 Quincy beaches with directions and a history of each along with a tide chart from June to September. Also in this year's guide is advice on the Do's and Don'ts of wearing Flip-Flops, the health benefits of swimming, the different rope designs and floating markers at each beach, and fishing information.

The guide offers some safety tips for being out in the water and sun, along with beach etiquette and boat safety. Some important things to remember include not digging deep holes in the sand and leaving them unfilled, not crowding other beach-goers, playing loud music or leaving trash are discouraged and in some cases prohibited.

The guide also gives information on the water sampling program done at the 13 beaches and which ones had postings due to an enterococcus count of greater than 104 and/or a five sample geometric mean value greater than 35. Eleven of the 13 beaches had postings this year, some having more than one, the guide explains why each beach received a posting.

Kelly said that the guides are available in many different stores, restaurants, and libraries throughout Quincy and that when he, along with other board members, distributed the guides they found that many places already had people looking for them. Kelly said that the guides were distributed in June and will be available until the end of August.

"We had store owners and restaurant owners telling us they already had people looking for the guides," said Kelly. "There have been even some cases where people have taken them right out of our hands as we are dropping them off."

According to Kelly they have distributed over 5,000 copies this year and more might have to be printed. Kelly said that the city pays for the printing of the guides and that whatever is given for money by the city determines how many copies they are able to print and distribute.

"We usually have to make more copies than we originally print," said Kelly. "I have never seen anything received like this before. It is a very popular guide and a good one for Quincy."

A Job Well Done

On Wednesday, July 11 at approximately 1:30 a.m., Officer Chuck Landry was on routine patrol on Hancock Street in Quincy Square when he was flagged down by a man who said he was just robbed. The victim provided a description of the suspect and then told the officer what transpired.

LT. DAN MINTON

He stated that he was sit- ting in front of 1426 Hancock St. arranging his belongings because he is recently home- less and was making his way to Billerica. He said he had his bag of clothing open on the ground and was putting his stuff in order when the suspect approached him.

The victim said the suspect initiated a conversation, asking him if he was "holding," a common term used by drug addicts to ask another if they have drugs. The vic- tim told the suspect he had been clean for some time.

The suspect suddenly pulled out a hypodermic sy- ringe which appeared to have blood in it and said to give him what he had. The victim handed the suspect his cell phone and $39. The suspect then reached down and took the victim's black sweatpants and grey shirt. The victim showed Officer Landry the syringe that the suspect used on him and left behind as he stole his clothes.

The victim, who was shaken, did not suffer any phys- ical injuries. The victim stated the suspect was wearing grey and black Nike "Shox" sneakers. He added the suspect took some of his clothing and could be wearing it now, which was a pair of black "Champion" sweat- pants and a grey "Faded Glory" t-shirt. He said when the suspect first approached him, he was wearing a pair of white "flowered print" shorts and no shirt.

The victim told the officer the suspect gave him his name and the suspect had tattoos on both of his fore- arms. The cell phone was described as a "Boost Mobile" flip phone, black in color, valued at $50. The victim stated the money that was taken was (1) $20 bill, (1) $10 bill, (1) $5 bill and (4) $1 bills. Teletype operator Jam- ie McAvoy relayed information and a driver's license photo of the suspect, based on the name given to the victim. The photo on the cruiser computer was shown to the victim, who said the picture looked like a younger version of the suspect, but he was not 100 percent posi- tive it was him.

At this time, Officer Ed Bagley was flagged down by a female and a male who were in the Hancock park- ing lot and stated a white male, who fit the suspect's description, just fled a local bar after stealing the male's cell phone. Officers Bagley and Landry conferred and determined the suspect first stole the cell phone from the bar, then fled towards the original victim, stopping to rob him afterward.

Officer Bagley stated the suspect was wearing a pair of white shorts with flowers on them, described as a swimsuit, which was similar to what the original victim noted. Officer Bagley spoke to the bar manager where the cell phone was stolen and learned the suspect was served a drink but he quickly became disruptive with another customer and left the bar around 1 a.m. Officer Bagley learned from the cell phone theft victim that his phone was an Android LG.

As the officers were organizing the chain of events, other officers were searching for the suspect. At approx- imately 1:45 a.m., Officer Steve O'Donoghue notified dispatch that he was about to stop a suspect matching the description at Whitwell and Deldorf Streets, which was only a few blocks from where the first victim was. The homeless victim was transported to the suspect's location and immediately confirmed "100 percent posi- tive" that the man shown to him was indeed the same man who "robbed me." The victim added the black sweatpants that the suspect was wearing were his (the victim's) sweatpants that were taken from him during the robbery.

Officer Bagley then called the cell phone of the first victim and moments later there was ringing coming from the suspect's pockets. After retrieving the phone, the number matched the phone the officer used to call it.

The bar manager was brought to the scene and she too confirmed that the suspect was the same man in her bar. The suspect was given his Miranda Rights.

Under the black sweatpants were a pair of white shorts with flower print underneath. The suspect was

National Grid Updating Natural Gas System In Quincy

National Grid has received city approval to start a natural gas main replacement project in Quincy, Mass., as part of a planned gas system upgrade. The work is designed to help improve system integrity and increase capacity for customers in the area, enabling the company to continue providing safe, reliable service to local homes and businesses.

National Grid will replace more than one-half mile of existing 12-inch cast iron main with a stronger, longer lasting 12-inch plastic main. Riley Brothers, a National Grid contractor, began construction during the week of July 2 at the intersection Adams Street and Wallace Road. The work will extend from there to the intersection of Adams Street and Furnace Brook Parkway. Work will be performed from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. During that time, Adams Street will remain open to traffic and police details will help facilitate traffic flow. The project is expected to continue through the summer and conclude during early fall 2012.

"We are committed to continuously investing in our system and driving infrastructure improvements that will result in the safest and most reliable service possible for our communities," said Marcy Reed, president, National Grid Massachusetts. "We know our customers depend on us to heat their homes and businesses each day which is why these upgrades are so important."

Completion of the main replacement will require a service transfer to switch customers from the old gas main to the new one. This could result in a temporary service interruption for customers along the construction route. National Grid will notify each customer prior to the transfer of their service in order to schedule a date that is convenient.

Community members with questions or concerns should contact National Grid's Community and Customer Relations Coordinator, Peter Nagle, at 781-907-2211.

Dollars and sense

New Online Banking Dangers

It's been trickling out in the news: International thieves have been siphoning millions of dollars out of bank accounts all over the world using methods that haven't been seen before.

What's different this time? First, the thefts are automated by a highly sophisticated process, and viruses are able to get around typical online security measures. Second, these thefts appear to be beyond the ability of banks' security systems to handle.

Now, more than ever, it's important to be cautious when you do your banking online.

If you don't bank online, and never have, don't start now. If you open an account or your bank wants to update your information and it asks for an email address, say that you don't have one. That way you won't expect to ever get email from the bank. If email does show up, it will be from a scammer who is hoping you'll type in your personal information.

If you have been routinely checking your balances online or doing any online banking, take extra precautions now. If anything at all looks different on the screen (even if it has an explanation, such as "We have a new look!"), do not click any icons or type in any information. If you receive an email from your bank that includes a link, do not click. It might be a phishing email designed to intercept your information as you type it in. Your money can be transferred out while you're sitting at the computer, with you none the wiser. If it's necessary to access your account, type in the URL you usually use.

Be careful where you wander on the Internet. Many sites are compromised and will automatically download a virus into your computer. Set your virus software to automatically update. If you have Java or Adobe Reader, keep them updated as well.

Visit the website of your virus-software manufacturer. In the past you've likely only gone to the site to get answers to problems, or to upgrade your software. Now you need to read the latest news about the online thefts and learn as much as you can about how to protect yourself.

Leak Stop in a Can?

Q: I've seen ads for a spray-on leak fixer that's advertised for leaky gutters, damaged shingles and other problem areas. What's your take on this? Should I order a can? — Jerry in Sedona, Ariz.

A: My first thought about this kind of fix-all product is that it may be a great help as a temporary patch, but a damaged gutter or shingle eventually will need to be fixed properly. And major damage, such as a ripped or cracked gutter, probably won't hold up long with a spray-on patch.

I haven't tried the product in question, so I could, of course, be wrong about its capabilities. However, there are other spray-on rubber brands available at hardware and home-improvement stores. None that I've seen claim to fix leaks and large cracks; they're advertised as sealants and as spray-on nonslip surfacing. They also cost much less, on average, than the product being advertised on television, especially with the cost of shipping and handling removed.

If you decide to purchase the product, I'd say it would likely work best as a sealant for gaps around things like air conditioning ducts and where pipes emerge from the wall. Using it to patch areas or objects that bear weight — like the joints between gutter sections, cracks in a deck's wood flooring and so on — is probably not a good use for the product. For patching the roof, I'd be very careful about using it: Eventually, a leaky area of the roof will need more permanent repairs. Replacement of damaged shingles or flashing, as well as repair of the damaged area, could be hindered, not helped, by the presence of spray-on rubber.

HOME TIP: Need to mark the location of a leak so you can find it while on the rooftop? In the attic, locate where the water is coming in and drive a 10-penny nail upward so that it pushes up the shingle above.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You're wise to let your Arian skepticism question a former adversary's request to let bygones be bygones. Time will tell if he or she is trying to pull the wool over the Lamb's eyes.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Congratulations. Your hard work soon pays off with some well-deserved recognition. Meanwhile, that important personal relationship needs more attention from you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) That new person in your life seems trustworthy, but don't turn him or her into a confidant just yet. Remember: The secret you don't reveal is the one you won't lose sleep over.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your kindness makes a difference in someone's life. But by week's end, a touch of Cancerian envy could create a problem with a colleague. Take care to keep it under control.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A new spurt of energy sends you roaring back into that challenging work situation. But be careful not to overdo it, or your sizzle could fizzle before your task is completed.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your practical sense helps you see the logic of being a bit more flexible with a workplace colleague. But you still have a ways to go before there's a true meeting of the minds.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A surprise situation could cause you to spend more money than you feel you can afford. But careful budget adjustments will help. Your fiscal picture soon brightens.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) That decision you made might still have its detractors, but your supporters are growing. Meanwhile, your personal life takes on some welcome new developments.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Matters of the mind intrigue the sage Sagittarian through week's end. By then, you should feel more than ready to make room for pursuits of the heart.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The canny Capricorn can offer good counsel to others. But how about taking some advice yourself from a close friend or family member who is able and ready to help?

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A new workplace opportunity offers a variety of challenges that you might find intriguing. Best advice: Take things one step at a time so that you don't feel overwhelmed.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A bid to revive a relationship that ended on a bitter note needs to be carefully thought out before you can even begin to consider plunging into a new emotional commitment.

BORN THIS WEEK: You enjoy being with people, and people love being with you. You would probably do very well in politics.

To the named Respondent and all other interested persons, a petition has been filed by Michael R. Tracey of Norwell, MA in the above captioned matter alleging that Stephen P. Tracey is in need of a Conservator or other protective order and requesting that Michael R. Tracey of Norwell, MA (or some other suitable person) be appointed as Conservator to serve Without Surety on the bond.

The petition asks the court to determine that the Respondent is disabled, that a protective order or appointment of a Conservator is necessary, and that the proposed conservator is appropriate. The petition is on file with this court.

You have the right to object to this proceeding. If you wish to do so, you or your attorney must file a written appearance at this court on or before 10:00 A.M. on the return date of 08/01/2012. This day is NOT a hearing date, but a deadline date by which you have to file the written appearance if you object to the petition. If you fail to file the written appearance by the return date, action may be taken in this matter without further notice to you. In addition to filing the written appearance, you or your attorney must file a written affidavit stating the specific facts and grounds of your objection within 30 days after the return date.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The outcome of this proceeding may limit or completely take away the above-named person's right to make decisions about personal affairs or financial affairs or both. The above-named person has the right to ask for a lawyer. Anyone may make this request on behalf of the above-named person. If the above-named person cannot afford a lawyer, one may be appointed at State expense.

WITNESS, Hon. Angela M. Ordoñez, First Justice of this Court.

25th Annual Quincy August Moon Festival Set For Aug. 19

Presenting sponsor State Street Corporation and event organizer, Quincy Asian Resources Inc. (QARI) announce the 25th Annual Quincy August Moon Festival will be held Sunday, Aug. 19 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 1400-1600 Hancock Street, Quincy.

The festival is considered the largest outdoor cultural event in the South Shore. More than 10,000 individuals are expected to attend.

At 11 a.m. a festive and colorful opening ceremony consisting of dragon and lion dances will kick off the event. Over 20 other cultural performances are scheduled for two stages throughout the day. In addition, new food vendors will be joining the growing international food court.

"The festival is going to be the South Shore's largest Asian culture celebration. There will be cultural exploration activities, performances, and fun and games for the entire family" said Festival Co-Chairperson Gabriel Cheong.

This year's event also features an Asian Cultural Area with interactive art exhibits highlighting the history of Chinese calligraphy and water color painting. There will be panel displays and a large mural designed by QARI's Chinese painting Master Xiao Yong Liu.

For the 25th year celebration, the children's area will be expanded with new and exciting carnival and pony rides. South Shore YMCA children's activities will include yoga classes, Zumba classes, jump rope activities, crafts, face painting, tattoos, origami and more.

The festival is made possible through the contributions of Presenting Sponsor State Street Corporation, Diamond sponsors South Cove Community Health Center, the City of Quincy, and the support of more than 300 volunteers.

Organizers encourage attendees to take the MBTA to the Quincy Center station. Free parking will be available in municipal lots on either side of Hancock Street.

In the event of bad weather, the festival may be postponed to Sunday, Aug. 26.

$1,400 Donation From Bob Matthey

New Banners A Welcoming Sign In Quincy Point

By SCOTT JACKSON

Drivers who cross the Fore River Bridge into Quincy may have noticed new banners welcoming them to Quincy Point that were installed earlier this summer.

The 10 new banners hang from utility poles that circle the rotary and travel a short way up Washington Street. Each is blue with "Welcome to Quincy Point" written out in white lettering. They also feature a white and blue representation of the USS Salem, the decommissioned cruiser that was built at the neighboring Fore River Shipyard and is now a floating museum there.

The banners cost a total of $1,400 and were designed by Modern Art Sign of Quincy. Bob Matthey donated them to the city out of his own pocket. Matthey is a Squantum resident but grew up on Main Street in Quincy Point; his parents and sister still live in the neighborhood. He said the donation, which he intended to make anonymously, was his way of paying back the community.

"I just wanted to give a little back to the city," Matthey said.

Matthey wanted the Salem featured on the banners because it represents the shipbuilding industry that once employed many neighborhood residents. His father was one such person.

"My father worked down the shipyard," Matthey said. "I did it with him in mind."

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall, whose father and grandfather worked at the shipyard, helped get the banners installed. He said he was thankful that Matthey stepped up to the plate and donated the signs.

"Giving back to the community is always a great thing," Croall said. "He just has a lot of pride in the community."

According to Croall, the signs will also remind the many commuters from further down the South Shore who take Washington Street daily that they're in Quincy Point.

"They're a fitting entrance to the city," Croall said. "Not only are you coming into the great city of Quincy, but you're in Quincy Point which was once the economic heartbeat of the city."

The blue and white design was chosen because it was more aesthetically pleasing than green and white, Point Webster Middle School's colors. Croall said he'd like to see more banners installed elsewhere in the Point, but that might not be feasible because of the cost of putting up new brackets to hold them; brackets had already been installed along Washington Street.

QHA Feels Heat Over Parking, AC

By KRISTINA KALABOKAS

Discussion focused on limited tenant parking and poorly cooled housing units at last Wednesday's meeting of the Quincy Housing Authority.

Regina Jones-Jenkins of the Harborview Residents' Committee approached the board with concerns regarding parking at the Riverview complex. "There are issues of parking from individuals who do not reside there," she said.

According to Jones-Jenkins, residents are having difficulty finding spaces and as a result are parking in lots which she considers to be too far from their apartments. "It's basically not fair to residents who have cars that they can't park close to where they live," she said.

Executive Director Joseph A. MacRitchie dismissed her proposal of assigned parking and parking permits by stating that property managers frown upon the practice, yet he failed to specify why. He went on to suggest a temporary fix. "If someone gives a color and make of a car and a license plate we will get down there quickly and look into it...we will try to police it."

No official long-term solution was offered; however

Track Taking Shape At Faxon Field

The straight-aways and turns of what will be the City's first regulation running track are beginning to take shape on Faxon Field as construction of the facility moves into its most critical stages.

After a year of site preparation by the Park Department, contractor Argus Construction took over the site in June and is now working through important drainage components of the project and setting the preliminary shape of what will be the 400-meter regulation track next to the new Quincy High School. The project is on budget and on schedule to be completed this fall.

"This first-class facility our kids deserve is well on its way and moving forward as planned," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "We are on budget and on time, and I know we are all looking forward to seeing this track in use by our young people in the very near future."

This week, contractors are installing an irrigation system for the grass infield.

A joint operation between Quincy and Malden Police and the South Shore Drug Task Force resulted in the seizure of heroin and marijuana valued at $3,500 last week.

The investigation culminated Wednesday afternoon when police say detectives orchestrated the undercover purchase of heroin from Jeffery Freitas. Freitas, 26, lives at 156 Independence Ave in South Quincy and was allegedly selling drugs from his residence and at various points throughout the city.

Police set-up surveillance on the house, and observed Freitas and 21-year old

Teen Recoving After Hit By Car

A 13-year-old Quincy boy struck by a car Sunday in Houghs Neck is expected to be okay after transferring out of a hospital intensive care unit Tuesday.

Around 4:30 p.m. Sunday, the boy was riding his bike with friends along a trail in an area known as the dike, according to Quincy Police Capt. John Dougan. The three made their way from the trail onto Sea Street, and two of the boys avoided traffic. The third couldn't maneuver and drove into the path of an oncoming red Chrysler LHS.

"The driver was unable to stop," Dougan said. "The boy struck the driver's side of the windshield."

Dougan said the boy, whose name wasn't released because of his age, was conscious and alert when police arrived on scene. He was originally in the ICU at Boston Medical Center, but was transferred out Tuesday and placed in a regular room.

Police closed off two eastbound lanes of Sea Street following the accident and surveyed the scene. The driver's name wasn't released and police said that they would not cite the driver for the accident.

"The investigation concluded there would be no citation against the driver," Dougan said Tuesday.

Larry Falvey: A Great Man Who Treated All With Respect

Friends, Colleagues Saddened By Death Of Assistant Court Clerk

By EMILY TAFT

For those who knew Lawrence "Larry" Falvey, a retired Assistant Clerk of Courts at Quincy District Court, his death is not only a big loss to his family and friends but to the City of Quincy.

"He was just a great guy, and he always did the right thing," said City Clerk, neighbor, and lifelong friend Joe Shea. "He treated everyone with civility and respect. He was a very friendly guy."

Falvey died July 16th at the age of 69 leaving behind many in Quincy who cared deeply about him. Falvey was very active and very well known in Quincy. Friends and colleagues described him as a caring and kind individual who would do anything for those he loved.

"He was just an incredible man," said Robert Harnais, a friend of Mr. Falvey's for over 30 years. "I spoke to him every day and he was one of the most kindest people I ever met. He got me into law school. I wouldn't be a lawyer without him."

Falvey, a lifelong Quincy resident, worked for the court for over 40 years. He also served on the Thomas Crane Library Board of Trustees for the past 10 years up until his death.

"He was very generous to people at the courthouse. He had such a generous heart," said friend, co-worker and Quincy District Court Magistrate Arthur Tobin.

"He was generous to a fault with the people who he was close to. He was a good soul," added Tobin, the former mayor.

Falvey was appointed at Library Trustee in July of 2002 to complete the Consumers Drawn To Locally Produced Food

At Quincy Farmers Market

By SCOTT JACKSON

Some 750 people attend the Quincy Farmers Market each week, drawn in part by an increased desire among consumers for locally produced food.

The husband and wife duo of Kevin Dye and Janet Little are in their second year running the market. Dye said the locavore movement, members of which eat food raised or grown within 400 miles of where they live, has exploded lately; nearly every product at Quincy's market is produced in-state.

"There's a big locavore movement," Dye said. "Just last night we were at a locavore dinner and there was about 20 people and everybody brings something that's either from their own garden or from local farms, local bakers, local brewers, local wineries. We think that's exploding right now."

Along those lines, the number of vendors at the market has doubled from 12 to 24 over the past two years, though not every vendor attends each week. They hawk a variety of goods that include farm fresh fruits and vegetables, beef and dairy products, eggs, seafood, honey, wine, ice cream, slush, baked goods, and prepared food. Besides food, soap was being sold and massages were being offered at last Friday's market.

"Kevin and I just work together and what we've tried to do is expand the vendors so that you can have a total shopping experience," Little said.

The market, located in the Hancock Parking Lot next to Revere Road, is open every Friday afternoon until Nov. 16th. Some 750 people visit the market each day it's open, and August tends to be market's biggest month.

"That's a pretty big thing to happen in Quincy," Dye said. "It's a longer season than football season and we have about 750 people coming in a day so that's a lot. I don't know if they're anything else as big going on in Quincy every week."

Dye said that some of the vendors have seen as much as a 20 percent increase in sales this year compared to last, though others have gone down. Weather plays a factor in people's choices. On hotter days, for example, slush sales go up and ice cream sales drop.

The market is celebrating its 30th year this summer. Some of the companies, like New Braintree-based Stillman's Farms, have been coming to the market every year it's been open. Owner Glenn Stillman said business has been up for the past four years, since rumors about the Hancock Lot's future in the new downtown ended.

"Over the last four years [business] has begun to rebuild," Stillman said. "There was a lot of turmoil around here — a sense of we're not going to be here next year or we're going to change the parking lot — there was a lot of rumors. Once that settled down and the construction began people were okay."

Stillman's Farm also attends farmers markets throughout Greater Boston, in places like Brookline, Cambridgeport, and Jamaica Plain. Stillman said Quincy is one of his busier markets.

He noted that about 100 customers have signed up to pick-up fruit and vegetable boxes at the Quincy Farmers Market through his farm's community supported agriculture (CSA) program. Customers can sign up in the winter to receive the boxes each week 16 to 19 times a year starting in June.

The farmers market also features local companies. One of them is O'Brien's Bakery, based on Vernon Street in South Quincy. Melissa Jackle, who co-owns it with her husband Brian, said they've been going to the market for the past half-dozen years or so. They started coming after Anneli Johnson, who started Quincy Farmers Market 30 years ago and ran it until 2010, invited them to take a booth at the market.

"She was a customer of ours and she said 'we need a bakery,' so they came down and talked to my husband," Melissa said. "He jumped at the chance and we've been doing it ever since. It makes a long day for us, but it's very well worth it."

O'Brien's sells a variety of breads that Melissa says can't be found in supermarkets. Their top seller is Irish soda bread, which at one point was named the best Irish soda bread in Boston. They also serve hamburgers, hot dogs, pastrami, and grilled cheese at the market, using their own bread and rolls.

Less than five feet from O'Brien's Bakery's booth, residents can pick up fresh seafood from Hull-based C&C Lobster, run by husband and wife Chris and Carolyn Manning. Chris is a lobsterman and they started coming to farmers markets like Quincy's four or five years ago because of the low prices dealers were offering for lobsters.

"I decided to do farmers markets because my husband gets such a low price from the dealers," Carolyn explained. "We needed to take an initiative to go out on our own and market our own product so that we can get a higher price, because with what [dealers] were paying us we couldn't make ends meat."

The Mannings also visit the Boston Fish Pier early each morning and purchase freshly caught seafood to sell at the day's farmers market. Seafood sales have been slow so far this year, but the arrival of the season's corn harvest to farmers markets should help out.

"The corn is in," Carolyn said. "Corn is always good with lobster."

Dependable Cleaners CEO: 'We'll Absolutely Rebuild'

Most – It Not All – Of Quincy Avenue Headquarters Will Be Razed Following 4-Alarm Fire

By SCOTT JACKSON

Most, if not all, of Dependable Cleaners headquarters on Quincy Avenue will need to be razed in the wake of a four-alarm fire earlier this month. But the company was able to save much of the clothes in the building.

Dependable CEO Christa Hagearty's family has owned the building since the 1970s; it had previously been a car dealership. Hagearty told the Sun Monday that the original structure, which makes up the rear three-quarters of the building, would need to be torn down.

"I know the back three-quarters will have to come down because there's too much damage," Hagearty said.

The front of the building, which housed a laundromat, was an addition built by the cleaning company. The front portion's structure is mostly steel and concrete, which helped protect it from the fire that gutted the other three-fourths of the building. Still, smoke and water damage at the front of the store could be too much to fix.

"Everything with smoke and water damage is a total loss," Hagearty said.

The CEO couldn't put a dollar figure on the damage, as she's still working with insurance companies. In the end, the building will get rebuilt.

"Absolutely we'll rebuild, we're committed to the site," Hagearty said.

Despite the damage to the building most of the clothes in both the laundromat and the rear of the building were saved. Clothes in either washers or driers upfront were safe from damage, according to Hagearty, and their locations were noted so customers could identify their clothes.

Information on clothing in the retail store in the back of the building was on computer servers kept on site that the company was able to save. Hagearty said much of the clothes in the retail section were preserved, though anything that was being cleaned at the time the fire started was likely lost.

All of the clothes that were salvaged were re-cleaned and are available for pick-up. Hagearty said customers could call a special hotline at 1-800-572-4068 or visit dependablecleaners.com for information on their items.

Because their offices were located at the building, the company has set-up a temporary headquarters in the office of the Quincy Center-based DiPesa Company, an accounting firm that does business with Dependable, at 1250 Hancock St. in Presidents Place. Hagearty said she's scouting out offices in Quincy Center so the company can have its own facility during the rebuilding process.

Hagearty said employees who worked at the store will continue to be paid. Some will be able to work at other locations, which have seen a spike in business since the fire. The volume of clothing at their Dorchester store has doubled, for example.

"The whole team has been great with their flexibility," Hagearty said.

Firefighters were called to the building at 320 Quincy Ave. at 2:41 p.m. on Saturday, July 14th. Hagearty said she rushed to the scene after one of store's managers called her, and felt devastated watching the fire.

"It was devastating to watch," Hagearty said. "I couldn't get over how fast the fire spread."

Because the fire reached four-alarms, all of Quincy's fire trucks – three ladders and eight engines – were called in, along with a Boston ladder and Boston engine. Hagearty was awed by the organization and communication between all the firefighters on scene.

"I was also very impressed by the fire department," Hagearty said. "They were so well organized – clearly this is what they do but Quincy has not had a fire of this size for years."

The fire took almost eight hours to put out, and firefighters spent two days after the blaze tamping down hot spots that flared up. Hagearty was there both those days, and was pleased the Fire Department kept her updated on the situation. She was particularly grateful that Fire Chief Joseph Barron was in contact with her.

"The Chief, Joseph Barron, has been incredible to me during this process," Hagearty said.

The cause of the fire remains under investigation, but Hagearty and fire officials both believe a failure in dry-cleaning equipment caused the fire. The company won't consider making changes to its procedures until after the Fire Department's investigation concludes, which could take a couple more weeks.

Neither the original part of the building or the addition in the front, which was built in 1982, had sprinklers, according to Quincy Fire Deputy Chief Ed Fenby. Under state law, sprinklers would be required in a new building if its total floor space exceeded 7,500 square feet.

Two Great Candidates, One Chief

Two outstanding candidates but only one can be the fire chief.

Isn't that what the appointment of the city's fire department leader boils down to?

Quincy is fortunate to have a history of well-respected and well-qualified firefighters who have served as the department's chief over the years. Names like Barry, Valenti and Gorman among others.

Joseph Barron — who ultimately got the chief's job last week — and runner-up Gary Smyth — appear they have the right stuff to keep that lineage intact.

But only one can be the chief and Mayor Tom Koch and an independent panel considered Barron the right pick at this time.

That's not a knock on Smyth who had appealed Koch's original appointment of Barron as fire chief a few years ago. I think there are many folks who would have done the same thing and filed an appeal given the fact that Smyth had scored one point higher than Barron on the Civil Service exam.

That's how close the two candidates were. Each had the credentials to be appointed chief. Each studied for the chief's exam. And each worked their way up the department ladder.

Barron joined the department in 1978 and served four years as a lieutenant, eight years as a captain, seven years as a deputy and a few years as acting chief.

The younger Smyth joined the department in 1987 and served four years as a lieutenant, four years as a captain and six years as a deputy.

But in the end, the appointment came down to experience. And Barron has served on the department for 34 years — nine more than Smyth.

In support of Barron, the panel said "Chief Barron set himself apart with a demonstrated ability to think outside the box when faced with complicated issues, including the difficult budget atmosphere in Quincy since the beginning of his tenure, his detailed understanding of the operation of Quincy city government and other governmental processes, his desire to and ability to work cooperatively with other department heads and organizations, his ability and comfort level with working cooperatively with the firefighter's union, his commitment to seek opportunities for diversity in the Quincy Fire Department, and his ability to develop realistic solutions to problems."

All those skills can be attributed to experience.

The fire appointment process may have brought up a feeling of déjà vu for anyone who has followed public safety appointments in Quincy over the years.

Twenty-one years ago, there were two outstanding candidates for the fire chief's job.

In the fall of 1991, then Mayor James Sheets appointed Acting Chief Thomas Gorman as permanent chief over Deputy Chief Joseph Walsh. Gorman at the time had served as a Quincy firefighter for 28 years. Walsh had been on the department 16 years.

Sheets selected Gorman because of his experience on the department, including the previous 19 months as acting chief under two different mayors. Sheets also said at the time that department experience trumped the Civil Service exam marks as Gorman scored an 82 while Walsh received a 94.

Both Gorman and Walsh served in their positions with distinction and both were assets to their department and their city.

We hope the fire department can transition in a similar fashion with Barron at the helm and Smyth still serving as a deputy.

And that's also what the panel said in its recommendation of Barron.

"(Gary Smyth) has a lot to offer the community and the fire chiefs panel encourages Chief Barron to utilize the talents of Deputy Chief Smyth. The panel also encourages Deputy Chief Smyth to continue to work hard on behalf of the citizens of Quincy and the members of the Quincy Fire Department."

Before he received the panel's recommendation, Koch said the city was fortunate to have two outstanding candidates vie for the fire chief's position.

"Both are respected in the fire service and both love the fire service and both love the city," he said.

Looking back at the process, the mayor also offered some pointed remarks about the Civil Service Commission. Koch said the Commission was "overreaching" its authority when it ordered him to vacate Barron's first appointment as fire chief several years ago. That in turn led to an independent review panel of out-of-state fire chiefs interviewing both Barron and Smyth and ultimately recommending Barron for the job last week.

Civil Service's directive to vacate the first appointment left Koch "particularly perplexed and a little angered," he told the Sun.

"I think (Civil Service Commission) overreached with what their power is," the mayor said. "Their job is to send us three names and provide that process to us. If they want to pick the chief, then they should tell me that and just pick the chief and tell me who they want if that's the game they want to play."

The Civil Service list had three names on it. The top scorer — Captain Edward Fenby — withdrew from consideration for the top job and instead was appointed a deputy. That left Smyth and Barron who were separated by one vote (with Smyth scoring one point higher than Barron.)

Under the city's form of Plan A government, the mayor serves as the appointing authority. When it comes to Civil Service, the mayor is afforded some latitude in his appointments provided the candidates have passed an exam. The mayor can appoint a candidate who has scored lower on an exam provided he has just cause. And that's a good thing Koch says because sometimes exam scores don't tell the whole story.

"There are people who score well in school and there are people who don't score well in school but went on to be tremendous leaders because of their other skill-sets and talents," Koch says. "To hold it purely by the score, I don't think it's necessarily fair. That's why Civil Service gives you three names — you look at all aspects of it."

"Exams don't always tell the whole story," Koch continued. "And that's why with police and fire appointments, there are background checks and psychological exams and physicals. All of those are so so very important."

Asked if he thinks the Civil Service system is broken, Koch replied, "I think it is. Do I have an alternative right now? No. I know that some smaller communities have their own system where they do things differently and it seems to work in some of those places."

"I'm okay with the process of hiring from Civil Service when it comes to the police and fire (rank and file), but as far as the chief portion of it, I'm not so sure if I favor Civil Service. I'm certainly comfortable with (the police and fire) chiefs (we have today). I think they've worked hard and are doing a good job. . . . But why restrict yourself to candidates in-house or even to a specific exam?"

One final point:

There have been candidates for fire chief who didn't get the job the first time around.

That includes former Chief Thomas Gorman who served as an acting chief in the late 1980s before Paul O'Connell was named chief. Gorman got the top job a few years later in 1991 after O'Connell stepped down from the chief's job to return to the rank of a deputy chief.

It's now Joseph Barron's turn to run the fire department.

We also think Gary Smyth would be a fine Quincy fire chief some day.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1928 postcard view of Wollaston Boulevard looking north from the end of Atlantic Street in Atlantic. On the right is Moswetuset Hummock, the oldest recognized historic site in Massachusetts. It was first designated as an historic site in 1637. It had been the home of Chickatabot, the Sachem of the Massachusetts group of Algonquin Indians, in the years just before the first English settlers came to Quincy's shore. The name Moswetuset is derived from the Algonquin language meaning: "the place of the house of the powerful leader." In the center distance can be seen the buildings of the old

Victory Shipbuilding Plant, now the site of Marina Bay. The Victory Plant was built by the U.S. Government and operated by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company to build destroyers during World War I. Thirty-five destroyers were built here. After the war ended, most of the buildings were pretty much abandoned and later the largest was burned in a fire. The U.S. Navy removed the buildings in 1940 when the Squantum Naval Air Station occupied the site. The houses on the left are still extant. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net. Council Indicates Support For Project West Of RR Tracks

Six members of the City Council indicated they would support a proposal to create a new commercial and retail development across the railroad tracks from the Ross parking area.

Councillors Edna B. Austin, Thomas S. Burgin, David S. McIntosh and John J. Quinn voted for it at an informal conference while Carl W. Anderson and William C. Ellis were reserving his decision.

Absent without commitment were James R. McIntyre and Charles L. Shea while Joseph E. Brett said he was reserving his decision.

On the strength of it, Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa prepared to ask permission from the State Emergency Finance Board to borrow $800,000 for the project plus off-street parking in Norfolk Downs.

LARGEST FIELD

Frank J. D'Agostino of Dedham withdrew as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the 13th District but the remaining field - three Republicans and nine Democrats - was the largest in years.

Seeking the Republican nomination to succeed Richard B. Wigglesworth of Milton, who was retiring after 30 years, were William W. Jenness of Quincy, Hjalmar Peterson of Brockton and Harold Putnam of Needham.

The Democrats were Francis H. Foy and David J. Crowley of Quincy, Edward J. Dwyer and Michael DeSimone of Boston, Richard E. McCormack of Braintree, William A. Connell, Jr., of Weymouth and Hollis M. Mosher, James A. Burke and Peter G. Fallon of Milton.

CITATION TO GEORGE

Mayor Della Chiesa nominated Louis C. George, Lebanese-born former city councillor, for the good citizenship citation awarded annually by Freedom, Inc. to a Quincy citizen of foreign birth.

READERS FORUM

Comments On Crosswalk Violations, Double Poles

As a fairly long life Quincy resident and taxpayer I need to address a few concerns to both the Quincy police and the city councillors of the city of Quincy.

I just finished reading the Quincy Sun and have a few concerns about what I have read.

The first and foremost is the "crackdown" on crosswalk violations" snippet. We have a very serious problem in Quincy with "violations," but it is not the drivers. The majority is most certainly the pedestrians, who either think they always have the right of way or perhaps they are not aware of the crossing procedures such as "no j walking" or looking both ways before walking into traffic.

I am not trying to minimize the tragedy of death, but to enlighten the "real wrong doers" in this situation... Vehicles can NOT stop as fast as you dart into the street. It is time the police enforce the "jay walking law" and stop penalizing the driver(s) of vehicles for the walkers shortcomings.

Part 2 of my issue with this city after reading this article:

Double Utility poles!!! Is this really necessary? What threat does this pose? Is it a scheme to make more money for the city former Councillor Keenan? You do realize (expletive) rolls down hill! Who is going to pay for the 200 per day penalty? Verizon? NOPE.. the taxpayers of this "once" great city!! my bills will go up even more. Politicians think that penalties, fines, taxes are great.. but they ruin this country... now during a recession is NOT the time to impose taxes fines or penalties to people corporations etc.

Crack Down On Pedestrians Ignoring Crosswalk Rules

Yesterday unfortunately I was one of the many stopped for speeding on Newport Avenue. Although I travelled the same road today and saw no speed limit signs posted. I certainly deserved the written warning I received.

Having said that, I now have two questions:

First, where are all the Quincy police officers when people are walking all over the streets, paying no attention to crosswalks, lights, or the red hand that tells you not to cross? One day recently I was at the red light across from the Armory and a young girl walked across the street in front of my car. Granted, she was in the crosswalk, but the red hand was up.

Standing on the corner was a Quincy police officer who said not one word to her. I don't get it.

My second question is where all the police officers when I'm driving on the highway at 65 miles an hour (the speed limit) and cars are flying by me and switching back and forth, from one lane to another?

I just read in the July 12th Sun that the Quincy Police are cracking down on cars not stopping at crosswalks. I think that's wonderful, but I do think they need to do something about the people who are not following any rules when crossing the streets. I grew up in Quincy and am there frequently and it amazes me more and more the complete disregard for the rules.

Library And Garden Club Celebrate Horticultural Exhibit At Adams Shore Library

Members of the community recently joined with Thomas Crane Library staff, and Wollaston Garden Club members to dedicate and celebrate the Indoor Succulent Gardens and Design Vignettes at the Adams Shore Branch Library located on Sea Street.

A short program describing the goals, history and process of the project was held with remarks from WGC President Pat Artis, WGC President-Elect Jan Clifford, Branch Librarian Lori Seagraber, and Crane Library Director Harry Williams III.

Clifford presented the branch library with two resource books on succulents.

The four atrium lobby windows have long been a challenging area since the library was built; in the summer the windows allow for a lot of light, but in the winter, the area becomes quite cold. Branch librarian, Lori Seagraber had tried many plant options, but with the library's opened hours reduced so much — those window areas became very cold in the winter months, and plant survival minimal. Lori spoke about her desire to beautify the area with plant material with library volunteer and long time garden club member, Marylyn Sullivan.

Sullivan organized a horticulture study group from the garden club and the group decided to plant hardy succulents.

Plants and plant stands were donated by club members and other materials were purchased from the club's civic beautification/horticulture budgets.

Members of the study group were Liz Adamson, Kay Borek, Jan Clifford, Anita Fasano, Fran Guida, Elaine McGrail, John Reed, Leah Shea, and Marylynn Sullivan.

The indoor succulent gardens were planted in the spring of 2011 on the south side of the atrium and two design vignettes incorporating reading themes and plant material on the north side. A journal/log was kept during the summer, fall, and winter, to help understand the watering needs and other conditions affecting the plants.

At the dedication ceremony, the study group presented and hung up a permanent educational colorful display poster on succulents for the atrium area.

Library Director Harry Williams said, "This dedication of the indoor gardens at the Branch is such a positive event. The gardens installed and maintained by the Wollaston Garden Club are a wonderful aesthetic and educational resource for everyone who uses the Branch, particularly young people."

Seagraber commented about "how much the library patrons have enjoyed the plant exhibit." The Wollaston Garden Club is a member since 1931 of the The National Garden Clubs, Inc and The Garden Club Federation Of Massachusetts, Inc.

WHIMSICAL JEWELRY

If you are not yet familiar with Salvador Dali, the best thing to do is Google the surrealist artist's paintings, sculptures, and other works of art. Be prepared to be astonished, and even shocked, by what you see. Some of the late artist's pieces are iconic, such as the painting known as "The Persistence of Memory" that depicts a surreal image of melting watches. Another of Dali's famous pieces is a brooch that features lips made of rubies surrounding pearly white teeth. While this piece of jewelry was created in 1949, it has recently become the inspiration of a number of newer rings, pendants, and earrings with lip and mouth motifs. These flirty pieces are tongue-in-cheek homages to the Master.

Elisha Daniels To Talk Fall Fashion At Kennedy Center Aug. 15

Elisha Daniels of Boston will talk about fall fashion Wednesday, Aug. 15 at 2 p.m. at the Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St., Quincy.

Daniels will demonstrate ways for the mature women to dress younger using a few basic items and accessories.

In 2009, Daniels opened an accessory boutique on Newbury Street in Boston and founded her own company Elisha Daniels, where she inspires women through fashion and beauty. This led to Boston Globe's Fashion Boston selecting Elisha as one of the "Most Fashionable People in Boston"; and New England Cable News'

ELISHA DANIELS

Style Boston television program selecting her as a "Trend Setter."

In 2010, The Boston Globe named Daniels one of "The 25 Most Stylish Bostonians." In 2012 she received the 2012 Humanitarian Award from the Breast Cancer Research Foundation and was selected as one of the Mass One Hundred by Massachusetts General Hospital Cancer Center for her dedication to fundraising for the Breast Cancer Research Foundation.

In 2009, Daniels co-authored a book with friend and breast cancer survivor Kelley Tuthill, entitled You Can Do This! Surviving Breast Cancer Without Losing Your Sanity or Your Style.

To attend the Fall Fashion event, call the Quincy Council on Aging at (617) 376-1506 to register. Registration is required.

Eliza McDonald Receives Awards At Massachusetts Maritime Academy

Fontbonne Academy juniors Eliza McDonald of Quincy and Julia Butts of Braintree were recently awarded the JWL (Junior Women Leaders) in STEM (Science Technology Engineering Math) award from Massachusetts Maritime Academy.

After being nominated by a Fontbonne guidance counselor, the students submitted an application including a resume, essay, transcript, and recommendations.

McDonald and Butts recently attended an awards ceremony at the Massachusetts Maritime Academy with their parents. There, they met with cadets, toured the campus and enjoyed dinner including a keynote speech from a current professor at the college.

At the dinner, McDonald was recognized as one of the top three applicants among the pool of STEM awardees and announced as a scholarship recipient. She was awarded a full tuition scholarship for her first year at Massachusetts Maritime Academy should she choose to enroll there in the fall of 2013.

"We are so proud of our students. Fontbonne's math and science curricula are challenging, and Julia and Eliza have truly excelled. These awards reflect their dedication and hard work," said Head of School Mary Ellen Barnes.

Potatoes And String Beans

Over the Fourth of July, I brought a dish that I hadn't made for while, and the family remembered how delicious it always was. It's a combination of potatoes and string beans that my mother always made for us. And with only two main ingredients, how easy is that?

It can be prepared ahead of time, and heated in a warm oven before serving. I used a cast iron skillet.

POTATOES & STRING BEANS

1 pound string beans (cooked until tender)

2 cloves garlic (chopped)

3 tablespoons olive oil

3-4 potatoes (boiled in their skin)

Salt and pepper to taste

First you can either leave the skin on the potatoes, or peel them. Mash them lightly so that they are on the lumpy side.

Cut the string beans in pieces.

In the hot oil, sauté the garlic, then add the potatoes cooking them so that some of them are crispy. Add the salt and pepper and the string beans and cook stirring and blending until done.

Keep in a warming oven until it's time to serve. Enjoy.

Rita's Kale Slaw

When we think of cole slaw, we think of cabbage and carrots. But this slaw is very different because it's made with kale, a popular vegetable these days. And when my daughter Rita brought it over at our last cook-out, it didn't last very long. With the different ingredients, it is so colorful and tempting.

Kale Slaw

3 cups Kale, washed and cut into small pieces around the stem

1 cup thinly sliced red cabbage

1 grated carrot

3 tablespoons sliced red onion

2 tablespoons sunflower seeds

3 tablespoons pumpkin seeds

3 tablespoons mustard

1 teaspoon honey

2 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil

Salt and pepper to taste

Combine the first four ingredients. Whisk together the mustard, honey, oil, salt and pepper. Add to the kale mixture and toss well. Add the seeds and refrigerate for at least one hour. I was surprised at how tender the Kale became as it blended with the dressing mixture.

ENC Hosting YMCA Summer Day Camps

Eastern Nazarene College announces it is hosting South Shore YMCA's Summer Day Camp Programs through Aug. 24.

Each week, more than 300 children from across the South Shore have been partaking in a variety of camp activities on ENC's athletic fields as well as in the college's gymnasium and in academic buildings across campus.

The summer camp programs were relocated to the Eastern Nazarene College campus in order to allow construction to begin on the South Shore Y's new Quincy Branch.

"ENC offers fantastic indoor and outdoor spaces, including classrooms, a gymnasium, an auditorium, outdoor sports fields and ample shaded grass areas," said Brendan Casey, director of day camps for the Y's Quincy branch. Campers are transported to the Y for instructional and recreational swimming. "The ENC campus is also easily accessible via public transportation, making it convenient for local families."

Board Warns Car Wash Of Excessive Noise

By EMILY TAFT

The Board of License Commissioners is considering the revocation of the license issued to Super Clean Car Wash after a number of excessive noise complaints during all different hours of the day and night.

According to Board Chairman Joseph Shea, Super Clean Car Wash owner Anthony Ruscito was informed of the hearing but did not show up to the July 17th meeting.

Richard Sheehan, a neighbor of the business located at 2 Miller St., West Quincy, along with Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci, spoke with the board about the excessive noise coming from the machines used at the business.

"I am here on behalf of all the residents at 170 Copeland St. There are 40 units there, and there are 18 that are directly affected by the noise, as well as the whole neighborhood," said Sheehan. "Three years ago we were here with Councillor Davis and this issue was brought up. Mr. Ruscito had agreed to limit his hours of operation from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. That went on fine for about two years. Back in the fall, the hours have changed to whenever he wants to be open for business."

Both Sheehan and Palmucci said the noise happens at all hours and Ruscito is not following the hours of operation he was allowed by the board.

"I've been contacted by numerous residents over the past several months, who are not only concerned about the noise coming from the premise but the hours of operation, so it is really two issues," said Palmucci. "Really it is both the time that they're operating on a 24-hour basis, which in my belief is a violation of their license and our rules, as well as the noise of that new high-powered vacuum, which is a violation of the noise ordinance."

"I'm asking that this board take whatever action necessary to bring that owner here so that he can hear the concerns, and be forced to face the concerns that are being brought by the residents. I have the utmost confidence that this board will take appropriate action when we do finally get this individual before us. I would simply suggest, if his track record is any indication in his willingness to work with us, which is not at all, I would suggest action be taken in his absence should he not appear at the next meeting."

Palmucci said the business recently installed new high-powered vacuums that are very loud and running at all different hours of the day. Sheehan says that not only is the noise coming from the vacuums, but also from a number of different loud noises that can be heard all the way to Furnace Brook Parkway.

"On the dry cycle the decimal goes up to about 115, 120, it sounds like a jet airliner taking off," said

Sheehan. "This goes on at one o'clock, two o'clock, three o'clock, whenever anyone decides to wash their car. Along with it, at that time, back in the fall, there were audible tones on all of the bases, when you drop money in and when the machine is going to run out, it goes beep, beep, beep, and it continues on until you either put more money in or it runs out and then it beeps more to tell you to put money in. We can hear these beeps all the way down Furnace Brook Parkway. We hear them all night long, in the morning; there is no such thing as a quiet morning."

Board member and Director of Inspectional Services Jay Duca told the board that he and his team have been to the property numerous times and have issued numerous tickets because of the noise violations.

"Just for the record, just for the board's information, the machinery does violate the city's noise ordinance," said Duca. "We went out there several times. We have written several tickets. We've reached out to the owner by registered mail and he has not responded to any of requests to come in and we would work with him. It's been a real problem."

According to Shea, this is not the first time the owner has been called in front of the board due to excessive complaints, and it is also not the first time Ruscito has

Children's Programs At Library

By JULIE RINES
Thomas Crane
Public Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library announces the following children's program.

Art-to-Go

Art-to-go is an eight-week series of drop in art activities that travel throughout Quincy. Supplies for the week's project will be available on Mondays at the Main Library; Tuesdays at Adams Shore; Wednesdays at North Quincy and on Thursdays at Wollaston. Stop by between 2 and 4 p.m. and make a craft.

Projects are open ended to accommodate a wide age range. They are easy enough for toddlers and preschoolers to do with an adult's help and free form enough for school age children to add their own personal touch. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library, project for the week of July 30: "Dream Spinners."

Registration for Summer Explorers—Bedtime Monsters begins Wednesday, Aug. 1st.

Join Miss Amanda for a story and craft program about bedtime monsters. Hear a couple of stories and make a craft. This program is for ages 4-8 and will take place at the Wollaston Branch Library Wednesday, Aug. 15th.

Registration is required. Beginning Wednesday, August 1st register by clicking Aug. 15th on the online calendar at our website, stopping by the Wollaston Branch or calling 617-376-1330. Due to space limitations, this program is limited to Quincy residents. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library

Summer

Storyteller's Series

On Tuesday, July 31st at 7 p.m. Magician Mike Bent returns to Quincy with his Dream Big Magic Show. This family friendly program uses amazing magic, storytelling and hilarious comedy to teach children about the importance of reading with fun and meaningful stories that will inspire kids to achieve their dreams. This program is for ages 5 and older. Sponsored by the Quincy Arts Council.

"Let's Play Together"

Pajama Storytime

On Wednesday, Aug. 1st at 6:30 p.m. Storyteller Diana Kane of Creative Connection presents "Let's Play Together," pajama storytimes designed especially for children ages 2-5 and their parents.

Every Wednesday evening will be filled with activities for children and adults to do together. Come see Ms. Diana for an hour of interactive stories, partner dances, playing in a band and singing together.

Ms. Diana is a music specialist and storyteller who has prepared a six week program that is designed for adults and children to enjoy stories and songs as a family. This is a great time for you and your children to sing, dance, listen and talk with each other.

This program series will continue on Wednesday evenings until Aug. 15th. This program is sponsored by the Quincy Arts Council.

Open Mike Night At Crane Library Monday

The Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center, will host a free acoustic Open Mike night Monday, July 30 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Share your talent with a friendly audience. Sign-up begins at 6:15 p.m.

Play an original or a cover song, read an excerpt or a poem, perform a monologue or short skit, debut your stand-up comedy routine or engage in any amateur style performance. All musicians, poets and performers are encouraged to participate and all ages are welcome.

One microphone will be available but no other sound equipment is supplied. If your instrument requires amplification, such as an electric bass, you will need to bring it.

For more information visit thomascranelibrary.org or call 617-376-1316.

In Sync Center Of The Arts Dance Day Celebration Saturday

In Sync Center of the Arts, 550 Adams St., Quincy, is celebrating National Dance Day Saturday, July 28 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. with free dance classes and a dance flash mob.

Here is the schedule:

- 9:30-10:30 a.m. Dance Party for ages 3-6
- 9:30-10:30 a.m. Musical Theater Showcase for ages 6 and up
- 10:30-11:30 a.m. Crazy Bout Dance for grades 1&2
- 10:30-11:30 a.m. Dance Flash Mob rehearsal for grades 3 and up with flash mob immediately following.

This summer, In Sync Center of the Arts is holding seven weeks of creative, fun, and educational summer camps for children ages 3 through 15. The camps run in all different themes between July 9th and Aug. 24th, including "Gotta Dance," "Jedi Training," "Party Like A Princess," "Kidz Cooking," "LEGO Engineering," and more.

The programs run Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Camp activities include cooking, dancing, singing, coloring, painting, and even Jedi training.

Programs like "Party Like A Princess" for ages 3-5 encompass fairy tale and real life princesses, while "Jedi Training" teaches young Jedi's about the Star Wars movies, characters, and even how to use lightsabers.

For dancers there is also a "Gotta Dance" camp. This will improve upon the student's technique in jazz, tap, contemporary, and hip hop, while also teaching students how to choreograph their own routines.

In addition, there is a "Boys Only Hip Hop" camp for boys to work on their attitude and latest hip hop moves.

There is also an "Art Freak Week" for young artists to hone their craft and use different mediums to express themselves, including painting, drawing, clay sculpting, collages, and watercolors. Every day uses a different medium and challenges the children to work outside of their comfort zone while still feeling good about themselves.

In Sync is holding weekly dance classes for those students who wish to better themselves over the summer vacation. These are held on Wednesday and Thursday nights. Classes range from Jazz and Tap classes to Hip Hop and Contemporary classes.

For more visit the website www.insyncarts.com or call (617) 328-5678.

Overdose Candlelight Vigil Aug. 10 At Veterans Memorial Stadium

The City of Quincy will host a candlelight vigil Friday, Aug. 10 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium, 870 Hancock St., Quincy, to bring attention to the issue of substance addiction.

Concerned citizens of Quincy, Braintree, Randolph, Weymouth and other South Shore communities will come together to remember family, friends and community members lost to drug overdose and give hope to others still struggling with addiction.

A list of names of those who have died will be gathered. Candles will be provided and lit when the names are read aloud during the program.

Participants are also encouraged to bring a photo of their loved one.

Registration of names to be read during the program will be collected from 6:30 to 7 p.m. The program will follow.

The event is free and parking is available. Handicap access at the rear of the stadium.

Velocity Dance Company Dances Back To The '80s

Velocity Dance Company of North Quincy recently performed for a sold out crowd at Quincy High School.

Velocity put on a spectacular show that themed to bring its audience back to the memorable 80's. Re-creating a scene from the famous movie "The Breakfast Club," a favorite of the decade, while opening with a dance that was a full 80's mix, the audience was treated to a wide variety of scores from the "big hair" decade including Guns & Roses, Michael Jackson, and Prince with dance routines ranging from tap, jazz, and hip hop.

The performers ranged from pre-school to adults. The Creative Movement and Kinder Kids, ages 3-6, are always a big hit dancing Tap, Jazz, and Ballet.

In the finale, owners Vincent Famador and Erica Limoncelli-Famador danced a routine from the iconic movie "Dirty Dancing." The moment they started dancing the crowd got on their feet and cheered them on. Two of the best scenes of the movie were reenacted where Vincent jumped off the stage dancing down the aisle with the students and staff, and nailing the famous lift with a twist, lifting Erica with only one hand in the air.

Kathy McCarthy said "I attended the dance recital to see my granddaughter but I was stunned by seeing a show. The Broadway shows I've been to never brought such delight. All the hard work including behind the scenes was evident. During the last number I wanted to get in the aisle and dance. Bravo!"

GRADES 1 and 2 Combo Class are happy dancers at Velocity Dance Company's recent performance at Quincy High School.

"Putting on a big production is truly hard work but rewarding," said Owner Vince Famador. "You need your full staff, volunteers, coordinators, and specialist all working around the clock to assure a smooth successful show."

"In addition to our hard working staff coordinating and directing back stage, our studio is lucky that all our teachers perform several full pieces. It's rare that a dance studios complete staff showcase their talent in front of everyone," he added.

Symposium Celebrating Marian 'Clover' And Henry Adams At ANHP

The Adams National Historical Park will promote "Art-in-the-Park" to celebrate the life and times of Clover Adams with a weekend of talks, tours, and exhibits July 27-29 featuring noted scholars, authors and historians of Marion "Clover" Hooper Adams, Henry Adams, and the Adams Family.

All programs will take place at Adams National Historical Park, 135 Adams St., Quincy.

The evening of July 27, at 6:30 p.m. in the Carriage House will feature Natalie Dykstra and "Who Was Clover Adams," Peter Drummy: "Meet the Adams In-Laws" and Anne Bentley: "Artistry in Light and Shadows."

On Saturday, July 28, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Peace field, amateur and professional photographers alike will fan out across the property at Peace field to capture, in black and white, photographs that evoke the historic "sense of place" and the vanished world of Henry and Clover Adams.

Photographs taken at Peace field on Saturday, July 28, may be exhibited in the Adams Carriage House on Sunday, July 29, from noon to 5 p.m. Guest curators for this special exhibition include photography students Marisa Carson and Rebecca Ledin, and Professor Hettie Handenschield, Quincy College.

Join the staff of Adams National Historical Park on a "behind-the-scenes" tour of Henry Adams' third-floor bedroom, which will be open to the public on this special occasion, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 27-29. It is also open by reservation throughout the season.

Call the Visitor Center at 617-770-1175 for more information.

"Focus tours" provide visitors with the opportunity to examine furnishings and other artifacts in the Old House at Peace field that illuminate the life and times of Henry Adams and Clover Adams.

150 Served At Kennedy Center Firefighters Treat Seniors To Cookout

Quincy Firefighters Association Local 792 recently held a cookout for the seniors at the Kennedy Center in Quincy.

The firefighters cooked and served for more than 150 seniors who attended.

"This event is one of our most popular events," said Quincy Council on Aging Director Tom Clasby. "The seniors really enjoy interacting with the firefighters. We are truly grateful to them for putting on this annual event."

Ernie Arienti, president of the Quincy Firefighters Association, said, "The firefighters enjoy this event as much as the seniors. It gives them a chance to talk with the seniors, many of whom they know."

John and Amanda Cristiani, children of Firefighter John Cristiani, helped out as did Gavan Moody, son of Firefighter Paul Moody.

Brigid McDermott, granddaughter of the late Quincy Firefighter John Lydon, Jr., also helped out.

Mayor Appoints Marketing Executive To Direct CPA

Mayor Thomas Koch has appointed Lisa Aimola, a long-time marketing executive and Squantum resident, as Community Preservation Act Director overseeing millions of dollars of historic preservation, open space and affordable housing projects in the City.

The part-time position will be paid through the Community Preservation Act, a state law approved by Quincy voters in 2006 that creates a property tax surcharge used specifically to pay for projects related to historic preservation, open space, recreation and affordable housing. The law dictates that a percentage of Community Preservation funding be used to pay for administrative costs associated with implementing the Act.

Aimola was a Vice President of Business Development for Protocol Integrated Direct Marketing for eight years, developing new business acquisitions, managing creative and tactical client initiatives and managing a multi-million dollar business portfolio. Aimola also worked as an account executive for Dickinson Direct, where she managed a major health care account during her tenure.

A graduate of North Quincy School and the University of Massachusetts, Aimola lives in Squantum with her husband and two children.

"Lisa brings a broad range of experience, great enthusiasm and a passion for a City that will make this a perfect fit," said Mayor Koch. "I am thrilled she has agreed to accept this appointment."

Aimola will be responsible for administering all aspects of the Community Preservation Act and working with the Community Preservation Committee throughout its project approval process. The fund has supported dozens of projects over the last several years, including major open space purchases and most recently, the planned restoration of old City Hall (James R. McIntyre Government Center) and the Coddington School.

DENTISTRY

for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

COULD GUM DISEASE PROVE DEADLY?

It is now widely understood that gum disease can contribute to a host of potentially life-threatening conditions including diabetes and cardiovascular disease. Research also indicates that women with periodontal disease are 3-5 times more likely to have a baby born prematurely compared with women without gum disease. However, is it possible that periodontal disease itself is deadly? According to recent research, the answer is "yes." It seems that scientists have isolated an oral bacterium (Streptococcus oralis) that could be deadly if it enters the bloodstream through bleeding gums. While researchers begin to assess how common this bacterium is in the mouth, everyone has one more reason to floss and schedule regular dental check-ups that help avert gum disease.

Are you a candidate for a tooth implant? Our commitment is to provide you the highest standard of personalized dental care. You will find our dental services exceptional. Good dentistry is more than excellent clinical skills and state-of-the-art equipment. Establishing lasting relationships with our patients based on mutual trust and open communication is an equally important factor. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we work together, so you can have the smile you've always wanted. We're currently accepting new patients. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a full trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. It has been estimated that 75% of Americans have some form of gum disease.

Baseball And Social Security Numbers Tell Stories

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Just as Social Security is an American cornerstone, baseball is America's pastime.

Baseball is an annual rite of summer and a game that is known for its numbers. Joe DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak, Cal Ripken's record 2,632 consecutive games played, and Hank Aaron's 755 career home runs all tell stories greater than the numbers themselves. Mention any one of these numbers to a baseball fan and you're sure to call to mind memories and stories.

Social Security's numbers tell stories too. The first lump sum Social Security payment of 17 cents was made to Ernest Ackerman in 1937. The first monthly Social Security check of $22.54 went to Ida May Fuller in January of 1940. This year, about 55 million Americans will receive $760 billion in Social Security benefits. The average monthly benefit for a retired worker in 2012 is $1,229.

An estimated 159 million workers are covered under Social Security — that's 94 percent of the workforce. Fifty percent of workers have no private pension coverage and 31 percent have no savings set aside specifically for retirement. These and other numbers make it easy to appreciate the value of Social Security.

Ninety percent of Americans age 65 and older receive Social Security benefits. And among the unmarried, 41 percent rely on Social Security benefits for 90 percent of their income.

Social Security is more than just retirement benefits. Disabled workers and their dependents account for 19 percent of the total benefits paid, while survivor's benefits account for 12 percent. Almost one in four of today's 20-year olds will become disabled before reaching age 67, and the majority of these workers have no long-term disability insurance besides their Social Security coverage. About one in eight of today's 20-year olds will die before reaching age 67.

Baseball and Social Security: America's pastime and America's retirement program. Both have long and storied histories and associations with statistics.

Learn more about Social Security by visiting www.socialsecurity.gov.

What If Your Quincy Home Doesn't Sell?

Quincy - If your home has just come off the market and hasn't sold, don't get discouraged. The reason your home did not sell may have nothing to do with your home or the market. In reality, your home may have been one of the more desirable properties for sale.

So Why Didn't Your Home Sell?

Last year almost half of the homes listed for sale never sold at all, and many sellers found that there was a tremendous amount a homeowner needed to be educated on to sell their home for top dollar in the shortest time period.

Don't risk making the wrong choices and losing both time and money on your investment. Before you hire a realtor, know the right questions to ask to save you time and money.

Industry experts have prepared a free special report called "How to Sell a House that Didn't Sell" which educates you on the issues involved.

To hear a brief recorded message about how to order your FREE copy of this report call 800-611-0351 and enter ID#1012. You can call anytime, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Call now to make sure your home sells this time.

Funeral Mass Friday For Real Estate Company Founder John E. 'Jack' Conway Loses Battle With Cancer

A Mass of Christian Burial for John E. "Jack" Conway, founder and Chairman of Jack Conway & Company, will be celebrated Friday at 11 a.m. at St. Mary of the Nativity Church, 1 Kent St., Scituate.

Mr. Conway died Monday at 88 at South Shore Hospital after a brief battle with cancer.

A man familiar to generations of homebuyers and sellers throughout Eastern Massachusetts, Conway leaves a giant legacy of business success and community involvement through his 56-year old real estate company.

"My father touched so many lives in a positive way," said Conway's daughter Carol Bulman, the CEO of Jack Conway & Company. "He will be missed by our family, our entire company and all those he helped through his lifetime of giving back to the community."

Conway founded the firm with a single office in Hingham in 1956, and built it to include 40 offices and more than 600 associates — one of the largest independent brokerages in Massachusetts.

Along the way Conway made an impact in all facets of the community, particularly through his work with the homeless and countless other charities.

When Jack Conway would tell the story of how he decided to get into real estate, he summed it up as "simple mathematics" — in 1954, he was earning a salary of $119.50 a week as a sportswriter, but as a young father, had expenses of $129 a week. When his boss turned down his request for a $10 raise, the gregarious Mr. Conway turned his talents to real estate sales.

JOHN E. 'JACK' CONWAY

As he remembered it, he earned his first commission check at 6 p.m. on his first day as a salesman for the Martin Cerel Company in Natick, and soon decided that "if I was going to work this hard, I may as well go to work for myself." Two years later, he opened his own company in a storefront in Hingham Square.

Through his five decades in the real estate business, Mr. Conway was a pioneer in several areas. He was among the first to hire women in what had been a traditionally male-dominated industry and expanded his company to include a mortgage brokerage and training academy.

A master networker, Mr. Conway was widely known for his near photographic memory of names and faces. Often, he would open the door to the conference room at his firm's headquarters to introduce himself to customers, and more often than not, found a common acquaintance.

Mr. Conway famously did not use voicemail or e-mail, preferring instead to talk face-to-face or over the telephone. He wrote a company newsletter as often as three times a week, including vignettes about his visits to his offices in what he called "Conway Country," conversations with new agents, or summaries of articles he'd read. When a social-media trainer pointed out that his writings could be considered a blog, he laughed about what he termed his "traditional" approach to doing business. "Personally, I don't know the difference between a Blackberry and a blueberry," he said, "but my agents do."

Although decades removed from the deadlines of the news business, Mr. Conway remained a writer at heart. He authored numerous books about his travels across the country and the world, and collected his essays about the real estate business into several volumes that are used to train agents and managers.

He was the Massachusetts Association of Realtors President in 1970 and 1971 and earned the group's Realtor of the Year Award in 1971. He was also the former president of RELO, the International Relocation Network. In 2006 Mr. Conway was honored by the National Association of Realtors and the Cape Cod and Islands Board of Realtors with the "Realtor Emeritus" Award. Mr. Conway is a past chair of the Plymouth County Development Council and South Shore Chamber of Commerce, and served on the board of trustees of South Shore Hospital.

In addition to his work in the real estate business, Mr. Conway emphasized the importance of charitable endeavors. MainSpring Coalition for the Homeless named its Middleboro family shelter "The Conway House" in honor of the generous support of Mr. Conway and his wife, Patricia. Brockton Area Multi-Services' Conway Children's Advocacy Center for abused children also is named in their honor.

Mr. Conway was the founder of the Ambassadors of Holy Cross, a group that supports the mission work of the Congregation of Holy Cross in the poorest areas of Peru.

Born and raised in Boston, he graduated from Boston College High School and attended the University of Notre Dame. He was a Navy veteran of World War II, and fondly recalled covering the boxing exploits of Brockton native Rocky Marciano as a reporter for the former Boston Record-American.

Mr. Conway is survived by his wife, Patricia (Carroll) Conway of Scituate, a son, Jack Conway Jr. of Florida, and two daughters, Barbara Conway and Carol Bulman, both of Scituate. He was the grandfather of six and great-grandfather of four.

Visiting hours will be held today (Thursday) from 3 to 8 p.m. at St. Mary's Church, 1 Kent St., Scituate.

Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery, Scituate.

Memorial donations may be made to:

the topic will be revisited during the September meeting of the board.

Talk then shifted to possibly inadequate air conditioning in QHA-owned properties, particularly in complexes which cater to the elderly.

Maintenance Director David Ferris said that some rooms, such as the large community room on the top floor of Tobin Towers where all QHA public meeting are held, are "tough to cool down."

"It's something that we certainly are concerned about," said MacRitchie, who went on to suggest using funds retained from the operation of a cell tower on the roof of Tobin Towers to install central air conditioning to the building. "My understanding is that we get to retain that money and use it for the betterment of this building," he said.

Ferris said the installation would be simple. "We already have the duct work going in the corridors of the building," he said.

"I'm getting kind of warm," joked MacRitchie.

"I've had about my fill too of this room, and I've only been here an hour."

No plans have been made as of yet to remedy the heat situation.

Additionally, the board unanimously approved the following construction upgrades to be carried out by Zander Corporation:

Toilet room and laundry renovations at Drohan Apartments.

Improvements to the common areas of Pagnano Towers and O'Brien Towers, including the installation of automatic doors.

Repairs to 97-3 and 100-2 Doane Street, making both units handicap accessible.

electrical pipes for the future electronic timing system and the processed gravel for the track pavement base is being spread.

With the paving of the "binder" layer of asphalt in early August, the track will truly begin to take shape.

Drainage work around the track and under the infield will be the focus of subsequent work. A half mile of flat drains covered by six inch depth of peastone will underlie the root zone of the natural grass field. Water percolating through the topsoil will be collected and directed into the previously installed trench drains. Excess surface water will flow directly to catch basins and into the trench drains.

The drainage work on the track is being done in conjunction with a broader drainage project aimed at improving flooding conditions in surrounding neighborhoods.

not shown up to a hearing. Ruscito was called in front of the board in 2009 for the same issue of excessive noise and did not show up to the first hearing, but according to Shea, he showed up with his attorney at the second hearing saying he was not notified of the first meeting.

"We've had issues in the past with communications," said Shea. "We've been more than fair to Mr. Ruscito. He's had other businesses in our city, and we generally have a good record with him or working with him. Something has got to be done."

Palmucci and Sheehan said that they both have tried numerous ways to contact the owner and voice their concerns with no avail.

"I've reached out to him on several occasions, telephone, calls and letters and I've gotten no response whatsoever in attempt to try and work with the owner before the point of having to come before the board. There has been no cooperation from this particular business owner to address any of these concerns," said Palmucci.

"It's my understanding that this board has been very good in the past with working with these types of businesses especially, car-washes, and with similar situations, this certainly isn't the first time this issue has come up with this property, or in the city in general.

"It is my understanding that this board has required operators of these types of businesses to have an overall shut down at a certain time. I would suggest that as a remedy that would be adequate to address some of the concerns of the neighbors in this instance. There are certainly some of these concerns, which are not so major that they couldn't be resolved with minor changes on behalf of the ownership, and they're just not coming to the table to work with us and it is very disappointing."

The board voted unanimously to continue the complaint until Aug. 28th and to notify Ruscito that the board will consider the revocation of the license issued to him for Super Clean Car Wash.

In other action, the License Board granted a CV all alcoholic restaurant license to Tilted Kilt, which will be located at 227 Parkingway. The Tilted Kilt will reside in the former Outback Restaurant, a 7,900 square foot plot of commercial space located within a strip mall. The Tilted Kilt is a sports restaurant and pub with Scottish, Irish, and English roots, but Scheele said that he would describe it as a Scottish Hooters.

"What other restaurants have you been compared to," Scheele asked Tilted Kilt Attorney Edward Fleming. "I would call it the Scottish Hooters. I'm not saying there is anything wrong with that, I can see that you are serious about food just by how you are set up."

Fleming responded by saying, "I think it is classier than that. Certainly they use certain marketing techniques on their website that try to promote a really exciting atmosphere to come and enjoy yourself. I think that it's toned down from the Hooters model that you see in other places. It's more classy, and more focused on food and sports."

The Tilted Kilt originally began in Las Vegas in 2003 and has grown and spread throughout the country since then. The restaurant will have 270 inside seats and the owners hope to expand and have seating outside as well. The restaurant will be decorated with sports memorabilia and TVs and will focus on being a nice place to go and have dinner with friends to watch sports, according to Fleming. The primary clientele will be men ages 35 to 65, and they will be open from 11 a.m. to 1 a.m. According to Fleming they hope to employ around 50 people and be open for business in six months.

The board also voted unanimously to allow an extension of premise on July 27th for Presidents Rock Club, a special use permit to the Quincy Animal Shelter to hold the 4th Annual 5K Road Race and Cause for Paws Dog Walk on Oct. 21, a transfer of an all alcoholic restaurant license to Shenanigan's presently issued to Twin Lads, Inc., a permit to hold the 25th Annual August Moon Festival to Quincy Asian Resources Inc., and two one-day wine and malt licenses to Elena's Café for a private function.

Cynthia Emery, also of 156 Independence Ave, exit the house. Both were stopped by the detectives and arrested. At the same time, Jonathan Guerro, 25, of Centre Street in South Quincy and Monika Centeio, 19, of Abington, arrived at the residence. They were both arrested as well.

Following the arrests, police applied for and were granted a search warrant for the property. During the search police seized heroin and cash. In all, 25 grams worth of heroin with a street value of $2,500 were confiscated as well as $1,000 worth of marijuana and $1,700 in cash.

Freitas and Emery were both charged with trafficking a class "A" substance (heroin), distribution of heroin, and conspiracy to violate controlled substance laws.

Guerro and Centeio were charged with possession of heroin with intent to distribute, distribution of heroin, conspiracy to violate controlled substance laws, possession with intent to distribute a class "D" substance (marijuana), and selling within a school zone (Archbishop Williams High School).

The four were arraigned last Thursday in Quincy District Court and released on bail. They are all due back in court on August 20th.

Quincy Police Detective Lt. Patrick Glynn called the arrests significant and credited tips to the drug hotline for helping the investigation.

A JOINT OPERATION between Quincy and Malden Police and the South Shore Drug Task Force resulted in the seizure of heroin and marijuana valued at $3,500 last week. Confiscated were 25 grams worth of heroin with a street value of $2,500 and $1,000 worth of marijuana and $1,700 in cash.

"Although the quantity of cash seized was not large, the fact two heroin distribution operations involving the four individuals were disrupted makes this a significant arrest," Glynn said. "This investigation demonstrates the success of the collaborative efforts of the Quincy Police, South Shore

Drug Task Force, and the Malden Police Dept. along with the citizens working together.

"Information supplied via the drug hotline and other tips assisted in leading to these arrests," Glynn added. "We are grateful for the continued support through the drug hotline and our partnerships with other law enforcement agencies."

Merrymount Teacher Attends Advanced Space Camp

Lorie Hammerstrom, a teacher at Merrymount School in Quincy, was chosen to attend Advanced Honeywell Educators Space Academy at the U.S. Space and Rocket Centre in Huntsville, Alabama.

There she joined 14 other teachers who have a similar passion and interest in not only space and science education but in learning itself. She says that this was an amazing, stimulating and highly rewarding experience.

In 2011, Hammerstrom was selected as a Honeywell Space Academy teacher and attended the program at the U.S. Space and Rocket Center in Huntsville, Alabama.

Following that experience she developed an after-school Space Camp program for 5th graders at the Merrymount School. Students learned science, technology, math and engineering (STEM) concepts as they explored how they might send a planet rover to learn more about a new planet, Planet Hammer.

Hammerstrom put together a portfolio and applied for the advanced course and was one of two teachers to be awarded the scholarship after only one year of being a Honeywell Space Academy teacher.

During ten days in Advance Space Academy she participated in a range of team and confidence building activities such as the 'Pamper Pole' climbing and trust ropes course, space briefings on the shuttle program and future NASA directions such as the Space Launch System (SLS), multiple simulated missions, scuba in the Underwater Astronaut Trainer, Lego Mindstorm Robotics, sessions with astronauts and a visit to the Kennedy Space Center on Cape Canaveral.

At KSC the team was honored to get a very close viewing of launch pad 39 and the Orbiter Processing Facility where they stood under the Atlantis during its decommissioning. This is something special for anyone interested in space exploration and NASA achievement.

Hammerstrom says that the program was truly an amazing experience.

"When you put 15 like-minded passionate, curious, and creative teachers together for 10 days great things happen," she says.

"We talked, shared, supported, encouraged and worked as a true team for the entire period. We took risks and laughed and cried at successes and failures.... we all need both to learn and grow, as do our students and we should all continually be pushing and stretching forward in the pursuit of learning."

TEACHER LORIE HAMMERSTROM (center) received the Ezickson Award – named in memory of former Quincy school teacher David Ezickson. She used the mini-grant to develop an after school Space Camp program for fifth graders at the Merrymount School. With her are David's wife, Ruth, and son Elan Ezickson. Hosts Finished 1-2 Overall; Defeated Taunton Quincy Runs Out Of Time At 14-Year-Old Babe Ruth Tournament

By SEAN BRENNAN

In a game that took over three hours to complete, Quincy just ran out of time as Dedham hung on to eliminate the District 4 host team, 11-10, Monday night at Adams Field in the Babe Ruth 14-Year Old State Tournament.

However, Quincy didn't go quietly into the night.

The Local 9 rallied from down 4-0 after an inning and a half to grab a 7-4 lead before jumping back ahead 9-7 after four complete, and later tying the game at 10-10 after five innings. But Dedham responded with a single run in the seventh and then snuffed out a late Quincy rally in the bottom of the frame to advance into the tournament semifinals on Tuesday night against Braintree.

Quincy finished the elite Babe Ruth tournament at 1-2 overall.

"These kids have been together for 60 games playing in AAU," head coach Mark Jaehnig said following the loss. "We didn't know if we would win a game, but we won a lot more than we lost. The biggest thing is we are trying to give kids from Quincy this type of experience. I told the kids that they are better (players) for experiencing this type of atmosphere. It is going to make you a better player in high school, in Legion, and in college if they go that far. That is really what youth sports are all about."

"The Dedham kids played great," continued Jaehnig, "and someone had to lose. We worked real hard and we were prepared. I couldn't be prouder of them. I'll sleep well tonight."

One night after dropping an 18-5 decision to Plymouth, which followed a tournament opening 4-2 win over Taunton, Quincy and starter Richie Ryan found themselves down 4-0 after an inning and a half, but then the offensive floodgates opened for Quincy against Dedham starter Liam Madden in the bottom of the frame.

Adam McCormack (three walks, run) drew a free pass to start the rally, and Madden loaded the bases by walking Ryan (three RBI) and Peter Saccoach. After Cam White struck out looking, catcher Harry Theodore was hit by a pitch, which scored McCormack and Brendan Collins picked up a RBI on Madden's fourth walk of the inning to make it 7-2.

Dedham replaced Madden with Kasey Kirby and shortstop Troy Shepherd greeted the big right-hander with a RBI single to center, which scored Ryan. Josh Helfrich (two hits, two RBI) made it 5-4 with a clean single to left, and after Jack Loughnane singled and McCormack walked, Ryan plated Helfrich and Loughnane with a two-run single that gave Quincy a 7-4 lead.

Ryan retired Jack Burns to open the third before allowing a single to Frankie Stapleton. Three errors, two walks and a single later allowed Dedham to even the score at 7-7; the score stayed that way until Quincy rallied for two runs against Kirby in the bottom of the fourth inning.

Helfrich started that rally with a single, and after advancing all the way to third he scored on a sacrifice fly from McCormack. Ryan gave Quincy a 9-7 lead with his second hit of the game, scoring Loughnane (fielder's choice). After Saccoach and Dwyer reached, Quincy had the opportunity to blow the game wide open with one out and the bases loaded, but Dedham second baseman Jack Powers made a diving catch of a Theodore line drive and doubled off Dwyer at first to quell the threat.

Powers then ignited a three-run rally in the fifth when he drew a walk off Dwyer, who had relieved Ryan to start the fourth. Sam Rowley moved Powers to second with a single and Matt Maloney's fielder's choice advanced Dwyer to third. Powers would score on a double steal and Maloney came around to score on a double by Madden, which tied the contest at 9-9. Burns' two-out single gave Dedham a 10-9 lead.

But back came Quincy in the bottom of the inning. Collins (hit, two walks) ripped a single to center and moved into scoring position on a perfect sacrifice bunt by Shepherd. Following a strikeout of Helfrich,

Layups And Life Lessons At DA Morrissey's Hoop Camp

Quincy High School's gym was alive and steamy last week with two dozen city kids as Norfolk County Dist. Atty. Michael W. Morrissey's summer basketball camp provided skills and advice for success on and off the court.

The campers, grades 3 through 8, attended the three-day camp for free.

"This is all paid for using money confiscated from and forfeited by the drug dealers of Norfolk County," Morrissey said.

Many of the campers were hand-picked because adults around them felt they would particularly benefit from constructive activities to help fill the summer school break.

"We don't only pay attention to the kids who are in trouble," Morrissey said. "We look for ways to help good kids stay out of trouble."

The camp featured a variety of skill building exercises under the guidance of former Southeastern Regional basketball coach Carl Boen, and a visit from Quincy High School Coach Dave Parry.

Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti helped the cause by sending Lt. Jack Kilrain and his search dog, Caro, to deliver constructive messages to the campers while talking about the K-9 program.

"Summer break can leave young hands idle for a long time," Morrissey said. "We use seized drug money to provide young kids with something constructive to look forward to at the start of the summer, and some positive lessons about teamwork, looking out for your friends and good decision making to look back on at the end of the summer."

A similar camp was held in Stoughton and another is planned in Quincy in the coming weeks.

FIRST BASEMAN JACK LOUGHNANE works a pickoff move with pitcher Joe Dwyer. Loughnane had two hits and a RBI in Quincy's 11-10 loss to Dedham.

Quincy Runs Out Of Time At Babe Ruth Tournament

Loughnane scored Collins with a RBI single. Dedham's Tyler Hache - in relief of Kirby - walked McCormack but escaped the inning by getting Ryan swinging.

Helfrich started the top of the sixth for Quincy and struck out John Hasenfuss before waking Burns. The right-hander bore down and fanned Powers and Rowley to end the inning. Hache equaled Helfrich's performance in the bottom of the inning by striking out Saccoach and Dwyer. Theodore followed the two quick punch-outs with a single and advanced to second on a Dedham error before getting caught leaning the wrong way on a pickoff attempt to end the sixth.

Dedham eventually got to Helfrich in the seventh as Maloney led off with a deep double to center. Hache moved him 90-feet with single and Madden scored Maloney with a single to center before Helfrich got Burns and Stapleton to end the inning.

Down to their final three outs, Shepherd flew to left before Helfrich struck out swinging, only to reach first on a passed ball. Loughnane then smashed a rocket down the third base line only to watch as Frankie Stapleton made a diving stop, got to his feet and threw out pinch runner Tim Durgin at second. Hache ended Quincy's tournament run by striking out McCormack looking.

"That game had a lot of twists and turns," Jaehnig noted. "If that ball gets past (Stapleton), maybe we're having a party in Quincy tonight."

Quincy vs. Plymouth

Thirteen errors did Quincy in during a pool play game against Plymouth on Sunday night. The hosts dropped to 1-1 following an 18-5 loss.

"I don't think I've seen 13 errors before," lamented coach Mark Jaehnig following the game.

But despite the large dose of miscues and the 18 runs scored by Plymouth (considered by many to be the favorite coming in), Quincy remained competitive until the final inning. In fact, Quincy began the game with a five-pitch inning from starter Joe Dwyer that was aided by two phenomenal defensive plays from right-fielder Peter Saccoach and left-fielder Adam McCormack.

Dwyer pitched a strong game for Quincy, but ultimately his defense couldn't help him out after a strong start defensively. While Dwyer was on the bump Quincy committed five errors - his final line was four innings, eight runs, seven hits and a strikeout.

"Joe did a tremendous job despite all the defensive lapses," said Jaehnig. "He did a (good) job keeping his composure and to me, he was the player of the game for us."

Quincy scored all five runs using a patient approach in the second inning. Jack Loughnane started the inning by drawing a four-pitch walk followed by McCormack getting plunked with a pitch. Matt McDonald moved both runners into scoring position with a sacrifice bunt and Saccoach loaded the bases with another free pass.

Dwyer then walked to score Loughnane and Harry Theodore's infield single plated McCormack. After Brendan Collins (hit) walked, Josh Helfrich greeted reliever Joshua McCassie with a two-run single that gave Quincy its only lead of the game at 5-3. Helfrich was named Quincy's player of the game for his effort.

Won Game Three, 7-6; Next Up Milton White

Wollaston Sr. Babe Ruth Knocks Out Hingham

By TOM LAYMAN

All the Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth team needed was a little spark.

A little help from the opponent's defense didn't hurt either.

The hosts clawed back from a five-run deficit in the final two innings as Mike Pugsley ended things with a walk-off sacrifice fly to center, scoring Scott Higgins, to grab a 7-6 win in the deciding game of the three-game set with Hingham Monday night at Merrymount Park.

The formula for the game has been all too familiar for head coach Steve Reardon this season. Give up an early run here, and an early run there, and then claw back to make the game a tight one. Not all of those games have been a complete turnaround, but Wollaston needed this one more than ever with the season on the line.

"When we play the game cleanly we are tough to beat," said Reardon, whose team will now move on in the Senior Babe Ruth tournament as they began a three-game series with Milton White on Wednesday. "We lost to Milton on errors. We lost to (Hingham) on errors. We love to give runs away and say, 'Here, take four runs and we'll start from behind.'"

"But that was classic.

It's nice to be in a game like that."

Things didn't get better for Wollaston until the bottom of the sixth inning, with Hingham starter Bob Spitz keeping the hosts' lineup off-balance enough as Hingham held a 6-1 lead.

Wollaston was getting good contact off of Spitz for most of the game, but the combination of the Hingham defense and the ball being hit right at someone was keeping Wollaston from doing any damage.

Then the Hingham defense succumbed to the windy, dustbowl-like conditions in the sixth.

Hingham made four errors in the inning and Wollaston cut the deficit to one in the process. Pugsley got the two-out rally going with a single up the middle, and Eric Clark walked to put men on first and second. Clark baited the catcher into throwing the ball down to first, and he would come home after a Kevin Jackson pop-up to left wasn't caught.

Wollaston would tack on two more runs in the inning thanks to sloppy play from Hingham.

"You have to (take advantage of the errors)," Reardon said. "At that point of the game (down five runs) you've got to take advantage of every single one of them or we wouldn't be playing Wednesday."

Matt Kerin pitched a perfect top of the sixth inning to keep the deficit at one run, and the momentum carried over for Wollaston in the final at-bat.

Bill Campbell reached on an error by the third baseman to lead off the inning, and Higgins reached out and poked a single down the left-field line. Campbell wisely stole third with the base wide open because the fielder bit on the fake bunt attempt by John Marsinelli.

Marsinelli ripped a RBI single up the middle to tie the game, and Higgins made it from first to third on the play.

Pugsley lofted the first pitched he saw deep enough to center field to score Higgins easily well before the throw came towards the plate.

As soon as the at-bats got better, and the hitters let the off-speed stuff from Spitz come to them, the balls were able to find holes instead of the gloves of Hingham.

For Reardon, it was just nice to see.

"We had a couple of games like that," said Reardon. "They hit and hit line drives. Not the pop ups jumping out ahead of the ball. They wait and stay back and hit the ball good."

Lost To Hyde Park 12-8 Last Friday

Morrisette Ends Regular Season At 14-8

By SEAN BRENNAN

Morrisette's July charge to the District 6 playoffs helped soften the blow of last Friday's regular-season finale in which Post 294 dropped a stinker to Hyde Park, 12-8 at O'Rourke Field. Before the game started, Morrisette had already qualified for the district playoff round (see side bar); however, if Post 294 wants to make some noise in the postseason they should just put this game in the rearview.

Playing at O'Rourke Field due to the ongoing 14-Year Old Babe Ruth Eastern Mass Tournament being held at Adams Field, Morrisette fell behind 3-0 after the first inning, 7-1 after two, and 10-1 after three frames. By the time Post 294 finally awoke from its slumber, Hyde Park held a 12-1 advantage heading to the bottom of the fifth. The 11-run deficit was too much for Morrisette to overcome because despite scoring seven runs in the home half of the fifth, Post 294 would get no closer as Hyde Park pitchers retired six of the final eight Post 294 batters to close it out.

Starting pitcher Jack Higgins allowed the first four batters to reach in the first and Hyde Park capitalized by scoring three runs before most of the home crowd arrived. Morrisette got one back in the home half when Chris Connolly - catching in place of Kevin White - drew a walk off Hyde Park's Pat Hurley. After Hurley fanned Matt Davis and Jason Pekkinen, shortstop Joe Alibrandi smacked a RBI double to left-center to cut the lead down to 3-1. Higgins gave up four more runs in the second and Hurley retired Tom Garland and Tim Liuzzo before allowing a walk to left fielder Andrew Currie. Hurley escape the second inning by getting Pat Verhault on a groundout.

Hyde Park continued to tack on runs in the third and fifth, while Hurley kept Morrisette off-balance in the box with a mix of curveballs and fastballs. Trailing 12-1 entering bottom of the fifth, Post 294's offense finally woke up.

Currie led off with a walk, and following a Verhault strikeout, Connolly drove home Currie with a RBI double. Davis then singled and Pekkinen struck out. With two outs, Alibrandi walked and first baseman Bob Kozlowski plated Connolly and Davis with a RBI double to deep center. Tom McDonald walked, loading the bases for Liuzzo whose three-run triple made it 12-7. Currie ripped a double down the left field line scoring Liuzzo, but Verhault lined out to first to end the inning.

The bottom of the fifth seemed to settle the Morrisette bench, but it was the late inning work of reliever Dan Cobban (two innings, run) that gave Post 294 a fighting chance. Cobban came on after allowing a run in the fifth and retired Hyde Park 1-2-3 in the sixth, but Morrisette squandered a one-out single by Davis in the bottom of the inning to send it to the seventh at 12-8.

Hyde Park loaded the bases with two outs against Sam Lawlor but he got out of the inning unscathed. Kozlowski opened the home half of the seventh with a single but McDonald (fly out), Liuzzo (fielder's choice) and Currie (groundout) went quietly to end the season and the game.

Road Game Friday At Randolph Oilers

Militia Answer Call: Defeat Charlestown, 28-12

By SEAN BRENNAN

Vaughn Driscoll pulled his team together before the start of Sunday's Eastern Football League game against the Charlestown Townies and told his troops that one team was leaving the field moving in the right direction and the other would still be searching for answers.

The Militia heeded his call and went out and played a full-team game to win 28-12, improving to 1-2 on the year, while halting an early-season losing streak.

"We went out and really controlled the line of scrimmage on both sides of the ball," he said on Monday after his offense racked up over 200 yards rushing and his defensive line continually brought pressure into the pocket. "We mixed it up on offense nicely, but we probably ran it 85% of the time and, defensively we had a more aggressive pass rush."

Quincy's brightest moment actually came after Charlestown stormed down the field and scored on the game's opening possession. Instead of hanging their heads, the Militia roared right back and took a 7-6 lead with an extended possession, which was capped off with a five-yard touchdown run from quarterback Aaron Cobbs (60+ yards rushing). That drive set the tone for the rest of the game.

"Charlestown came right out and punched it in," Driscoll said, "but the guys didn't lay down. They got right back up and took it back. The first two games our offense didn't score a point, but in this game they had 21. You have to score to win and I thought we did a real good job of that against the Townies."

"The team stuck together and our sideline was really into it," continued Driscoll. "It was a vast improvement over the first two games."

With the offensive line controlling the trenches, the Militia's running attack of Dolan Reid, William Ciarmataro and Company wore down the Charlestown front. Quincy took the lead for good on a wide receiver run from Jacques Faublas before the defensive front extended the advantage with the key play of the game.

On that play, defensive end George Gonzalez plowed through the Charlestown line and blindsided the Townies QB, forcing a fumble that was scooped up by De-Yonman Nelson and returned 55 yards to the house for the touchdown. Kicker Hermes Lima was a perfect 4-for-4 on point after attempts.

"After starting the year at 0-2, the message to the guys was one game at a time," said Driscoll. "1-2 looks a lot better than 0-3; we are now moving in the right direction."

Quincy has a big test coming on Friday night. The Militia travel to Randolph to play the Oilers at 7:30 p.m. at Randolph High School. Following that game, Quincy is back home at Veterans Memorial Stadium on Aug. 4 to host the Taunton Gladiators at 8 p.m.

Following a bye week on Aug. 11, Quincy invites the Metro West Mavericks to the Stadium on Aug. 18 at 8 p.m.

QYB 8's Win Whitman Invitational Tournament

QUINCY YOUTH BASEBALL recently brought an eight-year old team to Whitman to play in the annual Whitman Invitational Tournament. This was an "A" level tournament, which included stealing, leading, and bunting. Quincy played teams from Holbrook, Milton, and Whitman as well as playing rival Braintree twice and beating them both times; the second win over Braintree was an 8-7 victory in the Championship Game. Quincy's Jackson Murphy and Zack Galligan were named co-MVP's of the tournament, while Quincy's five-man pitching rotation of Kevin Salmanowich, Jack Nelson, Colm O'Malley, Coleman Ross, and Jackson Murphy were the big difference for QYB the whole tournament. Pictured, first row: Andrew Kabilian. Second row (left to right): Danny Freeman, Colm O'Malley, Gavin Toland, Zack Galligan and Jackson Murphy. Third row: Drew Peterson, Coleman Ross, Jack Nelson, Quinn Murphy, Scott Ritz, Drew Stevens, Kevin Salmanowich, and Tommy Murphy. Back row: Coach Adam Nelson, Coach Jim Ross, Coach AJ Kabilian and Coach Chris Murphy.

Series Began Tuesday At Bird Middle School

Morrisette Vs. Walpole In Best-Of-Three Playoff

By SEAN BRENNAN

Morrisette Post 294 began the month of July with work to do to make it back to the District 6 American Legion best-of-three playoff round. All Post 294 did was close out the regular season on an 8-3 run to finish at 14-8 overall, which locked them into fourth-place in District 6 East and set up a playoff series with Walpole, the No. 2 team out of District 6 West.

Morrisette began its best-of-three playoff series on Tuesday (weather permitting) at Bird Middle School in Walpole, and hosted Game Two yesterday (Wednesday) at Adams Field. Game Three, if necessary is scheduled for today (Thursday) at 5 p.m. back at Bird Middle School. The winner of the Morrisette/Walpole series advances into the Sectional playoff round, which begins next week.

"Walpole is a good team," said Coach Steve Maze on Monday. "They had a good year finishing a point behind Norwood in District 6 West. They are solid up the middle and they have good infielders and good outfielders, and they have a good pitching staff - not a shutdown staff."

"But we are in (the playoffs)," Maze continued, "and we have proven as the season has moved on that we can beat good teams. We need to play error-free baseball in order to win. This is a winnable series and we need to stay positive throughout. I feel like my team has played better the last couple of weeks."

Maze is assisted by Coaches Andy Santos, John Sullivan, Bill Walker and John Folino. Post 294 Manager is Raymond Cattaneo.

The top-five finishers in District 6 East were Hyde Park (16-6 overall), Braintree (15-7), Milton (15-7), Morrisette (14-8), and Cohasset (13-9). In District 6 West the top-five teams were Norwood (18-4), Walpole (17-4-1), Needham (14-7-1), Medfield (13-7-2), and Franklin (13-8-1).

The best-of-three District 6 East/West playoff matchups include Hyde Park/Franklin, Braintree/Medfield, Milton/Needham, Morrisette/Walpole, and Cohasset/Norwood.

NARROWING POSSIBILITIES

"Spinal stenosis," narrowing of the spinal canal, is a problem that typically affects people aged 50 years or older and that can develop due to a congenital tendency. In most cases, however, the cause is osteoarthritis. Whether by excessive use, previous injury, or aging, cartilage covering joint surfaces in the back slowly deteriorates. Discs between vertebrae become worn, and spaces between bones narrow. Bony outgrowths called "spurs" may also develop. As these changes occur, bones and soft tissues fold inward into the spinal canal to compress nerves. As the spinal canal narrows, pressure on these nerves causes pain to radiate from the lower back down the buttock to the lower leg. Chiropractic treatment is a first-line defense against this pain.

The conditions, such as spinal stenosis, we address are as varied and as vast as the nervous system itself. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we're currently accepting new patients and welcome you to call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Pain associated with spinal stenosis typically starts slowly and then increases as the space narrows further.

Over 50 Participants From 13 Playgrounds QRD's Citywide Knockout Tournament

The Quincy Recreation Department recently hosted its annual Citywide Knockout Basketball Tournament at the Fenno Street Playground. Over 50 participants from 13 parks throughout the city attended the event, displaying their quick shooting, and speed and basketball skills.

The event was broken into boys and girls with three age groups: Midget, Junior and Senior.

In the Midget Division, the girls' champion was Fallon Hobin from Perkins Playground. In second place was Eileen Durgin from Beechwood Playground. In the boys' format, Matthew Kelly, also of Beechwood, won a tough battle against Harrison Stengel from Fore River Park Playground.

In the Junior Division the final two contestants in the girls' competition were Bridget Durgin of Fenno Street Playground and Nicole Page of Heron Road Playground. After a tightly contested battle, Durgin was able to pick up the win on her home court. On the boys' side, Joshua Rodriguez from Kincaide Park Playground outlasted John Riley of Perkins Park Playground to grab first-place honors.

In the Senior Division there was only a boys' competition, and it was a good one with both Liam Fitzmaurice of Palmer Playground and Aidan Golden of Fenno Street Playground putting on a fantastic shooting display. In the end, Fitzmaurice came out on top.

The Citywide Knockout Basketball Tournament was run by Sports Specialists Meg Therrien, Eddie Grennon and Paul Carson. All participants played well and put in a great effort. Congratulations to everyone that took part this summer.

Openings Exist For Three Recreation Clinics

The Quincy Recreation Department announced on Monday that limited openings remain for three clinics that will be conducted the Week of July 30-Aug. 3. The three clinics include Dance, Golf and Middle School Tennis.

The Dance Clinic will be held at Atlantic Middle School under the direction of Emily Tucker, B.A. in Dance and Theatre, Trinity College. This clinic is geared toward beginner through intermediate dancers. The emphasis will be on routines and techniques; participants will be taught musical comedy, jazz, fundamental ballet, tap and choreography. The clinic is open to boys and girls entering Grades 2-9, and will run from 9 a.m. until 12:30 p.m.

The cost of the program is $45.

The Golf Clinic will be held at Furnace Brook Golf Club and will be directed by John Franceschini, former Director of Physical Education and Health. This activity is not for first-time or beginner golfers. The clinic is geared toward teaching the rules of golf, proper etiquette and fundamentals - this is an opportunity for participants with prior experience to learn to play the game properly. You must have a set of golf clubs, as well as golf balls and proper footwear (soft spikes only). Golf attire is also required. The clinic is open to boys and girls entering Grades 7-9 and will run from 6:30-10:30 a.m. The cost of the program is $82.

Middle School Tennis

#2 is under the direction of Meghan Matthews, girls' varsity coach at Quincy High School. This clinic is for boys and girls entering Grades 6-9 and will be conducted at the QHS Tennis Courts on Russell Park next to the high school. Fundamental drills on ground strokes, volleying, serves, as well as strategies on singles and doubles will be taught. Conditioning and strength training will also be discussed. Participants should have their own rackets. The clinic will be held from 8:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. and the cost is $82.

Registration may be done online at www.QuincyRec.com or in person at the Recreation Department, One Merrymount Parkway. For questions, call 617-376-1394.

BBB's 7 Factors To Check When Renting Storage Units

If you've run out of storage space in the basement, office or attic, a self-storage unit can be a good solution.

The Better Business Bureau (BBB) advises renters to understand a storage facility's policies before renting units.

"Storage units can be useful if you need to stash furniture when you're moving or remodeling," said Paula Fleming, vice president of communications & marketing for the local BBB. "You need to visit the facility first to make sure it's secure and clean. And you need to stay current on your bills or the facility may get rid of your things."

The BBB received more than 1,000 complaints last year about storage units. In many cases, customers said they were unable to access their storage units after paying a deposit, their belongings were damaged while in the units or in a few cases, items were taken from the units without their knowledge.

The BBB has identified seven major factors to consider when renting storage units:

1. Cost. To make sure you're paying a reasonable amount, get written estimates from at least three facilities before renting. In addition to a monthly fee, costs can include storage

A Job Well Done

On Thursday, July 19, at approximately 2 a.m., Patrol Officer Steve O'Donoghue walked into Kincaide Park in West Quincy due to recent drug activity in the park.

The officer observed a person attempting to crouch down, then scamper along the large rocks in an attempt not to be seen fleeing. After updating QPD Communications on his status, Officer O'Donoghue told the person moving in the rocks area to stop or he would release his K-9 unit on him. Although the officer is not equipped with a K-9, the ruse worked as the suspect stopped.

LT. DAN MINTON

The officer approached the suspect and found two more suspects with him. He recognized the three suspects from an incident about 24 hours earlier, when he found them in the same area and they all appeared to be under the influence of narcotics. A few hours after that initial encounter, Officer O'Donoghue came across one of the suspects overdosing at the corner of Roberts and Water Street, which is approximately 25 yards from where he was found unconscious in the grass median in front of the stone wall entrance of Kincaide Park a few nights earlier.

At this time, Officer Dan Church and Sergeant Don Allison arrived on scene and the three suspects were brought to the road area, where suspect #1 was informed that he was in violation of City Ordinance 12.12-.020 (Being in Park/Playground one hour after sunset / one hour before sunrise). As Officer O'Donoghue put handcuffs on suspect #1, the suspect was asked if he had anything on him that might hurt or cut the officer during a search.

The officer located a plastic bag that held some pills, tied into a knot in one pocket and two loose pills also inside another pocket of the suspect. Once at the station, Officer O'Donoghue was able to determine the identity of the pills that suspect #1 possessed. They were Xanax, Suboxone, Gabapentin and Percocet.

Suspect #1, a 25 year-old Quincy resident, was charged with "Violation City ordinance 12.12-.020 Being in Park 1 HR after Sunset, 2 counts of Possession of Class B drug, Possession of Class C and Possession of Class E drug."

In a period of 24 hours, the suspect was involved in three incidents with the Quincy Police and appeared to be deep into his addiction. Each time he was either under the influence of narcotics or had pills in his possession. He overdosed in one of the three incidents and was saved from an overdose by the officer's intervention early on July 18th.

Officer O'Donoghue noted in his report for the Court Prosecutor that suspect #1 is a prime candidate for a recovery program or some type of treatment regime. The other suspects were checked for warrants and sent on their way, with a warning about being in the park after dark.

Nice Work!

Quincy Police Offer Free Basic Boating Course

The Quincy Police Marine Unit, in partnership with the Massachusetts Environmental Police, will present a Basic Boating Safety Course at no cost to the public.

The course is designed for persons of all ages, regardless of boating skill. This federally approved course completion will allow persons to legally operate a boat in states that require completion of a Basic Boating Safety Course.

Everyone who completes the course will be issued a Basic Boating Safety Certificate. Completion of the course by persons between 12 to 16 years of age will allow them to operate a motorboat without adult supervision. In addition, some insurance companies offer policy discounts for customers that complete a Basic Boating Safety Course.

The course will be held from 6 to 10 p.m. on three consecutive Mondays, (Aug. 6, Aug. 13, and Aug. 20th). The class will be taught at the Houghs Neck Maritime Center, located at 137 Bay View Ave. (next to the Quincy Yacht Club on Sea Street).

For more information contact any Marine Unit Officer at 617-479-1212.

Thoughts On Adams' Crypt Transfer

While the unexpected recent announcement by Peter Boylston Adams, a direct descendent of the Presidents Adams, that the Adams Temple and School Fund was considering the transfer of its ownership of the Adams' Crypt in the United Parish Church to the US Park Service makes sense for a variety of reasons, the reason cited in The Quincy Sun is not one of them.

Boylston Adams' concern is based on the fund's loss of control of the one-time Adams Academy building as a result of Probate Court's decision in the matter of The Woodward School for Girls versus the City of Quincy, the now former trustee for the Adams fund.

With all due respect to the Adams family, the reason that the fund lost of control of the Adams Academy was, among other important reasons, because of the building being leased out for 50 years at a very nominal rent — $100 per month over the entire term of the lease years — by the City of Quincy, the fund's then trustee, in spite of the fact the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts had specifically advised the trustee beforehand that any rental of the building must be set at fair market rate.

The City of Quincy was, as trustee, obligated to receive the maximum revenue possible from assets entrusted to it by the Adams family. It failed to do so by instead leasing out the Adams Academy at a woefully below market rate. This, in turn, greatly reduced the available revenue stream from the fund's assets for 40 years to date and for another 10 yet to go on the lease agreement.

In all honesty, it was surprising to many knowledgeable observers that the Probate Court did not impose additionally damages against the City of Quincy to compensate Woodward for its loss of revenue given this below market lease.

Further, not only did this woefully below market rent greatly reduce the potential income from the fund's assets, the Probate Court decision notes that for a number of years the fund as well as the Woodward School had to variously cover the Adams Academy's maintenance expenses and so further reduced the potential return from the fund's assets to its designated beneficiary, the Woodward School.

While Quincy Historical Society Executive Director Ed Fitzgerald is correct when he says that the Historical Society is not taking any money from the trust as the society is paying rent as well as covering both its utility bills and (in more recent years, ed.) the building's maintenance expenses, the society's profoundly lower than fair market lease has long as well as greatly reduced the potential income stream from the assets bequeathed to the fund by various Adams family members.

Returning to the Adams' crypt, the Probate Court very specifically left control of it to the original Adams Temple and School Fund entity. Only the financial assets and the Adams Academy building were turned over to the control of new trustee for the benefit of the Woodward School. In other words, Boylston Adams' key concern is unfounded.

If one wants to better understand wherein lie the real problems, please consider the following. "President John Adams created the Adams Temple and School Fund to benefit the religious and educational interests of the inhabitants of Quincy — the trust was not created to benefit the municipal needs of the City of Quincy. Were he to be with us today, President Adams would, most assured, not be pleased with the events of the past fifty-seven years." Judge Robert Langlois, Norfolk Probate and Family Court.

How Not to Adjust Your Thermostat

Q: My mother-in-law insists on cranking the old manual thermostat all the way to the left on a hot day. She says this will cool the house faster. When it gets too cold inside, she cranks it all the way to the right to turn off the air conditioner. How can I tell her that isn't the most efficient way to cool a house? — Damian L., Springfield, Mass.

A: Well, I'm no expert in how to break the news to someone who's stubbornly insistent on doing things her way. But her method of controlling the air temperature is not only inefficient, it's a quick way to break the thermostat.

In fact, that may already have happened. Your mother-in-law is probably controlling the thermostat this way because she is not getting the comfortable temperature she wants when she sets the thermostat in the typical "comfortable" range of 65 F to 75 F. This may have happened from turning the control gauge too far left or right, or it may simply be an old thermostat in need of replacement.

Instead of insisting that she set the thermostat in one place and leave it alone, talk to her about bringing in a heating and cooling contractor to inspect the entire air conditioning system, including the thermostat. And try to persuade her to have the old thermostat replaced with a more accurate, programmable electronic thermostat. The cost savings that result from regularly maintaining a cooling system and keeping the temperature in a comfortable range can be significant.

And a programmable thermostat can remove one chore from her to-do list: It can lower or raise the interior temperature of the house at set times, without her having to manually set the thermostat.

HOME TIP: During the peak cooling months of summer, change your air conditioner's air filter once a month.

In Aftermath Of Colorado Tragedy, All We Can Do Is Pray

The horrible story out of Aurora, Colorado seems so unthinkable yet most of us, myself included, don't seem that surprised. We have seen so much evil take place and can only wonder why. This latest act of evil taking place at a midnight showing of "The Dark Knight Rises" by what looks like a deranged mind once again shows us how fragile life can be for all of us. The Arizona case looks very much like this one. What is in the mind of these shooters is anyone's guess, but clearly their acts have little to do with political fanaticism.

As someone who has worked in both direct care and support services for the state Mental Health Department for nearly 40 years, I have come to know that the mind is a terrible thing to lose or simply lose control over and while most mentally ill are not violent, this latest case proves once again, what happens when someone perhaps sneaks under too many peoples' radar. This time around, we can question a madman but perhaps get nowhere with it. We shall see. Anyone who paints his hair red like the Joker and shows up at the midnight premier of a Batman movie clearly is living in a fantasy world. Anyone who starts a one-man war of terror with helpless moviegoers as prey has stepped into his own world of horror.

Some liberals have already started up their mantra of strict gun control laws as if guns are the problem. I think Democrat Gov. John Hickenlooper of Colorado had it right when he stated on CNN's "State of the Union," "I am not sure there is any way in a free society to be able (to stop a deranged individual from assembling a deadly arsenal)... if there were no assault weapons available and no this of that, this guy is going to find something... he's going to know how to create a bomb."

A dark night indeed rose that night in that movie theater as someone who lived in the shadows awoke unfortunately at that movie showing in a cloud of smoke and endless violence on a defenseless audience of individuals who had no idea when their end was near.

Some have called this gunman "the personification of evil" and partly he was, but he was also a human being who found himself obviously distanced from the reality around him. We now see ourselves as a nation under siege from those living outside the norm of humanity. I have truly believed and for some time now that there is an underclass of humans out there who loved horrible and shattered lives, alive by never really among us. They can live and die and never do harm or they can close that clock of violence and strike midnight as this latest killer actually did in real time.

I am of the belief that evil resides inside all of us but the better angels guarding us keep us from harm. Some people believe evil is a living force. Other believe it is abstract. However, we all know evil when we see it or its effect on others. How bad does someone have to be to walk into a movie crowd and start shooting and killing 12 and wounding another 71 innocent human lives? How helpless do we become in knowing that there is more James Holmes out there still five minutes short of their own violent meltdown?

In the end all we can do is pray to St. Michael the Archangel to deliver us from evil. Pray a lot.

preparation, padding, packing or transportation. There can be extra options, such as electricity, pest control or insurance. Make sure you understand due dates and any minimum time to rent or contract renewal dates.

2. Size. What units are available? Is there a maximum weight limit for unit contents? Can you stack stored materials to the unit's ceiling?

3. Climate. Consider the general climate and whether your belongings could be damaged by water or mold. You may want to consider a climate-controlled unit.

4. Insurance. Make sure your things are insured for theft, fire or other damage.

You may be able to buy insurance from the storage facility or another source. Some homeowners' policies may cover self-storage. Check with your agent on what is covered.

5. Safety. How is the unit secured? Does the door have a lock built in or do you need a heavy-duty padlock? Are there surveillance cameras on the property? Does the facility restrict access to renters or do strangers have access to the property? Is there an emergency phone number you can reach when the facility office is closed?

6. Contract. Get everything in writing. Read and understand the contract and payment terms. Make sure the facility can get in touch with you in case there is a problem with your unit or payment.

7. Access. What are the hours and any charges for accessing your unit? Is there adequate parking? How close can you park to the unit? Does the facility offer dollies or handtrucks to help you move your stuff in and out of the unit? Will your belongings fit through the doorway and inside the unit?

Renters need to pay their bills on time. If you have fees charged to a credit card, check the statement regularly. If your unit is labeled abandoned for nonpayment, your belongings could be put up for auction.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A turn in a relationship upsets the amorous Arian, who is puzzled by Cupid's romantic antics. Be patient and considerate. The confusion soon will sort itself out.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time for travel-loving Taureans to take off for fun-filled jaunts to new places. And don't be surprised if Cupid tags along for what could be a very eventful trip.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You appear to be of two minds about continuing a relationship that seems to be riding roughshod over your emotions. A frank talk could help you decide one way or the other.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Stepping back from a relationship problem provides a new perspective on how to deal with it. Meanwhile, watch your words. Something said in anger now could backfire later.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A changing situation makes the Big Cat uneasy. But hold on until things settle down around the 4th. Meanwhile, continue your good work on that still-unfinished project.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A decided improvement in a workplace situation results in an unexpected, but very welcome, added benefit for everyone. Personal relationships also improve.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Money matters remain a bit unsettled but soon will ease into the kind of stability you appreciate. Meanwhile, an expanding social life offers a chance to make new friends.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Use an unexpected roadblock in your monetary dealings to reassess your financial plans and make changes, if necessary. It soon will be smooth sailing again.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Aspects of love are strong for both single and paired Sagittarians. Professional dealings also thrive under the Sag's clever handling of difficult situations.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Set a realistic goal and follow it through to completion. Remember: You're more likely to impress the right people with one well-done job than with lots of jobs left undone.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You like to plan ahead. That's fine. But be prepared to make some changes because of an unsettled period that influences your aspects through the 4th.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A brief phase of instability affects your usual work cycle. Use the time to catch up on chores around the house or office. Things settle down soon after the 4th.

BORN THIS WEEK: You love being the center of attention and probably would be a big success in show business.

Blessing Of Pets And Animals Liturgy Aug. 5

Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 308 West Squantum St., North Quincy, will hold a Blessing of Pets and Animals Liturgy for the community Sunday, Aug. 5 beginning at 9:30 a.m. in the parking lot of the church.

The liturgy will be outside (weather permitting) and all pet owners and their pets are welcome to participate. In the case of rain, the liturgy will move into the Fellowship Hall.

Many Christian congregations offer blessing of pets and animals liturgies in the fall in honor of St. Francis of Assisi's love for animals and his feast day on Oct. 4.

"We prefer to do it in the summer so that we can be outside in creation with our pets," said Pastor Nathan Pipho.

All pet owners will receive a certificate recognizing that their pet was blessed at the liturgy. A time for refreshments and fellowship will follow.

For more information, contact the church office at 617-328-8348 or visit www.GoodShepherdQuincy.org.

The cost is $25 per child or $50 per family.

Charles Dillingham, formerly of the Braintree Public Schools Music Department, will direct the chorus.

A Tiny Treasures workshop, directed by Jan Burton, will be held the week of Aug. 6-10 from 9 to 11:30 a.m. This year's theme is "July 4th Cookout on the Deck."

Boys and girls ages 9-13 may register.

Cost is $25 per child.

The group is limited so register early.

For more information and registration, call the church office at 617-472-0824.

term of Paul Picarski who resigned. As a trustee, he also served as treasurer and as chairman of the board.

During his years on the library board, Mr. Falvey became good friends with Sandra McCauley, wife of former Mayor Frank McCauley.

"I first really met and knew Larry on the library board. We worked together really well and got to be really good friends. He was very interested in the library and had a good outlook on things," said Sandra. "He became an extended member of my family. If he was your friend he was really your friend and he just cared so much about people. He was an unusual friend because he made you feel like you were a special person."

Mr. Falvey was a lifelong Democrat but a person's qualities - not party affiliation - mattered most to him.

"If he politically liked a person he would get involved," said Tobin. "It sometimes didn't matter what party a person was in. If he liked you, he would put a bumper sticker on his car supporting you."

Tobin said he met Falvey along the political trail and then ended up working with him for over 30 years.

"I met him along the political trail when he was volunteering to help different candidates throughout the city," said Tobin. "He liked to be a part of the political scene. He was very up to date on issues of the day. He knew different candidates running for the federal, state, and local governments."

Mayor Tom Koch said Mr. Falvey cared very much about his community and was a great friend to countless people over the years. "Even as he fought this terrible illness, he never gave up on his Library Board duties and we talked frequently about his ideas and thoughts on the library, the future of Quincy, and the latest news around town."

"Larry was always active, even during the most difficult periods of his life. He will be missed by so many in our city, and our thoughts and prayers are with his family."

Falvey is survived by his sister, Linda Falvey and her husband Robert Thornley of Weymouth along with his nephew Justin Falvey. He also left behind his mother Gladys Falvey, of Quincy, whom many said he would do anything for.

"He was very kind and generous to his mom," said Tobin. "He would take her to different places. He had a kind heart to the things that mattered most to him."

Library Director Harry Williams recalled how important it was to Falvey to take care of his mom and how much he liked to help people.

"I knew he cared for his elderly mother, and I knew that it was very important to him to do so," said Williams. "He liked to help people, and he was liked by a lot of officials in this city, and people who worked with him really liked him."

Of all the relationships and friendships Mr. Falvey made in his short life, it was his relationship with his goddaughter Courtney Harnais that was most important to him.

"The love of his life, and the light of his life was my daughter, his goddaughter, Courtney," said Harnais. "He has been incredible to my family. He was a great man."

Courtney said that although she may have been the light of Mr. Falvey's life, he was the light of hers.

"He was the light of my life. People say he was lucky to have us but I want everyone to know we were the lucky ones," said Courtney. "The title of godfather doesn't do him justice. He meant so much more to me than just that. It doesn't explain how much he really meant to me. There wouldn't be a day that would go by that we wouldn't talk on the phone. He was such a caring person and he found so much happiness in helping other people."

Garden Club Celebrates Anne Hutchinson's Birthday

For the past three years, each July, in celebration of Anne Hutchinson's birthday month, a different floral arranger from the Wollaston Garden Club has created a hanging wreath design for the memorial sign at Anne Hutchinson Square at the corner of Newport Avenue, Beale Street, and Grandview Avenue in Wollaston.

This year's design is a grapevine wreath, created in a simple colonial style, by club member Rebecca Dinsmore, who is also a Master Gardener and volunteer gardener at the Dorothy Quincy Homestead.

For her design, Dinsmore used primarily native plants and flowers (artemisia, lady's bedstraw, gray santolina, white helenium (daisy), and asclepias (butterflyweed)).

Dinsmore said creating this wreath was "a real challenge because of the environmental conditions inherent in designing for both July heat and a windy site, and incorporating the wreath's design elements of light, scale, and proportion with the rest of the hillside garden."

Members of the Wollaston Garden Club have been intrigued by the story of Anne Hutchinson and her family's farm in the Wollaston Hill area of Quincy in the 1600's. This year would have been the 421st birthday of Hutchinson. In 2006 the garden club created, and still maintains this garden dedicated to Hutchinson on the hillside, with the Roxbury puddingstone marker that commemorates "the place where she tarried..." in her exile from Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1638.

Club members are inspired by this strong, determined colonial woman, who as a midwife gardener had an extensive herb and kitchen garden. Anne Hutchinson will continue to be remembered each July by the Wollaston Garden Club.

Survivor To Read Names Of Lost Shipmates

City To Mark 70th Anniversary Of USS Quincy Sinking Aug. 9

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
Twenty-two minutes.

That's the time it took for the 9,375-ton heavy cruiser USS Quincy to sink after it was hit by Japanese torpedoes at the Battle of Savo Island in the South Pacific in the early morning hours of Aug. 9, 1942.

Some 370 men went down with ship in an area off the Solomon Islands that later became known as Ironbottom Sound because of the dozens of ships and planes lost there during World War II.

About 167 crew members survived the sinking, including Daniel Galvin of Hanover.

Galvin, who is 91, will be a special guest as the city commemo-

'Three-Strikes' Law Advocated By Quincy's Les Gosule Receives Governor's Backing

In July of 1999, Gosule's 27-

New Brook Tunnel Under Hancock Street

The complex engineering work that will ultimately create a restored Town Brook culvert through Quincy Center is now approaching a key milestone – tunneling underneath Hancock Street to create the new Brook pipeline.

The new culvert will replace the aging and crumbling existing pipe that currently takes the Brook through downtown almost entirely underground with one that includes more than 200 feet of open channel. Contractor LM Heavy Civil Construction has been working for several weeks excavating "receiving" and "jacking" pits on either side of Hancock Street to prepare the tunneling project.

That work is slated to begin this week and last about a month.

Commercial Fisheries Operation Proposed Near Tide Mill

$5M Development On Vacant Land Seen Creating 100 Jobs

By SCOTT JACKSON

A $5 million development backed by two Quincy businessmen would convert vacant land near the historic Souther Tide Mill into a commercial fisheries operation with the look and feel of an 18th century fishing village.

Tide Mill Partners LLC submitted a request in June to the City Council to lease land at 610 Southern Artery that would be converted into a wharf focused on processing fish and lobster and selling them through wholesale and retail markets. The two men behind the company are Fox & Hound owner Stephen Curran and Commonwealth Siteworks owner John Urbanus.

Former City Councillor Mike Cheney is acting as a project manager for the proposal. Cheney told The Sun that the plan for the fishery has been in the works for two years, but fishermen and lobstermen have wanted a fishery in Quincy for years. Currently, local fishermen have to travel to Boston to unload their catch.

Application Back Before License Board Aug. 28

Church To Oppose Tilted Kilt License

By SCOTT JACKSON

Rev. Richard Cannon, the pastor at Saint John the Baptist Church, said he and his parish will oppose a proposal to bring the Tilted Kilt restaurant to Quincy Center when the License Board rehears the proposal later this month.

The License Board approved the Tilted Kilt's application for a liquor license last month, but the issue needs to be brought back before the board because the church wasn't properly notified as an abutter. Cannon said that members of the church would have a strong showing when the board hears the matter again Aug. 28.

"As a parish, we're going to oppose the Tilted Kilt going into the (former) Outback Restaurant," Cannon told The Sun Tuesday at press time.

The Tilted Kilt is a Las Vegas-based chain, and its waitresses are known for wearing kilts and bikini-like tops. Cannon said the restaurant – which License Board member Drew Scheele previously compared to a Scottish Hooters – is inappropriate for the neighborhood.

"I heard the restaurant described as a Hooters with a Scottish theme," Cannon said. "I checked out the website and that description seemed appropriate."

The site the Tilted Kilt has been proposed for was once home of an Outback Steakhouse, a restaurant that had a liquor license. Cannon said his parish had a good relationship with the Outback. The steakhouse would often serve food at parish events.

"We're not opposed to restaurants. We're not opposed to restaurants that serve alcohol," Cannon said. "A good restaurant in the neighborhood is a win-win for everybody."

City: Flood Claims Should Be Resolved Within Weeks

By SCOTT JACKSON

Claims filed against the city in the wake of June flooding in Merrymount should be resolved within a matter of weeks, according to City Solicitor Jim Timmins.

Timmins said 27 residents filed claims against the city over the floods that occurred when Blacks Creek overflowed into the streets of Merrymount shortly after 11 p.m. on June 3. The solicitor said resolving the claims quickly is part of a promise Mayor Tom Koch made to residents in a public meeting held the week after the flood.

"I'm hopeful they will all be done within a couple weeks," Timmins said. "It's part of a commitment the mayor made to the neighborhood."

As of last Friday, 14 claims had been resolved. The claims are being paid out of the city's settlement fund, which was set at $200,000 for this fiscal year that started July 1. Timmins wouldn't say how much the already finalized claims were for, saying he'd prefer to wait until all claims were resolved.

The city has also sent out offers to some of the other residents whose claims hadn't been finalized. But other residents didn't receive offers, and Timmins said city officials – Assistant Solicitors Janet Petkun and Deirdre Hall, Inspectional Services Director Jay Duca, and DPW Energy, Waste and Recycling Manager John Sullivan – would meet with them to work out a potential agreement.

"We're scheduling appointments with those who didn't get offers, negotiating with those folks," Timmins said.

The city isn't paying the replacement cost of items, but is paying their value on the day of the flood. Residents won't receive money from the city for any item insurance covers; the city will only pay if the insurance company won't or will pay the deductible on insurance.

"If there were no insurance, we're paying," Timmins said. "If there's insurance with a deductible, we're paying the deductible."

Residents have been asked to provide information on what was damaged with verification of each item's cost. The solicitor said that residents have been cooperating in the process.

"They've been extremely cooperative, very helpful with getting information together," Timmins said. "The dealings have been amicable."

In addition to the 27 residents who've filed claims, Timmins said two others have conducted his office and said they're still compiling lists of items because they suffered extensive damage to their property.

School Expected To Open Next September First Concrete Poured At New Central

The first concrete for a new Central Middle School is being poured this week, Mayor Thomas Koch said, as a project three decades in the making is now moving forward at full speed.

"The project team is pressing ahead and the site is humming - it will not be long before we see this first-class new school for our children start to take shape," said Mayor Thomas

Koch. "The new Central is a great example of the kind of investment that is both affordable and absolutely vital to the future of our community."

General Contractor H.V. Collins is moving forward on the early stages of the project, with earth-moving activities being followed in line by concrete foundation work, and in the near future, structural steel. The school site on Hancock Street is divided into sectors, allowing for work to proceed efficiently. For example, concrete is being poured in one area of the site, while excavation and soil preparation is being completed in another.

The school is scheduled to open in September of next year.

Coyote Pups A Rare Sight Outside Grumpy White's

By SCOTT JACKSON

Bob White thought he'd seen it all in 32 years running Grumpy White's restaurant, until a pack of coyote pups started visiting his parking lot a little more than a week ago.

White said it wasn't uncommon for him to see adult coyotes pop up on security camera footage shot in the wee hours of the morning. But coyote pups have visited the parking lot of the 211 Sea St. restaurant around 1:30 p.m. each day for over a week.

"We have a surveillance system and we'd see the adults around two or three in the morning, but this is the first time in 32 years I've seen babies," White said.

White suspects that the pups' mother abandoned them. At first, White heard that four coyotes were spotted. When White first saw the pack for himself, there were three. On Sunday, he only saw one coyote and was also informed that Animal Control had found a dead one on Sea Street over the weekend.

The restaurateur said he doesn't think the coyotes pose a threat to customers and he hasn't heard of any issues they've caused. Instead, they just sit at the back of the parking lot looking like domesticated dogs eager for attention.

"They look like a puppy," White said, "just sitting there."

Business at the restaurant isn't suffering because of the canine visitors. In fact, White said he's noticed people pulling into his lot to look at the young coyotes. He doesn't know, however, if they stop off at his restaurant for lunch after seeing the pups.

"Business has been quite normal," White said. "Some people are pulling into the lot and looking over the bank (in the back). So curiosity does bring some people in but I don't know if they're eating here."

Despite that, White has tried to keep the coyotes at bay. He purchased mountain lion urine at Curry

Hardware, because he remembered signs advertising urine as he passed the store. When he visited, he was told that coyotes fear mountain lions and their urine could help keep the pups away. It was placed in containers that hang from the trees that line Grumpy's lot. The amount used is too little for people to notice.

Animal experts offer these safety tips if you encounter a coyote:

- Never try to pet or touch it.
- Never move towards it, or corner it where it can't run away.
- Do not feed coyotes. Doing so can make them less afraid of humans and potentially more dangerous.

- Protect your pets. Coyotes will attack and kill cats, dogs, and livestock.
- Do not allow pets to roam, especially at night.
- Keep pets on a leash when walking them.
- Keep pets inside at night if at all possible.

- Do not leave food or water outside for your pets.
- Garbage should not be kept outside, and should be palced in secured tightly sealed containers. Cans should be cleaned, regularly with a chlorine bleach and water solution.

Son Beams

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Survivor, City Remember USS Quincy

Daniel Galvin was a sailor serving aboard the USS Quincy when she was sunk in the Battle of Savo Island on Aug. 9, 1942.

And for every year since – on the anniversary of that battle – he's read the list of his fallen shipmates – 370 in all – who perished.

The reading has mostly been done in private. Not even his own son has heard him read the roll of the Quincy's war dead.

"He's never read the list in public. I've never seen him do it. On Aug. 9, he posts colors at the flag pole at his house and reads the list to himself," says his son, also named Dan Galvin.

But this year will be different.

The 91-year-old Dan Galvin – who joined the Navy when he was 19 – will read all those names in public at a ceremony commemorating the 70th anniversary of the Quincy's sinking Thursday, Aug. 9 at 11 a.m. at the Department of Public Works yard.

The ceremony will be poignant and patriotic.

"It will be emotional for him to read that list of the 370 sailors who went down with the ship," says son Dan. "He wants to do a public reading this year because he was contacted by the City of Quincy. There is a memorial to the CA-39 at the DPW yard and the workers said we should do something this year for the 70th anniversary."

"He told them he would love to do (the reading) at the ceremony."

The public is welcome to attend the event sponsored by the Quincy DPW in collaboration with the Quincy Veterans Council and the U.S. Naval Reserve Center in Quincy.

The event will include colors posted by the U.S. Navy Color Guard, the Pledge of Allegiance and the singing of the Star Spangled Banner. There will also be a wreath-laying and taps. A bell will be struck while Galvin reads the names of Quincy's war dead.

There will also be remarks from Mayor Tom Koch and some presentations as well.

"It will be an impressive, heart-warming and probably heart-wrenching event," says the ceremony's coordinator, DPW Commissioner Daniel Raymondi. "The ceremony will remember the Quincy's lost sailors. The Quincy was built at the Fore River shipyard and it's an honor for us to do this as a city working in partnership with the Navy and the Quincy Veterans Council."

The heavy-cruiser Quincy (CA-39) was launched at the Fore River Shipyard June 19, 1935. It was on peacetime convoy duty between Capetown, South Africa, and the Caribbean Island of Trinidad, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor and virtually destroyed America's Pacific fleet.

She was dispatched to the South Pacific in June of 1942. The next month, she joined forces preparing for the invasion of the southern Solomon Islands. Two days before she was sunk on Aug. 7, 1942, Quincy bombarded Japanese installations on Guadalcanal to offer protection to the Marines who landed there in the first American offensive of World War II.

Then, just two days later, in the early morning darkness of Aug. 9, 1942, Quincy was on patrol in the South Pacific in the channel off Guadalcanal when she was attacked by Japanese cruisers.

Galvin, a gunnery officer's talker on the USS Quincy at the time, has this recollection of that terrible episode in American history.

"When the night fighting Navy of Japan attacked our ship and sent two torpedoes in our hull, one forward and one aft, fire enveloped the ship from bow to stern. At my Battle Station, a shower of sparks waist high came streaming through the bulkhead. When I witnessed this, I was overwhelmed with confusion, and thought only – 'this is the day I die'!

"I was brought back to reality with the Gunnery Officer ordered 'Abandon Ship.' The crew at this area found the ladders in the darkness and we all fell in line and followed each other to the lower deck where we went over the side as the ship rolled from a 45-degree list to a full 90-degree roll over and down by the bow."

"From my view neck deep in the ocean, I saw the ship's flag give me a wave as it dipped under the water and the propellers were still rotating."

Twenty-two minutes after she was struck by a torpedo, the 9,375-ton Quincy rolled over and sank bow first at 2:38 a.m. She was the first ship sunk in the area that was later known as Ironbottom Sound.

The final message from the stricken ship was one of defiance:

"We're going down between them – give 'em hell."

Before sinking, Quincy managed to fire a few gun salvos, one of which killed or wounded 36 men on the Japanese cruiser Chōkai.

The defeat at Savo Island is one of the worst ever inflicted on the U.S. Navy. Besides Quincy, three other ships were sunk: USS Astoria, the USS Vincennes and the Australian heavy cruiser HMAS Canberra. The Vincennes, also built in Quincy, lost 332 crewmen.

In all, the Battle of Savo killed 1,270 men and injured 708. The battle lasted about 32 minutes.

Galvin was one of 167 men who survived the Quincy's sinking. He was more than lucky to have survived, his son says.

Some time before the attack, Galvin had been assigned to fire control in the bowels of the ship. The area was called PLOT and the compartment was enclosed on six sides with about three inches of armor plate, air tight and the internal air was circulated through a carbon filter.

But one day, Galvin asked one of the ship's lieutenant's if he could be reassigned somewhere topside. He was surprised to learn that he had been transferred to Control Forward as the Gunnery Officer's Talker.

"This assignment was to wear a telephone headset and transfer orders from the Captain to the Gunnery Officer. Control Forward was located above the Bridge, lightly armored to protect the rotating optical system," he recalls.

As it turned out, neither the men in PLOT nor on the bridge – including the Captain – survived the attack.

After the Quincy sank, the ocean was on fire from all the fuel she had leaked. Galvin, wearing a life jacket, bobbed in the South Pacific for hours. He heard one of his buddy's call his name in the darkness but they never found each other.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1906 postcard view of the old Quincy Grammar School that was located pretty close to the East Squantum Street end of today's North Quincy High School. It was one of 10 grammar schools in Quincy at the time. Built in 1873, it had replaced an earlier school in this district on Atlantic Street. At the time of this picture, the school with only eight rooms had more than 35 students per class. It was built of wood with no insulation and used a primitive steam heating system in winter. In warmer months, they opened the windows for ventilation shown here. A school bell that could be heard throughout the neighborhood hung in the belfry. In 1909, a much larger fireproof brick building was built on Newbury Avenue to replace this one. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Crackdown On Quarry Parties

Police Chief William Ferrazzi announced that 10 members of the Auxiliary Police would be assigned to weekend duty in the vicinity of Faulkner and Cashman's quarries for the rest of the summer.

The area in West Quincy has been the scene of noisy parties, nude swimming and brush fires in recent weeks.

The fire menace was such that Fire Chief Thomas F. Gorman, Jr., urged residents to form a "vigilante committee" to help apprehend those who start fires that threaten the 50 homes in the neighborhood.

CARNIVAL PLANNED

Swimmers at Heron Beach, Adams Shore, were making costumes in preparation for the water ballet and comedy skit at their water carnival, to be directed by Miss Ellen Flaherty.

Performers in the comedy skit included Gail McDonald, Thomas Connelly, William Trainor, Jean Delmonico, Patricia O'Neil, Carol Verlicco, Nancy Roberts and Annette Loud.

CARNEY CHALLENGED

Willis A. Neal of Canton, formerly of Quincy, demanded that the State Ballot Law Commission rule George P. Carney of Quincy off the ballot for clerk of courts.

Neal claimed that Carney's nomination papers referred to the office as "Clerk, Norfolk County Superior Court," when he should have said "Clerk of Courts, Norfolk County."

'Colors Of Summer' Painting Exhibit At Library

Quincy artist Zuzana Sidorova is presenting an exhibit of colorful abstract pieces, The Colors of Summer, during the month of August in the Coletti Reading Room of the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The public is invited to an opening reception tonight (Thursday) from 5 to 7 p.m.

Sidorova's paintings capture the short life of beautiful summer flowers, birds and dragonflies, using radiant colors to evoke a feeling of an ever-present warm life. Her objects are set against a gold, silver and hot colors background, with contrasting colors, inspired primarily by Byzantine icons.

Other artistic inspirations include nature, her national origins, and Andy Warhol. "I simply grew up with his work, when as a little pupil I visited his Museum of Modern Art (Medzilaborce, Slovakia) every summer. His mother emigrated from east part of Slovakia in 1919 and with her son always spoke in her native language. Their real life story has always interested me and his work inspired me in many ways."

Originally from Slovakia, Sidorova studied Art and History at Presov University. She obtained a Master's degree in 2006 and recently moved to the United States. Her training included workshops in Slovakia, Hungary, the Czech Republic and Austria.

She has participated in solo and group exhibitions in Slovakia and the U.S. Working with acrylic, oil and ink on canvas and paper, Sidorova borrows from pop art, surrealism, abstract art and history, as well as from her own life.

'Kites In The Park' Fest At Pageant Field Aug. 12

The Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission

Gas Prices Down One Cent

Gasoline prices in Massachusetts are down one cent this week, according to AAA Southern New England.

AAA's July 30th survey of prices in Massachusetts found self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $3.559 per gallon, one cent less than a week ago. Prices locally are up 19 cents over the past month. The current price is seven cents above the national average for self serve unleaded of $3.48. A year ago at this time the Massachusetts average price was $3.75.

The range in prices in the latest AAA survey for unleaded regular is 35 cents, from a low of $3.44 to a high of $3.79. AAA advises motorists to shop around for the best prices in their area, and to make sure they and their passengers buckle up — every time.

AAA Fuel Saving Tip of the Week

Take only what you need to maintain as light a load as possible. Keep luggage inside the vehicle, rather than strapped on the roof, where it will create wind resistance.

will present the fourth annual "Kites in the Park" Fest Sunday, Aug. 12 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Pageant Field, Quincy.

Free kites will be distributed to the first 75 children. Make your own kite with the experts.

There will be kite flying demonstrations, a dj with games and prizes, and food vendors.

Participants are also invited to bring their own kites. Kites will also be on sale.

For more information, call Event Coordinator Dick Herbert at 617-842-2860.

The kite fest is sponsored by Mayor Thomas Koch and the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission, Leo Kelly chairman.

FAMILIES BEGIN to fill the Beechwood Knoll School gymnasium for a showing of Mr. Popper's Penguins using newly installed stage curtain and movie screen. The event was sponsored by the BKS PTO.

Beechwood Knoll School Receives Curtain, Screen From St. Ann Parish

The students at Beechwood Knoll School were recently treated to a special year-end movie night utilizing a refurbished stage curtain and movie screen.

The equipment is from the old St. Ann School and was donated to BKS by St. Ann Parish through the Ward 5 Community Association. The project came to a close with an evening showing of Mr. Popper's Penguins for the students.

WSCA President Neil McCole coordinated the project which has been in the works for several years.

"WSCA has wanted to do something special for BKS and we had been looking to acquire a stage curtain for a couple of years. The 10-foot movie screen was a bonus," McCole said.

McCole has worked with Jim Nichols, a member of the St. Ann Council and Ward 5 resident, to be sure the equipment met BKS' needs and to secure the actual transfer of the equipment.

"We were looking all over the country for a used curtain, and we found one a half mile away thanks to Jim Nichols," McCole said.

The project went through several phases with removal, transfer, refurbishment, and installation of the equipment, McCole noted. The curtain needed to be cleaned and treated for fire prevention, as well as, altered to fit the BKS stage.

"Luckily, the stage at St. Ann School was bigger, so we could use the curtain and the QPS electricians did a great job with the screen."

The project was completely funded with private donations from WSCA, The Friends of Wollaston Beach, and the BKS PTO totaling over $2,000.

"Without those funds, the project doesn't happen, but there were many other hands involved along the way that made it all possible," McCole said.

Groups helping to bring the project to fruition included St. Ann Parish, The City of Quincy, Mayor Koch's Office, Quincy Public Schools, Principal Diane O'Keefe, and Quincy-based Major Theatre Group.

"It's the first time that BKS has had a curtain and movie screen since it reopened in the mid 1990's. To be able to pull that off with no budgetary impacts to the city and by using locally recycled equipment is a great win for the community," McCole said.

"The students at BKS will be able to enjoy the equipment in various ways for years to come with a very special thanks to St. Ann Parish," he added.

Six Of Her Songs Recorded By HillTop Records

Songwriter Alice Baskin On A Musical Journey

By SCOTT JACKSON

Though Quincy resident Alice Baskin works in the world of finance, she's had a love for music since she was a child.

"Being the youngest of six children, I loved to listen to rock and roll music played by my older siblings," Baskin said. "On Sundays my parents would play gospel music on the Hi-Fi and I would always sit on the floor up close so that I could hear the lyrics to the music better as I savored its melody."

"My parents had me take piano lessons," Baskin continued. "My piano lessons helped me to appreciate all types of music including classical music. I was inspired to become a musician and a songwriter as a result."

Baskin, who works at Boston Financial Data Services, recently had six songs she wrote recorded by HillTop Records. She describes her songs as ranging from country and folk. The songs touch on everyday life, like her song "Life's Journey," a folk song that talks about the changing of the seasons. Some are more political in nature, like her country song "We the People."

Baskin said songwriting comes easy to her. She does it in her free time and submits to the Library of Congress so they can be copyrighted. She said HillTop contacted her about recording the songs she submitted to the library, and agreed to do it to promote her music.

"I've written a great number of songs over the years and have been and still am affiliated with several music organizations, including QUINCY'S ALICE BASKIN has loved music since she was a child. She says songwriting comes easy to her.

HillTop Records, with the hopes of promoting my music," Baskin said.

Baskin likes almost all musical genres, ranging from R&B to country. She cites music legends like Ray Charles, Aretha Franklin, Stevie Wonder, Paul Simon, Art Garfunkel, John Lennon, Michael Jackson, Joan Baez, and Carol King as some of her favorites.

Baskin's music is available on three different albums available on HillTop Record's website.

'Footloose' Showing Tonight At Library

The 2011 remake of "Footloose" will be shown tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

In the film, big city teen Ren McCormack moves from Boston to the small Southern town of Bomont and discovers that the hard-line minister has outlawed loud music and dancing. But everything changes when Ren challenges the ban, revitalizing the town and falling in love with the minister's daughter, Ariel.

Directed by Craig Brewer, 113-minute film stars Kenny Wormald, Julianne Hough and Dennis Quaid. It is rated PG-13 for some teen drug and alcohol use, sexual content, violence and language.

Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

At Third Annual Dancing With Angels Fundraiser Visiting Angels Of South Shore Raises $17,000 For South Shore, Old Colony Elder Services

Visiting Angels of the South Shore recently held their third annual "Dancing with the Angels" fundraising event and raised $17,000 for South Shore Elder Services and Old Colony Elder Services and their Special Needs Funds.

The Special Needs Funds help elders in 34 communities with everyday necessities of life, such as food, fuel, medicine and shelter. More than 225 guests danced to live music by the White Heat Swing Quintet at the River Club in Scituate.

Nate Murray, president of Visiting Angels, said, "We are very grateful to the sponsors, the dance teams and all the participants and guests who made this year's event such a success. By raising money for the Special Needs Fund we not only raised awareness of the plight of elders who have difficulty meeting basic needs but we continued the tradition of coming together as a community of eldercare professionals and business people who care enough to give of their time, energy and money."

As part of the evening's entertainment, amateur dancers from Old Colony Elder Services, South Shore Elder Services, South Shore Rehabilitation & Skilled Care Center, South Shore VNA & Hospice, Visiting Angels and Wingate of Silver Lake participated in a 1920's themed dance competition. Judges for the event were Lynda Chuckran, Director of Community Relations for Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group, Adam Hayes, Broker and Owner of Milestones Realty, and Mary Mazzulli, Executive Director of the Boston-based Rainbow Dance Company. The winning dance team was decided by the judges' votes and the guests, who voted for their favorite dance team with cash donations. The grand prize winners of the dance competition were The Golden Girls from South Shore Elder Services; South Shore VNA & Hospice won second place.

THE "BEE'S KNEES" from South Shore Rehabilitation & Skilled Care Center, Jeff Poirier of Quincy Memorials and a Quincy resident, and Kristen Lyons, passing the hat for cash "votes"

A total of 37 sponsors supported the event. Major sponsors were Center Stage Dance Academy, Entergy-Pilgrim Station, Francis M. Barrett Memorial Foundation and Senior Whole Health.

South Shore Elder Services is located at 159 Bay State Drive in Braintree, MA. The agency serves elders and families in the towns of Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Holbrook, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Randolph, Scituate, and Weymouth.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Shrimp, Spinach, Goat Cheese Pizza

I was making a pizza recently and even though I prefer it with a tomato sauce, I made this one without it.

It's made with spinach, shrimp and goat cheese plus a few other ingredients and the family enjoyed it. I bought the pizza crust already made.

PIZZA WITH SHRIMP AND SPINACH

- 1 pizza crust
- 1 cup spinach, cooked and drained

- ¼ cup black olives (cut in small pieces)
- 6 cooked shrimp (cut in pieces)
- ½ cup goat cheese
- olive oil for topping
- oregano

Place some olive oil on the crust. Add the spinach and the olives. Spread the shrimp pieces all around the pizza. Then place the goat cheese and sprinkle with oregano (optional).

Bake in a 425-degree oven until crust is brown (about 25 minutes).

Strawberry-Rhubarb Pie

I had never made a strawberry-rhubarb pie because my daughter Rita always brings it at most family functions.

But recently, I spent some time at her house and watched her as she prepared it. It's pretty easy especially if the pie crust is already made. The strawberries and rhubarb are very plentiful in all markets.

She made her crust from scratch, so whatever you prefer if you wish to bake this delicious treat.

STRAWBERRY-RHUBARB PIE

- 3 cups sliced strawberries
- 1-2 cups rhubarb (cut in one inch pieces)

- ¾ cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 3 tablespoons Minute Tapioca
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon grated orange rind
- ¼ teaspoon vanilla or a dash of cinnamon

Prepare the pie crust. In a bowl add all the ingredients and blend well. Pour into the pie crust -and it's best to lattice the top, but a traditional top or a crumb topping can also be used.

Place the pie on a cookie sheet and bake in a 375-degree oven for about an hour or until crust is golden.

City's Legislative Delegation Supports Crime Bill

served only about two years for those convictions.

Gosule has spent the last 13 years fighting for 'Melissa's Bill,' which would make life sentences without parole mandatory for any person convicted of a committing a violent felony for the third time. Those who receive multiple life sentences would also be barred from seeking parole. Gosule, an accountant, said the government has a responsibility to stop victims, as well as their families, from enduring what his daughter was put through.

"My daughter lived through her own private holocaust. I live through it every night thinking about her," Gosule said. "The government has a responsibility to stop that crime. No other family should have to live through a holocaust."

The bill won the support of both houses of the legislature earlier this year, and a final version was submitted to Gov. Deval Patrick for his signature in July. But on Sunday, the governor sent it back with an amendment granting judges discretion in allowing parole hearings to take place.

Gosule said he wasn't in favor of the amendment because there were already enough safety valves in the measure, and met with Patrick Monday to discuss the bill. He said his talks with the governor were very respectful, and that he understands the governor's concerns. But Gosule added that the bill has already been thoroughly vetted and amended throughout the 13 years it took before the Legislature would pass it.

Late Monday afternoon, both houses of the Legislature rejected the governor's amendment. The House voted 132-23 to undo Patrick's change, and the Senate approved it in a voice vote.

The entirety of Quincy's delegation - Sen. John Keenan and Reps. Bruce Ayers, Tackey Chan, and Majority Leader Ron Mariano all voted against the governor's amendment. Ayers said he and many others in the House voted against the amendment because it would undermine the bill's stated goal:

"Fellow colleagues and I voted 132-23 to reject the governor's amendment to allow for judicial discretion to grant parole after someone has served 25 years of a life sentence," Ayers said. "Many members felt that this amendment defeated the purpose for the original intent of the bill."

Chan echoed his colleague's sentiments.

"The purpose is to keep violent offenders who commit multiple felonies in jail by assuring they get the maximum sentence," Chan said. "Oftentimes the last felony they commit is the worst."

The governor could've killed the bill by vetoing it after the Legislature's formal session ended Tuesday. But Patrick announced that he would sign it as written as the Sun went to press. He said he would sign it because sentence reforms for some non-violent drug offenders were included in the bill by the Legislature.

"I asked for a balanced bill and, after many twists and turns, the Legislature has given me one," Patrick said. "Because of the balance between strict sentences for the worst offenders and more common sense approaches for those who pose little threat to public safety, I have said that this is a good bill. I will sign this bill."

"The bill contains important parole reforms for those convicted of the worst crimes; but just as important are the parts of this bill that reform the sentencing laws for non-violent drug offenders. Those changes start to move us away from the expensive and ineffective policy of warehousing non-violent drug offenders towards a more reasonable, smarter supervision and substance abuse program. Preliminary estimates are that nearly 600 non-violent drug offenders would be immediately eligible for supervised parole, setting them on a path to recovery and stability and saving the state millions of dollars."

Patrick also said the issue was emotional for those involved and that he understood the frustration of families of crime victims.

"This bill is an emotional issue for people of all sides. I understand the concerns of those who worry we have taken judgment out of the justice system and the pain and frustration of the families of victims of violent crime," Patrick said. "For all those interests, and those of the public at large, this bill is a good start."

Fontbonne Academy Hosting Summer Theatre Camps

Fontbonne Academy has been hosting theatre summer camps this summer, drawing on its vast experience in the arts.

Carol Fortier, the theatre and music director at Fontbonne, has teamed up with Janine Winters, the theatre director at Saint Agatha's School, for the summer. They have been working with children across many grades, putting on musicals and dramatic productions.

Last week was the final and second week of a two-week musical theatre camp for youngsters grades 3 - 6 which culminated in the production, "Jungle Book," based on the story by Rudyard Kipling. The students came from several towns, and many of them were from Quincy and Milton. Forty-five students participated in the show.

"It's been great; we have had a really motivated and enthusiastic group of kids, and we accomplished so much in only two weeks," Winters said.

Children's Programs At Library

By JULIE RINES
Crane Public Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library announces the following children's program.

Concert:

Philip Alexander

On Friday, Aug. 3rd at 10:30 a.m. on the Main Library front lawn join Musician Philip Alexander described as "a rock star for the preschool set." Philip's concerts are lively, interactive fun for even the youngest children.

The songs are funny and the music is live, played on guitar, harmonica, dulcimer, ocarina, djembe, digiridoo and boomwhackers too. What are boomwhackers you ask? Join us for this lively show and find out.

The highly interactive and participatory program is especially fun for young toddlers and preschoolers accompanied by an adult. The show will go on come rain or shine in case of inclement weather we will move into the large meeting room. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library.

Art-to-Go

Art-to-go is an eight-week series of drop-in art activities that travel throughout Quincy. Supplies for the week's project will be available Mondays at the Main Library; Tuesdays at Adams Shore; Wednesdays at North Quincy and Thursdays at Wollaston so stop by anytime from 2 to 4 p.m. and make a craft.

Projects are open ended to accommodate a wide age range. They are easy enough for toddlers and preschoolers to do with an adult's help and free form enough for school age children to add their own personal touch. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library. Week of Aug. 6th - Dream Catchers

Summer Storyteller's Series

On Tuesday, Aug. 7th at 7 p.m. The Activated Storytellers will present two tales of big dreams and big ambitions.

The Knee-High Man Dreams of Being Big is an African-American fable about a little man who wants to be big, so he asks his animal friends for advice, and follows it with hilarious results.

Mulan, Dreams of Doing the Impossible is the legend from China, possibly a true story, about a teenage girl who poses as a man and becomes a soldier in order to save her family honor. Set to music with stylized movement.

Interested children ages 6 and older can attend a pre-show rehearsal/workshop at 6:30 p.m. and then take part in the show. This program is for ages 5 and older. Sponsored by the Quincy Arts Council.

"Let's Play Together" Pajama Storytime

On Wednesday, Aug. 8th at 6:30 p.m. Storyteller Diana Kane of Creative Connection presents "Let's Play Together," pajama storytimes designed especially for children ages 2-5 and their parents. Every Wednesday evening will be filled with activities for children and adults to do together. Come see Ms. Diana for an hour of interactive stories, partner dances, playing in a band and singing together.

Ms. Diana is a music specialist and storyteller who has prepared a six week program that is designed for adults and children to enjoy stories and songs as a family. This is a great time for you and your children to sing, dance, listen and talk with each other.

This program series will continue on Wednesday evenings until Aug. 15th. This program is sponsored by the Quincy Arts Council.

Movie: Eloise at the Plaza

On Thursday, Aug. 9th at 2 p.m. at the Adams Shore Branch Library we will show the movie Eloise at the Plaza.

In this delightful live-action rendition of the classic children's book series by Kay Thompson and Hilary Knight, little Eloise finds mischief at New York City's grand Plaza Hotel. Accompanied by her very proper, very British nanny, Eloise acts as matchmaker for a visiting prince so that she might receive an invitation to the season's biggest social event. The movie is rated G and runs for 90 minutes.

This program is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library.

Book Discussion:

Midnight for Charlie Bone

On Thursday, Aug. 9th at 7 p.m. in Main Library Children's Room children ages 10-14 are invited to discuss Midnight for Charlie Bone by Jenny Nimmo.

In the first book of the Children of the Red King series, we meet Charlie Bone. He's just discovered that he can hear people in photographs, meaning he has to switch to a new school run by a sinister headmaster who has a mysterious connection to Charlie's cruel relatives. As Charlie tries to make new friends and not get in trouble at school he also has to use his new power to solve a few mysteries and perhaps try to find out what happened to his father, who's been gone for years. While we talk we'll work on a simple craft.

Pick up a copy of the book in the Main Library children's room to read before the group meets. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library.

Community Welcoming Husband And Wife Team Lt. Tim And Nicole Ross New Salvation Army Leaders

By EMILY TAFT

The husband and wife team of Lt. Tim and Lt. Nicole Ross have arrived in Quincy to run the Quincy Salvation Army after Captain Heather Odom moved on to work in New York at the Salvation Army College.

After four years of running the Plymouth Salvation Army, the Ross family, including their two young children, packed up their things and moved to a house in Braintree in order to run the Quincy Salvation Army. Although they both agree it was difficult to leave Plymouth after making many connections there, they say it is all part of a plan bigger than them.

"You just trust that this plan is bigger than you are, and that's how you settle in," said Nicole. "We trust and believe in the Lord's plan and that it is so much bigger than us and this is where he wants you," said Nicole. "You trust the new leaders with your old congregation, and you invest 100 percent in these people and love them."

The Ross family will bring in years and generations of experience to the Quincy Salvation Army. Tim is a sixth generation Salvation Army member and grew up in the Lynn Salvation Army, and Nicole joined the Salvation Army when she was eight years old. They met while attending the Lynn Salvation Army childcare programs and they were married in 2004. The pair has two young children who are also a part of the Salvation Army life. They both believe that being a part of the Salvation Army is a calling not only as a couple but also as a family.

"This is a calling, I think the Lord does give the calling to the two of you, and so he makes it all work out for you. It's not just a job, it can't be. We wouldn't do it every day if it was," said Nicole. "I 100 percent believe that our children are called to the ministry too and they are a part of the programs here."

Tim said that the hope is to increase the kids programs while they are here, especially in places where they find there is a greater need.

"In our four years in Plymouth, we saw the kids program increase," said Tim. "We would like to see that happen here. Take what they have and as best as we can see if there are more kids who need that safety net or a place to feel safe."

The couple says that they plan on taking the first few months and the first year that they are in Quincy to completely understand the needs of the organization and community.

"We are still learning the community, so really it's just taking these few months very early on to get to know Quincy, its needs, and how the Salvation Army can continue to assist people in this community," said Tim. "We look at what was successful last year and what wasn't successful last year and we plan accordingly as best as we can. This being our first year is always usually the hardest because you don't exactly know all the stands (for the kettle and bell fundraiser) and all the people. It takes a good year to understand that."

They have already begun to plan for the kettle and bell fundraiser that is done each holiday season by listening to the employees that have been there for years.

"You just rely on the people that have been here," said Nicole. "We come and go but really it's the people who work for the Salvation Army that are the heart beat all year round. We have some really great employees that just step up to the plate and help people."

Nicole added that it also takes time for those who need help in the community to reach out to them and trust them just because they are the new leaders of the Salvation Army.

"It takes people time to trust people. You have to build that trust and earn your way into someone's life. You can't just assume that because you have this position that people are going to automatically be okay," said Nicole.

"In order to build that trust, we go out into the community and introduce ourselves. We try to be here every day, and we reach out to other agencies that are making an impact and ask to be along side of them. It takes time, which is why you want time; you don't want that 11-month stay you want to be in a community for a while. We would like to reach out to families more and show them that we are not only a place if they are in need of a bag of food but also a place where they know they can come for some spiritual help, a friendly face that can offer advice, or if they need a couple of hours of child care. The army tends to deal with a marginalized group of folks that society doesn't always see worth it. I believe they were sent to the Salvation Army because they are worth it."

Both Tim and Nicole agree that without the help of each other the job would be much more difficult and that being a husband and wife team allows them to lean on each other and see things from different perspectives.

"There are some things we do together, and there are some things we do separately," said Tim. "I can't speak for here (Quincy) yet but in Plymouth a lot of the financial obligations I did and a lot of the programming she handled. It does tend to divide, we try to divide and conquer you could say. Certainly we rely on each other and support one another, and we often pray together. We face the challenges together, and we thank God that we have each other to lean on."

Tim and Nicole said that so far the community has been nothing but welcoming, and that they are looking forward to serving Quincy and helping those in need.

WELCOME TO QUINCY - Lt. Nicole and Lt. Tim Ross, new husband and wife leaders at the Quincy Salvation Army, hope they can continue the Army's positive presence in the community.

"We look forward to continuing a working relationship in helping those in need throughout this community," said Tim.

Nicole added that they hope the Salvation Army "continues to be a positive influence and positive presence in Quincy for Quincy."

Social Security Goes For The Gold

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Millions of Americans are following the 2012 Summer Olympic Games in London.

The last time swimmer Michael Phelps competed, he brought home more gold medals at one time than anyone in the history of the Olympics. Will he do it again?

If there was an Olympics for customer services available online, the services at www.socialsecurity.gov would be the Michael Phelps of that competition. Over the years, Social Security's online services have been rated the best in government and the best in all industries.

When it comes to independent customer satisfaction scores, Social Security's online services consistently bring home the gold, silver, and bronze. The American Customer Satisfaction Index (ACSI) tracks customer satisfaction and rates websites for their performance.

Out of all online services provided by 101 federal agencies in the running, Social Security took all of the top three spots again in the latest survey.

In third place, the application for Extra Help with Medicare Part D prescription drug costs is rated 89. Bringing home the silver, in second place, the Retirement Estimator scored a 91. And the top-rated online service in government is the online application for Social Security benefits, with a satisfaction score of 92!

It's worth noting that even our newest online service is already scoring high praise. Since being launched in May, the online Social Security Statement is rated 88, giving this new service one of the highest ratings in government.

Whether you want to plan for or apply for your retirement, look into other benefits available, or learn about the history of the program, you can do it all at Social Security's website. When you're taking a break from the Summer Olympics, visit the Olympian of online services at www.socialsecurity.gov.

Janet Burke Mann Foundation For The Arts Honors Recreation Department

The Janet Burke Mann Foundation of the Arts – created by Janet Burke Mann to benefit her fellow Quincy residents after her passing in 2008 – recently honored the Quincy Recreation Department as the first beneficiary of a foundation grant.

Recreation Director Barry Welch said the grant will be used to benefit summer programs for children including: dance, musical theatre and drama, and arts and crafts, which are part of the Recreation Department's 2012 Sports and More programs.

Janet Burke Mann was a lifelong Quincy resident who is described by those who knew her best as a kind, gentle, and intelligent woman who was always willing to share her lifelong love of music and the arts. Burke Mann had a generous heart and hailed from a family who made giving to others a tradition. She was the great great-granddaughter of Theophilus King, the founder of Granite Trust Bank, and was the daughter of world-renowned photographer Roydon Burke.

While she had no children of her own, Janet Burke Mann wished to ensure her legacy and dream. In establishing her foundation, she hoped that the children of Quincy would have access to the Arts & Music for generations to come.

In making the foundation grant presentation, grant administrator and family friend Stephanie Pearson-Lynch stated: "The children are our most important resource and we would like to help the Quincy Recreation Department with its good work."

The Park and Recreation Board accepted the grant at its regular July meeting. "We are honored to be the recipients of The Janet Burke Mann Foundation Grant," said Board Chairman Jack Nigro. "We as a city and a department are both grateful and thankful for the opportunity that this grant provides to each child in our program."

rates the 70th anniversary of the loss of the Quincy-built ship next Thursday, Aug. 9. He will read a list of the names of the men who were lost at a ceremony scheduled for 11 a.m. outside the Department of Public Works yard on Sea Street.

The ceremony – in collaboration with the U.S. Naval Reserve Center in Quincy and the Quincy Veterans Council – will also include a color guard, patriotic songs, a wreath-laying and presentations.

The public is invited to attend the ceremony.

A stone marker remembering Quincy is located on the grounds of the DPW yard on Sea Street.

Next Thursday's ceremony will be held near the marker.

USS Quincy (CA-39) was built by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company and launched at the Fore River Shipyard June 19, 1935. She was the second ship to carry the Quincy name.

Before sinking, Quincy managed to fire back at the Japanese Navy and struck the cruiser Chōkai, killing or wounding 36 men.

She was dispatched to the South Pacific in the summer of 1942 to shell Japanese installations on the Solomon Island of Guadalcanal and offer protection to the Marines who landed there in the first American offensive of World War II in August.

Quincy received one battle star during World War II.

will be built at the highest state reimbursement rate possible of 80 percent after the Koch administration worked with the Massachusetts School Building Authority to involve the project in the state's Model School Program.

Central will be the first middle school in the state to be built under the model school program. The MSBA's Model School Program adapts and re-uses the design of successful, recently constructed schools; simplifying the design process, reducing the amount of time projects are in the design phase and lowering design fees, officials said.

Using elements of a previously designed Model School allows projects to begin construction faster and reduces construction costs for the project. As much as a year has been saved by using a Model School, officials said.

Mayor Koch also noted that the City saved substantial money by negotiating the purchase of the four Hancock Street land parcels needed for the school without using costly and time-consuming eminent domain proceedings.

Brown Accents Small Business At Local 7-Eleven

Touts Endorsements By Democratic Mayors; Discusses Free Enterprise With Store Owner

By EMILY TAFT

U.S. Sen. Scott Brown made a campaign stop in Quincy last Friday visiting the 7-Eleven Store on Adams Street to discuss the importance of small businesses and free enterprise with owner Dennis Lane.

Brown talked with Lane about his local business and touted his endorsements from two well-known Democrats: former Boston Mayor Ray Flynn and current New York City mayor Michael Bloomberg. The Republican junior Bay State senator also criticized his Democrat opponent, Elizabeth Warren, for her "you didn't build that" philosophy.

"I think everybody knows 7-Eleven, but one thing that is so kind of cool about this place, when I was reflecting back the first time I met him, he sells milk for $2.59. I don't know where you can get that anywhere," said Brown of Lane and his 7-Eleven. "He is one of the largest milk sellers in the entire country. To have that here in Massachusetts and in Quincy is a good thing."

Brown said that the solution to helping the GDP (Gross Domestic Product) is to continue to support businesses like Lane's and to work together in Washington.

"I think certainly Professor Warren would want Washington D.C. to solve the problem and take more money out of your pocketbooks and wallets," said

Brown. "To have the GDP at one and a half percent is astounding and it's deeply disturbing, and we need to make sure that we immediately start to focus on the things that matter in Washington and we're not doing it."

"I've been very upset about it, I am hopeful that we'll start to focus on our debt and deficit, taxes, spending, jobs, national security, energy. People like Dennis here, who are going to get the economic engine moving, continue to create those jobs, continue to create the opportunities to hire and grow and expand and that's why I am here and that's why I am honored to get his support."

Brown said he was honored to receive the endorsements of Bloomberg and Flynn. He said the Democratic leaders are backing his re-election bid because they believe he is an open-minded independent legislator who can work with colleagues on both sides of the aisle.

"These democratic leaders recognize that they're able to work with me. I keep an open mind, I read the bills, and I'm that independent guy. Could you imagine having 100 Professor Warrens down there who want to leave the blood and teeth on the floor and not compromise? There's plenty of people like that down there right now. We don't need that - we need problem solvers, people who are going to work together to solve our very real problems."

Lane said that he supports Brown because Brown supports small business owners, and that he was offended by candidate Elizabeth Warren's philosophy "You didn't build that."

"I think one of the things that is most important from the ads I've seen, from both candidates, is that I was extremely offended, when the other candidate, Professor Warren, indicated that we did not do this on our own. And I have watched that clip half a dozen times, and every time I see it, I get angrier and angrier," said Lane.

"My response to that well-quoted phrase that 'you did not do this.' Yes I did. I did this. I built this business. There are days that I am here 16 hours a day. There are weeks that I am here seven days a week. There are times that I travel to Washington to work on behalf of small businesses all across the country."

"What I would say to anyone who thinks that businessmen don't invest their own money, their own time? This is sweat equity, this is sweat equity. And I believe that Elizabeth Warren's comments minimize business people, and businessmen, and businesswomen all over this state, and I was shocked and appalled by that comment, because this is my life, this is what

SEN. SCOTT BROWN is greeted by Dennis Lane, owner of the 7-Eleven Store on Adams Street during a campaign stop to Quincy last Friday.

I do, and I work very, very hard."

Lane added, "One of the comments that I focused on, was when Professor Warren minimized the gentlemen, or the women, whom built the factory, and her comment was, well good for you, but you delivered your goods on roads that we paid for. Well, I would like to remind Professor Warren that we paid for those roads, because we pay taxes, we pay an extraordinary amount of taxes, and the people that we hire pay taxes...without small business there would be no economy," said Lane.

"Every bridge, every road, the entire infrastructure may have been coordinated by the federal government, may have been coordinated by cities and towns. It's the tax dollars generated by a healthy economy, supported by American business that make all of this happen."

"We support the neighborhood. I've been here for 38 years. I bought this store in May of '74', I bought it with my own money. I didn't take any government loans. I didn't borrow any money from anyone."

"First of all my position is that I will support the candidate that supports small business. Small business is near and dear to me, I've grown up doing this, this business is my life. Just take a tour of Adams Street. There are so many family-owned gas stations, and the little ice cream shop down the street and the Montilio's bakery. These are all businesses that have been started by families. Without small business there would be no economy. Many of our Founding Fathers were small businessmen."

During his visit Brown also addressed the recent comments made by Chick-Fil-A an Atlanta based fast-food company whose CEO's said they were against same-sex marriages. After the comments, Boston Mayor Tom Menino wrote that the company was not welcome in the city and there was no place for discrimination in the city. Brown said that he also doesn't agree with what the CEO's said but the comments the Mayor made doesn't make Boston an unfriendly place to businesses.

"Boston is a very business friendly city, as evidence of what's happening down at the waterfront," said Brown. "I don't agree with what the CEO's from Chick-Fil-A said and the fact that we have laws against discriminations, and not only discrimination against employees but also patrons. I am sure the mayor and the boards approving any restaurants, in Boston in particular, will do the right thing to make sure that those laws are adhered to."

Emilija Baksys Of Quincy Wins First Place Woodward School Students Sweep Winning Spots In DOVE Poster Contest

Four students at the Woodward School in Quincy recently won awards in the second annual Teen Dating Violence Prevention Poster Contest sponsored by DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended), announces DOVE Outreach and Education Manager Jennifer Yerdon.

First Prize went to Quincy resident Emilija Baksys '12, Second Prize to Linda DaSilva '12 of Dorchester, Third Prize to Emily Rines '13 also from Quincy and Yasmine Sahli '12 of Dedham was First Runner-Up.

The poster contest was held this spring for local area high school students to raise awareness and understanding about the problems of control and violence in teen dating. Studies show that one out of four young people will experience some kind of abuse in a romantic relationship.

This year's poster contest theme was Digital Abuse. DOVE sought student artists to design posters highlighting the ways that technology can be used to control someone in a relationship, a special danger for the current generation. Students were asked to design posters around the following topics: Textual Harassment: (constant messaging, asking whereabouts and anger when there is no response); Picture Pressure: (pressuring for inappropriate pictures) and, Privacy Problems: (requests for passwords to e-mail or Facebook, or requests to look through phone messages).

Posters were judged on the criteria of originality, creativity, development and reflection of the theme, and many posters were submitted from local area schools.

The winning posters will be featured on the DOVE website and showcased at various community events and winners receive cash prizes for their accomplishments.

A $250 cash prize goes also to the school of the first place winner. The first place poster will be reproduced as DOVE's official Teen Dating Violence Prevention Poster.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

by Dr. Gabrielle Freedman Chiropractor

BEWARE OF "TABLET NECK"

As if long hours hunched over desktop computers and laptops were not enough of a problem for users, the switch to iPads and other tablet computers poses even more posture-related concerns. According to a recent study from the Harvard School of Public Health, using these hand-held devices for prolonged periods of time can lead to neck and shoulder pain. In essence, a hunched-over user position leads to the head hanging over the device, supported solely by the neck. As neck muscles become strained, pain in the neck and shoulders is likely to ensue. To avoid this problem, tablet users are encouraged to adopt the "table-movie" position, which involves resting the device at a sharp angle on a table.

If you suffer from pain and you're looking for a safe, natural alternative to drugs and surgery, schedule an appointment with your local doctor of chiropractic! At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we believe the chiropractic approach to health care is natural. Call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. The chiropractor is an excellent diagnostic resource for uncovering causes of biomechanical and posture-related pain.

block for the entire redevelopment of Quincy Center, and the work to date is a great symbol of the progress we are making every day to revitalize our downtown," said Mayor Thomas Koch.

The focus of the work will then move along to Mechanic Street, where a former American Legion post will become the site one of two major daylight portions of that park that will ultimately include a new public park.

The project is funded entirely through the Mass-Works infrastructure grant program.

An expansive permit issued by the DEP earlier this year that allows the City and its Quincy Center development partner, Street-Works Development, LLC, to transform a 1,700-foot section of the Brook's long-degraded downtown culvert into a dramatically improved waterway that will daylight more than 200 feet of the Brook, improve degraded smelt habitat, and create several new "pocket parks" in the Quincy Center area, according to Mayor Koch's office.

The DEP permit includes 47 detailed special conditions, specifying how the new daylight Brook culvert realigned on the Southern side of the Walter Hannon Parkway will provide for enhanced flood control and significantly-improved areas for smelt habitat.

Church Opposes Tilted Kilt

The decision wasn't Cannon's alone. Since the board granted the license, the church pastor said he's received numerous calls and letters from parishioners upset about the restaurant's image.

"Parishioners are focused on the name itself and the negative image [the restaurant] projects," Cannon said.

The board will need to hear the proposal for a second time because the church wasn't notified of the original hearing. Under state law, applicants for liquor licenses need to notify all property owners within 300 feet. But churches, synagogues and schools within 500 feet must also be notified, and in this case Saint John's wasn't; the church is at 44 School Street, about 450 feet from the proposed restaurant at 227 Parkway.

"If there's a church, synagogue, or place of learning within 500 feet they must be notified," City Clerk and License Board Chairman Joe Shea said.

The board unanimously approved Tilted Kilt's application during its July 17 meeting. No one from the church attended the meeting, and no residents testified at all. The application was then sent to the state's Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission (ABCC).

But Shea said that he reviewed the application and noticed the church wasn't notified, and contacted the ABCC to have the issue remanded back to the License Board. Shea said the issue could've been problematic had no one noticed the church wasn't notified until the restaurant opened.

"At some point that would've been discovered," Shea said. "It would've been worse if it happened after opening."

The board will re-hear the Tilted Kilt's proposal Tuesday, Aug. 28th at 4 p.m. in the temporary City Council chambers, City Hall annex, 1305 Hancock St.

Survivor, City To Remember The USS Quincy

Sometime after daybreak, Galvin and other survivors were rescued by the destroyer USS Ellett. He was reassigned to the destroyer tender USS Cascade and served in the Navy until 1952. While in the service, Galvin learned electronics. After his Navy years, he went to work for MIT's Center for Space Research.

Galvin has designs on several satellites, including Sunblazer, Trailblazer, Voyager 1 and Voyager 2. Launched by NASA in 1977, Voyager 1 is currently at the edge of our Solar System and is the farthest human-made object from Earth.

Galvin also worked at Textron. Before he retired, he worked on the deployment mechanism for the MX missile. The mechanism would send the missiles off to their targets. The missile was designed to carry 10 nuclear warheads which can be fired in any direction.

"The Russians were watching the test firing (of the MX missile) in the area of Eniwetok Island," Galvin's son Dan says. "Soon after watching several perfect test launches, the Berlin Wall was removed and the threat of Communism, as we knew it, dissolved.

"The Russians knew they didn't have anything to match our MX missile," he adds.

Daniel Galvin is more than a survivor of the USS Quincy.

He is a true American hero.

NEXT WEEK also marks the 83rd anniversary of a petition drive to name the cruiser being built by Bethlehem Steel Co. at the shipyard at that time USS Quincy.

In August of 1929, organizers hoped to have 50,000 names on the petitions that were directed to the U.S. Navy Department.

The first petition signers were Mayor Thomas J. McGrath and City Council President John P. Flavin. They signed their names on the steps of the First Parish Church.

The petition drive also had some musical accompaniment. R. Gladstone Kingkade, organist at the Strand Theatre, wrote a jingle called "Name the New Cruiser USS Quincy." It was sung by a capacity audience at the theatre.

The petition drive was successful and USS Quincy — a 9,375-ton New Orleans class heavy cruiser — was commissioned at the Fore River Shipyard in June, 1936.

NEWS OF THE sinking of the Quincy in August, 1942 hit home particularly hard for the men and women workers at the Fore River Shipyard. They had just begun work on a heavy cruiser called St. Paul in the summer of 1942 when they petitioned Washington to change the name to Quincy and it was done.

The second USS Quincy was the first ship engaged in battle during the Normandy invasion on Utah Beach on D-Day — June 6, 1944. She carried President Franklin D. Roosevelt to Malta in February, 1945 to meet Winston Churchill and Sir Anthony Eden on board.

Roosevelt continued on the ship to the Big Three Conference in Yalta and celebrated his 63rd birthday on his way back to the United States.

DO YOU RECOGNIZE this young lad?

He grew up in Quincy and served as a city councillor, state representative and district attorney. He also distinguished himself on the basketball court and held the scoring record at UMass Amherst for quite some time before a future NBA Hall of Famer (Julius Erving) broke that record in the early 1970s.

QMC Employees Featured In Steward Health Care's Olympics Ads

Employees from Quincy Medical Center (QMC) were among those featured prominently in the new advertising campaign being launched by Steward Health Care System LLC (Steward) during the opening ceremonies for the 2012 Summer Olympic Games last Friday evening.

The campaign is airing on Boston's NBC affiliate WHDH-TV and will run throughout the Olympics. The new spots were developed by the Boston-based Boathouse Group and directed by veteran commercial director Lisa Rubisch.

IT specialist James Trousdale of Quincy, and radiology technologist Christopher Murphy of Weymouth, are two of the QMC staffers who were tapped to appear in the new "I am a Steward of the New Health Care" campaign that features employees from all avenues of patient care—from physicians, to IT specialists—demonstrating the continuum of care throughout the 10 hospitals within the Steward system.

Murphy is featured in a 60-second spot that aired during the Opening Ceremonies as well as a second 60 spot that will also run throughout Olympic coverage, and on morning television and prime time through August.

Trousdale stars in one of two 30-second spots developed by Steward to feature the work its employees and began running this week. Corresponding print ads will also appear in communities across Eastern Massachusetts. The ads were shot on location at QMC, Norwood Hospital, and Good Samaritan Medical Center in Brockton.

August.

More than 300 employees showed up to Steward's open casting call for the ads and 48 employees were selected for featured roles in the four launch executions.

in Brockton.

QMC nurses Sharon Giordani, Patricia Fox, Geraldine Picot and Kelly Dobric were also cast as "extras" for the ads.

BRINGING SOME CLARITY

Along with Cut, Carat, and Color, Clarity is one of the 4 C's used to define diamond quality and value. While diamonds are thought to be synonymous with perfection, and some very rare diamonds are classified as "flawless," the term is somewhat misleading. The fact is that all diamonds possess certain types of internal characteristics (called "inclusions") that make each one distinctive. Generally speaking, if diamonds fall within the first eight clarity grades (FL through SI), few people will be able to discern a visible difference between them until they reach the imperfect grades. Furthermore, clarity grade has little effect on a diamond's brilliance and sparkle. Diamonds of better clarity grades are simply "cleaner" and, thus, more rare and valuable.

Commercial Fisheries Operation Proposed Near Tide Mill

"For a long, long time," Cheney said, "since back when I was a city councillor, local fishermen and lobstermen have been asking for something like this."

If the plan is approved, the fish could be processed and sold on site. Cheney said about 100 jobs would be created between the processing and sales operations. But there's a lengthy approval process that could take up to 18 months before any construction can take place.

First, the City Council must authorize the mayor's office to negotiate a lease of up to fifty years for the site; the council referred the matter to its Finance, Parks and Recreation, and Library and Historic Places Committees on June 4th.

If a lease were signed the partnership would then have to apply for permits from the city's Conservation Commission to do work on site. The project also requires approval from the state because the area is designated as a waterfront district, meaning it can only be used for marine industrial purposes. The state's Waterways Division and the secretary of environmental affairs would both need to okay the project. While the fishery would qualify as an appropriate marine industrial use, others issues, including dredging in the Town River, could prolong the approval process.

"There are some major issues that would be addressed," Cheney said, "including dredging."

The approval process could last up to 18 months, according to Cheney.

The construction process would take place in three separate phases. The first phase would consist largely of preparation work. The area would be fenced off and the land cleared. Utility and infrastructure improvements would also take place. Cheney said clearing the land would improve public safety in the area by stopping the homeless from congregating there.

"We will apply for permits to clear the property so it's not a danger," Cheney said.

During the second phase, piers with room for up to 30 boats would be built along with ramps for commercial vessels. Cheney indicated that the partners intend to seek grants for that portion of the work. A wholesale fish processing facility and fishing support services center would also be built during the second phase.

Retail buildings for the sale of seafood would be built during the project's last phase. The proposal also calls for a lighthouse to be constructed to cap off the project. The combined cost of the wholesale and retail facilities is expected to be about $5 million.

The project wouldn't require Quincy to provide financial or other assistance, and the city would receive rent for the land. Because of that, both Quincy and its fishermen would benefit from the project.

"It's a win-win for everybody," Cheney said. "The city will get rent. Fisherman will get a place to unload their catch. And we're adding about 100 jobs."

Additionally, the site is envisioned to be a tourist hub upon completion. Observation decks would be installed, allowing visitors to view waterfowl and the restored Broad Meadows marshes. Or visitors could simply watch lobstermen taking their day's haul into port for sale.

The historic Souther Tide Mill itself wouldn't be affected by the project. Cheney said any work that takes place on the mill would be done separately by preservation groups.

56th Annual Harvey's Salt Water Fishing Club's Outing Held In Memory Of Steven Gutowski

225 Disabled Veterans Enjoy Day On The Water Fishing

On July 18, more than 225 Disabled Veterans from six Veterans Hospitals and two Disabled Veterans organizations boarded 24 lobster boats provided by local lobstermen from the Mass. Lobstermen Association and coordinated by Fleet Captain Paul Urbanus.

The event, known as "Harvey's Salt Water Fishing Club's Annual Disabled Vet's Day Fishing Outing," has been held for the past 55 years from the shores of Houghs Neck in Quincy.

The veterans, several in wheelchairs, boarded at Quincy Yacht Club in the Houghs Neck section of Quincy around 9:30 a.m. where they were greeted with a hot cup of coffee and a donut provided by the Salvation Army.

Each veteran received an event baseball cap, shirt and a carry bag provided by this year's sponsors, Liberty Bay Credit Union and Alumni Sports Café of Pembroke.

The veterans fished off the shores of Long Island and Georges Island in Boston Harbor.

"The fishing was great but the most important part of the day for the Disabled Veterans was to just get out on the boat and enjoy the day," said John Urbanus, president of Harvey's. "For some Disabled Veterans this will be the only day out of the hospital on an outing. We have veterans that look forward to this day all year-long. They start calling me in January," Urbanus added.

The fishing boats returned to Quincy Yacht Club around 2 p.m. where the veterans enjoyed a sit down meal prepared by Fasano's Catering with entertainment provided by Joe Fasci of DJ's Unlimited.

THIS YEAR'S fishing outing was dedicated to Steven E. Gutowski, age 24, a lifelong resident of Plymouth, who was killed in action Sept. 28, 2011 in Operation Enduring Freedom, Afghanistan.

Mike Cheney, secretary of Harvey's, served as the master of ceremonies at the reception.

Cheney thanked, on behalf of all the volunteers and sponsors, the Disabled Veterans for their service to our country.

FISHING OUTING ORGANIZERS thanked Mayor Tom Koch for arranging a giant tent outside the Quincy Yacht Club to host this year's event. The tent was necessary since the Yacht Club was damaged by a fire earlier this year.

He also thanked Mayor Tom Koch for arranging a big tent to hold the event in. Quincy Yacht Club is closed this year due to a fire earlier in the year.

"The event reception was homeless until Mayor Koch stepped up to the plate and arranged for the big tent to be installed in the Quincy Yacht Club parking lot," Cheney said.

Over 100 volunteers from the local community and take the day off from work to help out including members of the Quincy Police Patrolmen's Association, Quincy City Workers, Laborers Local 1139 and IBEW Local 2222.

Patty DeCosta headed up the volunteers assisting with the 300 meals served to Disabled Veterans and medical aids assisting the veterans. Several volunteers provide the muscle power to help wheelchair-bound vets get down the gangway and onto the boats.

This year's event was held in honor of Steven E. Gutowski, age 24, a lifelong resident of Plymouth, who was killed in action Sept. 28, 2011 in Operation Enduring Freedom, Afghanistan. He was the loving and devoted son of Edward and Joan Gutowski. Edward and Joan Gutowski sailed on the Quincy Police Boat joining the Disabled Veterans Harvey's Board Member Joe Brill presented Mr. and Mrs. Gutowski a memorial photo of the event.

"This year is special because we are, unfortunately, at war and every day we add another disabled veteran to the rolls," Urbanus said. "This is the very least we can do to show our disabled veterans we appreciate the sacrifices they have made to keep us a free nation."

The event is sponsored by several individuals, unions, local business and one major sponsor, Quincy Mayor Thomas Koch.

In 2006 the Quincy City Council recognized Harvey's with a special commendation for over 50 years of community service to the veterans of the South Shore.

Recently, the members of Quincy Yacht Club hosted a fundraising event to offset the cost of the annual vets day event. The club raised over $4,000 of the $7,000 needed to pay for vets day.

Cheryl Cowan, treasurer, thanked the members of the Quincy Yacht Club for their ongoing support.

VA Hospitals attending the outing were VA Boston Healthcare System, Brockton Campus; VA Hospital Healthcare System, West Roxbury Campus; Bedford - Edith Nourse Rogers Memorial Veterans Hospital; Jamaica Plain, Chelsea Soldiers Home, The Veterans Northeast Outreach Center (a private facility); Jewish War Veterans and the Eighth Air Force Historical Society (Mass. Chapter.)

Symphonic Winds Ensemble Seeks Musicians

Woodwind, brass and percussion musicians are invited to join Eastern Nazarene College's Symphonic Winds ensemble.

Adults should have proficient skills to play at an advanced level with the ensemble, which is comprised of ENC students as well as members of the community. High school students are also welcome, and must have the recommendation of their high school music director. Currently, there is a particular need for low brass, melodic percussion and low reed musicians.

There is no fee associated with participating in the ensemble, which rehearses Wednesday evenings from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the Cove Fine Arts Center on the Eastern Nazarene College campus in Wollaston. Rehearsals begin in September. For more information on joining the ensemble, contact ensemble Director Stephen Bell at scbell1@comcast.net.

The Symphonic Winds ensemble performs a number of free public concerts during the year, including an annual holiday concert and a spring performance as well.

Simple Steps Can Save Money On Air Conditioning

After record-smashing heat this spring, consumers may be worried about the hot summer months to come. The BBB has tips to help you stay cool while avoiding budget-busting bills.

"Keeping cool can be a challenge, especially if your budget is tight," said Paula Fleming, vice president of holding.

If you have personal-finance computer software but haven't kept it up, bring it up to date so you can use the sorting features to assess your spending. Most of the software will let you categorize by spending and income types, allowing you to pinpoint areas where you might not be on track. For example, if your overall 2012 budget allowed for a certain amount of discretionary spending per month (generally called "miscellaneous") and you find you've gone over that amount, you'll be able to make adjustments. If you need to buy personal-finance software, get a brand that keeps all the information on your computer, not the type that "stores" all your financial information at a site on the Internet.

Check your savings interest rate. Are you on target? Search online for "best savings interest rates" in your area to determine the best place to keep your long-term money for maximum growth. Remember that in the case of an emergency, you'll need fast access to your cash, but don't forfeit interest if you can help it. Short-term Certificates of Deposit with staggered due dates will still allow you to get to your money quickly without compromising your interest with penalties for early withdrawal.

David Uffington regrets that he cannot personally answer reader questions, but will incorporate them into his column whenever possible. Write to him in care of King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475, or send e-mail to col-umnreply@gmail.com.

communications & marketing for the local BBB. "Simple steps, such as clearing debris and changing your filter, can keep your unit running efficiently. If you need to repair or replace it, you need to find a reliable contractor and know what to look for to minimize energy use."

A programmable thermostat can save energy by allowing temperatures to rise when you're not at home. Don't keep your house colder than necessary. A setting no lower than 78 degrees is recommended for daytime; 78 to 82 at night. Closing off rooms you don't use also can save money. Don't forget to turn the air conditioning off if you're going on vacation - or even away for a long weekend.

Consider having your heating and cooling system checked by an HVAC professional twice a year. Keeping your system properly maintained will lower your energy and repair costs, prevent breakdowns and prolong the life of your unit. Without routine maintenance your system performance degrades over time until it eventually fails.

If you need to repair or replace your unit - or you just need routine maintenance - BBB Business Reviews can help you find a reliable contractor. The BBB rates companies on a scale of A+ to F, using 16 factors, including how the business responds to complaints. The reviews are available at bbb.org.

Replacing a unit that was installed in the 1990s with an Energy Star qualfied model could save up to 30 percent in cooling costs, according to Ameren, the electric utility in St. Louis.

Other things to consider when replacing a unit:

Look at the unit's Seasonal Energy Efficiency Rating (SEER). The higher the number, the less energy it uses to cool. Look for a rating of 16 or higher. Some new units may have a rating of 25 or higher.

• Buy a unit that is sized to fit your home. Ask your contractor for recommendations.

• Check your refrigerant. If the label on your outside air conditioner lists R-22, you should consider an upgrade because R-22 contributes to ozone depletion. R-22 is being phased out and will no longer be available after 2015. R-410A is a more environmentally friendly refrigerant.

• Consider placing the outside unit in the shade, where it will run more efficiently. You can plant shrubs or trees around it, but make sure not to plant so close that air flow is restricted. Keep weeds and other structures away from the unit.

• Ask for a written estimate and contract, and be sure you read and understand it. To make sure the bid is reasonable, seek estimates from at least three contractors.

• Don't pay the entire amount before the unit is installed. Consider paying a third to secure the contract, another third when the work is half done and the final third only when the work is completed to your satisfaction.

It's Time for Mid-Year Financial Review

Have you done a mid-year financial review? A summer day when it's just too hot to go outside is the perfect time to check your progress on your financial goals for the year.

Start with your 2011 tax return and check the taxes you paid on your income. Did you get a large refund? Or did you have to pay more with your return? Neither is desirable. If your refund was large (more than a few hundred dollars), you're giving the government an interest-free loan of your money through the year. If you ended up having to pay more than a few hundred dollars, your calculations for tax withdrawals through your place of employment need some adjustments.

Go online to the IRS site (irs.gov) and search for "2012 withholding calculator" and click on IRS Withholding Calculator. Have your pay stubs ready and follow the steps. If you see that you need to make adjustments at work to the amount withheld from your paycheck, give your employer an updated W-4 form. Look on the IRS site for Publication 919, which is the step-by-step instruction for adjusting with-

A Job Well Done

On Monday, July 23, at approximately 5 p.m., members of the Quincy Police Drug Control Unit (Detectives Duran, O'Brien and Coen) were conducting surveillance in the West Quincy section of the city, specifically in the vicinity of Liberty, Plain and Columbia Streets.

LT. DAN MINTON

This was due to recent citizen concerns of drug activity within the area.

At approximately 6:15 p.m., Detective Duran observed a male walking on Columbia Road talking on his cell phone. The male walked from the area of Dunkin Donuts on Centre Street, which is on the corner of Columbia Street, towards Plain Street. Once at the corner of Columbia and Plain Street, Detective Duran saw the male turn onto Plain Street and briefly walk into a driveway.

Within seconds, the male walked from the driveway to the corner of Plain and Liberty Street. The white male stopped at the corner and looked up and down Liberty Street as if he was looking for someone. Detective Duran noticed the male was continuously on and off his cell phone and texting. Detective Duran contacted Detectives O'Brien and Coen to assist with the surveillance.

As Detective Coen drove down Liberty Street, he observed another male walking towards Plain Street. Detective O'Brien recognized the first male/suspect #1 as an opiates abuser (namely Oxycodone and heroin) from past encounters and information received from QPD officers. Suspect #1 also resides in the area.

As suspect #1 walked back down Columbia Street towards Centre Street, a second male/suspect #2 was now walking towards suspect #1. As the suspects neared each other, suspect #1 reached into his front right pocket of his shorts and extended his hand towards suspect #2. The detectives observed the exchange and then saw suspect #2 place his hand in his right pocket of his shorts.

Both suspects then started walking together towards Plain Street. Suspect #2 then took his hand out of his shorts pocket and extended his right hand back towards suspect #1's left hand. The transaction took less than 30 seconds. Once at the intersection of Columbia and Plain Street, the suspects separated.

Detective Coen encountered suspect #2 on the corner of Plain and Liberty Street, identified himself as "Quincy Police" as he showed the suspect his police badge. The suspect agreed to speak to the detective and stated that he was coming from Lowe's through a hole in the fence. Detective Coen knew this was not true based on their surveillance.

Detective Coen asked suspect #2 if he had met with anyone on Columbia Street to which he denied. Detective Coen advised suspect #2 of his Miranda rights and the suspect stated he understood. The detective told the suspect that he was under surveillance and was observed meeting with suspect #1. Suspect #2 said he just said hello.

When asked where he lives, suspect #2 pointed down Liberty Street towards Taber Street. When asked the address, suspect #2 said it was the second house from the corner, adding that he didn't know because he just moved to the neighborhood. He then changed his story and told the detective that he doesn't have a home and stays with different friends.

Suspect #2 was asked for identification and he gave the Detective an Arizona driver's license. At this time, Detective grabbed suspect #2's cell phone as he attempted to call/text someone or delete a recent call/text from someone. During this time, Detectives Duran and O'Brien encountered suspect #1 on Columbia Street.

15-Year Old N.E. Tournament
Gets Underway Friday at 10 a.m.

Quincy Is Ready To Make Some Noise At Babe Ruth Regional

By SEAN BRENNAN

Any time a city or organization gets the opportunity to host a major baseball tournament it is commonplace that part of the package is that the host site automatically gets a team entered into the field; most times these host teams are overmatched or are just playing for the experience and for fun.

This is not the case, however, with Quincy's 15-year old Babe Ruth entrant in this weekend's Babe Ruth 15-Year Old New England Regional at Adams Field, because Quincy is not your typical host team.

The majority of the 15 players on the roster (11 to be exact) played this summer for the Morrisette Junior Legion program, which finished the season at 12-6 and, 13 of the 15 players also played this summer on a Quincy AAU travel team. There are also a handful of players who played at the varsity level in high school this spring, and the majority of these kids were members of last year's Quincy Youth Baseball Junior League team that advanced all the way into the Junior League Eastern Regional in New Jersey after defeating East Boston two-games-to-none to win the Massachusetts state title.

It is almost like the 2012 15-Year Old New England Regional, and the fact that Quincy was chosen to host this prestigious event, has been in the cards for years.

"I think that we have a real good chance (in the tournament)," said head coach Rick Beach on Monday. Beach was the coach of Morrisette Junior Legion as well as the coach for last year's QYB Junior League state champions and this year's successful AAU program. "I kind of hope that teams take us lightly because we are out to win it all."

"I coached eleven of these kids on Junior Legion and I coached thirteen of them on AAU," continued Beach. "Most of these kids were also on that Junior team that won the state title last year. This year these kids have played close to 40 games together and we have been successful against some of the best competition in the area. We have been building for this and we are going out there with the goal to win the whole thing."

"This is such a great opportunity for these kids and for the city," added Beach. "I expect there to be some serious competition, but there is no way that we go out there and embarrass ourselves."

Quincy's roster is loaded with the best young baseball talent in the city and, like every good team it starts with the pitching staff. Beach has options as he decides who should start. His top-3 starting pitchers include Dave Suslowicz, Aaron Clancy and Greg Paulo, while at the backend of his bullpen Sean Holleran is solid as the team's closer.

With a strong staff at his disposal, Beach can also field an infield that is as airtight as any you will find in this tournament. At third base Bobby Salvucci is a rock, while Tyler Beach plays a smooth and effortless shortstop. Manning the keystone position is second baseman Eddie Riley - all three players saw significant time this spring at the varsity level. In the outfield, Colin Evans directs traffic from centerfield.

Other players to watch for include Bryan Turner, Mike Gendreau, Patrick Keohane, Jack Kennedy, Liam Fitzmaurice, Matt Monahan and Mike Coffey.

"We have enough talent to make some noise," Beach noted. "Everyone on this roster is a baseball player and they are all great athletes, and the fact that they all have played together for years makes it easier to get them prepared."

Quincy will have a difficult challenge ahead of them on Friday night when they play New Hampshire state champion Keene at 7 p.m. Although Beach and assistant head coach Dave Suslowicz have been doing their best to get updated scouting reports on every team in the tournament, they really aren't sure what to expect.

"Obviously every team in the tournament is good," said Beach, "so we can expect some good competition. Dave has been researching and looking up what these teams, especially Keene has been doing, but we won't know what we are up against until we take the field."

The 15-Year Old Babe Ruth New England Regional is a double-elimination tournament; however, there is a possibility that following a coaches' meeting today (Thursday) the tournament could be shifted to a pool play format - similar to last month's 14-Year Old Babe

Ruth State Tournament at Adams Field. For the record, Beach is in favor of changing it to a pool play format because it guarantees that each team plays at least three games and more kids get the opportunity to see game action.

"There has been talk about changing the format to pool play and I like that idea," he said. "Double elimination makes it more difficult to get every player equal time, while pool play gives teams more games and more oppor-

Skills Competition After Opening Ceremonies These Kids Got Skills

The 2012 15-Year Old New England Babe Ruth Regional tournament has an end game, and that is to crown a regional champion, but the tournament is also a time to spotlight some of the best baseball talent in the area.

One of the more anticipated events scheduled for this weekend is the Skills Competition, which will be held on Saturday following the Opening Ceremonies at 2:30 p.m. at Adams Field.

Every player on all eight rosters will be entered into at least one of the five baseball skill competitions. No player may compete in more than two events. Individual and team points will be recorded and prizes will be given out to the team with the highest point total and to the five individual skill winners; each skill (except for the home run derby) will involve five attempts with scoring done with ten points for the first four attempts and 25 points for the fifth or "money ball" attempt.

The following are the skill competitions:

Pitching accuracy (four players max from each team): Pitchers throw five pitches off the bullpen mound into a target at home plate in the bullpen.

Bunting (three players max from each team): Players attempt to bunt balls into two targets laid on the ground - five attempts.

Outfield accuracy (three players max from each team): Players must hit a target at third base from left center field in the air, on a bounce or on a roll - five throws.

Catcher's accuracy (two players from each team): Players behind home plate must hit a target at second base - five throws.

Home Run Derby (three players max from each team): Players stand at second base and any coach from the player's own team will pitch to the batter. Any ball hit out of Adams Field counts as a home run; any other hit will be considered an out. There are no foul balls. Each player will be given five outs, which could mean more than five swings depending on how many home runs are hit. All home runs with four outs will be considered "money balls" and will count for 25 points.

Lost 7-2 To Brockton On Monday; Four Straight Wins Needed To Advance To State Finals Morrisette On The Verge Of Playoff Elimination

By SEAN BRENNAN
Morrisette found itself in a win-or-go-home scenario on Tuesday after dropping a 7-1 decision to Brockton Post 35 on Monday night at Adams Field in the first game of the American Legion South Sectional Bracket A round. Post 294 needed to win four straight games this week — beginning Tuesday against rival Milton Post 114 — to have any chance of advancing into the American Legion State Finals for a second consecutive summer. Following a two-games-to-none sweep of Walpole Post 104 in the district round, Morrisette began South Sectional play with visions of repeating last year's feat when Post 294 finished this round undefeated (3-0), but Brockton starting pitcher David Tarr had other ideas. Tarr was the difference. He threw a complete game, five-hitter, while striking out 12 batters using an effective combination of off-speed pitches and fastballs.

"This is it, our backs are against the wall for the first time this year," said Morrisette head coach Steve Maze about his team's unfamiliar predicament. "The guys are now in a must-win situation; we lose and that's it. We have to win tomorrow (Tuesday); we have to win two on Wednesday and one on Thursday, but if you are meant to go (to the state finals) than we will find a way to do it."

"Tarr did a good job early when we had runners in position to score and maybe go up 1-0," Maze continued. "He did a nice job mixing up pitches; hats off to him. He was still strong in the last inning. Brockton is a good team and we knew they were coming in. They played better than us tonight and deserved to win."

Regardless of how the rest of the week went for Post 294, Morrisette will rue the missed scoring opportunities that went by the board in the first two innings, before Tarr really found his rhythm. Playing as the away team based on bracket standings (Brockton is No. 1, Morrisette is No. 4), Post 294 got the lead runner on base to start the game when Chris Connolly (1-for-4) beat out an infield single. Connolly took second on a passed ball, but with one out he attempted to advance to third on a bounding ball to shortstop by Kevin White and was nailed as he tried in vain to get back to second. Tarr quelled the threat by striking out Joe Alibrandi.

Morrisette starter Tommy McDonald (four strikeouts) allowed a one-out single to Joe Sever (two hits, RBI) in the first, but retired Joel Woodbridge (strikeout) and Matt Guillemette to send the game to the second scoreless. Tarr fanned Jason Pekkinen to start the second frame and then walked McDonald, before uncorking a wild pitch that advanced him into scoring position. Bob Kozlowski (single, double, run) drove a Tarr fastball into center, giving Post 294 runners on the corners with one out, but Tarr reared back and struck out Andrew Currie (single, double, RBI) and Patrick Verhault to end the threat.

Brockton then took the early advantage in the home half as McDonald walked Trevor Packard, and allowed a RBI double to Chris Samaras, and a RBI single to Billy Francis, which gave Post 35 a 2-0 lead. After retiring Nick Seropian and Pat Healy (strikeout), McDonald gave up a seeing eye RBI single to George Bradshaw as Brockton moved ahead 3-0.

"We had hits and we hit the ball well, but when we needed that hit, we didn't get it," explained Maze. Morrisette finished 1-for-11 with runners on base against Tarr, including 1-for-7 with runners in scoring position. "One hit or one wild pitch and it is a completely different game."

Tarr allowed a one-out walk to Davis in the third, but escaped the inning by getting White and Alibrandi before McDonald retired Brockton 1-2-3 in the bottom of the frame. Tarr then fanned Pekkinen and McDonald before walking Kozlowski and allowing a double to Currie in the fourth. But, again, he worked his way out of a jam by getting Verhault to fly out harmlessly to center.

McDonald continued to pitch well into the fourth as he struck out Samaras, got Francis to fly out to Davis in right, and mowed down Seropian on a fastball, but Tarr was even better in the top of the fifth as he struck out Connolly, Davis and White in order. Brockton would then put the game out of reach with a four-run bottom of the fifth as McDonald received little help from his defense.

With one-out, Bradshaw slid into second with a double after Currie had a difficult time tracking down a ball along the left field line. McDonald then balked Bradshaw to third and, he came around to score when Sever's single landed in front of Connolly in center. Woodridge kept the rally going with a RBI double to right-center (probably should have been caught) that scored Sever and Guillemette plated Woodridge with Brockton's fourth consecutive hit. Guillemette was gunned down attempting to steal second on a strong throw from White, but McDonald walked Packard and Samaras doubled him home on another fly ball that had a chance to be caught. All in all Brockton scored four runs on five hits and a walk.

"We preach the whole entire year that if you make the first 21 outs you are going to win the game. Unfortunately, when you start letting balls drop, it is not going to work," a frustrated Maze explained. "Defensively is where we struggled tonight. Tommy pitched well but when you don't play defense, you aren't going to win the game — not against a team like Brockton."

Tarr retired Alibrandi, Pekkinen (strikeout) and McDonald in order in the sixth, as did Morrisette reliever Dan Cobban in the bottom of the inning as he got Seropian, Pat Healy and Bradshaw on groundouts. Morrisette finally got to Tarr in the seventh, but it was too little too late. Kozlowski doubled to lead off the inning and he scored on a RBI double from Currie, but Brockton's impressive left-hander retired Verhault and Connolly on fly balls and struck out Davis to end the game.

South Sectional Notes

Morrisette and Milton played Tuesday in the loser's bracket, while Brockton squared off with New Bedford in the winner's bracket. New Bedford had beaten Milton, 11-1 in five innings on Monday... The winner of Morrisette/Milton would have needed to win two games on Wednesday in order to force a decisive winner-take-all game today (Thursday) at Adams Field.

Local Hockey Players Competed In HNIB Sophomore Showcase

A GROUP OF LOCAL HOCKEY PLAYERS competed in the Hockey Night In Boston Sophomore Showcase in Haverhill last month. The group included forward Patrick Freeman, defensemen Steven Ross and Brian O'Callaghan and goalie Ryan Higgins, all from Quincy High School, and forward Aaron Clancy from Catholic Memorial School. These five played for the Greater Boston team out of the North Division and advanced into the semifinals where they lost back-to-back games to Midwest Select (5-2) and Northern New England (3-2). Their team finished the elite tournament in fourth place in a field of 16 teams from around the United States. Clancy and Higgins were both selected to the All-Tournament team. All five are entering their sophomore seasons at their respective high school and are looking to continue their success this winter.

A Champion Among Us

The road to the 15-Year Old Babe Ruth New England Regional is not an easy journey.

The eight teams that will take to Adams Field, starting on Friday, have had to endure a long summer of baseball; days on days of practice, and hours of hard work put in, all for the opportunity to be crowned New England champion.

The following teams have done all of this, and after winning their respective state (or region) championships, they are all just a week away from being crowned the top team in New England.

Representing Massachusetts are Peabody (Eastern) and Pittsfield (Western), as well as Quincy, which as the host team earned an automatic bid. Looking north, Portland carries the hopes of Maine with them to Adams Field, while St. Johnsbury will be the Vermont representative. New Hampshire's dreams of being a New England champion falls on Keene, while Rhode Island sends Coventry to Quincy with title aspirations, and Connecticut sends Waterford.

Peabody and Waterford

(CT) start the tournament off on Friday at 10 a.m. followed by a 1 p.m. game between Coventry (RI) and Portland (ME). Pittsfield and St. Johnsbury (VT) will play in the 4 p.m. time slot, and Quincy and Keene (NH) take center stage under the lights with a 7 p.m. start time.

The winner of this tournament advances to the 15-Year Old Babe Ruth World Series Aug. 18-25 in Van Buren, Arkansas.

Quincy Militia Makes It Two Wins In A Row

By SEAN BRENNAN

Two wins don't make a champion, but for Head Coach Vaughn Driscoll two straight victories means that his Quincy Militia football program is at least moving in the right direction.

Quincy used a stringent defensive effort, including another defensive touchdown (the third game in a row) to shutdown the Randolph Oilers 13-0 last Friday in an Eastern Football League showdown. The victory improved Quincy's record to 2-2 overall.

"That was a big win against a solid Randolph team," Driscoll said on Monday. "Defensively, we were on our game and the unit as a whole really played well and shutdown the Oilers several times in the red zone."

"This team doesn't get any respect from the rest of the league," continued Driscoll, "so what we need to do is go out and earn it, and we have done that the past two games."

After beginning the summer with back-to-back losses to the Bay State Bucs (21-0) and the Eastern Mass Seminoles (9-6), the Militia have circled the wagons and picked up the pace. Two weeks ago, Quincy broke into the win column with a 28-12 victory over the Charlestown Townies, and following the 13-0 win over the Oilers, the Militia have started to resemble the team Driscoll and his staff envisioned when they first got together for preseason practices back in March.

"We have played two solid games in a row after starting year with back-to-back losses," he said. "You can see that the guys are starting to get on the same page, and that started following the loss to the Seminoles. We aren't where we want to be yet, but we are moving in that direction."

With the offense struggling to put up points, despite doing a decent job controlling ball possession, the Militia defense made the early impact play. It happened as Randolph was driving down the field. Outside linebacker Jo-Jo Williams read the eyes of the Oilers' quarterback before stepping into the passing lane and returning an interception back to the house to break a scoreless tie. Conor Flaherty's point after attempt made it 7-0.

Quincy's offense finally earned its stripes later in the game when quarterback

Aaron Cobbs connected with slot receiver Joe Hobbs for a touchdown strike that pushed the lead to 13-0. Flaherty's PAT was unsuccessful, but the 13-0 lead was enough in the end.

"Aaron didn't have his best game passing-wise, and I wish he had used his legs a little more, but he found Hobbs for a big touchdown, so that was good to see," Driscoll said. "We really just went back to basics following that second loss and the results have been productive."

The Militia has a huge game this Saturday at 8 p.m. against the Taunton Gladiators at Veterans Memorial Stadium. With a bye week on the schedule for Aug. 11, Quincy needs to keep momentum moving in a positive direction. Driscoll knows it and so does his team.

"This is a real big game on Saturday," he said. "We need to keep moving forward because if we stop doing that we will be in trouble. Taunton is a strong team. It would be great to have a large home crowd out there to support us."

Admission for Saturday's game is $5 and children under the age of 12 get to watch for free.

tunities. This will be decided at a meeting of the coaches, so we will see how it plays out."

Besides Keene, New Hampshire, the other New England state champions include Waterford, Connecticut, Portland, Maine, Coventry, Rhode Island, and St. Johnsbury, Vermont. Massachusetts is well represented with Quincy as well as Western Massachusetts champion Pittsfield and Eastern Massachusetts champion Peabody.

The winner of this tournament advances to the 15-Year Old Babe Ruth World Series in Van Buren, Arkansas Aug. 18-25.

A Summer of Baseball In Quincy

The Babe Ruth Baseball landscape in Quincy was in a state of flux back in March, which meant that Quincy and Adams Field as the host site for the 2012 New England Regional was up in the air. But in stepped Quincy Youth Baseball & Softball. The popular organization made the decision to take over the Babe Ruth charter, keeping Babe Ruth Baseball alive in the city – which kept the 15-Year Old New England Regional on schedule to be played in Quincy.

Ever since that decision was made, preparations for this event have been moving forward and, on Friday all the hard work that has been put in by numerous volunteers will come to fruition.

"We have been working towards this goal and towards getting ready for this tournament for months," said Quincy Youth Baseball & Softball President Mike Lynch on Monday. "We were happy with the way the 14-Year Old tournament went and we will be using that experience to improve the way we run the New England Regional."

"Quincy and Adams Field hosted a big event a few years ago (in 2008 Adams Field hosted the Babe Ruth World Series), so we have an idea of what it takes to run a successful tournament," Lynch continued. The 2008 World Series was run by Dick Lombardi and the Quincy Babe Ruth League. "We are excited to have teams from across New England come to Quincy and play at Adams Field."

Quincy Youth Baseball & Softball is holding a welcoming today (Thursday), at 3 p.m. at Pageant Field. Following a 4 p.m. coaches meeting, there will be a reception dinner at the Quincy Marriott, which is open to the public at a cost of $15. Or Friday, Waterford, CT and Peabody will open the tournament at 10 a.m. followed by Portland, ME and Coventry, RI at 1 p.m. St. Johnsbury, VT and Pittsfield will play at 4 p.m. and Quincy and Keene, NH square off in the night cap at 7 p.m.

If the format remains double elimination, there will be two games on Saturday morning (9 a.m. and noon) with the Opening Ceremonies getting underway at 2:30 p.m., which will be followed by a Skills Competition at Adams Field.

As of right now, the championship round is set for Aug. 8.

Won Game One, 4-1; Took Game Two, 9-2 Morrisette Sweeps Walpole Out Of District Playoff

By SEAN BRENNAN

Starting pitcher Tim Liuzzo and Morrisette Post 294 wiped Walpole Post 104 right out of the District 6 best-of-three playoff round on July 25 with a dominating 9-2 victory at Adams Field.

Already holding a 1-0 series lead, thanks to a 4-1 Game One win at Walpole on July 24, Morrisette came into Game Two looking to eliminate the second-place team out of District 6 West — Morrisette ended their regular season in fourth-place in District 6 East — and Liuzzo and an early first inning offensive explosion, as well as an error-free defensive effort accomplished just that.

Despite struggling most of the game with his curveball, Liuzzo was masterful. The North Quincy graduate went the full seven innings, allowing eight hits and two runs. His ability to spot the fastball kept the Walpole batters off balance, and when Post 104 did put the ball in play, Morrisette's air-tight defense made the plays. It didn't hurt that Post 294's offense jumped all over Walpole starting pitcher Michael Baryski for six runs in the first inning.

"It was basically just my fastball and changeup, I couldn't find my curveball at all," Liuzzo said following his series-clinching performance. "It wasn't my best performance (with the curveball), but I obviously had a lot of faith in my defense, and they played awesome. Playing like that is going to win us a lot of games."

"We need to just keep working hard everyday," continued Liuzzo about what Morrisette needed to do to keep winning when the double-elimination South Sectional round began on Monday. "You have to be out when the sun is shining to be prepared for these types of games."

Walpole came into this series as the favorite on paper. Post 104 finished the regular season at 17-4, which included an 11-0-1 run to close out the year. But after starter Luke Barkowski held them in check for seven innings in the Game One victory, Liuzzo began Game Two equally prepared to dominate.

He started off his outing by getting Matt Lavanchy to fly out to Matt Davis in right and John Adams to weakly ground out to first baseman Bob Kozlowski. After allowing a two-out single to Matt Bender, Liuzzo got cleanup hitter Dan King to pop to Pat Verhault at second base. Liuzzo's fast start gave life to the Morrisette bats as Post 294 exploded for six first inning runs of Baryski.

Chris Connolly (1-for-2, BB, two RBI) drew a walk to open the home half. Connolly took off for second, but Baryski made a pickoff move to first that had Connolly dead-to-rights, but first baseman Tom Farrow overthrew Adams at second, allowing Connolly to get into scoring position for Davis. The first-year starter made Walpole pay for the miscue when he smoked a RBI single to center that plated Connolly with the game's first run. Kevin White and Joe Alibrandi followed Davis with back-to-back singles and Jason Pekkinen's infield base hit scored Davis with the inning's second run. Liuzzo helped his own cause by driving in White with a RBI single, and after Kozlowski's routine grounder was booted by Bender at third (scoring Alibrandi), left fielder Andrew Currie drove in Pekkinen with a ground-out. Verhault made it 6-0 with a sacrifice fly to center, which scored Liuzzo.

"We talked about it from the first pitch; talked about it during batting practice, that Walpole being the number two team (in District 6 West) and being 17-4, they were going to come out flying (after losing Game One)," said Morrisette head coach Steve Maze. "If we didn't come out and match their intensity, we were going to be in a lot of trouble. We put a couple on and then when we put the pressure on them. The next thing you know we have six runs, and when you have Timmy on the mound and you have six runs, it is not cruise control, but you are not biting your nails every time a batter gets up."

"What Timmy did was spot his fastball and he let the guys play (defense) behind him," Maze continued. "I have been preaching since the last game of the season that if you make the first 21 outs in the playoffs without any errors, you have a damn good chance of winning."

STARTING PITCHER TIM LIUZZO and Morrisette Post 294 defeated Walpole Post 104, 9-2, in Game Two of their best-of-three District 6 playoff series last Wednesday at Adams Field. Morrisette won the series two-games-to-none to advance into the South Sectional round.

Liuzzo walked Sean Heelan (2-for-3, BB) to begin the second, and with two outs, Walpole's Mike Rando drove in Heelan with a blooper, but Liuzzo got Baryski to fly out to end the inning. Baryski retired White, Alibrandi and Pekkinen 1-2-3 in the home half, but Liuzzo, after allowing a lead off single to Lavanchy in the top of the third, retired Adams, Bender and King.

Baryski allowed a one-out walk to Kozlowski in the bottom of the frame, but escaped unscathed, while Liuzzo worked around a lead off single from Heelan in the fourth by getting three straight ground ball outs — twice to Pekkinen at third. Baryski continued to pitch well in the bottom of the inning, retiring White and Alibrandi after Davis had reached on a one-out single.

Liuzzo then got the first two batters in the fifth before walking Adams. The free pass came back to haunt him when Bender smacked a double to right-center, scoring Adams and cutting the lead down to 6-2, but Liuzzo got King to bounce out to Alibrandi at shortstop to end the threat.

Morrisette's offense immediately picked up Liuzzo in the bottom of the fifth. Pekkinen singled and Liuzzo reached on a fielding error by Baryski. Another error on a dropped fly ball in right-center from Kozlowski loaded the bases for Currie, but following a 12-pitch battle, Baryski fanned the Morrisette left fielder for the inning's first out. With Verhault at the plate, and Maze playing for one run, he called for a squeeze play that caught the Walpole defense napping;

Verhault laid down a perfect bunt, which scored Pekkinen from third to make it 7-2.

Connolly then smoked a Baryski fastball into center that scored Liuzzo and Kozlowski to make it 9-2.

Liuzzo worked out of a two-out bases loaded jam in the sixth, and after Morrisette went quietly in the bottom of the frame, he worked around another bases loaded jam in the seventh by getting Farrow to ground out to Verhault at second to end the game and the best-of-three series.

Morrisette 4, Walpole 1 (Game One)

Starting pitcher Luke Barkowski threw a complete-game as Morrisette opened their best-of-three playoff series with Walpole by winning 4-1. Post 294 broke open a scoreless game with two runs in the sixth and two more in the seventh.

Tim Liuzzo had the big hit in the sixth as his single plated Matt Davis and Joe Alibrandi. In the seventh, Chris Connolly walked and Davis singled. Walpole chose to intentionally walk Alibrandi and Jason Pekkinen made them pay as he lined a two-run single to right to give Morrisette a 4-0 lead.

Barkowski allowed a seventh inning RBI double to Sean Heelan, but the big righty fanned Troy Salvatore to end Game One. Barkowski was solid throughout. He limited Walpole's high-flying offense to a measly 3-for-17 with less than two out, and in the fourth inning, after Walpole had loaded the bases in a 0-0 game, he got Matt Lavanchy to ground out to end the threat.

CENTERFIELDER CHRIS CONNOLLY had a two-out, two-run single in the fifth inning of Game Two versus Walpole that gave Morrisette a 9-2 lead.

FIRST BASEMAN BOBBY KOZLOWSKI celebrates after Morrisette eliminated Walpole in a District 6 East/West playoff series last week at Adams Field.

Recreation Department's 6-on-6 Soccer Tournament

The Quincy Recreation Department recently held its annual 6-on-6 Soccer Tournament at Veterans Memorial Stadium. This was a co-ed tournament, which was refereed by sports specialists and park leaders. Out of the three districts, approximately 120 youngsters attended and took part in three age groups including Midgets (ages 8-10), Juniors (11-12), and Seniors (13-16).

The Midget teams from Fore River and Perkins Playgrounds met in their respective championship game. Fore River came out showing off their fancy foot skills and speed, while Perkins held its own and played great defense. But in the end it was Fore River that laid claim to the championship title. Shawn Kozlowski, Danny Freeman, Aaron O'Toole, Harrison Stengel, Drew Boretti, and Jacorri Wiggins participated for Fore River, while Joseph Connor, Asher Wines, Lily Scola, Fallon Hobin, and Emma O'Neil made up the Perkins lineup.

In the Junior Division final, both Forbes and Perkins Playgrounds looked strong. Forbes played with aggressiveness and had great teamwork, and Perkins played with heart and determination. Forbes had a little more working for them, including solid goaltending, and won the title. Colin Keaveny, CJ Santangelo, James Crump, JJ Camara, Brendan Finneran, Brendan Keaveny, Johnny Norton, Connor Donaghey, Chris Donaghey, and Dimitri Liu made up the Forbes' roster, and Noah Wines, Will Scola, Jon Hurley, Joe O'Neil, Griffin Batson, and Nolan Walker played for Perkins.

LaBreque and O'Rourke Playgrounds faced off in a tough Senior Division championship match. LaBreque was aggressive and quick, but O'Rourke countered with athleticism and experience, which allowed them to take the victory. Eric McLoughney, Jimmy Dalton, Dylan Dunn, Rachel Dunphy, Thomaz Silva, and Sydney Chang played for O'Rourke, while Trevor Kirby, Mike Munroe, Joe McArdle, Mike Nazzaro, Owen Lynch, Pat Bambrick, and Sean Curran-Cross suited up for LaBreque.

According to the Recreation Department, this summer's 6-on-6 Soccer Tournament was a huge success as all teams and participants played with great sportsmanship and enthusiasm.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A strong social whirl brings a new round of good times to fun-loving Rams and Ewes. Cupid also is busy aiming arrows at single Lambs hoping for a heart-to-heart encounter.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A romantic incident could take a more serious turn if the Divine Bovine considers meeting Cupid's challenge. Meanwhile, a professional opportunity is also about to turn up.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A bit of hardheaded realism could be just what the Twins need at this emotionally challenged time. Face the facts as they are, not as you want them to be. Good luck.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Many opportunities open up. But you need to be aware of their actual pros and cons. Check them all out and make your choice from those that offer more of what you seek.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A more stable situation begins, allowing you to feel more secure about making important decisions. Meanwhile, be sure to meet your project deadline so you can move on to other things.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Congratulations. A new personal relationship thrives as you learn how to make room in your busy life for this wonderfully warm and exciting emotional experience.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A former colleague might seek to resume a working partnership. Ask yourself if you need it. If yes, get more information. If no, respectfully decline the request.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Good times dominate your aspect. So why not have a party to celebrate a loved one's success? And do invite that special person you want to know better.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) The shy side of the Sea Goat soon gives way to your more assertive self. This should help you when it comes time to speak up for yourself and your achievements.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A new period of stability will help you deal with some recently reworked plans. Once you get your current task done, you can devote more time to personal matters.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Things are finally much more stable these days, so you can restart the process of meeting your well-planned goals with fewer chances of interruption or delay.

Blessing Of Pets And Animals Liturgy Sunday

Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 308 West Squantum St., North Quincy, will hold a Blessing of Pets and Animals Liturgy for the community Sunday, Aug. 5 beginning at 9:30 a.m. in the parking lot of the church.

The liturgy will be outside (weather permitting) and all pet owners and their pets are welcome to participate. In the case of rain, the liturgy will move into the Fellowship Hall.

Many Christian congregations offer blessing of pets and animals liturgies in the fall in honor of St. Francis of Assisi's love for animals and his feast day on Oct. 4.

"We prefer to do it in the summer so that we can be outside in creation with our pets," said Pastor Nathan Pipho.

All pet owners will receive a certificate recognizing that their pet was blessed at the liturgy. A time for refreshments and fellowship will follow.

For more information, contact the church office at 617-328-8348 or visit www.GoodShepherdQuincy.org.

Quincy Point Congregational

The sacrament of Holy Communion by intinction will be celebrated at the 10 a.m. service Sunday at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

The Rev. Ann G. Suzedell will be preaching and Glenn McGhee will be deacon of the day. All are welcome to enjoy fellowship hour after services in the social hall. There will be light refreshments and conversation.

A Summer Vacation Education program is being offered July and August on Sunday mornings during services for pre-school and early elementary school-aged children at Quincy Point Congregational Church.

There will be Bible stories, activities and craft projects.

Bring your child to the Children's room (located to the left of the kitchen on the lower level) before 10 AM service to sign in.

The curriculum for the summer series is called, "Rock Solid." For more information visit the website: Iamrocksolid.com.

The start of the Sunday school for the 2012-2013 season will begin on September 9th. More details will follow regarding registration and the new and exciting curriculum called Grow, Proclaim, Serve.

OBITUARIES

Dorothy G. Bishop Retired U.S. Postal Service Worker

A funeral Mass for Dorothy G. Bishop of Quincy, a retired clerk for the U.S. Postal Service, was celebrated Wednesday in St. Ann's Church, Quincy.

Ms. Bishop died July 28. Born in Boston, she lived in Dorchester before moving to Quincy.

She was a communicant at St. Ann's Church in Quincy and a member of the Red Hat Society. Dorothy worked as a clerk for the USPS in Boston for many years before retiring.

Ms. Bishop enjoyed getting together with her close circle of friends and spending time with her family. She will be missed by all who had the pleasure to have known her.

Beloved sister of Robert W. Bishop of Brockton. Devoted aunt of Melissa Bishop of Quincy and the late Brian W. Bishop. She was also survived by many cousins.

Burial was in Mount Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

A Job Well Done

Suspect #1 asked, "What's going on?", then mumbled something about coming from Dunkin' Donuts and placed his head down. Detective O'Brien could see something inside suspect #1's mouth and asked what it was. When Detective O'Brien instructed suspect #1 to open his mouth, the suspect opened his mouth but was hiding something with his tongue.

Detective O'Brien then noticed a plastic corner bag containing a brown powder substance believed to be heroin inside the suspect's mouth. Detective O'Brien attempted to prevent suspect #1 from destroying/swallowing the evidence in addition to causing harm to himself. Detective O'Brien struggled with the suspect as he tried to make him spit the bag of heroin out of his mouth. Detective Duran arrived on scene and assisted. Both Detectives Duran and O'Brien continued to struggle with suspect #1 as they told him that he was under arrest and ordered him to stop resisting and to spit the heroin out. The struggle continued into nearby shrubs and onto the ground. Suspect #1 then reached towards his mouth and retrieved the now bloody bag of alleged heroin. During this incident, suspect #1 bit his tongue, creating a coating of blood on the drug bag in his mouth. Suspect #1 then tried to throw the Heroin away and then struggled to get away.

Suspect #1 was then placed in handcuffs and the bag of alleged heroin was recovered. Suspect #1, a 42 year old Quincy resident, was arrested for "Possession of Class A (heroin), Conspiracy to Violate the Controlled Substance Laws and Resisting Arrest." It was later learned that suspect #1 was previously found guilty for Possession of Class A in Quincy District Court; therefore he is charged with a subsequent offense. Detective O'Brien contacted Detective Coen indicating that drugs from suspect #1 were found. Detective Coen then placed suspect #2 under arrest.

As soon as the handcuffs were on, suspect #2 said, "I didn't sell any drugs." Detective Coen told suspect #2, "I didn't say anything about drugs," then informed the suspect, a 37 year old homeless person that he was under arrest for "Distribution of Class A (heroin)."

A search of suspect #2 uncovered $80 in two separate folds of $40 each, indicative of heroin sales. A further search of suspect #2 revealed a wallet in his left front pocket of his shorts containing a total of $1,751, a New York State Benefit identification card, 2 Medicare cards, a Commonwealth of Massachusetts handicap transportation access pass, 2 Comerica Bank debit cards and ten (10) Suboxone sublingual film packages, which he did not possess a prescription for. He was additionally charged with Possession of Class B with Intent to Distribute (Suboxone) and Conspiracy to Violate the Controlled Substance Laws.

A total of $1,831 and a cell phone were seized from suspect #2 pending civil forfeiture. Detectives involved in this investigation believe the money is proceeds from drug sales and the cell phone was used to facilitate such sales.

Suspect #2 had bail put on him due to his circumstances - numerous narcotic related offenses in both Arizona and New York, failure to provide a current address, unemployed (although he was in possession of $1,831 at the time of his arrest) and considered to be a flight risk due to his involvements in four different states to include Massachusetts, Arizona, New York and Florida.

Nice Work!

Annie L. Ciani, 93

Worked At Long Island Hospital

A funeral service for Annie L. (Mellen) Ciani, 93, of Quincy, was held Wednesday in the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mrs. Ciani died July 29.

A longtime Quincy resident, she grew up in Braintree.

Mrs. Ciani worked at the Long Island Hospital for several years before she retired.

She loved to dance and cook, she enjoyed being around people. She will be remembered for her great sense of humor. She will be dearly missed by all those who were blessed to have known her.

The beloved wife of the late Henry Hedvig, the late Ernest Anderson and the late Daniel Ciani. Loving mother of Patricia Anderson of Worcester and Russell Hedvig and his wife Jean of Squantum and the late Dorothy Adams, Thomas, William and Dennis Hedvig. Sister of the late Mabel Comness.

She is also survived by nine grandchildren, many great grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Mount Wol-

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN

"Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer 3 consecutive days, and then you must publish and it will be granted to you. M.F. 8/2

Discover Quincy Days Not Just For Tourists

By KRISTINA KALABOKAS

It's easy to forget that we, as Quincy residents, live in an incredibly historic city. It's even easier to forget that we can readily access the birth places and homes of some of history's most prominent figures. All it takes is a few dollars, a Saturday afternoon, and a desire to learn something new.

Having grown up in Quincy, I felt slightly ashamed to have never entered the Adams Mansion or the Josiah Quincy House. In fact, I had never seen the exterior of the Josiah Quincy House, which is tucked away on a Wollaston side street.

Like many, I knew the basic facts regarding the Adams and Quincy families,

'Routine' Process, Mayor's Office Says Asbestos Abatement Begins At Old QHS

The process to remove asbestos-containing material inside the closed Quincy High School on Coddington Street is beginning this week.

According to the Mayor's Office, Contractor Southern Middlesex Industries will be working under the guidelines of the state Department of Environmental Protection to remove insulation surrounding pipes and other material that contains asbestos, which can be found in almost any older building. All work will be conducted inside the building in sealed areas with air quality constantly monitored. Material will be placed in sealed containers before it is removed from the building, officials said.

Candlelight Vigil Friday To Raise Drug Abuse Awareness

The City of Quincy will host a candlelight vigil to bring attention to the issue of substance abuse Friday, Aug. 10 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium, 870 Hancock St., Quincy.

The public is invited to join concerned citizens of Quincy, Braintree, Randolph, Weymouth and other South Shore communities to remember those lost to drug overdose and give hope to others still struggling with addiction.

"Join us to reduce the stigma that surrounds addiction as we remember friends, family and community members," said Arlene Goldstein, program coordinator for Impact Quincy. "Let's stand together as a community to bring a face to these individuals, support each other, and make our voices heard to fight this devastating problem."

A list of names of those who have died from substance abuse will be gathered. Registration of names to be read during the program will be collected from 6:30 to 7 p.m.

Candles will be provided and lit when the names are

A Former Naval Officer Remembers USS Quincy

By REV. JOHN C. SWANSON

The USS Quincy CA-39 was one of seven heavy cruisers of the New Orleans class of the 1930's. Laid down at the Bethlehem Steel yard at Fore River, she was commissioned on June 9, 1936.

The Quincy's early days were spent operating with the Atlantic fleet. During the Spanish Civil War of 1939 the Quincy served in the International Rescue Fleet that included the German ships; Admiral Scheer, Deuthsland and Admiral Graf Spee.

With the outbreak of WWII Quincy served in the North Atlantic operating off Newfoundland and Iceland before being sent to the Pacific. During the early hours of Aug. 9, 1942 while patrolling the waters between Florida and Savo Islands off Guadalcanal, the Quincy and her sister ships, the Vincennes, Astoria and HMAS Canberra, were attacked by a large Japanese force.

Illuminated by searchlights the Quincy was caught in crossfire between the Japanese cruisers Aoba, Furutaka, Choaki and Tenyo. Turning quickly and charging the Japanese column, Captain Samuel Moore immediately commenced firing, severely damaging the Japanese cruiser Choaki. The Quincy bore the brunt of the Japanese fire. By 2:10 a.m. near-

GRANITE MEMORIAL outside the Department of Public Works near the flag pole commemorates the sinking of the USS Quincy Aug. 9, 1942 at the Battle of Savo Island. A public memorial service will be held today (Thursday) on the 70th anniversary of the sinking at the granite memorial beginning at 11 a.m.

ly the entire bridge crew, including Captain Moore, had been killed. The lone survivor on the Bridge, the helmsman, vainly attempted to beach the ship on Savo Island four miles away. At 2:16 a.m. the ship was hit by a torpedo and sank bow first into the Pacific, becoming the first ship to lie on what is today known as Iron Bottom Sound.

The Battle of Savo Island was a Japanese victory. The Allies lost three cruisers: Quincy, Vincennes and Astoria. Two Destroyers were severely damaged and the Australian Heavy Cruiser Canberra was mortally damaged, having to be scuttled the next day. Over a 1,000 U.S. and Australian sailors and Marines were killed.

Within three years a new Quincy would be built at Fore River and in tribute to the HMAS Canberra, a new Canberra would also be built at the same yard, the only U.S. Warship ever named in honor of a foreign ship.

The loss of the Quincy highlighted our Navy's vast underestimation of the Japanese Navy, specifically its proficiency in night action.

However, as our enemies have repeatedly discovered throughout our history, Americans are quick studies. With incredible alacrity, tactics were reformed and implemented. The Battle of Savo Island was a defeat but from the ashes rose eventual victory.

Today every American and Commonwealth ship honors the Quincy, Vincennes, Astoria and Canberra by dipping their colors and sailing in an "S" pattern over the graves of these brave ships.

175 Pieces Of Art Showcased At 17th Annual Marina Bay Show Arts Affair Draws Big Crowd

By EMILY TAFT

Hundreds gathered at Marina Bay over the weekend to enjoy over 170 pieces of different art work during the 17th Annual Arts Affair.

Artists from more than 18 art associations submitted 175 pieces of art to be on display and on sale to the public during the two-day event held in Corporate Park's lobby and cafeteria at 500 Victory Road. The event included live art demonstrations, awards and prizes in six different categories, and raffles prizes.

"We had hundreds of people show up and that is the best part about the event," said Marilyn Reisberg, a member of the Arts Affair Committee and Quincy Arts Association. "The paintings are just beautiful. It is so nice for those who come to see some beautiful artwork."

The Arts Affair is planned all year long and Reisberg said that there is usually no profit gained during the two-day event. Reisberg said most of the money raised this year came from raffle tickets, the total coming to around $400.

Only about five different pieces of art were sold, Reisberg noted, the highest being around $300, which is down significantly from last year.

"We didn't expect to really sell many pieces because of the economy," said Reisberg. "Last year we were more successful with selling pieces. It is a tough year whether we want to believe it or not."

Waterfront Development Would Include Retailers Upscale Apartments Proposed At Site Of Marina Bay Nightclub

By SCOTT JACKSON

If developers have their way, buildings with some of the most expensive apartments in Quincy could take over the space used by a Marina Bay nightclub.

Since this January, Flagship Marina Bay and Redgate Real Estate Advisors have been working on a plan to replace the 62,000 square foot Ocean Club and some boat-storage warehouses with the two buildings. The project is still in the conceptual phase, but it's expected that the buildings would have a combined 460 residential units as well as street-level retail space.

Bryan Connolly, an attorney who represents the developer, said the plan is to make them the most expensive in Quincy with features worthy of the price tag.

The buildings will feature many amenities, include billiards rooms, a gym, and a yoga center. The amenities in the buildings and the retail space would provide residents with what Connolly describe as "24/7 urban vitality."

Retailers, which wouldn't be open around the clock, would include upscale businesses and likely a restaurant.

"They will be amenity based to serve the residents," Connolly said of the businesses they hope to lure to the retail spots.

Redgate principal Kyle Warwick said the idea behind the proposal is to complete the U-shaped boardwalk at Marina Bay. Currently, the boardwalk makes a giant 'L,' and the missing piece is where the Beach Club stands.

"It fulfills the notion of completing the boardwalk," Warwick said. "This is the last parcel."

PASTOR NATHAN PIPHO of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 308 West Squantum St., North Quincy kneels to bless Guinness, Dawn Doyle's 120-pound rottweiler, during the congregation's "Blessing of the Pets and Animals Liturgy" held Aug. 5. Nearly a dozen neighborhood dogs and cats received a blessing during the service. "The service praises God for all the blessings of nature and asks for God's blessing upon all pets and animals," Pastor Piphon said. More pictures and information are available on the congregation's facebook page: Good Shepherd North Quincy.

read aloud during the program. Participants are also encouraged to bring a photo of their loved one.

The program will commence at 7 p.m. and continue until 9 p.m. There is no cost to attend the program.

Parking is available and handicap access at the rear of the stadium.

Goldstein said opioid addiction is a serious medical problem and causes the brain to "rewire" because of the addiction.

"More people die of drug poisonings than car accidents in the state of Massachusetts," she said. "The City of Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree, and Randolph are experiencing this issue along with many towns along the South Shore."

"Since 2010, Quincy Police, when first to the scene, have reversed overdose in 98 individuals with Naloxone, (Narcan). For families directly impacted, the cost is immeasurable in terms of psychological stress and financial burden," she said, adding "the cost to the state is millions of dollars."

Goldstein pointed out that in fiscal year 2011, there were 102,789 admissions to substance abuse treatment services in Massachusetts. Of this number, 2,233 were under 18 years of age, according to the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, Bureau of Substance Abuse Services, Office of Statistics and Evaluation.

"The reason for this vigil is to bring light, education, and truth to the issue. Prevention works," Goldstein said. "For every dollar spent in prevention, seven dollars is saved."

Impact Quincy is a community-based coalition dedicated to fostering an environment which strengthens communications and relationships within the community. IQ provides opportunities for the creation and support of community collaborations, which promote and sustain drug-free community and healthy living.

AAA: Gas Prices Up Three Cents

Gasoline prices in Massachusetts are up three cents this week, according to AAA Southern New England.

AAA's August 6th survey of prices in Massachusetts found self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $3.589 per gallon, three cents more than a week ago. Prices locally are up 20 cents over the past month. The current price is three cents below the national average for self serve unleaded of $3.61. A year ago at this time the Massachusetts average price was $3.73.

The range in prices in the latest AAA survey for unleaded regular is 37 cents, from a low of $3.44 to a high of $3.81. AAA advises motorists to shop around for the best prices in their area, and to make sure they and their passengers buckle up -- every time.

USS Quincy – The Pride Of The City

As mentioned in this space last week, today (Thursday) marks the 70th anniversary of the sinking of USS Quincy – a heavy cruiser built at the Fore River Shipyard. Quincy was lost Aug. 9, 1942 in the Battle of Savo Island in the South Pacific.

The city will host a public memorial service today (Thursday) at 11 a.m. at the Department of Public Works yard on Sea Street, near the flag pole and a granite marker that commemorates Quincy's sinking.

Special guest will be World War II Navy veteran Daniel Galvin of Hanover, a survivor of the sinking. Galvin will read the names of the 370 shipmates who were lost when the ship went down. Galvin was one of the 650 crew who survived the sinking; another 220 were wounded.

Quincy is much more than a footnote in our nation's naval history.

Here in Quincy, she was the pride of the city when she was commissioned in 1936.

Naval Historian Bob Begin says the heavy cruiser represented hope to citizens struggling after the Great Depression. She also sailed as an ambassador of good will before Pearl Harbor. With a nation at war, Quincy exemplified the U.S. Navy's prowess against foreign enemies.

Even before she was launched, Begin points out, Quincy had formed a special bond with her namesake.

"Prior to her commissioning, Mayor Thomas S. Burgin asked the school children of Quincy – 'from the tiny tots of the first grade to the large boys and girls of the graduating class in high school' – to help purchase a gift for the ship from the city," Begin says. "These gifts would be a flag of the City and a national ensign (American flag). Strict rules were to be adhered to in that each child could donate one penny and one penny only towards this gift.

"There would be no bills or no checks. All children in public and private schools were invited to participate. An estimated 1,400 pennies were collected and used to purchase both flags which were presented to Capt. William F. Amsden."

Begin notes there was another gift from Mayor Burgin and other city officials. They were two maritime paintings by the noted marine artist Frank Vining of Hingham. Both paintings depicted the frigate John Adams in engagements in the early 1800s.

"These were built into the walls of the officers' wardroom," Begin says. "Upon hearing the loss of Quincy in 1942, copies of each painting were given to the Crane Public Library where they currently hang in the director's office."

Mayor Burgin picked at random two school children to present the gifts. One of them was Gemma Fertile, who grew up in Quincy and worked for the city for 30 years – most of them as an administrative assistant with the Planning Department. She retired in 1995.

Quincy was laid down by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company at the Fore River Shipyard Nov. 15, 1933. She was launched June 19, 1935 and commissioned at the Boston Navy Yard Jun 9, 1936.

"The city was very proud of this new vessel," Begin says. "She incorporated the latest technology and represented the best our Navy had to meet the growing threat of Japan. But even more than that, she represented hope, a chance to improve one's lot, to get a career and at the same time see the world.

"In 1936, we were still crawling out of the Depression. Unemployment was high and jobs were scarce. Recruiting posters saying 'Join The Navy And See The World' must have had a huge pull on young men. Serving your country was a well-recognized deed."

From her commissioning in 1936 until the outbreak of hostilities, Quincy would roam the seas.

"She would be an ambassador of good will and also a sign of America's prowess in naval matters," Begin continued. "Her crew would enjoy liberty in foreign ports, compete in various sports events throughout the fleet, and in general, duty was good.

"We had the best ships, the best officers, the best training, and nobody could beat us. Spirits were high amongst her crew. She was known as a happy ship."

As the world drifted closer to war in Europe and the Pacific, Begin said, Quincy's capabilities as a state-of-the-art ship would increase in the public mind giving forth a very high sense of morale and confidence.

"The stark realities of Pearl Harbor and other allied defeats would challenge this sense of superiority," he adds.

On Dec. 7, 1941, Quincy was at Capetown, South Africa, having escorted a convoy of British troops. She would report to the Atlantic and serve in Neutrality Patrols until reporting to the New York Navy yard in April of 1942 for a refit prior to deployment in the Pacific.

Three months later, in July, Quincy got underway for the South Pacific with other vessels assembling for the invasion of Guadalcanal. Prior to the Marine Assault on Guadalcanal Aug. 7, Quincy destroyed several Japanese installations and an oil depot during her bombardment of Lunga Point. She also provided support for the Marines during the landing.

When she sank two days later at the Battle of Savo Island, one of the casualties was a sailor from Quincy, Begin noted. His name was Lloyd Roy Buffington, a Machinist Mate First Class, who is listed on the Quincy casualty list. His wife was named Carol and they lived on Brockton Avenue in Quincy.

Begin also says there were at least two sailors from Quincy who survived the sinking.

The first was Pvt. Donald E. Clark of the Marine Detachment, formerly of Billings Rd., North Quincy. Begin said Clark was listed as being Wounded in Action. The other sailor was George Parsons, GM3C, formerly of Quincy, who escaped injury.

Quincy's story of civic pride – and the anniversary of her loss – should always be remembered.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A real photo postcard view of Wollaston Beach about 1915. This scene near Sachem Street was just a few years after the old Metropolitan Park Commission built the Boulevard and beach. This stretch along here previously was salt marsh to the water's edge. The crowd in the middle of the view are standing and sitting on one of a number of rafts placed just off the beach for the swimmers. On the sand, striped canvas beach chairs were obviously very popular. It must have been a warm day with all the bathers in the water, but notice the women in long dresses and the men with suits, ties and hats. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

South Shore Support Services, Inc. Charity Golf Tournament

South Shore Support Services, Inc., will hold its fifth annual Charity Golf Tournament featuring a dinner/auction Friday, Sept. 21 with a 12 noon shotgun start at the South Shore Country Club, Hingham.

The group's goal is to help people with development disabilities.

This year's tournament is dedicated to Maureen Richard, a tireless advocate of individuals with development disabilities.

According to board member Annie Ballem of Quincy, the donations from the event will help individuals with 24-hour support for their needs, and flexible family support for adults and children, sharing living concepts, teen vacation camps, adult foster care, recreational events and evening classes for adults.

South Shore Services Inc., is guided by the belief that the individuals with needs that they support are the directors of their plan for support services. To that end, the agency works to empower each person to make informed life choices. They support the person's pursuit of a quality of life which is free from self-imposed and/or external barriers.

The event will begin with registration at 11 a.m. Raffle tickets will be on sale. At noon, the shotgun start and tournament and hole-in-one play.

At 5 p.m. there will be a cocktail hour followed by dinner, dancing and auctions.

Says Coverage Of Sen. Brown Visit Unbalanced

As the only newspaper devoted exclusively to Quincy, The Sun does the city an invaluable service.

But you would serve us far better if you kept your political biases out of news coverage.

A case in point: Your article on Scott Brown's recent visit to the city ("Brown Accents Small Business at Local 7-Eleven"), which suffers from the same lack of balance that has characterized the Sun's reporting on Brown since his election to the U.S. Senate.

First of all, reporter Emily Taft, echoing Brown's self-presentation as a bipartisan figure, repeatedly points to his endorsement by "two well-known Democrats," one of whom is Michael Bloomberg, the New York City mayor. What's actually "well-known" about Mayor Bloomberg is that he's not a Democrat. The mayor has been a registered independent since 2007. From 2001, when he first ran for mayor, until he switched to independent, he was a registered Republican.

Worse, the article allows Brown supporter Dennis Lane to take a poorly phrased quotation from President Obama ("You didn't build that [business]") and attribute it again and again to Brown's electoral opponent, Elizabeth Warren, with the strong implication that Warren dislikes private enterprise. Not only doesn't reporter Taft question Lane about his misattribution of the words, but she doesn't even seem to have contacted Warren or her campaign for a response to the attacks by Lane and Brown that make up the bulk of the article.

If she had, your readers might have learned that, Brown and Lane's partisan attacks aside, Warren takes a nuanced and sensible position on business and the economy. She believes, with most professional economists, that economic growth depends on individual initiative but also on things that only government can provide—things such as good public education, police and fire protection, a 21st century infrastructure, and the kind of financial regulations that would have prevented the 2008 economic collapse.

Martha Plotkin

Editor's Note: The reference of "two well-known Democrats" can be attributed to an editing error which The Sun regrets.

The Sun also welcomes Elizabeth Warren or a campaign spokesperson to respond to the article.

Petitions Urge Cruiser Be Named USS Quincy

Petitions were circulating in the city with a goal of 50,000 names to have the Navy Department name the cruiser that was being built at the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Fore River yard the USS Quincy.

The first signatures affixed to the petition on the steps of the First Parish Church were those of Mayor Thomas J. McGrath and City Council President John P. Flavin.

The oldest signer was Charles H. Spear, 85, and, the youngest was Carter E. Fizette, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fizette, 118 Vassall St., Wollaston, who solemnly shook hands after signing.

A capacity audience at the Strand Theater backed up the petition by singing "Name the New Cruiser USS Quincy," written by theater organist R. Gladstone Kingkade.

GOLFER EMERSON HAILED

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Cape Cod Chicken With Buttermilk

Around our house, we start cooking when we're young. At least for today's recipe, prepared by my granddaughter Ellie, 11, who was so excited to tell me about a fried chicken recipe she found recently while she was vacationing on Cape Cod and made for all of us.

I know that most fried foods are frowned upon, but this one eaten once in awhile is worth it.

ELLIE'S CAPE COD CHICKEN

- 3 cups flour
- 3 teaspoons salt
- 2 teaspoons pepper
- 1 1/2 teaspoons sugar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons paprika

- 1 1/2 cups buttermilk
- 2 eggs
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 3/4 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 broiler (cut in 8 pieces)
- 4 cups peanut oil (for frying)

Mix the milk, eggs until well blended. Add all of the other ingredients except the flour and chicken, and mix into a smooth batter.

On one dish, place the flour. Begin by placing the chicken, first in the batter, then the flour, then back to the batter and the last, the flour. Shake off any excess, and cook in the hot peanut oil until brown on both sides. Drain on paper towel, and keep in a warming oven until it's time to serve.

Peach, Pecan Upside-Down Cake

If you like a pineapple upside-down cake, I think you will love this new recipe I found recently—a peach, pecan upside-down cake.

Here are the ingredients you'll need for the cake and for the bottom of the cake:

Peach, Pecan Upside Down Cake

For the cake

- 1 stick butter
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 eggs
- 2 1/4 cups cake flour
- 2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons milk

Cream the butter and sugar together. Add the eggs and the vanilla. Add the flour, baking powder, salt alternately with the milk and beat for two minutes.

For the bottom of the cake

- 3 large peaches (peeled and sliced)
- 3 tablespoons melted butter
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup chopped pecans

Lay the sliced peaches on the bottom of a baking pan. Melt the butter, and add the sugar and salt together. Add just about 1/4 cup of water to the mixture and blend. Place over the peaches, and then the pecans. Pour cake batter over and bake in a 350 degree oven for 30-35 minutes. Let cool before removing it onto a cake rack.

'Kites In The Park' Fest Sunday

The Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission will present the fourth annual "Kites in the Park" Fest Sunday, Aug. 12 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Pageant Field, Quincy.

Free kites will be distributed to the first 75 children. Make your own kite with the experts.

There will be kite flying demonstrations, a dj with games and prizes, and food vendors.

Participants are also invited to bring their own kites. Kites will also be on sale.

For more information, call Event Coordinator Dick Herbert at 617-842-2860.

Children's Programs At Library

By JULIE RINES

Crane Public Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library announces the following children's program.

Be a Superhero

On Friday, Aug. 10th stop by the Main Library any time between 2 and 4 p.m. to create a superhero costume. Come make a cape, a mask and a utility belt. There will be three crafts to make, some comic book pages to take home and fill in and a photo op where you can get your picture taken defeating the evil Dewey Decimator!

Movie: Wizard of Oz

On Tuesday, Aug. 14th at 2 p.m. at the North Quincy Branch Library.

Kansas girl Dorothy Gale (Judy Garland) and her dog, Toto, are whisked by a tornado into the magical land of Oz in this much loved musical adaptation of L. Frank Baum's classic novel. Dorothy joins the Tin Man, the Scarecrow, and the Cowardly Lion on an adventure down the Yellow Brick Road to persuade the Wizard to help her find her way home.

Parents should be aware that while this movie is rated G some younger children may find the witch and flying monkeys scary. Run time 102 minutes. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library.

Art-to-Go

Art-to-go is an eight-week series of drop in art activities that travel throughout Quincy. Supplies for the week's project will be available on Mondays at the Main Library; Tuesdays at Adams Shore; Wednesdays at North Quincy and on Thursdays at Wollaston so stop by anytime from 2 and 4 p.m. and make a craft.

Projects are open ended to accommodate a wide age range. They are easy enough for toddlers and preschoolers to do with an adult's help and free form enough for school age children to add their own personal touch. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library.

Storyteller's Series

Aug. 14th brings Storyteller Sharon Kennedy back to Quincy with a storytelling show entitled, "Dream Big". Sharon will tell an African story called "The Turtle Who Wanted to Fly" from her first album of stories. Turtle is so convinced he can fly that he borrows feathers from a pigeon friend and gives it a try.

Children will clap and sing to help Turtle out with his "big dream." Then the storyteller will relate a tale of a girl who plants a carrot seed in a tiny plot in the city. No one thinks she can make it grow but her dream is... you guessed it, very BIG!

For this story the audience will quickly learn the plot and tell it along with Sharon. Chants and songs in between stories will keep the performance lively and fun.

Then comes the tale of the servant boy who is sure the king is coming to get him and take him for a ride in his chariot. He dreams big, no-one else believes him, and you'll have to come to the show to see who is right and what happens.

Bring all your dreams big and small to the show. If you would like to write up your dream (children and parents too) on a folded piece of paper and give them to the storyteller that night, she will share a few of them with the audience. You don't have to tell which one is yours!

This program is for ages five and older. Sponsored by the Quincy Arts Council

"Let's Play Together"

Pajama Storytime

On Wednesday, Aug. 15th at 6:30 p.m. Storyteller Diana Kane of Creative Connection presents "Let's Play Together," pajama storytimes designed especially for children ages 2-5 and their parents.

Every Wednesday evening will be filled with activities for children and adults to do together.

Come see Ms. Diana for an hour of interactive stories, partner dances, playing in a band and singing together. Ms. Diana is a music specialist and storyteller who has prepared a six week program that is designed for adults and children to enjoy stories and songs as a family.

This is a great time for you and your children to sing, dance, listen and talk with each other. Program is sponsored by the Quincy Arts Council.

Arts Affair Draws Crowd

Artists were also given the chance to win first, second, and third place cash prizes for their artwork in six different categories along with a prize for best in show. Ruthe Sholler from the South Shore Art Center won the Best in Show prize of $250 for her pastel drawing titled 'Interlude.'

When the event started 17 years ago, it was held outside on the boardwalk where the paintings were tied to railings, and it continued to be an outside event until four years ago after the committee voted to have the event held indoors going forward because of inclement weather that happened at past events.

"It is a lot of work especially putting together the ad book," said Reisberg. "We are lucky if we break even, and if we do make any profit it usually goes right back into the prizes we give out the next year."

Reisberg said the event isn't about raising money but about having fun and being able to see old friends and beautiful pieces of art.

"We have more fun than anything else," said Reisberg. "It's a time to see old friends and art that will knock your socks off."

Resident Arraigned On Bank Robbery Charges

A North Quincy resident is due back in court on August 29th on charges she robbed a Colonial Federal Savings Bank last month.

On July 16, Meredith Cuniff, 37, of 190 East Squantum St. entered Colonial Federal's branch on Beach Street and passed a note to a teller demanding money, according to Quincy Police Detective Sgt. Richard Tapper. Cuniff allegedly took $6,000 from the bank.

Quincy Police began investigating the crime, and reviewed footage from security cameras. Detectives soon matched those images with ones from a robbery that previously took place in Boston.

By SCOTT JACKSON

City-owned beaches have been closed 11 times so far in 2012, down slightly from last year.

Quincy takes water samples from each beach every Wednesday, and posts the findings of those samples the next day. The city tests water for enterococcus bacteria. If more than 104 colony-forming units of the bacteria are found in 100 milliliters of water, the beach is considered unsafe for swimming. In most cases, the city will continue testing beaches with higher than acceptable bacteria counts each day until the water is safe to swim in.

Water is tested from the beginning of June until the end of August. In all of 2011, water from city-owned beaches, which don't include Wollaston Beach, was found to be unsafe 17 times. So far this year, water has tested unsafe 11 times. Health Commissioner Drew Scheele said water quality has been good this year.

"For the most part the beaches have been pretty good," Scheele said.

In the most recent tests, taken on August 1st and released the following day, Rhoda Beach's colony count was the highest at 96, and many beaches had counts of 20 or under.

Bacteria counts can often spike after rainstorms. Scheele said beachgoers should avoid swimming the day after heavy rains.

"My advice is to give it two tide cycles, 24 hours, and mother nature will flush it right out," Scheele said.

Exposure to water deemed unsafe to swim can cause a variety of symptoms. They include nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, soar throat, cough, and rash. Symptoms are generally minor, though they can be exasperated in young children, the elderly, and those with compromised immune systems.

The city isn't responsible for testing Wollaston Beach, which is owned by the state Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR) and tested everyday. The 104-colony limit also applies to Wollaston Beach. In addition, Scheele said the state does close the beach after heavy rainstorms for precautionary measures.

"If there is a rainstorm the prior day, they will close it as a precautionary measure," Scheele said.

images on the site and contacted Quincy Police.

"Relatives of the bank robber saw the images on Mass Most Wanted," Tapper said.

After the Quincy robbery, Cuniff allegedly robbed a bank in Marshfield. That lead to the images being posted on Mass Most Wanted, a website with pictures of suspects. Last week, relatives of Cuniff saw the clined to be interviewed by detectives.

She was then arraigned for the Quincy robbery in Quincy District Court. A not guilty plea was entered on her behalf on a charge of unarmed robbery and released on $1,500 cash bail, paid by her father. She will next appear in court on the 29th for a probable cause hearing.

Annual American Heart Association Event Sept. 15

Quincy's Kathy Keough Walking In Heart Walk To Honor Husband

Quincy resident Kathy Keough will be taking steps for a very personal reason at the American Heart Association's 2012 Boston Heart Walk.

Keough, who is captain of the "A Team," which has been among the top fundraising teams at Atrius Health, will take part in the annual event, set for Sept. 15 at the DCR Hatch Shell on the Charles River Esplanade, in honor of her husband, a heart disease survivor.

Ten years ago, Kathy's husband, Harry Keough, suffered a heart attack. It was like any other day until he started experiencing chest pain and profuse sweating. Not immediately thinking it was a cause for concern, Keough drove himself to the store and picked up some Tums.

But, when the Tums didn't help his symptoms, Keough decided that he should go see a doctor. He drove from the Brockton area to South Shore Hospital, which was closest to his house, parked in the auxiliary parking lot and walked himself into the emergency room.

Keough waited in line at the ER for 20 minutes before he finally approached a volunteer and told them he thought he was having a heart attack. He was immediately taken into the cardiac catheterization lab for an emergency cardiac catheterization that revealed Keough suffered a 100 percent blockage.

"I truly believe South Shore Hospital saved my husband's life," Kathy said, "If he was transported to Boston for the procedure, he may not have made it there in time."

Kathy said she knows her husband, who will be one of the heart disease survivors honored on stage for the Red Cap Wave at this year's walk, was lucky.

"By participating in the Boston Heart Walk, we hope to contribute to much needed awareness and funding of heart disease," explained Kathy. "People need to learn the signs and symptoms of heart disease and know when to call for help."

The Boston Heart Walk will be held rain or shine at the DCR Hatch Shell on the Charles River Esplanade. Registration begins at 9 a.m., the opening ceremonies start at 10 a.m., followed by rolling starts at 10:30 and 11 a.m. A Red cap wave featuring heart survivors will be featured in the opening program.

Upscale Apartments Proposed At Site Of Marina Bay Nightclub

Redgate has been involved other waterfront developments throughout the country. Among other projects, the firm was responsible for helping plan and permit Boston's Fan Pier, a 20-acre property, and a 70-acre project in Atlantic City. Warwick said that like those areas, Marina Bay is a sensitive waterfront.

The buildings would be built in two distinct phases. The first phase would include 260 units, and the second would have the remaining 200. Each building would be six stories tall and include two levels of podium parking. One parking level would be at street-level and wrapped by retail, the other would go underground.

Because the project is still in the conceptual phase, it hasn't been submitted to the city just yet. Before they submit it, a community meeting hosted by Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee will be held at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 22nd in the cafeteria inside 500 Victory Road. The councillor said he's holding the meeting to gauge the response of his constituents and developers say they will use the feedback to iron out some final details of the plan.

McNamee hasn't seen plans for the buildings yet. But some residents have contacted him about the proposal. They've expressed some concerns over parking – which is already scarce at Marina Bay – and hope the buildings have enough spots to be self-sustaining.

A bigger concern is over the look of the buildings. Residents want the new properties to blend in with Marina Bay's other ones.

"It's kind of early, but the real concern is that aesthetically the buildings fit in with the rest of the marina," McNamee said. "Residents want very high-end construction."

Residents of Marina Bay have often complained about the club and its patrons. According to McNamee, common complaints include noise, unruly patrons, and large crowds which may be a public safety risk. And the club's always been an issue for residents.

"It's been problematic since day one. It's a nightclub that's a few hundred feet away from very expensive apartments," McNamee said. "I can't think of a bigger juxtaposition."

Marina residents won't be the only ones pleased to see the club go. McNamee explained that since the club was housed in a tent, it didn't pay its fair share of real estate taxes since tents are considered unimproved structures. That arrangement benefited the club's ownership at the expense of taxpayers.

"Taxpayers will be happy," McNamee said. "It's been consuming city services and never paid real estate taxes."

Includes New Drainage Culvert And New Pipe; Lane Restrictions On Southern Artery At Night Flood-Relief Project In Russell Park Neighborhood

Mayor Thomas Koch's flood-relief project overhauling the storm water infrastructure in the 128-acre Russell Park neighborhood has reached its next step: night work is expected for the next few weeks to replace a 700-foot drainage pipe along Southern Artery.

In a statement released by the Mayor's Office Tuesday, the Southern Artery work is one component of the Russell Park project that includes the replacement of more than 2,000 feet of drainage pipe that are crumbling and eroding and contributing to flooding problems in the neighborhood.

Coupled with plans for a new tide gate at the Broad Street outfall that is designed to handle stormwater from the neighborhood, the project is a $1.3 million component of more than $12 million in flood-relief projects citywide as part of Mayor Koch's Capital Improvement Plan.

"This is an aggressive, affordable and necessary investment in the infrastructure of this neighborhood, which for too has been subjected to an inadequate and collapsing stormwater system," said Mayor Koch. "These projects across the City are vital to our future, and it shows without doubt that this community will not ignore its infrastructure needs."

Overnight work will mean lane restrictions in the area of Southern Artery nearest Mount Wollaston Cemetery, but will not require detours.

In addition to the Southern Artery drainage pipe replacement, the project being led by C. Naughton Corp includes another 700-foot of new drainage pipe on Woodward Avenue, repairs to pipes on Edgewood Circle and Edgemere road among other components.

According to the Mayor's Office, engineering crews inspected thousands of feet of drainage pipe of the project. In areas where replacement is not necessary, tons of sediment will be removed to improve flow in the pipes, officials said.

A new drainage culvert is being installed on Russell Park near the site of the new city track facility.

'Ice Age' Film At Free Family Fun Night Wednesday

A free family fun night featuring bingo and the movie "Ice Age" was scheduled Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at Pageant Field under the pavilion.

Those attending were encouraged to bring bug spray and a blanket.

The free movie night is sponsored by the City of Quincy, Mayor Thomas P. Koch and the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission, Leo Kelly chairman.

Fenno House

Fun-Raising Fair Aug. 17-18

Fenno House, 540 Hancock St., Wollaston, will hold its fourth annual "Fun-Raising Fair" Friday, Aug. 17 and Saturday, Aug. 18 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The event will be held in the Common Room and includes a giant yard sale, raffle prizes, cold drinks and a bake sale.

Fenno House is a not-for-profit assisting living and independent apartments for seniors.

Proceeds from the fair will benefit the Activities Fund.

Asbestos Abatement Begins At Old QHS

the Mayor's Office Tuesday stated the abatement process is a routine procedure that is undertaken in many older schools and hospitals that remain active, so officials stressed that there is no public health risk for such work being done in a closed building in sealed areas.

The asbestos removal is the first step toward demolishing the old Quincy High School, which the School Committee voted to be torn down to create additional campus space for the new Quincy High next door.

Work is anticipated to take about a month, and there will be no work conducted school hours, city officials said.

Some time after the asbestos is removed, the city will move forward with the demolition of the building.

Discussion with the permitting authorities relative to the full demolition of the building are on-going, said Chris Walker, spokesperson for Mayor Tom Koch.

Mary Dowling - Heart, Soul Of Quincy Recreation - Retires

Administrative Assistant Bids Farewell To The Job She Loved For 25 Years

By EMILY TAFT

In 1987, Quincy resident Mary Dowling received a job offer to be the administrative assistant for the city's Recreation Department.

Now, 25 years later, Dowling is saying goodbye to the one thing she enjoyed doing every single day since she was hired.

"I just loved getting up, I had my coffee brewed, went to work. I got into a routine. I loved my job at the Recreation Department," said Dowling. "I just don't know what I am going to do now. Retirement and starting a new chapter is a scary thing to me."

Dowling, who is 82 years old, said her final good-byes to over 175 friends and co-workers at a retirement picnic held in her honor at Pageant Field July 31.

"It was very overwhelming, there were so many people that showed up," said Dowling. "I haven't seen some of them for years, and some traveled from all over just to be here. It was time to retire, time to start my next chapter in life. God closes one book and opens another one."

At her retirement reception, Dowling received a citation from Mayor Tom Koch proclaiming July 31 "Mary Dowling Day, a cake reading 'Don't Hesitate, Recreate,' and a beach chair with her name embroidered on it along with the department's motto, 'Don't Hesitate, Recreate.'"

Dowling has personified that motto since she was hired in 1987 because she loved the message it conveyed.

"When I got there I loved it, and I would sign it on all the Christmas cards," said

Dowling. "I just liked it. It really got well known, and when I would call city hall I would say it before hanging up. It got to a point where they would say it before I could."

Dowling has worked for the City of Quincy since 1975. She first worked at City Hall for 12 years as a payroll clerk before joining the recreation department as a dedicated administrative assistant.

Dowling decided to apply for the job at the recreation department after seeing a posting for it while working at City Hall. The job offered $50 more a week and at the time she needed the extra money.

"I had three children in college, that's why I went back to work originally. Fifty dollars a week raise, seemed like a dream job, I figured I had nothing to lose," said Dowling. "You wouldn't believe how awful the interview was. They asked if I could type, no (she couldn't). They asked if I could spell, absolutely not (she told them)."

"I said 'well this is good, that's that, it's over. There are 14 others waiting out there for the interview, so I guess I can forget about it.' Two weeks later the call came in asking when I could start work. I said I would have to think about it."

Recreation Director Barry Welch said she was the obvious choice for the job and that she was hired for her people skills and commitment.

"The one thing to know about Mary is she is the heart and soul of our department," said Welch. "We've all been very fortunate to have Mary as long as we have. She embraced her job like you never would have expected. We are really going to miss her."

Dowling said the best thing about her job was the children she was able to work with day in and day out, and that is the one thing she will miss most.

"The kids are wonderful kids," said Dowling. "They are so dedicated, I just love the kids."

Welch said that Dowling would never forget a birthday or congratulations card for the over 250 kids that would work there throughout the years. He said that Dowling would make sure to include any newspaper articles that might mention the kids and their achievement along with their paychecks. She also remembered to give the kids a birthday card, which always included a little note she had written.

"She embraced everyone who came through our door," said Welch. "She knew everyone's name, and she wanted to know everyone's name. She is a wonderful person who deeply cared about every individual here."

Dowling said that now that she is retired she isn't sure what she will do with her free time and that she doesn't want to start thinking about that next part in her life until September.

"I am going to be a beach bum until the end of August, no one can talk to me about anything. I promised I wouldn't think about anything until (the summer) is over," said Dowling. "I love the beach, absolutely love it. I love Nantasket."

Although she is unsure of what she will do with all her free time, Dowling has plenty of options to choose from. She said that she has received a few job offers - one from her son's company, Medicine Wheel Production in South Boston - and another as a hostess at a local restaurant.

"I don't know what I am going to do," said Dowling. "I will probably volunteer for a couple of days at my son's business but I am not sure yet. I have not been home a week since I retired. Maybe it is because I am scared of retirement."

VINTAGE-STYLE MEN'S WATCHES

As much as wristwatches are must-have items in nearly every man's jewelry wardrobe, it may come as a surprise that men seldom wore watches prior to World War II. During the war, necessity dictated that soldiers, sailors, and pilots wear watches for organizational purposes. The watches of the period were small, simple, easy-to-read models with mechanical systems. Today, these "vintage" wristwatches are collector pieces, particularly those with high-recognition names that are representative of overriding quality and precision. Due to current popular fascination with the period, partly inspired by the TV show Mad Men, vintage-style wristwatches are also very popular. Smaller (33-36 millimeters in diameter) and simpler (no stopwatch feature) than their modern counterparts, these watches ooze style.

Dress up that classic look with a man's vintage style watch. Come into our store, located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center, to uncover the exact watch that is perfect for accenting your wardrobe. Contact us at 617-773-3636 and let us assist you in making a confident jewelry purchase.

but wondered if there were some things my Quincy public school education left out.

For that reason, I decided to take part in Saturday's Discover Quincy Days event, which aims to boost tourism and educate the public on the lives of some of Quincy's most notable citizens.

The tour, which is sponsored by The Quincy Chamber of Commerce, is broken down into three itineraries. Itinerary 1: The Adams Experience, showcases the various homes of the Adams family. Itinerary 2: The Quincy Experience, allows participants into the homes of the prominent Quincy family. Itinerary 3: the Walking Quincy Experience, guides you to important statues and leads to Hancock Cemetery, the original resting place of John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

I chose to go on the Adams Experience and Quincy Experience tours, knowing that all of the historic sites I was about to see are rarely open to the public on the same day.

I made my way to the Adams National Historic Park Visitor Center to take part in "The Adams Experience." I, along with a group of around 30, boarded a trolley and headed to our first stop; the birthplaces of John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

An enthusiastic guide led us into the home where John Adams spent his childhood years. She narrated the early life of the future president and noted that as a youngster he did not excel in school, stating that he found his teachers to be boring. Being given a tutor, he excelled in academics and attended Harvard University, not for an education pertaining to politics, but for theology.

The birthplace of John Quincy Adams, a mere stone's throw away, was sparsely furnished, yet offered small glimpses as to what life was like in 18th century New England.

A device used to mold musket balls sat on the mantle atop the large kitchen oven. The guide informed us that Abigail Adams, like many other women of the era, began melting pewter plates to provide the raw materials necessary to make musket balls for the underfunded militia. "How could I have been anything but a patriot, when I came downstairs to smell my mother making bullet soup," wrote John Quincy Adams, in one of his surviving journals.

We reboarded our waiting trolley and made our way to the Adams National Historical Site or "Old House at Peace field," home to four generations of the Adams family. Before we entered, we were told to refrain from touching anything and to not lean against rails and walls, as all of the furnishings were authentic.

I immediately noticed the lavish furniture which filled the home. Surprisingly, most of it was second-hand, according to our guide.

John Adams made little money as an American ambassador in Europe, and resorted to buying used furniture during his time in France. That same furniture, which he shipped to Massachusetts, later sat in the White House during his time as President.

Of note were bundles of thin wires running along the top of the walls in most of the home's rooms and hallways. These wires ended up being part of a sophisticated system used to call housemaids to different rooms. A simple pull of a lever in the upstairs library would result in one of several bells sounding in the kitchen, each bell corresponding to a different room. The bells ranged in size and an experienced housemaid would be able to tell which bell sounded based on its pitch alone.

The Stone Library, located behind the "Old House", is considered to be the first Presidential Library in the United States and houses over 14,000 books. As per John Quincy Adams's request, the structure was constructed to be fireproof. The inaugural portrait of John Adams still hangs inside.

After completing "The Adams Experience," I headed over to the Quincy Historical Society to begin "The Quincy Experience" tour. A shuttle brought us to our first destination: the Josiah Quincy House, home to Colonel Josiah Quincy.

The home itself can be easy to miss. It's surrounded by relatively modern, single family homes and its newly renovated, late-colonial style exterior causes it to blend in with its surroundings.

Once inside, we were told the history of this particular branch of the Quincy family, which produced six subsequent Josiah Quincys, including three Boston mayors and a president of Harvard University. In fact Josiah Quincy III, during his time as mayor, organized the construction of one of Boston's greatest tourist attractions: Quincy Market. Surprisingly, even today it's used much in the same way it was in the 1820s - to house an indoor collection of food vendor stalls.

Our next stop was The Dorothy Quincy Homestead, childhood home to Dorothy Quincy, who later married John Hancock.

After briefly viewing the well manicured garden, we entered the home's moderately sized kitchen. Our guide told us that most activity took place in the kitchen, which didn't seem unreasonable until I found out that Dorothy Quincy shared her home with 15 family members. As daily hygiene was a foreign concept at the time, sprigs of aromatic herbs were hung around the room to keep things as "pleasant" as possible.

I doubt that helped make things "pleasant."

Our attention was directed toward a clock which, curiously, was missing the minute hand. We were informed that the minute hand wasn't missing at all. The people of the time simply didn't care to know how many minutes past the hour it was. Knowing the approximate time was good enough.

Placed throughout the rest of the home were items which added a human touch to what originally seemed like a museum display. A porcelain baby doll in a wooden cradle and books on subjects ranging from horticulture to Roman mythology served as a reminder that Dorothy Quincy, and her immediate family members, were not merely historic figures, but rather people not so different than ourselves.

Each tour experience encourages participants to end their journey with a stop at The United First Parish Church, which houses the tombs of John Adams and his wife Abigail, and John Quincy Adams along with his wife Louisa Catherine.

Sue Vaughan of Bourne enjoyed visiting the city's historical sites last year so much that she brought her sisters with her this year to share in the experience.

"I've been three times and I learn something new from it every single time," she said. "I would recommend many people to come."

I would also recommend people take part in one, two, or all three of the itineraries. I gained a new, more realistic perspective on the Adams and Quincy families, and picked up facts rarely taught in the schoolroom.

If you'd like to experience what Quincy has to offer, you still have one chance left. "Discover Quincy Days" tours will be offered Saturday, Sept 1.

G.I. Ginger Betty Foundation Family Fun Day Saturday

The G.I. Ginger Betty Foundation will host its sixth annual Family Fun Day - "Sharing Cookies, Making Friends" - Saturday, Aug. 11 from noon to 5 p.m. at The Summer House Tent at Marina Bay.

"For the past few years, the Foundation has provided smiles to our little soldiers and their families back in the States by delivering Gingerbread Houses and cookies to their homes," said Beth Veneto, owner of Ginger Betty's Bakery. "We also send out APO boxes full of our signature Ginger Snap cookies overseas to our troops to enjoy so we can illustrate our gratitude of their daily sacrifices for our country.

"In order for the Foundation to continue providing these uplifting treats to the many soldiers and their families in our community, we need you and your family to join the fun on Aug. 11 for this great cause."

The festival features interactive activities and fun, including: a boardwalk parade (starts at 12:30 p.m. at the Clock Tower); "crazy critters," cookie decorating, letters for soldiers, bounce house, giant slide, 50-50 raffle, silent auction, prizes and games and activities for the kids.

Festival tickets include all activities and lunch (hamburger/hot dogs, dessert and drinks).

Tickets are $20 per adult, $5 for kids 12 and under - purchase tickets at the festival. All proceeds will support the Foundation.

350 Local Kids Enjoy Day Trip To Spectacle Island

Over 350 Quincy kids from various programs, including the IDILL Learning Center, the Germantown Neighborhood Center, and the South Shore YMCA Teen Camp recently took a free day trip to Spectacle Island in Boston Harbor as part of Save the Harbor/Save the Bay's All Access Boston Harbor Program.

The group met at Boston's Bank of America Pavilion before setting sail on the Provincetown II for Spectacle Island, where they participated in a hands-on experience to learn about Boston Harbor's marine environment and Spectacle Island's unique treasures and history.

All Access Boston Harbor is a free educational and recreational program that offers over 6,500 kids from Boston's neighborhoods and surrounding communities the chance to explore Boston Harbor and the Harbor Islands throughout the summer. For some of the kids, it will be their first chance to experience Boston Harbor. For others, visiting the harbor is a summer tradition.

"We think it's important to share our great harbor with as many kids as possible," said Save the Harbor President Patricia Foley. "This year we have expanded our free island trips from three days a week to four, giving even more youth and teens

Harbor in July as part of Save the Harbor / Save the Bay's All Access Boston Harbor Program. Transportation was provided by the Provincetown II

the opportunity to spend the summer at the seashore."

Before setting sail on the Harbor, participants learn about the compelling history of Boston Harbor and Spectacle Island from maritime historian David Coffin. Once on the island, the kids can choose to take part in an archeological expedition called "The Treasures of Spectacle Island" along the South Beach, hike to the top of the North Drumlin to fly kites and see the 360-degree view from the highest point in the harbor, or swim and splash in the water at the North Beach.

Spectacle Island, a former landfill, is now part of the Boston Harbor Islands National Park where kids enjoy examining pieces of sea glass, broken pottery, and other artifacts.

Save the Harbor/Save the Bay's "Treasures of Spectacle Island" program offers Boston's youth and teens the opportunity to find pieces of Spectacle Island's past in order to learn more about the history of the harbor and our city. The youth are encouraged to figure out the life journey of the artifacts they discover on the beach, what they were, who used them, and how they came to Spectacle Island.

"A shard of beach glass can act as a window to the past," said Bruce Berman, director of Strategy, Communications and Strategy for Save the Harbor / Save the Bay. "Every item on Spectacle Island has a story we can learn from."

Each year Save the Harbor/Save the Bay runs free youth environmental education programs, including that combine recreation and hands-on education to bring Boston Harbor alive for thousands of Boston area young people. DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustin, D.M.D.

A BRIDGE TO SOMEWHERE

In cases where several teeth are missing or the adjacent teeth are not sufficiently strong to serve as abutments (anchors) for a fixed bridge, a removable restoration may be used. A partial denture consists of a framework that fits along the gums and other soft tissues of the mouth; attachments (clasps and rests), which connect the framework to remaining natural teeth; and artificial (prosthetic) teeth that are mounted onto the framework. Unlike fixed bridges, partial dentures are not permanently attached to underlying (prepared) teeth or implants. Instead, they derive some of their support from the gums and jawbones upon which the framework sits. Over time, as the mouth naturally changes, it will likely be necessary to adjust the denture. Nearly everyone who has one or more missing teeth is a candidate for a dental bridge. The most valuable service we can provide is a thorough and complete examination. Virtually all dental problems — decay, gum disease, jaw joint difficulties and loose teeth — are easily detected in their early stages and can be treated most economically and comfortably at that time. We are located at 44 Greenleaf Street, where we're currently accepting new patients. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a full trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. The metal framework of a removable partial denture never touches the gums, so sore spots are almost never an issue.

9-Year-Old Sydney O'Toole Beautifies With Sunflowers

If you are wondering who planted the sunflowers along Adams Street, it was Sydney O'Toole (right photo), a fourth grader at the Collicot School in Milton.

For the past two years, Syd has been planting sunflowers at the intersection along Adams and Beal Streets as part of a "Love your neighborhood project."

This year, a record 20 plants were potted and placed along telephone poles and bus stops and other areas, starting at the "Welcome to Quincy" sign across from the Villa Rosa Restaurant (left photo).

Sydney lives in Milton and often visits her Nana a few short blocks away in Quincy. She noticed the dirt of flora along the street via her Nana's house and wanted to try and make it look a little prettier for everyone.

She chose sunflowers because they are big and bright and many people would see them.

SUN SPORTS

Finished In Fourth Place With 2-2 Record Quincy Proved Its Worth At Babe Ruth Regional

By SEAN BRENNAN

Quincy made all of New England stand up and take notice at last weekend's 15-Year Old Babe Ruth New England Regional at Adams Field.

The host team lost its tournament-opener to Keene, New Hampshire 14-2 on Friday night before regrouping and storming back on Saturday and Monday to eliminate St. Johnsbury, Vermont (9-3) and Portland, Maine (11-1), forcing its way into an elimination game on Monday night versus Pittsfield, Massachusetts. Quincy came up just short of advancing into tournament semifinals, as Pittsfield ended their tournament run with a 6-3 victory.

But Quincy should be proud of what it accomplished.

Its 2-2 record and fourth-place finish in the elite tournament speak volumes about the quality of baseball talent in the city. Quincy was never overmatched; instead this was a team that was a serious contender to win the whole event, or more to the point: Quincy was not your average run-of-the-mill host team.

"It was awesome to come in fourth as the host team," said Head Coach Rick Beach following Quincy's 6-3 elimination loss to Western Mass champion Pittsfield on Monday evening. "Any Quincy team that has hosted a tournament like this (in the past) has never done any better than we did."

"We have been together as a team since these kids were nine or ten years old," Beach continued. "We were hoping teams would take us lightly because we were the host team. I am just so proud of the kids. They all did a great job and that is all you can ask."

Most teams would probably have folded following a 14-2 loss, but Quincy was resilient. This team had faced adversity before and their performance on Saturday night and on Monday afternoon proved it. While the state champions from Vermont and Maine wilted in the summer sun, Quincy seemed to thrive off playing on the edge, which is a testament to the type of ball-players being produced and coached through Quincy Youth Baseball & Softball.

This was a group of kids that you could stand behind and be proud to support and, although St. Johnsbury and Portland may respectfully disagree, Quincy was the ideal host.

Pittsfield 6, Quincy 3

Mother Nature did Quincy no favors on Sunday night when rainy weather forced the postponement of their game with Portland, ME. That contest was rescheduled for Monday afternoon and the Quincy bats came ready to play as the host team overwhelmed the Maine state champions, 11-1.

Quincy then dispersed and had to come back to Adams Field a few hours later to play Pittsfield in an 8 p.m. elimination game. Pittsfield jumped out to a 4-0 lead after one inning, but Quincy got a run back in the third before the Western Mass champs tacked on two additional runs in the fifth and held off a late Quincy rally to win 6-3.

Pittsfield scored all six of its runs with two outs.

"Two-out runs killed us tonight," said Beach. "We got the first two outs in the first inning and they score four runs and the same thing happened in the fifth. After that we had to play catch-up, but most of these kids play AAU baseball so playing two games in one day was not a factor."

Quincy had a golden opportunity to get the early jump off Pittsfield starter Devon Johnston (6-1/3 innings, four strikeouts) in the top of the first, but the crafty left-hander escaped trouble. After striking out shortstop Tyler Beach, Johnston allowed back-to-back singles to second baseman Eddie Riley and catcher Aaron Clancy. Facing the always-dangerous Bobby Salvucci, Johnston got him to bounce into an inning-ending 6-4-3 double play.

Quincy starter David Suslowicz began his outing by inducing Kevin Donati to ground out 6-3 and fanning Chad Shade, but he then walked Mitch Clary before allowing a single to Dominic Traversa. The two-out walk and single came right back to haunt Quincy when Anthony Jones roped a single to center that scored Clary. Clancy, who was looking to gun down Jones as he was attempting to advance into scoring position on the throw to the plate, air-mailed the ball into the outfield and Traversa walked home with the inning's second run. Pittsfield's Alex Carusotto then beat out an infield single and Traversa came around to score on a throwing error from Greg Paulo at third.

Johnston helped his own cause with a single that scored Carusotto. He was thrown out 8-2-4 to end the inning.

Johnston then sat down Paulo, Sean Holleran and Suslowicz 1-2-3 in the top of the second. Josh Berthiaume (single), Pat Latini (single) and Donati reached to lead off the home half, effectively ending Suslowicz's night. Beach brought on Mike Gendreau in relief and the right-hander saved Quincy a run after uncorking a wild pitch as he raced towards home and tagged out Berthiaume as he attempted to score.

Gendreau struck out Clary for the second out and then got Quincy out of trouble by getting Traversa to fly out to Colin Evans in center.

Quincy got to Johnston for a run in the third as Patrick Keohane singled and stole second before coming around to score on a RBI double by Evans. But Johnston bore down and struck out Beach, got Riley to fly out to right, and fanned Clancy as Pittsfield took a 4-1 lead into the bottom of the frame.

Gendreau easily got through the bottom of the third as he retired Jones, Carusotto and Johnston on ten pitches, but Johnston worked around a two-out throwing error on a Holleran grounder by picking off the Quincy outfielder to end the inning. Gendreau survived three walks in the bottom of the fourth as he got Clary to tap into an unconventional 3-2-3 double play with the bases loaded that kept the game at 4-1.

Johnston quickly eliminated Gendreau and Keohane in the fifth before Evans reached on an error. However, he got Beach on strikes for a third time to end the away half.

Pittsfield used more two-out magic in the home half of the fifth as Carusotto and Johnston singled to start the rally. Pinch hitter Bobby New drove in Carusotto with a base hit (5-1), and Gendreau walked pinch hitter Joey Dewey to load the bases. On came Paulo in relief and he walked Donati on four pitches (6-1) before getting Shade on a 4-5 groundout.

Quincy had one more push in them in the sixth. Riley singled and scored on a Clancy double to make it 6-3, and after Salvucci singled, Pittsfield's Andy Winston made the play of the game with a diving catch off a Paulo sinking line drive that saved at least one run and maybe more. Pittsfield brought on flamethrower Steven Witkowski who struck out Holleran and Gendreau to effectively end Quincy's tournament run.

Quincy 11, Portland, ME 1

Quincy used three pitchers (Aaron Clancy, Colin Evans, Jack Kennedy) and a potent offensive attack (13 hits, 11 runs) to eliminate Maine state champion Portland, 11-1, from the 15-Year Old Babe Ruth New England Regional on Monday afternoon at Adams Field.

Starter Aaron Clancy allowed two hits; two walks and a run in his three innings of work and Quincy used a four-run top of the third to set the pace in what became a runaway. After the host team stranded runners at second and third against Maine starter Sam Luebbert, Clancy allowed a lead off walk to Travis Godbout before retiring Will Barlock, Joe Apon (strikeout), and Pat Hall to get his outing off on the right foot.

Quincy could do nothing against Luebbert in the second, but Clancy got his offense right back in the box with an easy second frame, setting the stage for Quincy's four-run, two-out third inning rally. Eddie Riley legged out a single after Evans and Tyler Beach made outs, and Luebbert then walked Clancy and Bobby Salvucci to load the bases for Greg Paulo. Paulo hit a bouncing ball to shortstop and the throw to second was sent sailing into right as all three Quincy runners scored and Paulo took second. Sean Holleran plated Paulo with a RBI single, which put Quincy up 4-0.

Portland got its only run in the bottom of the third when Godbout reached on a one-out single and came around to score on a single from Barlock.

But Quincy closed out Portland with a six-run fourth inning. Matt Monahan started it with a single and Pat Keohane reached on an error. Evans drove in Monahan with a RBI single (5-1) and after Beach struck out, Riley plated Keohane and Evans with a clean base hit (7-1). Clancy then doubled home Riley (8-1) before scoring on a RBI single from Salvucci off reliever Pat Ball. Consecutive singles by Paulo and Holleran set the stage for Monahan's RBI hit.

Evans (two innings, three strikeouts) started the bottom of the fourth and got Dom Dimillo and Nick Bevilacqua to fly out as he stranded Dom Fagone who had singled. Quincy could do nothing offensively against Portland's Nick Carmichael, but Evans ended his outing by striking out Brad Sowerby, Apon and Carmichael in the fifth.

Reliever Jack Kennedy retired Michael Thurston, Pat Sheils and Fagone in order in the bottom of the sixth, and Evans then led off the seventh with a triple before scoring on a Beach sacrifice fly (11-1). Kennedy sent Portland packing by getting Maine 1-2-3 to end the game.

Quincy 9, St. Johnsbury, VT 3

Quincy used quality pitching, great defense, and timely hitting to defeat St. Johnsbury, Vermont, 9-3, on Saturday night. It was a complete-team effort that helped the host team rebound from Friday's 14-2 loss to Keene, NH.

"Every kid on the roster showed up to play tonight," said Head Coach Rick Beach.

"We pitched, we played defense, and we got hits when we needed them."

The pitching came from Greg Paulo who threw 74 pitches (52 for strikes), gave up one run on five hits while striking out seven batters. "Greg threw strikes, that was the bottom line, he was tremendous for us tonight," Beach said of his starter. Paulo kept Vermont off-balance by mixing up his pitches and spotting his fastball.

Paulo was supported by some excellent defense by Quincy. Centerfielder Colin Evans made two spectacular plays in the outfield with his glove and later with his arm. He made a shoe top catch on a full sprint and later when a Vermont player tried to advance to third base on a single up the middle, Evans fielded the ball cleanly and fired a dart to third baseman Bobby Salvucci for the out.

Evans (1-for-3, two RBI), Salvucci (2-for-3, double, RBI), and Mike Gendreau (1-for-3, two runs) powered Quincy at the dish. "The kids were upset with the way they played the other night (Friday's 14-2 loss to Keene, NH); they had a team meeting on their own to try and bring everyone together," said Beach about his team's pre-game preparation. "I didn't see any signs of them being nervous, everyone was real loose."

Whatever was said in that team meeting definitely worked; Quincy came out firing on all cylinders. The host team scored nine runs on ten hits — they scored early and often (at least one run in six of seven innings).

"We got hits when we needed them, we put the ball in play and we put pressure on them to make plays," Beach noted. Vermont committed seven errors in the game.

Keene, NH 14, Quincy 2

This was not the way Quincy had hoped to begin the 15-Year Old Babe Ruth New England Regional. New Hampshire state champion Keene finished with 20 hits and 14 runs, putting host Quincy directly into the elimination round.

Keene scored two runs off starter David Suslowicz in the first on four hits, but Quincy rallied behind their pitcher and tied the contest at 2-2 in the home half off Keene starter Ben Mallett (13 strikeouts). With two outs, Aaron Clancy walked and stole second. He came around to score on a RBI double from Bobby Salvucci. Salvucci scored on a two-out RBI single off the bat of Greg Paulo.

Suslowicz settled down during innings two and three, but Mallett was better as he struck out Clancy, Salvucci and Paulo to end the third. New Hampshire made it 5-2 with a three-run top of the fourth as Suslowicz allowed three hits before being replaced by Sean Holleran. Mallett roared right back in the home half by fanning Holleran, Bryan Turner and Patrick Keohane.

Keene tacked on two additional runs in the fifth on two walks and a double, and Mallett made it nine strikeouts in a row in the bottom of the frame by getting Colin Evans, Tyler Beach and Eddie Riley. Quincy reliever Jack Kennedy kept Keene at bay in the sixth, but New Hampshire scored seven runs on nine hits in the top of the seventh to win 14-2.

Tournament Notes

Pittsfield, MA (3-1) and Keene, NH (2-1) played in a semifinal game on Tuesday night. The winner of that game needed to defeat Waterford, Connecticut (3-0) twice on Wednesday in order to win the championship.

The winner of the 15-Year Old Babe Ruth New England Regional advances into the 15-Year Old Babe Ruth World Series later this month in Van Buren, Arkansas.

Milton Eliminates Wollaston In Finals

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth lost to Milton in the Southern Division Finals (Senior Babe Ruth). Milton won the best-of-three series 2-0 and subsequently won the South Shore League championship by beating Dedham.

Wollaston completed another successful season. For the third straight summer Wollaston participated in the Senior Babe Ruth State Championship and, for the second straight season, Wollaston advanced to the Division Championship before being eliminated. Wollaston had a busy summer playing 25 games over seven weeks.

Longtime Wollaston manager, Steve Reardon thanked the players for their commitment to this year's effort. In addition Reardon thanked the parents for their support, the City of Quincy for its preparation of the fields and the South Shore Umpire Association; Reardon also gave thanks to his coaches Peter Delgado and Bob Griffin.

Reardon singled out two players for special praise: Kevin Jackson and Eric Kelly, both who completed their final season with Wollaston. "I was surprised when I learned Kevin had been cut from his high school team in both his sophomore and junior years," said Reardon. "Kevin made the team his senior year and contributed to North Quincy's season. Kevin is a gamer; he never quits. He loves baseball." Jackson was Wollaston's top offensive performer, leading the team in batting, extra base hits, slugging percentage, on base percentage and runs batted in. He had two saves this season as a relief pitcher.

As for Kelly, Reardon said: "Eric was captain and was the heart and soul of the team. He is a leader who brought his 'A' effort to every game. Eric had a cannon for an arm and played superb third base, caught for us and pitched as well. Like Kevin, Eric loved baseball. I hope that both Eric and Kevin play next at the next level."

Kelly led the team in home runs, and over his three-year career he led Wollaston in batting in the Senior Babe Ruth State Tournament.

The 2012 Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth team included players from Quincy and North Quincy High, both past and present, as well as players from Archbishop Williams HS, Boston College HS, and Catholic Memorial School.

7th Annual O'Connell-Thomson Hoop Tournament Aug. 18-19

The 7th annual O'Connell-Thomson Basketball Tournament will be held Aug. 18-19 at the Fenno Street Courts. The event is held in memory of John O'Connell and Dennis Thomson, two standout athletes who graduated from North Quincy High School in 2002 and had their lives cut tragically short in the past eight years.

Their families have set up memorial scholarships in their names to benefit North Quincy graduates and the tournament serves to raise funds for these scholarships.

The weekend will feature a 16-team men's tournament and a four-team women's tournament, featuring a number of local college basketball players, as well as many of the top former and current high school players from Quincy. Games begin at 10 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday and will run throughout both days.

The event has been a great success in the past thanks to the generous donations of local businesses and Quincy residents. Anyone interested in making a donation can write a check to the John "Okie" O'Connell Fund and send it to Dan Duggan, 61 Bedford St., Quincy, MA 02169. (The donations will be split between the two funds.)

Cochrane Road Race Sept. 9

The 5th Annual Officer Jamie Cochrane Memorial Road Race — a 10K Road Race/5K Fun Walk — will be held on Sunday, Sept. 9 at 10 a.m. sharp with registration from 8-9:30 a.m. at Adams Field, Merrymount Parkway. There will be a Free Kids Fun Run at 9 a.m.

The race is held every year in memory of Officer Jamie Cochrane "S6," an eight-year Quincy Police Veteran who spent most of his career in the Special Operations Unit. He was a kindhearted police officer who always went the extra mile. On Sept. 10, 2006, Officer Cochrane was killed was riding his motorcycle.

All proceeds from the road race/fun walk will go to various local charities.

There is a $25 entry fee and online registration can be done through Sept. 6 at www.racewire.com. The first 700 registrants receive a free race t-shirt. Pre-registration and bib # pickup will be held on Sat., Sept. 8 at Adams Field from 2-5 p.m.

The flat course, including three miles of beachfront road, is USATF Certified, and RaceWire will do official timing. Prizes will be awarded to all 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place division finishers.

Post 294 Finishes Season At 16-10 Overall Morrisette Knocked Out Of Sectionals By Milton

By SEAN BRENNAN

Morrisette Post 294 was eliminated from the American Legion South Sectional tournament last week in frustrating fashion; losing 1-0 to rival Milton on July 31 at Adams Field.

Morrisette had its chances early, but Milton's Mike Demille (complete game, three-hitter) held Post 294 hitless (0-for-6) with runners in scoring position during the first three innings, while Milton managed the game's only run in the bottom of the first off Morrisette starter Luke Barkowski (5-2/3 innings).

When all was said and done, it was the lack of timely hitting that cost Morrisette the opportunity to advance back to the American Legion State Finals, which began on Saturday down in New Bedford.

"Every one of our losses this year was the same thing. Look back at the games we lost this year and the theme was lack of timely hitting," said Assistant Coach John Sullivan who was filling in for Head Coach Steve Maze. Morrisette finished the season at 16-10 overall. "We just couldn't seem to get it done (against Milton), and it is frustrating because we played really well. We played defense and Luke pitched unbelievably. But you have to give your hats off to Milton and, Mike Demille pitched a heck of a game."

"(Demille) threw strikes," Sullivan continued about what the Milton right-hander accomplished to keep a potent Post 294 offense in check. "He was keeping the kids on their front foot all night and it is tough when you have someone with a good fastball and then he comes at you with off-speed. Milton got the run they needed early and then clamped down and played some great defense behind him."

Demille was razor sharp, but Barkowski was equally as good despite the fact that he lived on the edge. The right-hander allowed back-to-back singles to Milton's Joe Ferrara and Mike Davis to start the bottom of the first before Will Archibald's sacrifice fly scored Ferrara with what would be the game's only run. After the first, Barkowski stranded the bases loaded in the second and again in the third; allowed two runners in both the fourth and fifth before escaping further damage. He was removed with two outs in the sixth after loading the bases on two hit batsmen and a single but was bailed out when relief pitcher Jack Higgins got Nick Petchell to fly to Matt Davis in right to quell that threat.

"Luke is so mentally tough," said Sullivan, "and he is one of the kids I don't ever have to worry about. All I have to do sometimes is tell him to take a deep breath and relax. Jackie was also fantastic in relief."

Morrisette had its chances early against Demille. Davis was the first Post 294 batter to reach when he laced a one-out single to right in the top of the first. He advanced into scoring position on a Kevin White groundout, but Demille ended the inning by striking out cleanup hitter Joe Alibrandi. After Demille sat down Jason Pekkinen, Tom McDonald and Bob Kozlowski 1-2-3 in the second, left fielder Andrew Currie opened the top of the third with a base hit. Currie easily stole second but Pat Verhault's fly ball to right field wasn't deep enough to advance him 90-feet to third. Demille then got Chris Connolly and Davis on groundouts to end the frame.

Barkowski kept Morrisette close by getting Milton's Brendan Mullen to ground out with the bases loaded in the bottom of the third and then White singled to lead off the top of the fourth before advancing to second on a throwing error from Demille. But the Milton ace retired Alibrandi (strikeout), Pekkinen (strikeout), and McDonald (pop to first) as Post 294 dropped to 0-for-6 with runners in scoring position.

With Barkowski working in-and-out of trouble in the fourth, fifth and sixth, Demille picked up steam, with a big time assist coming from centerfielder Derek Curley to open the fifth. Demille missed with a high fastball to Kozlowski and the Morrisette first baseman launched a deep drive to center field that Curley tracked down before making an unbelievable back-to-plate catch, which saved at least a triple and potentially an inside-the-park home run.

"I could not believe someone caught that ball," Sullivan said. "(Curley) just tracked it down. It was one of the best catches I have ever seen at Adams Field. That was a huge play. Bobby isn't the fastest (runner), but he probably gets a triple on that play; that catch changed the game right there. The baseball gods were not shining on us today."

Curley's catch was ultimately the final nail in the 2012 Morrisette season. Demille followed the highlight reel play by retiring the final eight Post 294 batters in order to close out the game.

THIRD BASEMAN JASON PEKKINEN makes a throw over to first during Morrisette's district series versus Walpole.

The loss hurt but Morrisette has nothing to hang their heads about. Their appearance in the South Sectional round marked the third time in four years the program had advanced this far in the American Legion playoffs. A year after blazing through the regular season, district round and sectional round to advance to the state finals, Morrisette's 2012 campaign was more of a grind. Post 294 started off slow, but finished the regular season by winning eight-of-eleven games before dispatching of Walpole two-games-to-none in the District 6 East/West round.

"It was a strange season," said Sullivan. "It started out a little rough and then (we) got a little hot in the middle, and we had a chance to finish in second place in District 6 East, but we lost to Hyde Park (12-8 in the final regular season game) and the kids were down. But they bounced right back in that series against Walpole when we just went out there and played baseball."

"But this was a fun season, too," Sullivan continued. "Last year we had an unbelievable team and we just rolled through it. This year these kids had to come down and battle and that is actually more enjoyable when it is like that because they came out and worked hard. We practiced or played six days a week. This team made the commitment. We try and do the right thing, have fun and play baseball. This is what we do."

Tournament Notes

Milton, by virtue of its 1-0 victory over Morrisette and a 5-0 win over Brockton, which defeated Morrisette 7-1 on July 30, advanced to the 2012 state finals. New Bedford defeated Milton on July 30 and Brockton on July 31 to finish in first place in Bracket A, but as the host site of the state finals they were already assured a spot before the South Sectional started.

LONGTIME MORRISSETTE MANAGER RAYMOND CATTANEO (center) offers some words of encouragement to Post 294 before the start of last week South Sectional playoff game against Milton. Morrisette lost 1-0 and ended their season at 16-10 overall.

TEEN-SPORT CONCUSSION RISK

As believers in the nervous system's ability to maintain and restore health, chiropractors are concerned about preserving the well-being of the nervous system's "command center," the brain. In recent years, there has been a lot of attention paid to concussions and their detrimental effects. When parents think about their children's risk of sustaining a sports-related concussion, football primarily comes to mind. However, it should be noted that, while nearly half (47%) of all concussions experienced by high school athletes happen in football, other sports also pose considerable risk. In particular, girls' soccer and basketball and boys' wrestling, ice hockey, and lacrosse are the sports with the greatest risk of head injury.

Injured kids shouldn't return to sports until fully healed.

Program Moving To New Track At Faxon Field in 2013

Quincy Track Club Celebrates The End of An Era

On July 25, the Quincy Track Club athletes, parents and staff held a group photo, the last day of club events to be held at Cavanaugh Field in North Quincy. Next spring the QTC will move into the new track facility currently under construction at Faxon Field.

The Quincy Track Club also held its annual Frank Kelly Memorial Track Meet two weeks ago at Storr's Avenue Field, the home of Archbishop Williams High School. A total of 150 athletes participated, the most in recent years. After a seven-year hiatus involving hosting the meet at Brain-tree High School and Archbishop Williams, the Frank Kelly Memorial Meet will move back to Quincy in 2013.

"The new facility should kindle increased interest in track, both in this city and in track athletes in general wanting to compete and train in a state-of-the-art track and field complex," said QTC Director Geoff Hennessy. The track project should be completed in October according to Hennessy.

Also on July 26, the QTC held a pizza party and presented certificates to 80 youngsters who completed in the Club's Track & Field University Program. This program runs Thursday throughout the spring and summer; boys and girls' ages 5-8 rotate through eight different stations with instruction in high jump, standing broad jump, mini-hurdles, turbo javelin, softball throw, running long jump, shot put and discus. Boys and girls' ages 9-14 go through a boot camp training regimen, including all the drills done by the high school teams and

A Job Well Done

On Friday, July 27, at approximately 2:30 p.m., Officer Kevin DiMattio responded to the Newport Avenue Stop & Shop to investigate a past larceny.

Upon arrival, the Officer met with Security and the 85 year-old victim, who stated that her Vera Bradley handbag was stolen while she was shopping. The victim said her wallet containing $200 in cash, her Citizens Bank ATM card and personal identification were inside the handbag. She gave the officer a description of both bags and estimated their value at approximately $100.

LT. DAN MINTON

Officer DiMattio interviewed the victim and determined that she last used her handbag making a purchase at the self check-out register. She said that she completed her purchase and went to retrieve the handbag but it was gone. The victim immediately reported the theft to a Stop & Shop employee at the service desk.

Officer DiMattio met with the store manager and they reviewed video surveillance, which showed a female suspect in line behind the victim taking the handbag. The manager stated that the suspect used a Stop & Shop card to make a purchase prior to taking the victim's bag, but the owner of the card was identified as a male who lived in Quincy.

The victim's account was slightly different than what the video showed. The victim actually walked away from the self serve area, leaving her bag behind and the suspect, who was next in line, is seen making a purchase at this register.

The video shows the suspect snatching the handbag and places it in her shopping carriage (top rack). She then quickly places the items she purchased into plastic bags and covers the handbag with the plastic bags and leaves the store. Additional footage of the parking lot showed the suspect getting into a vehicle. This license plate of the vehicle came back to the last name of the male on the Stop & Shop card.

Officer DiMattio and the Security Officer then reviewed earlier video which showed the female suspect enter the store with a male. The officer told the victim that this would take further time to investigate and that she would be contacted as the investigation progressed. Officers DiMattio and James Sullivan went to the Tirrell Street address where the car was registered to and found the car there.

The officers went to the door and met with the car owner, who confirmed that he just came from the store, was with a female and that she was in the apartment. The male invited the officers into the apartment, where the officers received their identifications. Officer DiMattio asked them if they knew why they were there and the female suspect said, "For the purse?" When asked where the purse was, the female suspect said she placed it in a U.S. mailbox in front of Richard's Market on East Squantum Street.

The female suspect said when she found the handbag at Stop & Shop, she tried to locate the old lady but she was unsuccessful. She said she took the handbag with her and put it in the mailbox on the way home. She added that "they" never looked in the handbag and did not know what was inside.

At this time, Officer DiMattio read her Miranda Rights and then asked her why she didn't bring the handbag to the service desk or place it in the mailbox outside of Stop & Shop. She responded that she didn't think to do that. The officer told the female suspect that if the handbag was located in the mailbox with the $200 and personal ID, then he would not file any charges against her.

At this time, the male stepped forward and stated, "It was a stupid thing to do. We took the money but there was only $150 in the wallet." While making these statements, the male suspect took out his wallet and placed $60 in cash on the coffee table. When asked where the rest of the money was, the male suspect said that the female suspect had it. She then confessed that she had the rest of the money and took out $90 from her purse.

The female suspect said that she had more money inside her purse but it was her child support money. Officer Sullivan proceeded to Richard's Market to locate the mailbox, then contacted the Post Office, who sent an employee to open the box. Officer Sullivan retrieved

New Foreclosure Prevention Law Expands Protections For Homeowners

Gov. Deval Patrick has signed "An Act Preventing Unlawful and Unnecessary Foreclosures," a new law expanding consumer protections on foreclosure prevention.

"This legislation establishes strong consumer protections for borrowers that are unparalleled in other states," Gov. Patrick said.

"Foremost among these protections is the requirement for creditors to take reasonable steps to avoid foreclosure for certain mortgage loans. Creditors now must determine whether the value of modifying the loan outweighs the likely value of foreclosure and, if so, the creditor must make the loan modification. This provision ensures that borrowers will be given every reasonable opportunity to remain in their homes."

The provisions of the new law also mandate that lenders prove loan ownership prior to taking foreclosure action. The law includes new protections that prohibit lenders from misrepresentation, unfair costs and imposition of fees for services not performed.

"This new law will put Massachusetts in a strong position to rebound from the housing market decline and recover from the foreclosure crisis," said Attorney General Martha Coakley. "This bill establishes first-in-the-nation standards which promote reasonable loan modifications, keep people in their homes, prevent abandoned properties in our communities, and don't require banks to sacrifice the bottom line."

Sen. Anthony Petrucci, Senate Chairman of the Joint Committee on Financial Service, said "I applaud Governor Patrick for signing this bill into law and I am hopeful that this new law will help families and our communities for years to come."

Rep. Michael A. Costello, House Chairman of the Joint Committee on Financial Services, added:

"Even as our economy has begun to recover, we have seen a rise in the number of foreclosure in the Massachusetts. This law will provide homeowners a real opportunity to receive loan modifications and keep them in their homes," said

"It is a reasonable approach, and it is a novel approach that provides an interface with loan modification specialists in the Office of the Attorney General. It will provide homeowners some of the strongest foreclosure protections in the country. This new law will save families and strengthen our communities."

Additionally, looking ahead to future remedies, the law creates a task force to study foreclosure mediation and other alternatives for homeowners, which will include the Attorney General as the Chairman of the Task Force, legislative leaders, a representative of the Massachusetts Bankers Association, and three appointees made by the governor.

"We have found that when a lender and homeowner sit down face-to-face to review a mortgage, that is when things can best happen to keep a family in its home," said Barbara Anthony, Undersecretary of Consumer Affairs and Business Regulation. "Mediation could be a valuable tool for homeowners and lenders going forward."

Gov. Patrick also directed the Division of Banks to create regulations that will enhance mortgage loan servicing standards to regulate third-party loan services. These regulations will require lenders to consider all available loss-mitigation options before proceeding to foreclosure, similar to standards created in a recent national mortgage servicer settlement with five national servicers.

Do's And Don'ts Of Apartment Hunting Tips For Consumers From The BBB

Whether you are a student looking for a place to live or your job has transplanted you somewhere new, searching for an apartment can be a daunting task.

Better Business Bureau receives hundreds of complaints against apartment complexes every year, consistently placing the apartment industry on BBB's top 25 list of most complained about industries. Of the hundreds of complaints received last year, most allege consumers were billed incorrectly, had difficulty getting their security deposits back or getting repairs handled in a timely manner.

Before signing any lease, make sure you read through the terms carefully and understand your responsibilities as an apartment tenant. Make sure the following information is included in your lease:

- specifics on how all maintenance and repair concerns are handled and within what timeframe. For example, some communities include light bulb replacement as the landlord's responsibility.

- information about what your security deposit covers and the conditions for deductions.
- the conditions under which your rent or other fees can be increased during your lease term.
- information about whether you are allowed to sublet your unit.
- when monthly payments are due and where rent can be paid.
- what insurance coverage, if any, is included.

Upon move-in, do not forget to document the condition of your apartment. Make sure to include each and every flaw or defect in your apartment so that you are not held responsible for those damages later. It's advisable to also take photos of your unit prior to move-in so that you have documentation available in case a dispute arises after move-out.

BBB also suggests renters:

- Check out the apartment with BBB first. Go to bbb.org to see the BBB Business Review of the apartment you are considering. This will show its BBB rating, any history of complaints, as well as contact information.
- Visit each complex in person before putting down a deposit. Tour all amenities to be sure they meet your needs (swimming pool, work out center, parking, ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Relationships continue to thrive, but watch for any tell-tale signs of potential problems. Take needed action now to set things straight before they become troublesome later.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your powers of persuasion, backed up, of course, by your considerable expertise, help you establish your case even to the most dubious decision-makers in your workplace.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might still be a bit reluctant to face up to some less-than-pleasant realities. But the sooner you accept the facts, the sooner you can set about making some needed changes.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Expect to make adjustments, even when things seem locked up and ready to go. But cheer up: At least one change could lead to something you've been hoping for.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The success of a recent project should do a lot to boost your self-confidence. You might want to start now to check out ways to make that long-deferred bigger and bolder move.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Ease up on the pressure you might be putting on the new person in your life. It takes time for a budding relationship to blossom. Show more patience and understanding.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You have lots of inner strength in reserve. Use some of it to resist intimidation from those who might try to impose on your good nature for their own reasons.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The good news is that your on-the-job status is improving. The one cautionary note, however, involves a personal situation you might have been ignoring for too long.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Congratulations. Once again, your sharp Sagittarian "horse sense" helps you work through a complicated situation that would leave most people confused.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Plan on indulging yourself in some well-earned good times through much of the week. Then be prepared to face some thought-provoking issues by the 18th.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Positive factors continue to dominate following a recent change in both your professional and personal lives. Expect to make contact with someone from your past.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Workplace stability allows you to continue making progress on your projects. But don't ignore your personal life. Spend more quality time with those special folks.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have the gift for making people feel special. Maybe because you know how special you are.

RELIGION

St. Chrysostom Episcopal Church Hosts Job Search Workshop

St. Chrysostom Church in Wollaston recently hosted a workshop entitled "I can't find a job because..."

Speaker Cheryl Gelzer Alexis, J.D., Human Resources Professional at Harvard University, presented practical knowledge and excellent insight and information that most job seekers had not heard before.

The workshop was attended by many who said the tips and strategies learned would definitely help their job search.

CHERYL GELZER ALEXIS

St. Chrysostom has been hosting the The Greater Quincy Career Club (G.Q.C.C.) for over a year and a half, and has been instrumental in assisting over 35 members to obtain permanent positions. The G.Q.C.C. also receives support from the South Coastal Career Center.

The club meets at the church Thursday mornings from 9:30 a.m. to noon. Refreshments are served and all are welcome.

Bethany Congregational Church

Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center will have Sunday Worship Service at 10 a.m.

The Rev. William C. Harding, will conduct the service and preach a sermon entitled "Wisdom & Love."

Fellowship with light refreshments will follow the worship service.

All are welcome to attend Bethany Church Worship Services and its numerous group activities.

Bethany has a Youth Group, a Men's Group, an Outreach Mission Group doing various charity works and a Friday morning Bible Study Class.

The church office is open from 8:30 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m. Visit the church web page: www.bethanycongregationalchurchquincy.org for updates and activities.

Thanks to the Video Ministry, those unable to attend worship service Sundays, the Bethany Church Service is broadcast on Quincy Access Television at 6 p.m. on Thursday evenings on Channel 8.

Childcare will be available for infants and toddlers during worship service on Sundays.

The church is wheelchair accessible.

OBITUARIES

Frank E. Morse

Former Owner Of Morse's Auto Repair; Merchant Marine Veteran Of World War II

A funeral service for Frank E. Morse of Andover, formerly of Quincy, was conducted Aug. 4 in the First Calvary Baptist Church, North Andover.

Mr. Morse died July 20.

Raised in North Quincy, he left home at 17 to serve his country as a member of the United States Merchant Marines during World War II. His travels took him through the North Atlantic, Panama Canal and South America.

Mr. Morse later earned his Bachelor's degree in Business from Northeastern University. He had a chance meeting at the train station with an acquaintance from junior high, Louise A. Pennington. Together for over 50 years, she was the love of his life, mother of his three children and a business partner at Morse's Auto Radiator, Inc. Settling in Squantum, he was devoted to his family and a respected businessman, stating that he and Louise valued "the three L's" — love, loyalty and labor. He also enjoyed boating, skiing, traveling, iceboating and fishing.

After more than 30 years as a principal at Morse's Radiator, he retired to Falmouth. In recent years he relocated to Andover and finally to Brookby Village in Peabody.

Husband of the late Louise A. Morse; father of Frank Jr. and his wife Carol of Andover, Arthur and his wife Alison of PA and Kim and her husband Bruce Round of North Andover; companion of Yvonne Talbot; brother of the late Ralph and Earl Morse; son of the late Esther and Chester Morse; grandfather of the late Katie, Christina and Angela Morse.

He is also survived by seven grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Interment was in Spring Grove Cemetery, Andover.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Burke-Magliozi Funeral Home, Andover.

Edward T. Dobbyn, Jr., 94

Business Vice President; Navy Captain

A memorial graveside service for Edward T. Dobbyn, Jr., 94, of Issaquah, Washington, formerly of Quincy, was conducted Aug. 3 in Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Mr. Dobbyn died March 30, 2011.

Born, raised and educated in Quincy, he graduated in 1934 from Quincy High School. He attended Exeter Philips Academy for one year, and then graduated in 1939 from Harvard University. He later earned an M.B.A. from Harvard Business School in 1952.

He lived in Washington for one year, previously living in California for many years. He lived in different states throughout his life including several years in Virginia and Illinois. He also lived in France for two years.

Mr. Dobbyn served in the United States Navy with 23 years of service. He attained the rank of Captain and served during World War II and the Korean War. He retired in 1963.

He then worked for Consultants and Designers in Hollywood, CA for over 20 years. He was a Vice President and Manager in the Western Division. He also served on the YMCA Board of Directors in Hollywood and was an active member and Past President of the Hollywood Rotary Club; he was also an avid photographer.

EDWARD T. DOBBYN, JR.

Husband of Irma W. (Wall) Dobbyn; father of Edward T. Dobbyn III and his wife Kristine of WA; grandfather of Heather and Rebecca; brother of the late Robert E. Dobbyn and the late Barbara D. Egan.

He is also survived by four great-grandchildren and many nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, Quincy.

Winifred 'Claire' McKeough

Former President Seaside Gardeners

A funeral service for Winifred "Claire" (Sacco) McKeough, 87, of Williamsburg, VA, formerly of Squantum, was held Monday in the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Mrs. Keogh died Aug. 1.

Born and raised in Boston, she worked as a medical lab technician at Boston City Hospital before her marriage.

Former president and longtime member of the Seaside Gardeners of Squantum, she volunteered for many years at Squantum Elementary School's reading program and library. She was as an avid gardener with a green thumb, but she also enjoyed traveling world wide — both lifelong passions she shared with her family and friends.

A skilled cook, she will be remembered particularly for her outstanding blueberry pie and amazing New England clam chowder. She enjoyed good mystery novels, British comedies, classical music and could play the piano by ear beautifully. She will be sadly missed by all those who knew her.

The beloved wife of the late Robert P. McKeough, MD.

WINIFRED McKEOUGH

Cherished mother of Deborah McKeough of Williamsburg, VA, Linda Busshaus and her husband Frank of Palm Bay, FL, Patricia McKeough Bandon and her husband William of Katonah, NY and Jenifer Vespoli and her husband James of Wexford, PA.

Devoted grandmother of Emily Owens and Adam Busshaus of FL, Lauren and Julia Vespoli of PA and John and Isabel Bandon of NY. Great grandmother of Isaac Owens of FL.

Loving sister of Audrey Moody of Norwood and the late Diane Stempleski and Frederick Sacco. Sister in law of Michael Stempleski of Hanover and Joan Sacco of Attleboro and the late Joseph Moody. Dear cousin of Priscilla Kelly and John Zona of Clearwater, FL.

Burial was in St. John Cemetery, Gardner.

Nicholas Varraso, 85

Former Welder; Veteran

A funeral Mass for Nicholas Varraso, 85, of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy.

Mr. Varraso died Aug. 1.

Born in Quincy, he was raised and educated in Quincy schools and was a lifelong Quincy resident. He worked at the former Fore River Shipyard in Quincy for General Dynamics as a welder. He had 22 years of service and when the shipyard closed in 1986 continued to work as a welder at various shops until retiring in 1998.

Mr. Varraso was a United States Navy veteran of World War II. He served as a seaman 2/c on heavy cruiser, U.S.S. Columbus (CA-74), which was built in Quincy at the Fore River Shipyard. He received the Asiatic-Pacific Medal.

He was a former member of the George F. Bryan VFW Post in Quincy and the Sons of Italy. He was a lifelong active parishioner of St. John the Baptist Church in Quincy and was a well-known usher for many years.

Mr. Varraso was devoted to his family.

Husband of the late Barbara E. (Salvatore) Varraso; father of Nicholas R. Varraso and his wife Pamela of SC, Robert D. Varraso and his wife Kathleen of Quincy and William C. Varraso and his wife Rosa of Quincy; grandfather of Nicholas K. Varraso and Amanda Rose Varraso; brother of Charles Varraso, Albert Varraso, both of Braintree, and the late William Varraso and Julia Varraso.

He is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Interment with Military Honors was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Seasons Hospice & Palliative Care, 275 Grove St., Suite 3-102, Newton, MA 02466.

Manet Community Health Center Hosting Open Houses

Manet Community Health Center is marking National Health Center Week this week (through Saturday) with a series of open houses and a Summer Seaside Celebration and Reception in Hull to which the public is invited.

The events will celebrate National Health Center Week and the U.S. Supreme Court's June 28 decision upholding the Affordable Care Act. The Act calls for Community Health Centers to play a central role in the nation's high quality, low cost health care delivery solution. Through the Act, millions of dollars are being infused into Community Health Centers nationwide for renovation and capital expansion projects in anticipation of the Act's increase in the numbers of Americans eligible for health insurance coverage – from 20 million to 30 million – by 2014.

Across Massachusetts last year, Community Health Centers provided medical, dental, mental health and other primary care services to 615,700 patients during 2 million patient visits.

Manet's National Health Center Week and Seaside Summer Reception sponsors include: Arcadia Solutions, Boston Medical Center Health Net Plan, Eastern Bank Foundation, the Massachusetts League of Community Health Centers, Merrill Associates, Dr Joseph Peppe and Walgreens.

"This is the perfect time for residents of the South Shore to get to know Manet Community Health Center," said Joseph M. Reardon, Manet's president. "We are working on every level to fulfill our commitment to provide accessible, quality health care for all."

Open houses were scheduled Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m., daily.

The schedule for Wednesday through Friday is:

- Wednesday, Houghs Neck, 1193 Sea St., Quincy.
- Today (Thursday), Snug Harbor/Germantown, 9 Bicknell St., Quincy
- Friday, 180 Washington Boulevard, Hull.

Visitors may take part in tours of Manet's practice sites, collect healthy-living tips, register as a new patient, receive confidential HIV testing, and sign up for the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program and the Women, Infants and Children Nutrition Program. In addition, Bostontech and Yozell Associates have donated Red Sox

Tickets and an iPod for door prizes. Also, there will be kids' activities and healthy snacks, along with voter registration.

Tonight (Thursday), Manet will host its Summer

Seaside Celebration and Reception at Nantasket Beach Resort, 45 Hull Shore Dr., from 6 to 9 p.m. Tickets are $40 for one, $75 for two or $300 for a table of 10. For more information, call 857-403-0424 or email events@manetchc.org.

"As we continue to grow in response to community need, we will be better equipped to serve as our patients' primary Medical Home, and to enhance access to care throughout the region," said Manet CEO Henry N. Tuttle.

Studies indicate that Community Health Centers already do an excellent job of expanding that access, particularly to underserved populations. Moreover, recent studies by the Stanford University Preventive Research Center show that government-funded Community Health Centers provide better care than private practices, Tuttle said.

"Community Health Centers like ours give people the possibility for a healthier future—with quality health care and social services that afford all families – including those living in poverty — ways to change their lives for the better," said Tuttle. "We must continue to ensure that Community Health Centers receive the support they need for this important work."

New RMV Phone Number

The Massachusetts Department of Transportation announces a new telephone number for Registry of Motor Vehicles business and transactions: 857-DOT-8000/857-368-8000.

The number serves the RMV's Call Center which answers, based on 2011 call volumes, an average of 45,000 calls each month.

Over the next year, customers will become familiar with the 857-DOT area code and exchange as MassDOT offices across the Commonwealth transition to the new number. The telephone transition will result in annual phone bill and maintenance savings of approximately $422,000, according to state officials.

The RMV's new telephone number, 857-DOT-8000 is being advertised inside Registry branches, on the MBTA system and through the Highway Division's digital billboard PSA program throughout the month of August.

The RMV reminds customers that there are two dozen transactions that may be performed online at mass.gov/RMV.

the handbag from the mailbox and returned to the apartment. The female suspect said she was embarrassed and apologized for stealing the handbag. The male suspect reiterated, "It was a stupid thing to do."

Although the male suspect insisted they only took $150 from the purse, the female suspect said she would be willing to make up the $50 difference. She then retrieved another $50 from her purse and handed over to Officer Sullivan. A total of $200 was placed in the victim's wallet.

At this time, Officer DiMattio placed the female, a 55 year-old Salem, MA., resident under arrest for larceny over $250 (bags included) and transported her to the station for booking. The male suspect, a 59 year-old Quincy resident, was informed that he would be summonsed to court on charges of larceny under $250. A copy of the video was made for court purposes, photos of the stolen bags were taken and then the bags and money were returned to the shaken elderly victim.

Do's And Don'ts Of Apartment Hunting etc.). Websites often use pictures taken only from the best locations on the property or of promotional units.

• Keep a signed copy of the lease. Keep your lease in a safe place in case you need to refer back to it.

• Know your rights as a renter. Check with your local regulatory agency to see what the renter laws are that apply to your area. Housing codes, which govern apartment rentals, are set by local authority – city, county or state.

• Consider renters insurance. When a tenant's belongings are damaged or stolen, the apartment complex is very rarely held liable. Renters insurance would cover your losses in the event of fire, burglary or other damage. Pay attention to deductibles and coverage limits when choosing a policy.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Fundraiser For 18-Year-Old Emily Haines At Commonwealth Restaurant

Benefit Aug. 16 For NQHS Graduate Diagnosed With Leukemia

A benefit for 18-year-old Emily Haines of Quincy, a 2012 graduate of North Quincy High School who was recently diagnosed with leukemia, will be held Thursday, Aug. 16.

The event will take place at the Commonwealth Restaurant, 79 Parkingway, from 6 to 11:30 p.m. Aug.

There will be raffles, a dj, food and t-shirts/bracelets for sale to support Emily.

The fundraiser is being coordinated by a group of Emily's neighbors and friends to offer support to her and her family.

A lifelong Quincy resident, Emily was diagnosed with ALL (Acute Lymphocytic Leukemia) the Tuesday after Memorial Day.

Emily is a recent graduate of North Quincy High School. Due to inclement weather, graduation was postponed a few days, and with the continued threat of rain, the graduation was held inside.

Although Emily wanted to walk with her class and receive her diploma, it was decided it would be too dangerous given her weakened immune system.

Emily is the youngest in her family and has two other sisters and an older brother. Although Emily responded well to chemotherapy and other treatments she began in early June, she has a long road ahead of her.

Her family has been informed that the expected course of treatment will run at least two years. Emily is receiving her care at Childrens Hospital, Boston.

Tickets for the benefit fundraiser are available by visiting <http://emilyhaines-fundraiser.org/> or at the door.

For more information, call or text 617-276-6657 or 617-653-1311.

Donations can also be mailed to 149 Milton St., Quincy, MA 02170.

REMEMBERING USS QUINCY – World War II Navy veteran Daniel H. Galvin, a survivor of the sinking of the USS Quincy, salutes after his American flag – raised on the USS Constitution and then at half-staff at the DPW flagpole – is returned to him by HM2 Crystal Galvin of the Navy Operational Support Center in Quincy. The moment was among the highlights at a poignant and patriotic ceremony outside the city's Department of Public Works facility marking the 70th anniversary of Quincy's sinking Aug. 9. A granite memorial commemorates the ship outside the facility near the flag pole.

Evelin Valibayova Missing Since July 17, 2011; Billboards Boost Investigation Public Appeal For Info About N.Q. Woman's Disappearance

Law enforcement authorities hope new billboards in the Quincy and Greater Boston area will lead to information about a 24-year-old North Quincy woman who disappeared more than a year ago.

The billboards urging anyone who knew Evelin Valibayova or have information about her disappearance from her North Quincy apartment July 17, 2011, to contact police went up this week in Quincy and other Greater Boston locations. Those billboards are located at Neponset Avenue at the bridge; Southern Artery near Stewart Street; Route 3A (Bridge Street) in Weymouth and one in Mattapan.

Tribute To USS Quincy On 70th Anniversary Of Sinking 379 Men Who Went Down With The Ship 'Will Never Be Forgotten'

By EMILY TAFT

Quincy remembers the Quincy.

And she won't be forgotten.

In a poignant and patriotic ceremony, the city and U.S. Navy remembered the 379 sailors who went down with the ship 70 years ago Aug. 9 when the Quincy-built heavy cruiser USS Quincy (CA-39) was sunk by Japanese naval forces at the Battle of Savo Island.

The ship's 70th memorial service was held outside the Department of Public Works facility where a small granite memorial sits next to the flag pole in tribute to sailors who perished in that battle in the South Pacific. Some 100 veterans, city and Navy officials and citizens attended.

As American flags fluttered behind him, Firecontrolman First Class Daniel H. Galvin, one of the 650 crew members to survive the sinking, read the names of his fallen shipmates. When he was done, the 91-year-old Hanover resident said he was grateful for the memorial service.

"Thank you all very much for this commemoration ceremony," said Galvin. "The whole ceremony has been more than I ever expected."

Galvin joined the Navy when he was 19 years old to see the world, and at the age of 21 he boarded the USS Quincy.

Last Thursday's ceremony marked the first time Galvin had read the names of Quincy's fallen sailors in public. Until last week, on the anniversary of the Quincy's sinking, he would read that list in private at home.

"THANK YOU all very much for this commemoration ceremony," said USS Quincy sinking survivor Daniel H. Galvin. "The whole ceremony has been more than I ever expected."

Dressed in the same uniform he would have been wearing as a sailor 70 years ago — a chambray shirt, denim pants, and sailor hat — he read 30 or so names and paused to remember his shipmates as a ship's bell tolled twice during each pause.

"Every year he puts on his sailor uniform from 1942 and reads the names of each of the 379 men who went down on the USS Quincy," said Navy Operational Support Center Quincy Commander Brock A. Miller. "Mr. Galvin once said 'I worry when I'm gone no one will remember these men.' Well Mr. Galvin, we stand here today to let you know that they will never be forgotten."

DPW Commissioner Daniel Raymondi said Aug. 9 is a day to remember, reflect, and rededicate.

"Today is a day to remember the extraordinary service and sacrifices of the men of the USS Quincy, especially those who gave the ultimate sacrifice — their lives. We will never forget their bravery, courage and commitment; to protect and defend our most cherished beliefs, freedom and democracy. We are gathered here today to honor these heroes."

"Today is a day to reflect

ABOUT 150 people, including Navy personnel, veterans, citizens and local officials, attended the city's 70th memorial service for the USS Quincy Aug. 9 outside the Department of Public Works facility.

upon the survivors of that battle and that war. People like our guest of honor, Daniel H. Galvin and others like him, who answered their country's call during times of war. But their service to country did not stop at war's end. They simply just changed uniforms. They took off the uniform of sailor, soldier, airmen and they returned home and put on the uniform of police officer, firefighter, factory worker, nurse.

"They raised their families, worked in our schools, offices, hospitals, building stronger communities, building a stronger America."

"Today is a day to rededicate ourselves to the ideals for which these sailors died. And to the obligation that we all share as fellow Americans to keep alive the great hopes of the American people as embodied in the principles of our Declaration of Independence, our nation's Constitution, and Bill of Rights."

The memorial and the men who served and died on the USS Quincy would never be forgotten, Raymondi said.

"We owe a debt to these men, who loved their families and loved America, yet they spent long years in foreign waters far from home. They loved freedom yet they sacrificed their own so that we may be free," said Raymondi. "They defended our right to live as individuals yet yielded their own individuality in that cost."

"They valued life, yet bravely readied themselves to die in service to their country. America continues to rely on her sons and daughters to defend her liberty all across the globe. The cost of independence remains high."

"This memorial right here at 55 Sea Street honors the dead and remembers the living. And it will stand for generations to come, long after the last survivor passes from this earth. Seventy years later Quincy remembers the USS Quincy CA-39."

Throughout reading the many names of his fallen shipmates Galvin would pause and speak of some of the men he served with, including the USS Quincy Captain, Samuel Moore.

"Captain Moore needs accolades, and I am going to tell you what a smart warrior he was," said Galvin. "We were on board the ship at the time, without the props running, high-level bombers were going over, and the captain asked Clyde Bolton who was the firecontrolman... the captain said to him 'when you see the bombs come out of the bomb bay let me know.' Pretty soon Bolton yells 'bombs away' and the captain put the ship into high gear and the bombs landed in our wake."

"Second time the captain out smarted the enemy,"

Friday From 7 to 9 P.M. At Veterans Memorial Stadium Candlelight Vigil To Raise Drug Abuse Awareness

The City of Quincy will host a candlelight vigil to bring attention to the issue of substance abuse Friday, Aug. 17 from 7 to 9 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium, 870 Hancock St., Quincy.

The vigil — originally scheduled for Aug. 10 — was postponed due to inclement weather and rescheduled for tomorrow evening.

The public is invited to join concerned citizens of Quincy, Braintree, Randolph, Weymouth and other South Shore communities to remember those lost to drug overdose and give hope to others still struggling with addiction.

"Join us to reduce the stigma that surrounds addiction as we remember friends, family and community members," said Arlene Goldstein, program coordinator for Impact Quincy. "Let's stand together as a community to bring a face to these individuals, support each other, and make our voices heard to fight this devastating problem."

A list of names of those who have died from substance abuse will be gathered. Registration of names to be read during the program will be collected from 6:30 to 7 p.m.

Candles will be provided and lit when the names are read aloud during the program. Participants are also encouraged to bring a photo of their loved one.

The program will commence at 7 p.m. and continue until 9 p.m. There is no cost to attend the program.

Parking is available with handicap access at the rear of the stadium.

Goldstein said opioid addiction is a serious medical problem and causes the brain to "rewire" because of the addiction.

"More people die of drug poisonings than car accidents in the state of Massachusetts," she said. "The City of Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree, and Randolph are experiencing this issue along with many towns along the South Shore."

"Since 2010, Quincy Police, when first to the scene, have reversed overdose in 98 individuals with Naloxone, (Narcan). For families directly impacted, the cost is immeasurable in terms of psychological stress and financial burden," she said, adding "the cost to the state is millions of dollars."

Goldstein pointed out that in fiscal year 2011, there were 102,789 admissions to substance abuse treatment services in Massachusetts. Of this number, 2,233 were under 18 years of age, according to the Massachusetts Department of Public Health, Bureau of Substance Abuse Services, Office of Statistics and Evaluation.

"The reason for this vigil is to bring light, education, and truth to the issue. Prevention works," Goldstein said. "For every dollar spent in prevention, seven dollars is saved."

QUINCY COLLEGE President, Peter H. Tsaffaras, Dean of Liberal Arts, Dr. Henry Rubin, and Director of International Student Services, Ela Kijowska, recently welcomed 20 Chinese educational leaders to Quincy College. The visit included classroom observation and meetings with the Quincy College faculty.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On Aug. 16, 1896, George Carmack spots nuggets of gold in a creek bed near the Klondike River in Canada's Yukon Territory. His lucky discovery sparks the last great gold rush in the American West. Over the next two years, as many as 50,000 would-be miners arrived in the region.
- On Aug. 17, 1915, Charles F. Kettering is issued a patent for his "engine-starting device" -- the first electric ignition for automobiles. In the early years, drivers used hand cranks to start the internal combustion process that powered car engines.
- On Aug. 14, 1935, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signs into law the Social Security Act. Although it was initially created to combat unemployment during the Great Depression, Social Security now functions primarily as a safety net for retirees and the disabled.
- On Aug. 18, 1940, Walter Percy Chrysler, the founder of the American automotive corporation that bears his name, dies in New York. Aside from automobiles, Chrysler was known for financing the 77-story Art Deco Chrysler Building skyscraper in midtown Manhattan. When completed in 1930, it was the tallest building in the world and the first manmade structure to top 1,000 feet.
- On Aug. 19, 1953, the Iranian military, with the assistance of the United States government, overthrows the government of Premier Mohammed Mosaddeq and reinstates the Shah of Iran. As thanks for the help, the Shah signed over 40 percent of Iran's oil fields to U.S. companies. However, the Shah was toppled from power in 1979.
- On Aug. 13, 1961, East German soldiers begin building a wall between Soviet-controlled East Berlin and the democratic western section of the city. Berlin residents found themselves cut off from friends or family until the wall was dismantled in 1989.
- On Aug. 15, 1983, Hurricane Alicia forms south of Louisiana in the Gulf of Mexico. Three days later, the Texas Gulf Coast is slammed by the storm, causing 21 deaths. The $2 billion in damages recorded was a record for hurricane damage in Texas at the time.

Hall Of Fame Honor For Jim Asher

The honor couldn't be more appropriate.
Or fall on a more fitting date.

The late James D. Asher -- founder of former local radio station WJDA -- will be inducted into the Massachusetts Broadcasters Hall of Fame Thursday, Sept. 13 during a luncheon at the Boston Marriott Hotel in Quincy.

The date also marks the 65th anniversary when WJDA -- Radio 1300 AM -- first went on the air: Sept. 13, 1947. The initial broadcast at 6 a.m. that morning realized Asher's dream to some day own and operate his own radio station. In the early days, he was joined by the late Joe Tobin. Mr. Tobin left WJDA a few years later for a radio station in New York.

Asher will be among 14 Hall inductees this year. Others include industry luminaries such as former television meteorologist Dick Albert, TV news anchor Jack Williams and radio host Matt Siegel.

Asher will also join several WJDA alumni who are already enshrined in the Hall. They include the late Don Kent, the station's first weather forecaster who went on to WBZ radio and television fame; the late Ken Coleman, the former high school sportscaster who grew up in North Quincy and later became the radio "Voice of the Boston Red Sox;" and broadcaster Don Latullippe whose 70-year radio career included working for Asher after school as a board operator and record librarian.

The mission of the Hall is to honor the Massachusetts broadcasting industry's most noteworthy members, commemorate their singular achievements and meritorious contributions to the broadcasting profession and preserve their work for future generations.

Asher certainly fits that criteria. He will be recognized as a radio entrepreneur and steward of WJDA. He managed the station for nearly 26 years until his death in 1973.

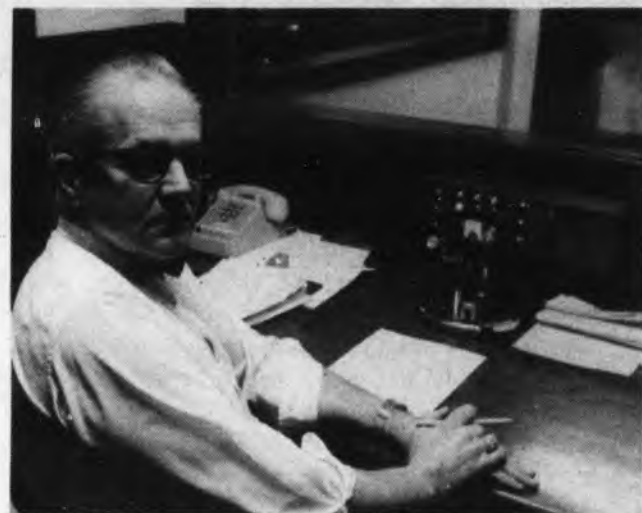

JAY ASHER

"I'm very pleased that my father's being inducted," says Asher's son, Jay Asher, who succeeded his father as station president. "He is exactly the type of person who should be memorialized and recognized by the Association."

"This is an honor that he deserves and I'm proud of the organization that did it. The on-air people are well-recognized and they should be. The entrepreneurs -- who are a little harder to find -- have their place, too."

Asher was more than a radio pioneer. He was a pillar of the community who deftly handled a myriad of station responsibilities while serving on various boards including the South Shore YMCA, Colonial Federal Savings Bank and the Quincy Rotary Club. He was also the city's Civil Defense director for a number of years.

WJDA FOUNDER James (Jim) Asher shown behind the mic at one of the early "Breakfast with JDA" programs. Mr. Asher will be inducted posthumously into the Massachusetts Broadcasters Hall of Fame Sept. 13 - exactly 65 years to the date the station first went on the air in 1947.

"He'd get up at 4 in the morning and go to work so he was gone in the early morning including Saturdays," Jay says. "Sometimes he'd come home in the afternoon and take a nap but then he'd get up and go to night meetings. Back in the day, if you volunteered to serve on these boards, you met at night."

"That's what he wanted to do. He didn't come home tired, he didn't complain. He had enough discipline to take care of everything."

Asher's passing some 39 years ago was a huge loss for Quincy and the community. He received heart-felt tributes from many who called him a man of honor and integrity.

One friend and contemporary was Henry Bosworth, late founder of The Quincy Sun. In an editorial tribute to Mr. Asher -- that became part of a memorial read into the Congressional Record on the floor of The Capitol by Rep. James Burke -- Mr. Bosworth said Asher was a success on and off the air.

"Jim, people have said, was a success in life," Bosworth wrote in June, 1973. "But he was much more than that. He was a success as a human being."

"True, he was a sharp businessman who could be tough when needed. But he was a good family man, a square shooter who believed in fair play, and was always ready to offer a helping hand."

RADIO STATION WJDA's first studio was located in this wooden building on Brackett Street. The building was later demolished making room for a new modern facility behind it. This area became the station's parking lot. The station's call letters WJDA were an acronym for its founder, James D. (Dudley) Asher. This letter combination was among several submitted to the FCC for approval. WJDA was the one selected.

Scenes From Yesterday

Rock Island, Quincy, Mass.

6294-PUBLISHED BY ARTHUR H. DUNHAM, HOUGHS NECK, QUINCY, MASS.

THIS 1912 postcard is a view of the summer cottages built just over 100 years ago facing Rock Island Cove in Houghs Neck. This part of Rock Island was inaccessible by land until a bridge was built on Rock Island Road in 1904 to cross over a creek. The Manet Land Company then laid out these house lots separating every three or four with small public access roads to the water. Today, most of these cottages have been expanded into year-round waterfront homes and are pretty much hidden from view by trees and bushes. Most all of them have private piers and floats for their boats and many have swimming pools. On the right the view is across the Fore River to North Weymouth. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Della Chiesa, McIntyre Warm Up

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa charged that City Council President James R. McIntyre was "playing politics with Quincy's economic future" by using stalling tactics against so-called "West of the Tracks" development.

"I regret that the Mayor has introduced personalities in this issue which involves so much municipal money," retorted McIntyre, who was preparing to run against Della Chiesa for mayor in the fall elections.

The West of the Tracks development was a $700,000 plan to provide more parking space and better traffic approaches to the underdeveloped area owned by the Grossman interests across the Old Colony tracks from the Ross Parkingway.

SEEK NAVY INTERVENTION

The Shipyard Workers Union warned that members might stop work in East Coast shipyards where naval vessels are under construction unless the Navy Department intervenes in its contract dispute with the Bethlehem Steel Company.

The Navy had declared its neutrality in the dispute, which saw members of Local 5 and Local 90 working without contracts at the Fore River Shipyard.

"Unless you dissuade the company from imposing upon its employees the outrageous deterioration in working conditions which the company has demanded our union cannot long prevail upon its members to remain at work," said union officers in a telegram to the Navy.

Thanks Harvey's Salt Water Fishing Club

I just wanted to say thank you to the Harvey's Salt Water Fishing Club for the day for the veterans. It seems everyone gets thanked for the help on a fantastic day - it takes a lot of people - but I want to thank the club for the year-round work doing things as simple as straightening out the fishing lines and as complicated as getting all the groups and volunteers together on that day.

I have helped several times but I know there are those Daves and Tims and Matts and Johns and Bills and Jerry's... you get the idea some of whom have showed up for 40 plus years. The lobsterman have been there all along.

I want to thank them all for what they have and will do for the vets - our heroes. Thanks to all the kids in skiffs way back when. This is and has been very important for the vets and the people involved thank you, all thank you.

I am humbled around these veterans and bless them all and thanks to the club for 56 years of wanting to help our veterans.

Another Concern For Beachgoers: Bacteria In Sand

I read Scott Jackson's article "City Beaches Closed 11 Times" (Quincy Sun, Aug. 9) with interest.

I was struck by the advice of the Health Commissioner Drew Scheele for beachgoers to avoid swimming after heavy rains: "My advice is to give it two tide cycles, 24 hours, and Mother Nature will flush it right out."

Makes sense for the water but there is another concern for parents at the beach. The bacteria does not get flushed out of the sand so well. What is a day at the beach without building a sand castle or burying someone in the sand?

The EPA, citing a study in Epidemiology (June of 2012), advises "The (gastrointestinal) symptoms we observed are usually mild and should not deter people from enjoying the beach, but they should consider washing their hands or using a hand sanitizer after playing in the sand or water."

I would emphasize that beachgoers would be wise to wash their hands thoroughly before eating a snack or meal while at the beach.

Gas Prices Up 9 Cents

Gasoline prices in Massachusetts are up nine cents this week, according to AAA Southern New England.

AAA's Aug. 14th survey of prices in Massachusetts found self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $3.679 per gallon, nine cents more than a week ago. Prices locally are up 20 cents over the past month. The current price is three cents below the national average for self serve unleaded of $3.70. A year ago at this time the Massachusetts average price was $3.66.

The range in prices in the latest AAA survey for unleaded regular is 30 cents, from a low of $3.55 to a high of $3.85. AAA advises motorists to shop around for the best prices in their area, and to make sure they and their passengers buckle up - every time.

AAA Fuel Saving Tip of the Week: Choose a vacation spot where only minimal driving will be needed after you arrive.

Children's Programs At Crane Library

By JULIE RINES

Crane Public Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library announces the following children's program.

Having Fun with Dinosaurs & Fossils

On Friday, Aug. 17th at 10:30 a.m. in the Main Library Large Meeting Room dressed for digging, intrepid fossil hunter Paulette Morin introduces children to the wonders of dinosaurs and our prehistoric past.

Using a five-foot tall book and lively storytelling this presentation touches on the who, what, where and when of the dinosaurs. Paulette brings along more than 100 fossil specimens many of which the children can examine first hand. So grab your pith helmet and join us as we learn more about our favorite prehistoric creatures.

This program is for children ages 4 and older, younger children are likely to be bored by the length of the program and detailed discussion.

Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library

Art-to-go is an eight-week series of drop in art activities that travel throughout Quincy. Supplies for the week's project will be available on Mondays at the Main Library; Tuesdays at Adams Shore; Wednesdays at North Quincy and on Thursdays at Wollaston so stop by anytime from 2 to 4 p.m. and make a craft.

Projects are open ended to accommodate a wide age range. They are easy enough for toddlers and preschoolers to do with an adult's help and free form enough for school age children to add their own personal touch.

Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library. Project for the week of Aug. 20th is Skyscraper Collages.

5th Annual Summer Talent Show

Kids in Quincy are a talented bunch! On Wednesday, August 22nd at 6:30 p.m. in Main Library Large Meeting Room come see your friends and neighbors show off their talents. All performer spots are filled but we'd love to see you in the audience.

'Exploring Houghs Neck' Presentation, Walking Tour

Patti Williams and Gail Freel of the Houghs Neck Garden Club will give a free illustrated talk describing some of the geology, history and natural features of Houghs Neck Tuesday, Aug.

21 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

They will also talk about some of the Houghs Neck Garden Club's projects, including the creation of the Leo Kelly Park.

Information will be available on how to join the Club.

On Saturday, Aug. 25 at 2 p.m. the public is invited to take part in a free guided walk of Houghs Neck, featuring the beautiful Leo Kelly Park, a 175-year-old tree, beautiful salt marshes and ocean views and fun facts such as how the Willows got its name.

Participants should meet at LaBrecque Field (Sea St. at the intersection with Rockland St.) It is recommended walkers bring water and wear a sun hat as well as insect repellent.

Because the walking trail has some poison ivy, walkers may also want to wear long pants and socks.

The rain date for the walking tour is Aug. 26. For more information and rain date rescheduling, call 617/472-0799.

The program is sponsored by the Quincy Park Department's Environmental Treasures Program, the Houghs Neck Garden Club and the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Golf Tournament To Honor WWII Navy Veteran John (Jack) McSweeney

World War II Navy veteran John (Jack) McSweeney, a former Quincy resident and member of the Cyril P. Morrisette American Legion Post in Quincy, will be honored at the Massachusetts Highway Association Golf Tournament Tuesday, Aug. 21 at the Brookmeadow Golf Club, 100 Everenden Rd., Canton.

Proceeds from the tournament will benefit two charities of McSweeney's choice:

- Honor Flight New England - taking World War II veterans free of charge to the WWII Memorials in Washington, D.C.

- Fisher House Foundation - provides a "home away from home" for military families to be close to a loved one during hospitalization for an illness, disease, or injury.

McSweeney took part in the "Honor Flight New England" program last fall, visiting Washington, D.C. with 24 other World War II veterans and guardians. His guardian on the D.C. trip was Capt. Mary Jo Majors, NC, USNR (Retired). She was the guest speaker at the city's Memorial Day observance in 2011.

McSweeney is also a member of other veterans organizations in the area.

Donations are being accepted. To make a donation, contact Larry Bombara at 508-735-1218 or Dave Capelle, 508-208-8467.

Kelsey Fischer Wins First Place In High School Essay Contest

Kelsey Fischer, daughter of Carol and Martin Fischer of Quincy, recently was awarded "First Place" by The Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts, for her 600-700 word essay on the "The Benefits of Community Gardens."

Her award included a cash prize of $200.

The Wollaston Garden Club sponsored Kelsey Fischer, in an open invitation that was printed in The Quincy Sun and aired on QATV last fall, to all high school students from Quincy, inviting them to enter the essay competition.

The garden club will again sponsor any high school students who wish to participate with more details to follow in September.

KELSEY FISCHER

The theme for this upcoming essay contest is based on the The National Garden Club Inc's conservation goal of "Ways We Can Protect Aquatic Ecosystems."

The Houghs Neck Community Council will host its eighth annual "Chowda Fest" Saturday, Sept. 15 from 2 to 6 p.m. at the Maritime Center in Houghs Neck, 137 Bayview Ave.

The "chowda fest" will feature at least two dozen homemade recipes from local restaurants and individual contestants.

Admission is $5 for the all-the-chowder-you-can-eat event.

There will be live entertainment from Rock Island Sound and a cash bar featuring wine and microbrews from event sponsors Wachusett Brewery and Geary's Brewery.

The event will also feature a selection of cold drinks and food sold by the Boy Scouts and the Houghs Neck Congregational Church will have their bake sale.

During the event, the annual "Mayor of Houghs Neck" Award will be presented.

All proceeds raised will support local youth programs of the Houghs Neck Community Council.

Individuals and restaurants interested in entering a chowder should contact Brian Laroche at (617) 786-1637 or blaroche@comcast.net.

Organizers said this year's event is expected to attract more than the 1,800 people who attended last year's event.

ENC's Jeffrey Barker Receives 'Friend of Germantown Award'

Eastern Nazarene College Professor Jeffrey Barker was honored for his contributions to the community recently, when the Germantown Neighborhood Center/South Shore YMCA presented him with the 2012 "Friend of Germantown Award."

Barker, who serves as pastor of Germantown's Bethel Church of the Nazarene, was honored for his "leadership, commitment and support of the children and families living in the Germantown community."

The award was presented at the Germantown Neighborhood Center/South Shore YMCA's annual Appreciation Day Cookout recognizing members of the community who support the center's activities.

In addition to organizing contributions to the neighborhood Food Pantry, Barker raised more than $1,500 for the Germantown Neighborhood Center through his participation in the Rodman Ride for Kids. He also serves on the YMCA board for the Germantown branch.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Easy Bake Chicken, Sausages And Veggies

On a recent Sunday dinner at my brother John and Anita's house, it was his turn to cook, and it was amazing how many kinds of food he baked in just one pan.

He mixed a combination of sausages, chicken, white and sweet potatoes, peppers, onions and then some.

Needless to say the mix was a delicious treat!

EASY BAKE CHICKEN, SAUSAGES

- 4 sausages (any preferred type)
- 3 chicken thighs
- 2 chicken breast (cut)
- 1 green pepper
- 1 red pepper
- 1 medium sized onion
- 2 medium sized white potatoes

- 2 medium sized sweet potatoes
- 2 cups chicken stock
- Salt and pepper to taste

Prepare by cutting the sausages in bite-sized pieces. Cut the chicken breasts.

The skin can either be removed or cooked with the skin on. Cut the peppers and onions in small pieces. Cut the potatoes in quarters. Season with salt and pepper.

On the bottom of the roasting pan, add the chicken stock. Place everything else on top of that, and bake uncovered in a 350 degree oven until done.

You'd think with that entrée, it would be enough, but we started out with a delicious tortellini chicken soup, and ended with peach pie for dessert!

Ann's Delicious Easy Pumpkin Cake

The day I dropped into my brother Phil's house, we were having a cup of tea with the most delicious pumpkin cake ever – baked by my niece Ann.

And when I asked her for the recipe, it was the easiest one to follow as you will see in today's recipe.

PUMPKIN CAKE

- 2 ¾ cups flour
- 1 ½ cups sugar
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 3 teaspoons cinnamon

- 3 eggs
- 1 large can of pumpkin
- 1 cup milk
- 1 cup raisins (optional)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease a tube cake or bunt cake pan.

Mix the sugar and eggs and then add the pumpkin and mix well. Add the dry ingredients and then mix alternately the milk and the flour until smooth.

Bake for one hour or until a toothpick comes out clean.

'Prairie Love' Screening Tonight At Crane

The 2011 independent film feature "Prairie Love" will be screened tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

As a mysterious high plains drifter travels across the wintry North Dakota prairie, he finds a man lying unconscious in the middle of the road and stops to lend a hand.

After defrosting, the man explains that he's on his way to meet his pen-pal girlfriend for the first time, as she's being released from prison. Desperate for a girlfriend of his own, the drifter sees this as an opportunity to change his lonely existence, and hatches a plan to steal his new companion's identity, forever changing the destinies of all three people.

The 80-minute film is not rated but is recommended for those 17 and older.

For more information, visit thomascranelibrary.org or call 617-376-1316.

As Former Mayor Frank McCauley Sees It: Cong. Ryan Selection As VP Running Mate Seen As A Risky Pick

By FRANCIS
McCAULEY

Republican presumptive presidential nominee Mitt Romney has finally made his choice of a vice presidential running mate. He is Cong. Paul Ryan, a seven-term Congressman from Wisconsin.

First elected to Congress in 1998 at the age of 28, Cong. Ryan has been re-elected six times by landslide margins. His appearance on the national ticket puts Wisconsin, a state that normally votes Democratic in presidential elections, as a state that the Romney/Ryan ticket could win.

Cong. Ryan is presently the chairman of the House Budget Committee and is considered an expert on matters involving the national budget.

In addition, Wisconsin election laws allow him to run for re-election to his Congressional seat so that if the Romney/Ryan ticket fails to win the presidency, he would continue to serve as a congressman — the voters of his district willing.

Now the Downside.

Almost everyone would agree that annual deficits of a trillion dollars a year are not sustainable. (The national debt has increased five trillion dollars on President Obama's watch.) There is an old saying that the "Devil is in the details." Once you start talking about individual cuts you run into trouble. Almost any area that cuts are proposed has a constituency that will fight against cuts to their pet programs.

Cong. PAUL RYAN

In 2011, Cong. Ryan proposed to correct financial problems in the popular Medicare Program. The Democrats immediately attacked the Ryan proposals stating that the proposals would destroy the Medicare program as we knew it. The Democrats sponsored an ad straight out of the 1947 movie "The Kiss of Death" showing a Paul Ryan look-alike throwing an old lady over a cliff! Unfortunately negative ads sell and in many cases are effective.

I well remember the Democrats successful demonization of 10th Congressional Republican nominee Jeff Perry over an incident that occurred years ago and which, after a thorough investigation Perry was cleared of any wrongdoing. However, he lost the election.

President Barack Obama may be a poor president but he is an excellent campaigner. (It has been said that he could talk a dog off a meat wagon.)

In this writer's opinion, the selection of Cong. Ryan to the Republican ticket will make a Republican victory in November more difficult. Hopefully, the electorate will look beyond the misleading vitriolic ads and vote the Romney/Ryan ticket in November as I intend to do!

Meeting Aug. 22 On Marina Bay Apartment Proposal

At a public meeting next Wednesday, developers will present their proposal to turn a Marina Bay nightclub and boat storage facilities into two buildings with 460 high-end apartments.

The meeting, hosted by Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee will take place at 7 p.m. on Aug. 22nd, inside the Cafeteria at 500 Victory Road. Joining McNamee will be a team of officials from property owner Flagship Marina and developer Redgate Real Estate Advisors.

Flagship and Redgate have proposed converting the Ocean Club and two boat storage buildings into 70-foot tall buildings that would have some of the most expensive apartments in Quincy. In addition, the project will also include retail and office space.

The project is still in the conceptual phase and the developers have indicated a willingness to alter their plan based on feedback they receive at next week's meeting.

ing.

The developers will need city approval before construction begins. The proposal will be reviewed by the Planning Board and the Conservation Commission. In his newsletter, McNamee urged his constituents to attend as many public hearings on the proposal as possible.

"I encourage you to attend all public meetings regarding this proposal so that you can be assured you are heard," McNamee wrote. "I will speak on your interests when given an opportunity, but your collective voice as expressed by your attendance at these meetings is invaluable."

Earlier this month, Redgate principal Kyle Warwick told The Sun the idea behind the proposal is to complete the U-shaped boardwalk at Marina Bay. Currently, the boardwalk makes a giant 'L,' and the missing piece is where the 62,000 square foot Ocean Club stands.

"It fulfills the notion of completing the boardwalk," Warwick said. "This is the last parcel."

The project would be build in two distinct the phases. The first phase would include 260 residential units, and the remaining 200 units would be constructed during the second phase. The timing of the phases, and which area will be included in them, is not yet known.

Bryan Connolly, an atorney working with the developers, previously said the rents at the apartments would "push the limit," and be among the highest in the city. The buildings would include amenities worthy of the high rents, including a yoga room, a gym, and billiards rooms. And retail space would cater to high-end clientele.

"They will be amenity based to serve the residents," Connolly said about the retailers they hope to have.

Father Bill's FoodFest Raises $250,000

Nearly a quarter of a million dollars was raised at the 18th annual FoodFest held recently at the Ocean Club at Marina Bay.

The proceeds from FoodFest benefit Father Bill's & MainSpring. Lucille Cassis, chief development officer for Father Bill's, said the charity raised $240,000 during the fundraiser, about $6,000 more than the charity took in for last year's event. She said increased donations from corporate sponsors made the difference.

"It really is a testament to our corporate sponsors who have been generous us," Cassis said.

Cassis said 944 tickets to the event were sold, about the same as recent years. Rainstorms the night of the event likely meant fewer tickets were sold at the temporary bridge had often been criticized by residents who compared it to an erector set. In a letter backing a new vertical-lift bridge, Mariano called the temporary one an eyesore.

Work On New Fore River Bridge To Begin In Fall

"The current temporary structure has been an expensive eyesore and public safety risk for far too long and new permanent structure is crucial," Mariano said.

Croall echoed Mariano's sentiments, telling the Sun the temporary bridge was "ten years too temporary."

"I'm excited that the bridge is going to be replaced," Croall added.

The state chose to make the new span a vertical-lift bridge and not a bascule one because the Coast Guard wanted a wider navigable channel than a bascule bridge could provide. The channel for the new bridge will be 250 feet wide, compared to the 175-foot wide channel both the temporary and 1936 bridge had. Both Mariano and Croall supported the vertical-lift because of the widened channel.

"The new bridge will serve as a gateway to not only Quincy and Weymouth, but to the entire South Shore," Mariano said. "The shipping channel will be widened, providing more room for ships, tankers, and smaller boats to pass through."

"The Coast Guard dictated that a 250-foot wide channel is the only thing that's sustainable," Croall said, "and I'm a proponent of usability and sustainability."

Last week, the state awarded White-Skanska Koch, J.V. a $244.6 million contract to build the new bridge. Construction will start sometime this fall and is expected to be completed in 2016, according to Department of Transportation (MassDOT) spokesman Michael Versekcs.

The bridge carries Washington Street/Route 3A into Weymouth, where it becomes Bridge Street. It's possible that detours or other restrictions might be needed during the three and a half year long construction period. Versekcs said the transportation department is drawing up a traffic plan and will try to minimize any disruption.

"The traffic management plan is something we'll be working on in the coming months," Versekcs said. "This is a main artery for the South Shore so we will be doing our best to minimize any traffic impacts during the construction process."

Croall was also concerned about the potential for traffic problems during construction. He said all parties need to do their best to make the impact as minute as possible.

"It's certainly going to be an issue that we have to roll up our sleeves and deal with it," Croall said.

Once completed, the new bridge is expected to alleviate congestion along Route 3A. When the bridge is down, the deck will be 58.5 feet above the waterline; the current temporary span is 50 feet over the water. In addition, the bridge will take less time to open and close.

"The design will also minimize the number of bridge openings, which cause unnecessary congestion for residents and local business," Mariano said. "The bridge's projected open position length will be 2.5 minutes, significantly faster than that of the current temporary bridge as well as the original 1936 bridge."

Mariano spent two decades trying to get a new bridge built. Now, he hopes the new bridge can become as iconic as the 1936 bridge once was.

"In addition to working on finding a permanent solution to the Fore River Bridge for the past two decades," Mariano said, "I grew up in Quincy Point and witnessed firsthand the original 1936 bridge deteriorate from a recognizable local landmark to a structure that could no longer stand. I would like nothing more than to see the new bridge, with its elegant and functional design, become a point of pride for South Shore residents once again."

The new bridge will have four lanes of traffic, two in each direction. It will also include five-foot wide bike lanes and six and a half foot wide sidewalks.

"All users of the new bridge will efficiently have all their needs met - including pedestrians, motorists, cyclists, and maritime - for the next 80 to 100 years," Mariano said.

The bridge replacement project is one of a handful of 'Mega Projects' included in Gov. Deval Patrick's accelerated bridge program.

After MassDOT's board of directors approved the contract in a vote taken last Wednesday in Gloucester, MassDOT Secretary Rich Davey said the project furthered the administration's goal to create jobs and improve infrastructure.

"The action taken by the board today allows MassDOT to continue delivering

August Moon Festival Sunday

By SCOTT JACKSON

Ponies, amusement rides, and food trucks will make their debut at Sunday's 25th annual August Moon Festival, joining the usual ranks of restaurants, merchants, and community organizations.

John Brothers, executive director of Quincy Asian Resources Inc. (QARI), hopes parents bring their children to celebrate the festival's anniversary. He thinks the amusement rides, essentially scaled-down versions of carnival rides, and especially the ponies will make the event more inviting to children.

"I'm excited about it and hope everyone brings their kids in because kids love ponies," Brothers said.

The food trucks' appearance will be a first for Quincy. For the last two years, Boston has had a food truck program allowing the mobile restaurants to set up shop in locations throughout the city, including Copley Square and City Hall Plaza. Some of those trucks will appear at the August Moon Festival Sunday, and Brothers is giddy.

"The big news is having food trucks from Boston," Brothers said. "I think it's a first for Quincy."

To accommodate the food trucks and children's rides, the footprint of the festival will be expanded. Last year, the festival ran down Hancock Street from the Granite Trust Building to the Hannon Parkway.

This year, the festival will also occupy Cliveden Street and the space left vacant when a portion of the Ross Garage was torn down. The rides and food trucks will all be located in the new area.

Hancock Street will once again be lined with vendors. This year, Brothers expects at least 90 vendors who will collectively use 115 or more booths - last year's festival had about 100 booths. There will be something for everybody at the festival; at the booths festival goers can sample a variety of Asian cuisines, learn calligraphy, buy merchandise, and even register to vote in November's presidential election.

"There's a lot to enjoy for both the non-Asian or Asian

Health Care Costs, Welfare Fraud, Human Trafficking, Pension Reform Among Issues Addressed

Keenan: Legislature Finishes Busy Formal Session

By State Sen.
JOHN F. KEENAN
Norfolk and Plymouth District

Health care costs. Welfare fraud. Human trafficking. Pension reform.

These are just some of the important issues addressed by the Legislature this session.

As a freshman state senator, I believe the session that ended on July 31 was overall a productive one. Some issues grab more headlines than others. Our debates over casino legislation, for example, drew significantly more attention than the fact we sent a record amount of state aid back to our cities and towns, or that Massachusetts was just one of four states nationally to receive an improved bond rating.

In addition, we eliminated parole for habitual violent offenders, addressed illegal foreclosures and auto repair rules, revamped probation department hiring practices, and, for the third time in four years, cut costs in our state pension program.

There are too many initiatives to rehash in a single column, so I will address a few of these issues now, and provide updates on local legislation in my next column.

Health Care Cost Containment

The success of this legislation is critical to controlling the ever-growing cost of health care. By capping the growth in health care costs at the rate of growth of the state's economy, as well as focusing more attention on wellness and prevention, we will reduce spending on health care by $150 billion over the next 15 years. That is money that can instead be spent elsewhere in our economy. The legislation also takes pains to ensure that a reduced rate of spending doesn't translate into worse care, or denied benefits, as insurance companies and providers will also have to meet tougher quality-of-care standards.

JOHN F. KEENAN

Melissa's Bill/ Sentencing Reform

It took several months for a conference committee to work out a compromise, but in the end the Legislature approved, and I supported, a bill that eliminates parole for violent offenders convicted a third-time, and revamps the state's parole board. While I believe the state needs to do more to address the underlying reasons why individuals commit violent crimes — such as mental health and substance abuse issues — there are some people who just need to be removed from society. I disagree with provisions in this bill that reduce minimum mandatory sentences for major drug dealers, as they impact our neighborhoods as much as any violent offender, however, the bill accomplishes much to improve our criminal justice system.

Welfare fraud/ EBT reform

The vast majority of tax-dollars spent on the state's transitional assistance programs, both the food stamp and the direct cash payment programs, are spent honestly by recipients to purchase basic needs: food, housing and clothing. However, I do not believe any level of fraud or abuse in our public programs should be ignored or dismissed, and clearly there are problems with the state's EBT card program. EBT cards can no longer be used to buy lottery tickets, alcohol, guns and ammunition, tattoos, vacations or jewelry. Individuals who routinely "lose" their cards will be subject to sanctions, and those who conspire to defraud the system will be prosecuted under new, stringent criminal statutes. I am also supportive of a new commission to look at ways to further limit fraud by making direct benefit payments to landlords and utility companies.

Human Trafficking

This isn't a third-world issue. Human trafficking is happening right here in Massachusetts. Under this legislation, anyone involved in the organization of forced labor or sexual servitude will face tough, new criminal penalties, including up to 20 years in jail. It also creates a new crime of trafficking human organs, and requires anyone convicted of enticing a minor into prostitution to register as a sex offender. At the same time, individuals who have been victimized would be protected from prosecution and provided with needed services paid for with assets seized from these trafficking rings.

Home Foreclosures

The state's foreclosure rate remains high, due to a combination of shady mortgage practices and a sluggish economy. Yet, too often we hear how banks are unwilling to work collaboratively to refinance a troubled mortgage, with some banks happy to simply foreclose and resell the property, even at a loss. This legislation doesn't require banks to refinance all troubled mortgages; rather, it requires banks to simply check if a mortgage refinancing — either at extended terms, or a lower interest rate — would make financial sense for both the bank and homeowner. I was supportive of the Senate version of the bill, which would have allowed homeowners to request mediation. Banks opposed this, however. I also fought in the Senate version for tougher requirements to ensure that a bank legally owns a mortgage, and has publicly filed its ownership interests with the registry of deeds, before it begins the foreclosure process.

Auto Repair Rules

The Legislature passed a pair of laws designed to protect consumers while getting their cars repaired. First, we passed legislation that prohibits insurance companies from steering consumers to preferred companies, or even companies they have an ownership interest in, for auto glass repairs. It also cracks-down on fly-by-night and under-trained shops who perform shoddy work and are not available later to fix problems. The second bill, the so-called Right to Repair bill, will ensure that your local repair shop will have access to all the tools, equipment and diagnostic information needed to fix your car, while not requiring manufacturers to disclose trade secrets or other proprietary information. The Right to Repair bill will still appear on this November's ballot, but both sides have said they will now work to encourage voters to reject it and preserve this compromise version.

Probation Department Reform

This legislation, of course, stems from the 2010 Ware Report that found widespread patronage, and even fraud, in the department's hiring practices. This was one of the first major bills the Legislature took up after I was sworn in January 2011. It installs a professional administrator in charge of all hiring and firing, strengthens the preliminary exam and interview process, and requires public disclosure by prospective probation department employees of all family members who are state employees, as well as requires that letters of support from elected officials be publicly disclosed.

Pension Reform

The Legislature has enacted two pension reform laws that will prevent many of egregious abuses of the system that have rightfully upset taxpayers in recent years. The most recent reform law makes it difficult for public employees to receive late-in-career pay spikes that boost their pensions, prohibits pension bonuses for terminated state employees, and increases the retirement age while reducing benefits for new employees. It could save $5 billion over the next 30 years. I voted against this bill as I did not feel it contained enough reforms, and, by reducing benefits for future employees without also reducing contributions, could result in employees actually contributing more to the system than they could ever receive in benefits.

These pieces of legislation will enable us to be better stewards of your tax-dollars, will improve our communities, and will allow Massachusetts to remain among the most desirable places to live and work in the nation.

Warren: Quincy Project Fits 'Rebuild Now' Plan

By EMILY TAFT

U.S. Senate candidate Elizabeth Warren stopped in Quincy Tuesday to show her support of the Town Brook relocation project, and to discuss her "Rebuild Now" plan.

"It's an optimistic moment to stand up here to see gravel, to see heavy equipment, to see people ready to work, and to see the vision of what this means for Quincy. I am proud to be here. It's exciting. It is a tremendous model and it's part of the reason I'm a big believer in investing in infrastructure, and believe that's how we build a future," said Warren.

"It's about making the investments in building a future for all of us. This is what is going to make Quincy stronger and better."

Warren says her "Rebuild Now" Plan is a fully-funded seven-point plan that still reduces national debt. The Democrat who is locked in the U.S. Senate race with Republican incumbent Scott Brown, says that instead of spending billions of dollars of tax money on oil subsidies, for example, the "Rebuild Now" plan would spend that money on rebuilding roads, bridges and mass transit.

Warren spoke with Mayor Tom Koch, state Rep. Tackey Chan and Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci about the Town Brook project and Quincy revitalization plan that are projected to create over 7,000 jobs.

"Think about the 7,000 workers directly working in construction," said Warren. "Think about all the pieces that go with it. All the people that had to draw up the engineering plans, and then people who had to deliver all the gravel and the wood, and all the things that are here, and all the people who make the sandwiches for folks who come in and all the people who start to invest in the Quincy downtown because they see a future here."

Warren said that her Rebuild Now Plan was proven to be 67 percent more effective in cutting the deficit than Scott Brown's, and the plan has $100 billion of investment in infrastructure in it.

"The Mayor is talking about building something great, but we are also talking about putting people back to work right now, those are paychecks," said Warren.

"Walk around to little businesses where projects like this are going in, and those are paychecks that are being spent in those businesses. I learn all the pieces in and how the pieces fit together when I am out and around talking to people. We have work that needs to be done and people who need jobs, and it is common sense to put those two things together."

Brown has also signaled support for the downtown revitalization project.

Mosquito Tests Positive For West Nile Virus Here

The city's Health Department is warning residents to take precautions after a mosquito tested positive for West Nile Virus.

West Nile Virus is a disease primarily transmitted to people by mosquito bites. According to the state Department of Public Health most people infected by the disease - about 80 percent of the population - wouldn't notice any symptoms. In about 20 percent of people, WNV can cause symptoms such as fever, headache, body aches, nausea, vomiting, and swollen lymph glands.

In the most extreme cases, West Nile can cause high fever, stiffness in the neck, stupor, paralysis, numbness, or even coma. About one percent of the population is susceptible to severe infections, and persons over the age of 50 are considered more vulnerable. Severe West Nile can cause death, between 2000 and 2010 six people in Massachusetts died after being infected.

To minimize the chance of infection, residents have been advised to limit their outdoor time during peak periods for mosquito activity around dusk and dawn. Those who must go outdoors should wear long-sleeved shirts and long pants.

The use of insect repellants is recommended. Repellants containing DEET or Picaridin are best. Oil of lemon eucalyptus is also acceptable, though it shouldn't be used on children younger than three. And no repellants should be used on any child under two months old. Baby carriages should be covered in mosquito netting.

It's also advised holes in window or door screens be fixed. And because mosquitoes can breed in any standing water, homeowners should make sure water doesn't collect in tires, trash cans, wading pools, bird baths, etc.

The mosquito that tested positive was found in a sample taken on August 8. It is the first mosquito with West Nile found in Quincy this year; last year 12 infected mosquitoes were found in the city.

More information on West Nile Virus and other mosquito-borne illnesses like Eastern Equine Encephalitis (EEE) is available at Health Department headquarters at 440 East Squantum Street or on the city's website at quincyma.gov.

320-Foot Track Resembling Boston's Zakim Bridge Would Set Guinness World Record Scouts Hope To Design Longest Pinewood Derby Track

By EMILY TAFT

The Quincy Boy Scouts Troop 6 are helping to build the longest Pinewood Derby track in hopes to break the Guinness World Record current mark of 263 feet and two inches.

"Our plan is to make the track 320 feet and it will be designed after the Zakim Bridge," said Troop 6 Scoutmaster Robert Gordon. "We got to do it a lot bigger than the record now and we have a lot of help to do that."

Gordon — along with Boy Scouts of America members Michael Berry and Marty Gordon — designed what the track will look like. Gordon said they decided to model the track after the Zakim ARTIST RENDERING of conceptual design for the world's longest Pinewood Derby Track. Boy Scout Troop 6 in Quincy is working on the design that resembles Boston's Zakim Bridge.

Bridge for a number of reasons.

"The Zakim Bridge was Mike Berry's idea," said Gordon. "It was a good way to both make it very 'Boston' themed and it solved the engineering problem of how to support the track in the air with a minimum amount of materials and cost."

The current record— set by the Boy Scouts of America, North East Illinois Council in June 2010 — is four feet wide with 12 lanes for Pinewood Derby race cars. Gordon said that the design they have come up with will be similar in width and will also have 12 lanes.

The track will be used during the first ever-SOAR (Scouting's Outdoor Adventure on the River) event held in Boston on the banks of the Charles River during Columbus Day weekend, Oct. 6-8.

Gordon said that the track would be built during the Friday and Saturday of that weekend and will be used for races all day Sunday.

"We are working with labor unions to build this, and need sponsors to even begin to build it," said Gordon. "We really haven't figured out the labor piece of it yet, but we are hoping to pre-build the 42 sections of track and the towers so we are only doing assembly at site. Even still, we are hoping for a crew of at least a dozen people."

Gordon added that although Troop 6 is the only troop in Quincy to be working on the track, other troops have a part in working other aspects of the SOAR event.

"Quincy will have a strong presence at this event," said Gordon. "Troop 6 is just a tiny piece of the puzzle to make this happen."

Major School Renovations Moving Forward future students a safe and functional learning environment," said Koch. "In many cases, these are older buildings, making these investments even more necessary."

The roughly $5 million program, funded through Mayor Koch's Capital Improvement Plan, includes roofs at schools citywide and extensive repairs to the masonry at six schools — repairs that are critical to keeping buildings weatherproof, the mayor said. Masonry work includes repointing, repairs to flashing and capstones.

The City has also initiated a major window replacement project at the Montclair Elementary School. The last time windows were replaced at the century-old building was more than 30 years ago, and officials said the project will bring new glass panels to replace plexiglass in a system that will provide more light to classrooms and be more energy efficient.

"We are building new schools where necessary and making repairs to existing schools where necessary — these buildings are an important part of our City's infrastructure and deserve this kind of attention," Mayor Koch said.

The school work comes during a bustling construction season throughout the City, on both private projects and public infrastructure projects. The new Central Middle School recently saw the first concrete of its foundation installed; a new 400-meter track facility is taking shape on Faxon Field; flood-relief projects are ongoing throughout the City; the city's sidewalk repair program is in full swing; and construction of the new YMCA on Coddington Street is moving forward steadily, officials said.

band "Dalton and The Sheriffs."

The free family friendly event will be held in the outfield of Adams Field, and people are welcome to bring a blanket or a lawn chair for the concert, which is scheduled to start at 6 p.m.

Mayor Thomas Koch said the City moved to host the event after being approached by Keep The Edge Studios owner Keith Asack, who pitched the idea for a concert as a first step to a larger music series or festival in future years.

"Keith's enthusiasm is a great symbol of our City's present and future, and we decided right away that a special concert like this was something worth giving a shot and seeing where it takes us," Koch said. "The arts have always held an important place in our community, and I expect it to only grow in the years to come."

Discover Quincy, the tourism arm of the Quincy Chamber, is also providing financial support for the event, which will be alcohol-free. Food and drinks will be available at the Adams Field concession stand as part of the event.

"The Summer Concert is a wonderful opportunity for Quincy residents to enjoy great music, and it will also be another great showcase for the City. We would love to see this event expand in the future and bring even more people to the City of Quincy," said Donna Mavromates, vice president and director of Tourism, Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

DIAMOND BRACELETS MATCH ANY OCCASION

When you have a big anniversary approaching, you may wonder what you can give your wife that can outdo the beautiful diamond engagement ring you gave her and the diamond pendant that soon followed. Well, diamond earrings are certainly lovely, but a diamond bracelet has a certain "wow" factor. After all, these attractive bracelets are composed of many small diamonds in a single piece. Once referred to as "eternity" or "inline" bracelets, they came to be known as "tennis" bracelets after tennis great Chris Evert interrupted the 1987 U.S. Open to retrieve her unclasped diamond bracelet. The world obviously took notice, and diamond tennis bracelets became overwhelmingly popular as everyday pieces. They lend themselves perfectly to active lifestyles.

We have a knowledgeable and professional staff that will work with you to choose the best diamond bracelet, with consideration to her style and your budget. Come in and browse our huge selection of diamond bracelets at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center, where we strive to make your visits with us friendly and relaxing. Contact our store at 617-773-3636 we have diamond jewelry for every budget and styles for every taste.

'Cadet Nurse Corps Best Thing That Ever Happened To Me'

Quincy's Alice Norman Among 22 Former Cadet Nurses Honored At Atria Marina Place Luncheon

By EMILY TAFT

Quincy resident Alice Norman, a former member of the U.S. Cadet Nurse Corps (USCNC), joined 21 fellow cadets at a recent luncheon held at Atria Marina Place that honored the USCNC and showed appreciation for those who served during World War II.

"The day was just fantastic, it was such a wonderful event for remarkable women," said Nancy Vanbenschoten, one of the luncheon organizers. "These women have just not had enough recognition. They made nursing a serious profession for women, and without them our civilian hospitals would have been nothing."

Norman said she didn't think anyone even remembered the USCNC, and being honored was the last thing she expected.

"It was quite an honor. I got the shock of my life when I saw that they got so many cadets to come," said Norman. "It was a wonderful afternoon, it was so delightful. So many years have gone by, it has been almost 60 years. I didn't think anyone would remember us except for those who served."

The 22 cadets were treated to a lunch and received commendations from state Rep. Bruce Ayers, along with a letter from Gov. Deval Patrick. The women also heard from Helen Cole, the chief nursing officer at Quincy Medical Center who gave a short speech honoring the women and recognizing them for what they did during their time.

"We were recipients of a lot of honor," said Norman. "We don't feel like we were owed anything."

Norman joined the cadets right out of high school in 1945 but she originally had plans on becoming a nurse until she was offered free tuition if she signed up to be a cadet.

"When I was accepted to attend and work at Boston City Hospital (now Boston Medical Center), they informed me of a new program (USCNC)," said Norman. "I happily signed up because they offered to pay our tuitions. Why wouldn't you say yes? They also offered us a $20 a month stipend, which is laughable now, but it bought us food and the one thing we were required to have: a wrist watch."

Those who joined were given free tuition, associated expenses, and a shorter training period, and in exchange they had to pledge that they would actively serve during the war. The USCNC was conceived by women nursing leaders and administered by women. It comprised 180,000 young women who joined from 1943 to 1945. The 124,000 graduates of USCNC provided nursing care to the nation's citizens for an average of 28 years. When a bill to draft nurses was being considered in 1945, over 10,000 graduates of the USCNC answered, eliminating the need for a draft.

Norman said that the thought of having to serve in the war never really crossed her mind because at the time all she thought about was being able to go to school for free.

"None of us ever gave it a single thought that we would be on the front lines of the war," said Norman. "I graduated after the war ended so I didn't serve, but there were a few members of my class that enlisted after graduation."

Norman continued her work as a nurse after graduation at many local hospitals including Mass. General, Boston City, and South Shore Hospital where she spent 23 years until she retired in 1988. Now 84 years old, Norman looks back on her time as a cadet with pride and memories she will always remember.

"My whole life revolved around my nursing career, it shaped my life," said Norman. "Being a part of the cadets is something you never forget. It was a fun time, and the best thing that ever happened to me."

Alison Eeley Enrolls At James Madison University

Alison Eeley of Quincy has enrolled at James Madison University in Harrisonburg, VA for the fall semester.

ALICE NORMAN of Quincy, a former member of the U.S. Cadet Nurse Corps, was among 22 cadets honored at a recent luncheon held at Atria Marina Place, Marina Bay. Offering congratulations is Tom Fabrizio, special assistant to Mayor Thomas Koch.

Cristian Raymundo Finalist For Outstanding Student Award

Cristian Raymundo, a Quincy resident and a veteran of the United States Marine Corps, was recently named as a national finalist for the Roger Penske Outstanding Student Award.

The award recognizes exceptional students at Universal Technical Institute who are dedicated to succeeding in the automotive service industry and who have demonstrated the ability to assist other students to do the same.

Raymundo graduated from UTI Norwood in July. While a full-time student, he was also working full-time in the diesel field yet still dedicated himself to helping his fellow students, in addition to maintaining a high GPA and near-perfect classroom attendance record.

Raymundo was also recognized with a coveted Student of the Course award.

As a Roger Penske Outstanding Student Award finalist, Raymundo received a $500 cash award. Raymundo is currently working as a diesel technician at Penske in Braintree.

70th Memorial Service – USS Quincy CA-39

MEMORIAL WREATH commemorates the 70th anniversary of the sinking of the Quincy-built USS Quincy near the Quincy's granite memorial outside the Department of Public Works facility on Sea Street. The heavy cruiser was lost at the Battle of Savo Island Aug. 9, 1942, killing some 379 men. Among those pausing in remembrance are (from left) Mayor Thomas Koch, Marc Connolly, commander of the Quincy Veterans Council; Paul Moody, commander of the Sons of the American Legion Squadron 294; and Fred White, commander of the Cyril P. Morrisette American Legion Post.

LT. JAY RAINIER, Navy Operational Support Center, Quincy (at podium) reads the poem "USS Quincy CA-39" at the 70th memorial service. Seated at left are Brock Miller, commander, NOSC Quincy, and Quincy sinking survivor Daniel H. Galvin.

MAYOR TOM KOCH, paraphrasing the late Gen. George S. Patton, said at the memorial service for the deceased sailors of the USS Quincy: "It's foolish to mourn the death of these men, for we should thank God that such men lived."

LARRY NORTON, chaplain of the Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces Quincy Chapter, offers the benediction at the 70th memorial service for USS Quincy. This flag is owned by Quincy survivor Daniel H. Galvin of Hanover. Before being raised at the 70th memorial service, the flag was flown aboard the USS Constitution, the world's oldest commissioned warship.

was when we were told the torpedo bombers were on their way, and they knew the actual direction that they were coming. So the captain moved the ship right in close to the island, so we couldn't see the Japanese betty's coming and they couldn't see us because of the foliage on the island. The planes never had a chance to release their torpedoes."

Galvin added that the third time the Japanese came was at night and the ship and crew of the USS Quincy didn't have a chance.

"They came at night and we had no idea of night fighting," said Galvin. "Our training was bombardments at 20,000 yards in the daylight, and that's not the way the Japanese trained. They trained at night with torpedoes and that's what took us down. We had no torpedoes, we had no way of responding to an attack by Japanese cruisers using torpedoes."

Mayor Tom Koch spoke during the ceremony about what would have been if no man had answered the call to defend our freedom.

"Frequently, when I go to veterans events I think of those men and women that died, and wonder what would have been? Young people just getting their lives started, what would have been," said Koch. "Was there a cure for cancer? Was there a cure for heart disease?"

"But when you think about it, you know what would have been had they not stepped up and not served, we would have seen

USS Quincy CA-39

A poem by CLIFF PERRY

*A ship of beauty,
Stripped for duty,
A gallant ship of the line.
A blazing rend,
She met her end,
The Quincy Thirty Nine.*

*An infamous day,
But who can say,
What went through their mind.*

*They fought so well,
In living hell,
The Quincy Thirty Nine.*

*At Savo Bay,
An August day,
The ship by night outlined.
Took shot and shell,
That spelled the knell,
Of Quincy Thirty Nine.*

*Half the crew,
Yet so few,
Lived to fight and shine.*

oppression, no freedom. I think General Patton said it well, and I am paraphrasing I don't know the quote exactly, 'it's foolish to mourn the death of these men, for we should thank God that such men lived.' I think that really speaks of those folks of the USS Quincy that perished on that fateful day."

During the ceremony, the American flag that Galvin would raise in his yard on the sinking's anniversary was flown a half-staff on the DPW flagpole. Some time before the ceremony, it was also raised above the USS Constitution, the world's oldest commissioned warship.

"The American flag contains 48 stars representing

*Left behind,
Not out of mind,
The Quincy Thirty Nine.*

*Such pain we feel,
Takes time to heal,
So many shipmates, no time,
We pray for them,
Dear Lord Amen,
The Quincy Thirty Nine.*

*She was a home,
For those who roam,
The crew so very fine.
Shared alike,
Many a night,
The Quincy Thirty Nine.*

*We pledge here,
Their names to bear,
Through the end of time.
Have no fear,
They will hear,
The Quincy Thirty Nine.*

the number of states in our union when the mighty USS Quincy was lost," said Lt. Jay R. Rainier of the Navy Operational Support Center Quincy. "The flag has been used by Mr. Daniel Galvin every year on this anniversary as he honored his shipmates in a ceremony at his home."

"This past week, we obtained the flag and we transported it to the USS Constitution, in the Charlestown Navy Yard, where it was flown on the mast of the oldest commissioned warship in the world, to honor the service of Mr. Galvin and our fallen shipmates from the USS Quincy."

The memorial service included a wreath-laying at the Quincy's granite memorial, taps was played by Commander Thomas Clark and Larry Norton, chaplain of a local veterans organization, gave the invocation and benediction.

Galvin also presented a framed color photo of the USS Quincy taken just days before she was sunk in August, 1942. The photo will hang in the DPW's administrative building.

Before the ceremony's conclusion, Galvin was given citations from the Morrisette American Legion Post and the Department of Massachusetts.

He Was On Guadalcanal When The Quincy Went Down

By SCOTT JACKSON

Marine Corps PFC Dean Schaeffer was on Guadalcanal on August 9, 1942 - mere miles away from the USS Quincy when Japanese ships sank the New Orleans-class cruiser off of Savo Island. But Schaeffer and other Marines sat silently that night, so they wouldn't give their location away to the island's garrison.

"We had grandstand seats, but we had no comment because we didn't know where the enemy was," Schaeffer said.

Schaeffer and his unit were about 15-20 miles away from the sea battle. They were too far away from the engagement to see the battle, but sounds from the fight left everyone in awe.

"Just one of those things that you watch, there was a loud explosion and everyone goes ooh," Schaeffer explained.

Including the Quincy, three Allied ships sank during the overnight battle. A fourth was scuttled the following day because of heavy damage. Some survivors of the battle wound up on Guadalcanal. Schaeffer helped rescue the survivors, and said many of them appeared to be in shock.

"I can't explain what they look like, they just had a look on their faces from what happened," Schaeffer said.

The Japanese victory at Savo Island had implications for Schaeffer and other Marines on Guadalcanal. Allied ships withdrew from the area, forcing the Marines to make do with what was on the island and eat food taken from the Japanese defenders.

"All those ships disappeared, even the supply ships," Schaeffer said. "We turned to food the Japanese had. When you get hungry you can eat anything."

A native of Indiana,

Schaeffer described himself as a farm boy. After graduating high school in 1938 he worked in a restaurant, becoming an assistant manager in a matter of months. On Jan. 7, 1942 - exactly one month after Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor - Schaeffer enlisted in the Marine Corps. He said he chose the Marines because he preferred the tropical climate of the South Pacific to the temperate European climate.

Schaeffer moved to Quincy Point in 1947 and has lived there ever since. He was still in the Marines at the time, and would reach the rank of tech sergeant before being discharged in 1954.

Schaeffer then worked at the Granite Trust Company until retiring in 1983. A painting of a warship in the bank still reminds him of that night 70 years ago on the other side of the world.

"Noticing that big ship in the lobby takes me back," Schaeffer said.

A Job Well Done

On Tuesday, Aug. 7, at approximately 5 p.m., Drug Unit Detectives Duran, Keenan, O'Brien and Coen set up surveillance based on information they received about a potential drug deal.

Detective Duran observed the suspected vehicle traveling on Southern Artery occupied by one male, who he knew from a past drug arrest. Detective Duran updated the other detectives about the activity and the occupant of the vehicle.

Suspect #1 continued driving and turned off into the Merrymount section, followed by the detectives. The suspect stopped at a residence and ran to the door, was let inside, then came back out within five minutes. Detectives' Keenan and Coen waited for suspect #1 to drive away and then went to the door of the residence, where an older man answered.

Detective Duran continued to follow suspect #1 in his unmarked vehicle. The detectives introduced themselves and showed their badges. As they explained why they were there, they could see through the exterior screen door another male, known to them from past drug deals, walk into the front hallway from the kitchen. Detective Coen asked this suspect (#2) if he could speak with him outside.

Detective Keenan explained to the older man, now known as suspect #2's father, that an alleged drug dealer had just left his residence. Detective Keenan asked the father if they could come inside his home and the father said, "If you're the police, you are welcome in my home." Once inside, Detective Coen observed suspect #2 immediately reach inside his right pocket of his shorts and walk into the kitchen out of view. Fearing that suspect #2 could arm himself, Detective Coen followed him into the kitchen, where he found a female sitting at the kitchen table.

Detective Coen asked suspect #2 to take his hand out of his pocket, which he did. Detective Keenan explained to both father and son that the residence was under surveillance and that they witnessed suspect #1, a known drug dealer come and go from their home. When Detective Keenan asked suspect #2 if he had any drugs on him, suspect #2 reached into his right pocket of his shorts and removed a plastic corner bag containing a brown powder believed to be heroin.

Suspect #2 told the Detectives that he received the heroin from suspect #1 as payment for $300 suspect #1 owes him. Detective Keenan contacted Detective Duran, who was still following suspect #1 and told him that they had recovered drugs. Suspect #2 admitted that he has a heroin addiction and he recently relapsed. Detective Coen asked suspect #2 if he had more drugs on him. Suspect #2 said he did not, but when asked to turn the pockets of his shorts inside out, the suspect half-heartedly turned his pockets inside out.

Detective Coen then searched the same pocket and found six more corner bags containing heroin. This finding changed the incident from "personal use" to "Possession of Class A (heroin) with the Intent to Distribute and Conspiracy to Violate the Controlled Substance Laws," which led to the 30 year-old Quincy resident being placed under arrest.

Meanwhile, Detective Duran contacted QPD Communications and requested a marked police cruiser to assist in stopping suspect #1 on Furnace Brook Parkway in the vicinity of Adams Street. Officers' Paul Murphy and Joe Paccioretti pulled the vehicle over and Detective Duran removed the suspect from his vehicle, placed him in handcuffs and advised the suspect, a 49 year-old Quincy resident, that he was under arrest for "Distribution of Class A (heroin) and Conspiracy to Violate the Controlled Substance Laws."

Officer Murphy searched suspect #1 and located two folds of money in one of his pockets, consisting of $100 and $234. Suspect #1 claimed he was coming from his friend's house because his friend had just won on a scratch ticket. This statement contradicted suspect #2's reason for the meeting.

During the booking process, it was learned that suspect #1 was previously found guilty of manufacturing/distributing a class A substance out of Dorchester District Court, making this arrest a subsequent offense. (Increased penalties) Asset forfeiture forms were filed for the money, cell phone and vehicle, all owned presently by suspect #1.

Nice Work!

Shower Head a Leaky Mess

Q: I have one of those flexible sprayer shower heads that you can lift from its holder and use. Whenever I turn on the shower, water squirts from the part where the holder attaches to the water pipe, and also runs from the end of the hose where it attaches to the shower head. Do I need to replace it or can I fix this? — Lorelei D., Atlanta

A: Check the shower head attachment points for any visible damage first. A visibly cracked hose or plastic attachment piece often means the entire unit needs to be replaced. However, if you can't see any damage, you may be able to fix this with just the twist of an adjustable wrench.

To avoid damaging or scratching the connector nut — which attaches the shower unit to the inlet pipe (sometimes called a goose-neck pipe) — wrap a soft rag around the nut. Use an adjustable wrench that can fit comfortably around the connector nut, and gently turn the nut clockwise just slightly — one-quarter turn at most. Unwrap the rag from around the connector nut and turn on the shower to see if the leak has diminished or stopped. If it needs more adjustment, replace the rag and gently turn the connector nut another quarter-turn.

Keep in mind that turning the connector too tight may make the leak worse; that's one reason to make such small incremental adjustments. Another reason is to avoid damaging the connector nut or the seal.

If you notice cracks or other damage to the shower unit, in most cases you'll need to replace the entire unit (except for some more expensive shower heads, which often offer replacement parts from the manufacturer). To replace the unit, head to the home-improvement store and pick out a shower head of your choice, along with some Teflon tape.

Back home, turn off the water feed to the shower. If you can't find the nearest shutoff valve, turn off water to the house.

Unscrew the old shower sprayer unit from the inlet pipe, using your pliers and turning counterclockwise to loosen and remove it. Clean away any old sealant, tape or gunky buildup from the threads of the inlet pipe.

Unwrap the new shower unit and take a look at the connection and accompanying hardware. Connectors that come with a rubber washer generally need to be tightly screwed on using your pliers; connectors that don't generally just need to be hand-tightened.

Now, take your new Teflon tape. Wrap it carefully around the threads of the inlet pipe, creating a single layer around the threads from the end of the pipe to just below the end of the threads. (The tape will push upward when you screw on the new shower head, so leave a bit of space.) Press the tape into the threads with your fingers.

Carefully line up the connector of the new shower unit with the pipe and screw on, turning clockwise. Use your hand to tighten the connection; if you need to tighten more, protect the finish of the connector by wrapping a rag around it and tighten in small increments using pliers. Turn on water to the shower to test the connection, adjusting slightly if needed until the connection no longer leaks.

HOME TIP: Don't have a set of pliers that fit your pipes? Look for channel locking pliers, which can open to a range of widths to fit varying widths of pipe.

Board OKs New Building On Brook Road

By KRIS KALABOKAS

A proposal to construct a new 6,200 square-foot building at 159 Brook Rd. for an owner occupied office and warehouse was approved unanimously by the Quincy Planning Board at its meeting Aug. 8.

The project — submitted by architectural firm Holmes & Edwards, Inc., 26 Chestnut St., Quincy, calls for the exiting office building at 159 Brook Rd. to be demolished.

The applicant originally submitted plans in approximately 2003, detailing the construction of a larger, two story building but has since amended their project in favor of a smaller, one story structure.

The proposal, placed before the Planning Board about a month ago, states that 3,100 square feet of the building will be used as office space and 3,100 square feet will be used for warehouse purposes.

Site plans have been brought before the Zoning Board of Appeals and the Conservation Commission and have been determined to meet floodplain regulations.

22-Year Old Played Collegiately At UMaine-Orono

Courtney Harnais On Board As Girls' Soccer Coach At QHS

By SEAN BRENNAN

Courtney Harnais knows a little something about the sport of soccer. For the 22-year old Braintree native and new girls' varsity soccer coach at Quincy High School, the game has been a huge part of her life for the past 17 years.

Harnais starred for Notre Dame Academy in Hingham (Class of 2008) before taking her talent north to the University of Maine-Orono, where she was a standout forward for the Black Bears; she graduated in the spring with a Bachelor's degree in Sociology. Along the way, athletics, but mainly soccer, has molded Harnais into the type of person that feels confident in her abilities to lead a group of high school athletes, many who are just a few years younger than she will be when Quincy High begins the 2012 fall season in September, to great heights.

"Athletics have really been a foundation for who I am," said Harnais in a sit-down interview at the Sun last week. "It has helped me grow as a person and I am a firm believer that it helps build character. I understand I am close to the girls' age I will be coaching, but I think now, because the game has changed so much over the years, that being able to have the insight of being a (recent) player I'll be able to help them."

"I am not looking to be a friend," she continued. "I want to coach them and give back to the sport that has helped me."

Harnais wasn't expecting to jump from player to coach so quickly after playing her last game for the University of Maine, but when the Quincy High opening was posted earlier this summer, the soccer junkie found herself missing the sport. Without the time to play on a regular basis due to her decision to continue her education (she is working towards a second Bachelor's degree in Nursing), and her job working with the Norfolk County Sheriff's Department, Harnais figured switching roles from player to coach would be an ideal way to remain entrenched in the game.

"I heard about (the coaching opening) from word-of-mouth," she explained. Harnais would seek counsel from UMaine head coach Scott Athertley as well as her father, Robert before taking the job. "I got really interested because when I left Maine, not playing was a huge void and I was really trying to find a way to stay involved and I thought coaching would be a great outlet."

"When my season ended it was hard because you are missing a part of you for the past 17 years. Soccer was my life and when it ended it was like cold turkey. I didn't know what to do. It took a couple of months for me to just figure out what my next move was going to be in the sport. I always knew I would at some point come back."

"I talked with Scott; he has always been a mentor and he said I should do it," Harnais continued, "and I talked about it with my father. He is just that element for me when I am wondering should I do it, or should I not. He gave me a lot of confidence."

Harnais begins what she hopes is a long and prosperous relationship with Quincy High girls' soccer next week when three days of tryouts will determine what type of team she fields when the season kicks off on September 10. Harnais understands that the Quincy program she is inheriting has seen its share of ups-and-downs in recent years, but she is willing to give the commitment to make sure that the program continues to move in a positive direction under her leadership.

"I know the past couple of years they have done ok, but I think that there is always room for improvement," she said before adding, "but I think they have a good foundation. I would like to say we will win every game and make it to tournament and do very well, but I can't promise that. What I can promise is that the girls will be challenged."

"As a coach my job is to challenge them and, I know at times I'll be the bad guy, but that is my job," she said without hesitation. "I just want to make sure that at the end of the day I can say I was committed to them as much as can be."

Quincy's newest varsity coach is no stranger to the city. Harnais grew up here and attended St. Mary's; she also got her soccer start with Quincy Youth Soccer, and through her time playing for perennial state powerhouse Notre Dame Academy and for Division I University of Maine, Harnais has seen firsthand just how much the style of soccer has changed over the years.

She believes that her current first-hand knowledge of the sport can aid her during her first year being a varsity coach.

"I grew up in Quincy and went to St. Mary's and played Quincy Youth Soccer," she noted. "Over the years the style of play has changed. I grew up playing kick and run and now it is more possession. The game has just transformed a lot and I think being fresh out of it and just leaving the game, I think I can contribute a lot to teach-

COURTNEY HARNAIS was named as head coach of the Quincy High School varsity girls' soccer team earlier this summer. The 22-year old Braintree native played collegiately for the University of Maine. Quincy begins fall tryouts next week as the team will begin preparing for the season opener on Sept. 10.

ing. The main goal of a coach is to teach and that is what I am really looking to do.

"I want to focus more on possession. I am a big promoter of that rather than the kick and run style. I want to install a foundation of playing that type of soccer. That is step one: Get there and teach them."

Harnais also strives to be a fixture in Quincy's soccer community. She realizes that becoming active with local youth teams and leagues is a great way to help the sport continue to expand. The benefits of a younger generation of smart, disciplined soccer players will only speed up what she hopes is a long and successful run at Quincy High.

"I think it is important to give back to something that has given me so much," she explained about her readiness to be involved with girls' soccer at every level in Quincy. "Because I am new, I want to reach out. This is a rebuilding year for me. I am learning the ropes as well as (the team) learning me, but I do want to reach out to the younger age groups. I want to start at the youth level and I want to help out from the ground up."

"You can only build a program from the bottom; that is where I want to start. It is all coming together so quickly, but I think this is just the beginning. There is more to come."

Friday at Presidents Golf Course in Quincy

2nd Annual Billy Reardon Memorial Golf Tourney

The 2nd Annual Bill Reardon Memorial Golf Tournament will be held Friday, Aug. 17 at Presidents Golf Course, 357 West Squantum Street, Quincy.

Hosted by members of the Norfolk County Corrections Department and the Quincy High School football program, the tournament is held in memory of Bill Reardon, former employee with the Norfolk County Corrections Department for 17 years and was Quincy High School football's biggest fan. Mr. Reardon is the father of current QHS head football coach Bill Reardon.

The cost is $125 per golfer, or $500 per foursome and hole sponsorships are $100. It will be a Florida Style Best Ball Format with a 7:30 a.m. shotgun start, a 50/50 hole, longest drive and closest to the pin competitions. There will also be a buffet lunch, gift bags, and prizes for winning foursomes and raffle prizes.

If you are able to participate or contribute, please make checks payable to Quincy High School Football and mail them to 64 Montgomery Drive, Plymouth, MA 02360.

7th Annual O'Connell-Thomson Hoop Tournament This Weekend

The 7th annual O'Connell-Thomson Basketball Tournament will be held Aug. 18-19 at the Fenno Street Courts. The event is held in memory of John O'Connell and Dennis Thomson, two standout athletes who graduated from North Quincy High School in 2002 and had their lives cut tragically short in the past eight years.

Their families have set up memorial scholarships in their names to benefit North Quincy graduates and the tournament serves to raise funds for these scholarships.

The weekend will feature a 16-team men's tournament and a four-team women's tournament, featuring a number of local college basketball players, as well as many of the top former and current high school players from Quincy.

Games begin at 10 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday and will run throughout both days.

There will be great raffle prizes at the tournament, including an autographed Boston Bruins stick, Boston Red Sox tickets, NBA apparel, gift certificates to JJ Foley's Café, Quincy Athletic Club, The Four's, Port 305, O.B.'s Café, Southside Tavern, Babycakes and more.

The event has been a great success in the past thanks to the generous donations of local businesses and Quincy residents. Anyone interested in making a donation can write a check to the John "Okie" O'Connell Fund and send it to Dan Duggan, 61 Bedford St., Quincy, MA 02169. (The donations will be split between the two funds.)

Raiders Rallied Back To Defeat Dartmouth, 5-4 Remembering NQ's 1948 Golf State Champions

By SEAN BRENNAN

To set the scene we need to look way back in time.

The year was 1948, June to be exact, and six friends, all classmates at North Quincy High School were set to tee-off against a field of seven other golf powerhouses, including Lynn English and Beverly out of the North Shore League; Arlington and Melrose from the Greater Boston League, Dartmouth from the South-eastern Conference, Boston College High School of the Parochial League, and Public Latin of the Boston Conference in the state's Schoolboy Golf Championship.

The setting was a familiar place: Furnace Brook Golf Club, a hilly Par 67 traverse, which lacked any Par 5 holes, but was challenging to even the best golfers who played it. It was a course that placed accuracy over distance.

But Bert Nogler, Fordie Pitts, Bill McCarthy, Ken Campbell, Jim McNiece and Bob Berard held an advantage over the rest of the field. You could even say they were the quiet favorite. The reason: Pitts and Campbell were Furnace Brook members, while Nogler, McCarthy, McNiece and Berard played there on a regular basis.

The Red Raiders' six-man contingent had a hometown familiarity with the course layout; it was a comfort that came from playing Furnace Brook from a young age.

"This was course that we were all familiar with," said Bert Nogler earlier this summer in an interview at the Sun. "Most of us had worked as caddies at the old Wollaston Golf Course (now Presidents Golf Course) as youngsters where we would play every Monday morning until noon. We then would all head over to Furnace Brook after seven, after-hours; never paying a green's fee and we would get in nine holes."

North Quincy began the Schoolboy Golf State Championship as the Norfolk League champions, having rolled through the regular season with an 11-2 record, which included an undefeated record in league play. When the six-man, four-ball style tournament drove off on a Monday, the hometown favorite drew 1947 state runner-up Beverly in the quarterfinals.

Pitts, a three-year North Quincy veteran and captain, teamed with McNiece in the top pairing and turned in a 2-over par best ball through 16 holes to defeat Beverly's Bill Palm and Paul Kelly. Pitts fired an individual even par 69 including a 30-foot birdie on the first hole as North jumped out to a 3-0 advantage.

North's number two pairing of Campbell and Berard took the best shot from Jim Buckley and John Doran before settling in and claiming three points of their own for the Red Raiders as Campbell matched Pitts with his even par 69.

Nogler and McCarthy, the number three team, began their round on the sixth tee and ran into trouble against Ronnie Huard and Jim Gillis on the back nine, but McCarthy sank a long putt on the final hole (the 5th) after he and Nogler had recouped points on holes three and four.

North Quincy would win 8-1 to advance to the semifinals where they would square off against Lynn English. Led by the accurate shooting of Pitts and Campbell, the Red Raiders won 5-1/2-3-1/2 to move into the championship round against Dartmouth.

Winning a schoolboy golf championship was nothing new for North Quincy. The 1943 Red Raiders' team had pulled the trick, but against Dartmouth, North Quincy was a heavy underdog. And things looked bleak as the two of the three North Quincy twosomes trailed Dartmouth as late as the 16th hole.

That's when Pitts began a stunning reversal. He lifted his third shot to within inches of the cup to earn a regulation four on 16, and on the 17th, Pitts' drive put him in the position to place his second shot close enough for a "gimme" birdie. Pitts would collect a regulation four on the 18th, leaving it up to McNiece to win the point. McNiece did just that as he buried a birdie three to give the Red Raiders the match point over Bernie Fauteau and John Birkness.

Campbell and Berard had already done their job after collecting three points with a round that was littered with birdies over Dartmouth's Bob Graham and Bill Masse, so according to Nogler, the pressure of winning the state championship fell squarely on him and his playing partner, Bill McCarthy.

Nogler and McCarthy, as Nogler remembered, trailed the Dartmouth pair by a two-stroke margin after the front nine and by a single stroke as the teams headed to the 18th tee box. When Nogler and Dartmouth's Will Bonneau and Dick Turner went hay-wire off the tee, each carding a score of six, the pressure fell on the shoulders of McCarthy. His second shot, a six iron out of the trees rolled between two sand traps and stopped about 25 feet from the hole.

As Nogler recalls, McCarthy left his putt short by about three feet. Needing a par to clinch the state championship, McCarthy calmly drained the short putt to give North Quincy the point and the state title by a 5-4 final.

"I can't really describe the feeling after watching Bill's putt go in," Nogler said about the championship-clinching stroke. "I do remember that there were a lot of North Quincy students there and all the kids were yelling and screaming. It wasn't an easy putt to make. That three-footer probably looked like 90 feet to Bill."

Since Nogler, Pitts, McCarthy, McNiece, Campbell and Berard roared from behind under the tutelage of legendary coach Jack Donahue to defeat Dartmouth for the 1948 Schoolboy Golf State Championship no other North Quincy golf team has accomplished the same feat. Again, 64 golf seasons have come and gone.

When Bert Nogler walked into the Sun office, he was just looking for someone to talk with, reminisce and tell his story. It had been a while and he wanted to remind folks that long ago golf was king at North Quincy High School.

There is currently no banner recognition of the 1948 team's state championship in the North Quincy gymnasium. Maybe it was just forgotten or maybe it has slipped through the cracks over the decades, but here's hoping, even after 64 years, that these six men are always remembered for what they accomplished that June day, under immense pressure, when they brought home a state title on their "home" course.

2-3 Record With Five Games Remaining Crunch Time For Quincy Militia

By SEAN BRENNAN

It is crunch time now for the Quincy Militia if the hometown semi-pro football team wants any shot at advancing into the Eastern Football League (EFL) playoffs at the end of September.

Two weeks ago the Militia lost 19-0 to the Taunton Gladiators at Veterans Memorial Stadium, dropping its overall record to 2-3 with five regular season games remaining. Quincy fell behind 7-0 on the first play from scrimmage as Taunton sliced through the Militia defensive front for an 80-yard touchdown. It got worse quickly for Quincy as the team was called for a penalty on the ensuing kickoff, and on their first play from scrimmage quarterback Aaron Cobbs was strip sacked inside the 10-yard line.

The Gladiators would punch in a second touchdown moments later, and Quincy found itself down 13-0 just seven minutes into the affair. The Militia would hold Taunton scoreless until the final minute of regulation, but Quincy's running offense found no daylight against last year's EFL finalist and was shutout for the second time this season.

Quincy had this weekend off (bye week) to prepare for their biggest game of the summer on Saturday at 8 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium versus the Metro West Mavericks.

"The Taunton game was tough," said Militia head coach Vaughn Driscoll. "We gave up that big touchdown run on the first play from scrimmage and the team was down. We did a decent job on defense after that, but offensively our running game couldn't get much done."

"We took the bye week to regroup," continued Driscoll. "We need to keep our heads up because our remaining five games are all winnable. I told the team that we control our future; we need to stay focused and really prepare for this run."

Driscoll ran his program through an intense three-hour practice on Sunday. Near the end of the session he had his whole team take a walk around the field at Veterans Memorial Stadium. It wasn't a penalty lap, but instead it was his way of giving his team some time to reflect on what lies ahead.

"I had them all take a walk around the field; it was a time to reflect on where we are at this season," explained Driscoll. "We haven't won a home game in two years and we have three left this season. The guys seemed to understand what was going on."

"Eight teams make the EFL playoffs," Driscoll added. "At 5-5 you might get in as the eight seed, so we really need to win as many games as possible to reach the goal (winning a EFL championship) we set out at the beginning of the season."

Quincy hosts the Metro West Mavericks this Saturday before taking another bye week the following Saturday. The Militia and the Randolph Oilers play at the Stadium on Sept. 1 (Quincy beat Randolph 13-0 back on July 27) before traveling to play at the Eastern Mass Seminoles on Sept. 8 and to the Twin City Blue Raiders on Sept. 15.

The 2012 regular season concludes on Sept. 22 with a home tilt versus the Granite State Knights.

All home games begin at 8 p.m. Admission is $5, but anyone under the age of 12 is admitted free of charge.

Friday Fundraiser

The Quincy Militia is holding a team fundraiser on Friday from 7-11 p.m. at the Morrisette American Legion Post, Liberty Street.

There will be food, music and raffles. Admission is $10 and proceeds will go to offset the cost of team expenditures during the season.

Junior League Stars Win Two At Braintree

By SEAN BRENNAN

Quincy Junior Baseball League all-stars got off to a fast start in a tournament at Braintree, winning two games over the weekend.

Quincy edged Holbrook, 3-2, with winning pitcher Richie Burns striking out six. Pat McDonough came on with the tying run on second and two outs and slammed the door with a fine relief effort. Matt Smith had two hits and two RBI and Mark Bogan doubled home the other run; Jim Mahoney had a double.

Quincy later blanked Easton, 5-0, with winning pitcher Smith striking out nine.

Smith also finished with two hits in the win, while McDonough, Billy Campbell, Freddie Regan and Mike Baylis had a single each.

Other members of the team are Sean Cafferty, Joey Bevilacqua, Richie MacDonald, Mike Murray, Ralph Bevilacqua, Billy Warren, and Joe Crespi.

DaROCHA, JOHANSON RACE WINNERS

Tony DaRocha of Dorchester, a former Boston University track star, was the overall winner at the sixth annual Quincy Youth Commission Home Run 10k road race.

His winning time was 31:43.

The first female finisher was Mary Hynes Johanson of Belmont, who finished in 38:39. The wheelchair winner was Bob Hall, who narrowly defeated Jack Coakley in a time of 29:27.

Quincy's Sam Mele, former major league star and current special assignment scout for the Boston Red Sox, was the official starter of the race, which attracted 329 runners. Sherry Mele of the sponsoring Wollaston Credit Union and Brian Buckley of the Quincy Youth Commission were the co-directors of the race.

NQ GIRLS BASKETBALL DONATES MONEY TO YOUTH COMMISSION

Members of the North Quincy girls' basketball team recently held a car wash at the school and will donate the proceeds to the Quincy Youth Commission Group home for girls.

Coach Paul Bregoli said that the following 18 girls worked the car wash: Anne Marie Hughes, Nancy Lyons, Karen Runge, Jean Welby, Ann Anderlionis, Maureen Donovan, Tricia Koski, Nancy Leonard, Marybeth Maloney, Ann McGuiganne, Lisa Mitton, Maureen Tolson, Paula Tolson, Nancy Flukes, Karen Cavanaugh, Beth Holt, Wendy Lampa, Shelby Lane and Donna Correnti.

Youth Coordinator Brian Buckley stated "It is always great to see young people involved in sports, and it is even better when these youngsters help out the neighbors in their community. The North Quincy girls are to be congratulated."

MORRISSETTE TO HONOR CHAMPS

Morrisette American Legion Post will honor its Zone 6 baseball champions at the annual banquet Friday, Aug. 22 at 7:30 p.m. at the post home at 54 Miller Street.

Steve McKinnon, a former Morrisette player, will be the featured speaker. The players will be presented jackets.

It is hoped that some Morrisette players of the 1940s and 1950s would attend. Ticket and other information can be obtained by calling athletic director Frank Osborne.

Pepsi Hot Shots Competition

The Quincy Recreation Department hosted their annual citywide Pepsi Hot Shots Competition on July 20. This event brings youngsters from throughout their 13 supervised playgrounds across Quincy.

Over 100 shooters took part in the district wide qualifying round and about 50 of those contestants qualified and competed in the citywide championship at Fenno Street Park.

Pepsi Hot Shots is a fast-paced shooting competition where contestants are given one minute to make as many shots from different marked off spots on the court. The competition shows off the youngsters' shooting, awareness, and speed.

In the Boys' Senior Division, Aidan Golden put on a great shooting performance on his path to a city championship. For the Junior Boys, Kyle Murphy won his second straight city title, and in the Boys' Midget Division, Aaron O'Toole's superb shooting overcame a strong performance from Franco Calabra.

In the Girls' Junior Division, Gia Calabra came away victorious, while in the Girls'

Midget Division, Ashley Grehan defeated Caitlin Ainsley

by only one point to secure her city championship.

All the competitors put in a great effort and the event was a success.

Cochrane Road Race Sept. 9

The 5th Annual Officer Jamie Cochrane Memorial Road Race - a 10K Road Race/5K Fun Walk - will be held on Sunday, Sept. 9 at 10 a.m. sharp with registration from 8-9:30 a.m. at Adams Field, Merrymount Parkway. There will be a Free Kids Fun Run at 9 a.m.

The race is held every year in memory of Officer Jamie Cochrane "S6," an eight-year Quincy Police Veteran who spent most of his career in the Special Operations Unit. He was a kindhearted police officer who always went the extra mile. On Sept. 10, 2006, Officer Cochrane was killed was riding his motorcycle.

All proceeds from the road race/fun walk will go to various local charities.

There is a $25 entry fee and online registration can be done through Sept. 6 at www.racewire.com. The first 700 registrants receive a free race t-shirt. Pre-registration and bib # pickup will be held on Sat., Sept. 8 at Adams Field from 2-5 p.m.

The flat course, including three miles of beachfront road, is USATF Certified, and RaceWire will do official timing. Prizes will be awarded to all 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place division finishers.

Please mail your $25 non-refundable check, made payable to The Cochrane Road Race, to: Cochrane Road Race, PO Box 690268, Quincy, MA 02269-0268.

ALL IN ALIGN

When a muscle, ligament, tendon, or joint on one side is compromised, its counterpart on the other side will compensate. For instance, if the muscles in your stomach become overly lax, the muscles in your back will shorten and tighten. As a result, not only will your overall posture be out of balance, but there will also be more strain on your back muscles. Aches and pains are a common result of these inequities, and as you age, your flexibility, strength, and coordination decline. Poor alignment makes these declines happen earlier and makes them more pronounced. This picture of poor posture should provide you with an incentive to visit the chiropractor to get yourself properly aligned.

At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we use a natural, drugless, non-surgical approach to health care. Have you considered chiropractic health care? Call us at 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition we offer you exceptional service.

P.S. When joints are out of alignment, abnormal wearing of joint surfaces (osteoarthritis) is more likely to ensue.

Recreation Dept. Has Openings For Two Clinics

The Quincy Recreation Department announced on Tuesday that limited openings still remain for two clinics that will be conducted during the week of Aug. 20-24.

The Co-Ed Volleyball Clinic will be held under the direction of Kerry Ginty, head volleyball coach at North Quincy High School. The clinic will run from 8:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. and is geared towards boys and girls entering Grades 6-12.

Players will learn a wide variety of individual skills from defense to offense, with beginner players focusing on passing and serving and more advanced players concentrating on attack. Competition experiences highlight the week with doubles, triples and six-on-six contests.

The clinic will be held in the North Quincy High School gymnasium and the cost is $82.

The Competitive Swimming Clinic is for boys and girls who have advanced to Red Cross Level IV or YMCA Fish. Boys and girls should be entering Grades 5-12, but children under Grade 5 may be admitted with approval of the Recreation Department.

Held at the Lincoln Hancock School Pool, participants will focus on refinement of competitive skills and will be exposed to different types of training during the weeklong clinic.

The clinic will be held from 8:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. and the cost is $82.

Registration may be done online at www.QuincyRec.com, or in person at the Quincy Recreation Department, located at One Merrymount Parkway. For questions call 617-376-1394.

QHS Alumni Soccer Reunion Game

A SUMMER SOCCER REUNION - Past and present Quincy High School boys' soccer players came together back on July 29 to play in a QHS Boys Soccer Alumni Game at Veterans Memorial Stadium. The 2012 Quincy High team, which will look to repeat last year's run to the state tournament, begins tryouts next week in preparation for the season opener in early September.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)
As eager as you are to take on that new challenge, it would be best to temper that spurt of "Ram"-bunctious energy until you have more facts to back up your decision to move.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)
This is a good time for hardworking Bovines to take a break from their hectic on-the-job schedules to bask in the unconditional love and support of friends and family.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)
Pay attention to what you hear in the workplace. You could pick up some hints about possible changes. Meanwhile, a new infusion of creative energy sets in by week's end.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22)
Try to be more flexible in dealing with a suddenly difficult situation, whether it's on the job or in the home. Others might have some good points to offer. Listen to them.

LEO (July 23 to August 22)
You might think you're not getting the royal treatment you deserve. But be careful not to become a royal pain by complaining about it. Be patient and allow things to work out.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22)
Watch that penchant for being super-judgmental at work. It might create a bad impression with someone whose decisions could determine the course of your career.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22)
You've been your usual busy-bee self, gathering nectar wherever you can find it. But now's a good time to kick back, relax and just enjoy smelling the roses.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21)
That pesky personal situation seems to be improving. But change comes slowly, so be patient. Expect someone to bring more positive news by week's end.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21)
Whoa! Ease up on that hectic pace you've been putting yourself through. Take time to recharge your energy levels before going full gallop again.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19)
Try to be intrigued, not intimidated, by the issues you're suddenly facing, and you'll be ahead of the game. Don't be afraid to demand answers to your questions.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18)
New associates freezing you out of their inner circle? Never mind. Put a warm smile on that friendly face of yours, and you'll soon thaw them all down to size.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20)
Your wise guidance helps colleagues agree to compromise and move forward. Meanwhile, there are still vital issues you need to deal with in your personal life.

BORN THIS WEEK: You enjoy being free with your emotions, but you also can exercise disciplined focus. You would make a fine artist.

Social Security And Women

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Aug. 26 is known as Women's Equality Day. On that date in 1920, the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution was signed, giving women the right to vote.

Social Security treats men and women equally. Men and women with identical earnings histories are treated exactly the same. However, there are things women in particular should know about Social Security. Although treated equally by Social Security, there are trends and differences in lifestyle that can affect benefits.

For example, women tend to care for many people: spouses, children, and parents. Taking time away from the workplace to care for a newborn child or aging parent can have an impact on your future Social Security benefits.

Also, despite significant strides through the years, women are more likely to earn less over a lifetime than men. Women are less often covered by private retirement plans, and they are more dependent on Social Security in their retirement years.

And, women tend to live about five years longer than men, which means more years depending on Social Security and other retirement income or savings.

If a woman is married to a man who earns significantly more than she does, it is likely she will qualify for a larger benefit amount on his record than on her own.

Want to learn more? Visit our Women's page at www.socialsecurity.gov/women. Follow the link on that page to our publication, What Every Woman Should Know. You can read it online, print a copy, or listen to it on audio. We provide alternate media as well to reach as many women as possible and to provide the information the way you'd like to receive it.

Learning about your future Social Security benefits and how men and women are treated just the same in the eyes of Social Security: what better way to celebrate Women's Equality Day?

Muriel J. Hamaty

Former Owner of Muriel's Creations

A funeral service for Muriel Janet (Mallett) Hamaty, of Quincy, was conducted Monday in the Keohane Funeral Home, Quincy.

Mrs. Hamaty died Aug. 6.

Originally from Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, until she made her home with her family in Quincy. For many years, she ran her business "Muriel's Creations" designing, creating and stitching handmade couture doll fashions and bedding for which she was well known and sought after.

She devoted her life to her children and grandchildren as well as to her circle of friends and extended family for which her love was never ending. Her compassion and concern for the well being of others was her legacy.

Mrs. Hamaty also enjoyed cooking and baking, making sure others were well fed and clothed and she also enjoyed traveling, especially to Canada to visit with family and old friends.

Wife of the late Elton J. Hamaty; mother of Bruce Hamaty of Quincy, Blair Hamaty and his partner William Hayward of Kingston and Jay Hamaty of Somerville; sister of Barbara Mallett, Beatrice Cotteray, Martha Copeland, Margaret Jackson, Shirley Welch and George Mallett, all of Canada, and the late Mary Doucette and Everette and John Mallett; grandmother of Brendan, Kaitlin, Lauren and Amanda Hamaty; friend of Terry Lambert.

She is also survived by several close friends.

Bessie A. Santagata, 98

Longtime Bookkeeper

A Mass of Christian Burial for Bessie A. (Gioncardi) Santagata, 98, of South Braintree, formerly of Quincy, was celebrated Aug. 11 in St. Francis of Assisi Church, South Braintree.

Mrs. Santagata died Aug. 7 at Baypointe Rehabilitation and Skilled Nursing Center in Brockton.

Born in Quincy to the late Joseph and Delia (Tantillo) Gioncardi, she graduated from Quincy High School where she majored in Business. She worked as a bookkeeper in her uncle's plumbing business until she married Joseph Santagata in 1944. In 1950 she became the bookkeeper for her husband's flooring business - Joe Santagata's Flooring, where she ran the business while raising her family.

She was a woman before her times, as she worked both in her house and out of the house running a very successful business, which she passed on to their son John. Her husband was a former president of the Braintree Rotary Club and she was a member of the Braintree Rotary Ann's for many years.

She loved her family with her whole heart and loved being a mother and grandmother. She loved to read, cook, knit, sew and play cards and was a deeply religious person and found great comfort in her faith.

Wife of the late Joseph

Santagata; mother of Annette Crawford and her husband John of NY and John Santagata and his wife Laura of Holbrook; grandmother of Matthew and his wife Chalice Crawford, Carolyn Crawford and her husband Sean Hallihan of NY, Alicia (Santagata) Oakman and her husband Steve of Middleboro, Ashley (Santagata) Bebis and her husband Alex of Bridgewater and Kimberly Santagata of Holbrook; great-grandmother of Becky and Hannah Crawford and another soon to be Oakman baby; sister of Thomas Gioncardi and his wife Gina and Joseph Gioncardi and his wife Pat, all of Quincy and the late Ralph, James and Teddy and seven sisters: Jenny, Mary, Nora, Ann, Frances, Tina and Jean; sister-in-law of Nellie (Santagata) Dryer and Dolly (Santagata) Donovan and her husband Joe, all of Quincy.

She is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Committal prayers were said at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Mortimer N. Peck-Russell Peck Funeral Home, Braintree.

Memorial donations may be made to the MA Commission for the Blind-MCB Boston Office, 600 Washington St., Boston, MA 02111.

Hall Of Fame Honor For WJDA Founder Jim Asher

Mr. Bosworth also once remarked that Mr. Asher had a "dry wit and homey broadcasting style" that made getting up a must for many listeners in the area.

"During his 'Breakfast with JDA' show from 6:30 to 8 a.m. (until his illness in 1972), Jim's listeners got such inside low down on the latest cribbage match with John (Zep) Duane or what Freddy Lane in the control room was doing for excitement, or they chuckled over Belinda, the mooing cow, who sounded so real people wanted to know how much hay she ate," the publisher wrote.

Besides his morning show, Jim Asher read commercials and sold advertising. He worked hard but he didn't consider it work.

It was his passion.

"There's no doubt he worked hard at this business but it wasn't work. He loved it," Jay says. "He would have been perfectly happy to work seven days a week. He loved every aspect of the business. He really worked hard to get it going and every day he was able to he worked hard but he also recognized what the station did."

"Virtually everyone in the organization during those early days belonged to a service club. Everyone was involved (in the community). Everyone was involved in the on-air product and the city of Quincy."

A native of Kansas, Jim Asher became acquainted with the Boston area while doing graduate work at Harvard University School of Business Administration. In the late 1930s, he was a clothing salesman in Boston and at a Quincy store. He also worked as the general manager at the former Remick's Department store.

Asher had a good read on the business climate in Quincy and thought there was potential for the city to support a radio station. There was opportunity, too, since the FCC was beginning to lift a moratorium on new radio stations that had been in place during the war years. After World War II ended, the ban was lifted and many stations began to surface, including WJDA.

A radio tower was raised in Houghs Neck (later it was moved) and the station's first home was built on Brackett Street next to the former Fallon Construction.

Asher then went to work building a staff.

"My father was a great salesman," Jay says. "I have a lot of respect for that word and it's a great skill in business and my father was very persuasive. People who came to work for him — like Herb Fontaine, Win Bettinson, Ken Fallon and others — had the faith to come and work for him during those early years."

Before going on the air, Asher lined up advertising dollars to support the budding station.

"We had about $130 in the bank and a lot of hope," he once recalled.

But hope turned into faith. One local bank gave Asher a year's worth of advertising revenue in advance.

"All of a sudden, they had a little money in the bank. There was a lot of people in the community who supported the station and helped him get going," Jay says.

When the new station dawned nearly 65 years ago, there were skeptics among the early listeners. Henry Bosworth often wrote when JDA marked an anniversary milestone.

"Won't last, they predicted. It'll be

WJDA FOUNDER JAMES D. ASHER
2012 MA Broadcasters
Hall Of Fame Inductee

gone within six months. Quincy was too small and too close to Boston to have a radio station of its own, they insisted.

"Well, they were wrong," Bosworth said. The publisher, Asher said, also provided inspiration when Bosworth founded this newspaper in September, 1968 — and encouragement after the paper began circulating.

"(Jim Asher) did this despite the fact that we were going to cut into the existing advertising dollars in the area. That didn't bother him.

"He went out of his way many times to plug The Sun on the air. We will always be grateful to Jim for his kindness to us. He was a good friend," Bosworth said.

Today, Jay Asher says his father was never concerned about the skeptics. He didn't complain about competition from other media sources, either.

"It was his job to start a business, build it and he was successful at it. Some may have said it wouldn't last. He didn't complain about other people. His job was to run the station, take care of his employees, take care of the listeners, take care of the advertisers."

With Asher at the helm, the family-orientated station hummed along for several decades. Ratings peaked at 60,000 listeners. Popular segments included "Breakfast with JDA," Mary Johnson's "Stork Club" and later JDA's signature show, "Party Line." There was also a nice balance of local news, high school and college sports, community events and national and international news.

Jim Asher and the station also gave local listeners a front row seat to many historical moments of the 20th century. They included the coronation of Queen Elizabeth II in 1953, the 1960 Summer Olympics in Rome and Democratic and Republican Party National Conventions.

But in the late 1960s, Jim Asher became ill and in February, 1971, Jay Asher changed jobs and began running WJDA's sister station, WESX, on the North Shore.

"My father was in declining health and I knew he would be less and less able to take care of everything," Jay recalls. "It was a family business. I was concerned for my mother. Somebody had to be there. This was a good opportunity for me. I had always worked at the station during high school and college but I didn't have (my father's) skills — none of them."

"I always sort of chuckled when people used to say to me, 'you're not like your father.' And I said, 'yes, that's true.'"

"When someone was mad and they called the station, I just listened to them. They don't want someone to tell them they shouldn't be mad, they just want to talk."

Although it was a sad time for the family, Mr. Asher — who was greatly affected with emphysema — retained his dry wit.

"When my father became ill, he told me, 'if you don't do anything, (WJDA) should go along pretty well for quite a while,'" Jay says with a laugh. "In essence, he was telling me: if you don't mess up, you should be okay until you get your feet wet."

Mr. Asher died in June of 1973. When he succeeded his father as station president, Jay Asher — who was 7 months old when WJDA was born — was only 26 years old.

Looking back at that transition, Jay says, "The only regret I have is that at the time, I was so young and we had such a good staff, I wish I had made Ken Fallon president of the organization and worked for Ken for a while. He was such a great leader in the community and at the station. The man was so good to me and so good to my father and the station."

For the next 33 years, Jay kept the station running. The station was popular and a key cog in providing news and information to Quincy and South Shore residents. Station employees like Roy Lind, John Nicolson and so many others became household names here.

If there is one signature moment in WJDA's history, it struck on Feb. 6 and 7, 1978 — the Blizzard of 1978. While the two-day storm dumped 27 inches of snow, flooded streets and smashed seawalls and essentially paralyzed the area, WJDA was on the air with vital information. The station — at the time a sunrise to sunset operation — stayed on the air after normal broadcasting hours two nights to keep feeding information to listeners who were virtually prisoners in their own homes.

The station had to deal with its own storm-related challenge: an abnormally high tide had rolled over the insulator of the antenna at the transmitter in Germantown and knocked the station with studios on Brackett Street off the air for four hours.

Dead silence for four hours was enough for Asher and his crew to roll the dice. Without knowing if the water was still dangerously above or safely below the insulator, the decision was made to go for it: try to get back on the air.

"We got tired of sitting around so we turned on the power," Asher later recalled. "It was a lucky shot. It worked, but it could have burned everything out."

The staff showed their dedication by arriving — like cavalry — one by one to the station. Some walked from their homes. Others drove their own vehicles in the howling snow. A few even got transported by police vehicles.

WJDA, during that epic storm, was probably the only significant line of communication for hard-hit places in Quincy and the South Shore. Power had been knocked out in many areas so TV updates were dashed. Newspaper deliveries were hampered by difficult driving conditions. (The Sun published just one day late that week.) The internet and cell phones did not exist.

But if you had a battery-run radio — and tuned to WJDA — you might have been in the dark but remained in the news loop.

Many listeners called to thank the station for helping them endure the storm's impact, including power outages.

"I don't know what we would've done without you," was a common refrain from public officials and private citizens alike following the storm.

Like all industries, the radio business has changed over the years and in 2006, Asher decided to transfer the station's license to Principle Broadcasting. The new format was foreign language and religious programming.

Asher said the time was right to sell. It was his only "exit strategy."

"I don't have any children. One employee who I thought might be interested in buying the station moved away. You couldn't afford to pay the money and run an expensive operation. Our revenues were not that much. People would be shocked as to how modest the revenue of the station was but we had a lot of people. We paid them as well as we could."

Does he think his father would have been proud of the way he managed the station?

"I think so. I think he would be proud of how we treated our people — we treated them as best we could. I think he would have been proud knowing we did our best to stay connected to the city personally because those things were important. We respected our listeners."

Before he passed away, Jim Asher offered this fatherly advice to his son.

"He said, 'We've got a good business. It's a lot of fun. If you enjoy it, you'll have a nice career for yourself. If you don't and you're not having fun, then sell it.'"

"It was kind of an off-handed comment and it sounds kind of casual but you have to be that way," Jay says. "He didn't want people to be unhappy. He didn't say 'don't change the music format,' he didn't say 'you always have to have three people in the news department . . . He was a broadcaster."

"He realized the importance of the media to the city and to the region."

Jay Asher, his wife Terry and sister Joan will represent the Asher family at the Hall of Fame induction ceremony next month. Also invited to attend are friends and WJDA alumni.

The family will receive a plaque in Jim's honor and there are plans to display all of the inductees plaques at the Communications Department at Massasoit Community College.

There will undoubtedly be a lot of reminiscing on that special day Sept. 13.

Memories that go back to the beginning — when JDA first started.

"My father said these little catch phrases while doing his morning show. 'He'd say, 'Thanks for joining us. We have a newscast and a weather forecast designed for your wake-up hour,' Jay recalls.

"The other thing he always said was he did this show because he couldn't get anybody else up that early to work that cheap," his son says with a big laugh.

"It's fun to reminisce but not everything's forever and that's too bad."

WJDA — as we used to know it — may be gone but James D. Asher's legacy lives on in the Massachusetts Broadcasters Hall of Fame.

"Evelin was moving out of the Quincy address and had put a deposit down on to friends, she had planned to move into a sublet in the Allston-Brighton area for August, but the investigation has not yet revealed where.

 That is one of the areas we need help to investigate fur-

Valibayova, age 23 at the time of her disappearance, has not contacted family or since the date of her disap-

"In the course of this

Police are also looking to

MBTA security footage shows that Valibayova, a native of Azerbaijan, arrived safely at the North Quincy her shift at Area 4 restaurant in Cambridge on July 16 - the day before her disappear-

Valibayova's disappear-

CANDLELIGHT VIGIL at Quincy Veterans Stadium Aug. 17 remembered those lost from drug abuse. More than 150 family and friends of deceased loved ones from Quincy, Braintree, Randolph and Weymouth attended the vigil.

Speakers Share Messages Of Hope Vigil Remembers Those Lost To Substance Abuse

By EMILY TAFT

Over 150 family members, friends, and community members came together last Friday night, Aug. 17th, to remember those struggling with addiction and those who have died because of the disease during an Overdose Candlelight Vigil held at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"It is so important not to do this by yourself. There is no stigma here. It is a family disease. You are not alone," said Kathy Deady, a Quincy parent and community activist.

"Addicts in recovery, whether they be alcohol or substance abusers, have to work at their recovery every single day. It is the hardest work they will ever do. But you can have a life, you can get your life back, and you can get your family back."

Police Investigate Bank Robberies

By EMILY TAFT

Quincy Police continue to investigate the robbery of the Eastern Bank in South Quincy last Friday and are looking into a possible connection that the same suspect may be responsible for robbing the same bank July 30 and a different bank in Allston.

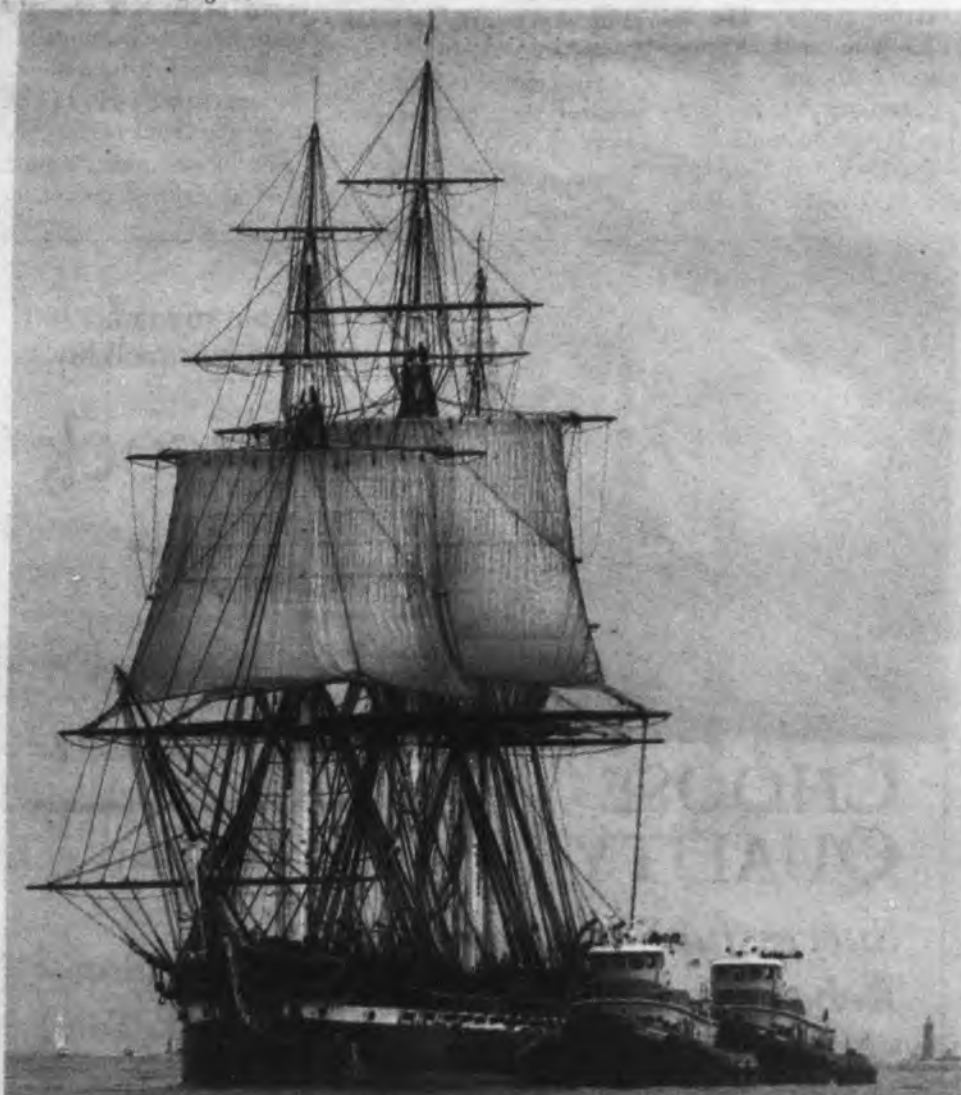

The second robbery occurred at the 63 Franklin Ave. bank branch last Friday - Aug. 17 - at approximately 9:39 a.m. just after the bank had opened. When police arrived on the scene, the suspect had already left the area according to Quincy

The world's oldest commissioned warship, the 216-year-old "Old Ironsides" sailed under its own power for 17 minutes for the first time since 1997 in Boston Harbor from its berth in Charlestown. The event marked the ship's 200th anniversary of her victory over HMS Guerriere during the War of 1812. Hundreds of boaters filled the water to witness the event as well as land spectators on Castle Island, Spectacle Island and along the Boston shoreline.

12,000 Attend 25th Quincy August Moon Festival

By SCOTT JACKSON

The August Moon Festival – considered the largest one-day event on the South Shore – continues to set new attendance records with an estimated 12,000 people attending Sunday's festival.

John Brothers, executive director of event organizer Quincy Asian Resources, Inc. (QARI), said there was a consensus among the organizers that the event exceeded last year's attendance of 10,000. To him, the festival was a great success.

"It was a fantastic event," Brothers said. "People keep asking how the festival keeps growing."

Brothers credited two things for the high turnout. The first was Mother Nature; Sunday's weather was beautiful, with temperatures in the 70s and mostly sunny skies. Brothers also credited his team of 250 or so volunteers who worked the event.

August Moon serves as the largest fundraiser for QARI, and the organization set a high-water mark after raising more than $100,000.

DRAGON DANCE is performed by students of Wah Lum Kung Fu at the 25th annual Quincy August Moon Festival Sunday on Hancock Street in Quincy Center. Other Photos Page 17.

Last year's festival took in about $80,000, according to Brothers.

Among the thousands who attended were newcomers to the city. And they too were impressed by the event.

Two of the newcomers were Pittsburgh natives

Heather Gratzmiller and Jonathan Keller. They moved to Quincy Center about a year-and-a-half ago after spending a few years elsewhere in Greater Boston. While they attended other events in Quincy, nothing compared to August Moon.

"We've been to other things in Quincy, and it seems like the best thing we've attended so far," Gratzmiller said.

Gratzmiller and Keller were sampling food and beverages from the festival's food court area on Hancock Street. She was particularly happy to be able to learn more about the community.

Another first-time attendee was Matthew Hursh. He moved to Quincy from Connecticut last week. Hursh said he enjoyed one of the newcomers to the festival, food trucks offering items like grilled cheese and desserts.

"We were by the food trucks over there, it was pretty cool," Hursh said.

Hursh was there with his friend Matt Chin. Chin wasn't a newcomer to the festival. He attended the past couple of years because his aunt and uncle's insurance company had a booth. Chin was happy to be out and about with such a large crowd.

"Just seeing all the people is good," Chin said. "It's just a happy place."

The festival started with a bang shortly after 11 a.m. when lion and dragon dancers and accompanying percussionists traveled from one end of the Hancock Street festival at the Granite Trust Building to a stage set up near Hannon Parkway. The lion dancers were from Rhode Island Kung Fu academy and the dragon dancers from Wah Lum Kung Fu in Malden.

One of the dignitaries on the stage was Mayor Tom Koch, who participated in a traditional Chinese ceremony with the lion dancers. He held a red envelope to their mouths, asking them to perform. He then patted each lion on its head and tail, symbolizing good start and good ending, before allowing the lion to take the envelope as a reward.

Following the dances, the dignitaries opened the festival. QARI President Dr. Wan Wu, PhD, thanked the events sponsors for helping raise the record-setting amount, saying it helped further QARI's goal of making the city more livable for everyone.

"Our long-term goal is to make Quincy a better community for all its citizens to live – raising families, doing business, or in retirement," Wu said. "Today's event would not be possible without support for our many, many sponsors. The good news is we have raised more than $100,000 for the first time this year."

Koch also addressed the crowd that assembled in front of the stage. He thanked QARI for its outreach efforts.

"Dr. Wu mentioned that all the moneys raised today go towards the programs that Quincy Asian Resources runs, and they're so very important for our newcomers," Koch said. "They provide wonderful resources to make that transition to our great land here in America that much easier."

State Rep. Tackey Chan, who helped the start the annual celebration 25 years ago, also addressed the crowd. He reflected on the festival growths over the years, thanking all those who have helped organize it.

"I've been around this event most of my adult life

Call It The Francis X. Bellotti Courthouse

*Bulding Renamed In Honor Of Former State Attorney General;
Dedication Ceremony Sept. 23*

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy District Courthouse will be renamed for Francis X. Bellotti next month, honoring the former Massachusetts attorney general who began his legal career there nearly 50 years ago.

"I tried my first case there in 1953," Bellotti said, "I always came back here, so for me it's a great thing."

Before entering politics, Bellotti ran his own law practice out of an office at 803 Hancock St. At the time, he couldn't fathom having the courthouse named after him.

"I never thought that - I couldn't imagine that," Bellotti said.

In 1958, Bellotti made his first foray into politics when he ran for Norfolk County district attorney. He credited Quincy Police Officer Bill O'Donnell for helping him decide to run for office. Bellotti met O'Donnell a few years before when the attorney helped negotiate a new contract for the police that gave patrolmen an annual raise of $50, bringing their salary from $4,550 a year to $4,600.

Bellotti didn't win that race, but during the campaign he met Arthur Tobin.

Tobin served Quincy as a legislator and mayor before being named clerk magistrate at Quincy District Court. Tobin remains friends with Bellotti to this day, and said it was a wise move to rename the court for him.

"I think it's a great idea, no other individual has done more for the trial court of Massachusetts," Tobin said.

In 1962, Bellotti was elected lieutenant governor and served in that position for four years. In 1964, he defeated sitting Gov. Endicott Peabody in the Democratic primary for governor but lost to Republican John Volpe in the general election.

Determined to pay off your mortgage as quickly as possible?
This loan is for you!

There are so many good reasons to love the 10-Year Mortgage. For some people, it's about being debt-free. Others want the mortgage paid off by the time the kids go to college or before they retire. Some see paying off their mortgage quickly as a kind of "forced" savings. Here's the simple fact: If you can swing the somewhat-higher monthly payments, a 10-Year Mortgage knocks years off your original loan. Your equity builds very quickly. And you pay thousands less in interest, compared to a longer-term mortgage loan. Rates are still at historic lows. How much longer? Who knows. If a 10-Year sounds good to you, let's talk. Soon! Come see us or call Angela Blanchard, VP/Retail Lending, at 617-471-0750. Or apply online at colonialfed.com. (Have another loan or term in mind? THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On Aug. 28, 1774, Elizabeth Ann Bayley is born in New York City. She went on to found the first Catholic school and the first female apostolic community in the United States. She also was the first American-born saint beatified by the Roman Catholic Church.
- On Sept. 1, 1850, circus entrepreneur P.T. Barnum brings to the United States Jenny Lind, the greatest opera performer in the world in the mid-19th century. Lind - "The Swedish Nightingale" - was a sensation. Her tour is believed to have netted Barnum close to a half-million dollars, an astonishing sum in 1850.
- On Aug. 27, 1883, the most powerful volcanic eruption in recorded history occurs on Krakatau (also called Krakatoa), a small island located in Indonesia. Heard 3,000 miles away, the explosions threw 5 cubic miles of earth 50 miles into the air and created 120-foot tsunamis.
- On Aug. 29, 1942, the Red Cross reveals that Japan has refused free passage of ships carrying food, medicine and other necessities for American POWs held by Japan.
- Japan allowed just one-tenth of what POWs elsewhere received to reach prisoners in their territories.
- On Aug. 31, 1959, Brooklyn Dodgers left-hander Sandy Koufax strikes out 18 batters, setting a new National League record for most strikeouts in a single game. Koufax retired after the 1966 season at just 30 years old because of arthritis in his elbow. He was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1972.
- On Aug. 30, 1967, Thurgood Marshall becomes the first black American to be confirmed as a Supreme Court justice. He would remain on the Supreme Court for 24 years before retiring for health reasons, leaving a legacy of upholding the rights of the individual.
- On Sept. 2, 1987, the trial of Mathias Rust, the 19-year-old German pilot who flew his Cessna plane into Red Square in May 1987, begins in Moscow. Rust had become an international celebrity after he flew completely undetected through Soviet airspace. At his trial, Rust claimed he was merely trying to promote world peace.

Just A Scenario But . . .

It's just a flicker right now but the race for the White House could also set off a dazzling and wide-reaching round of political musical chairs in Quincy.

A few things would have to fall into place first but an Obama victory Nov. 6 may potentially set off a scramble locally that could dramatically change the political landscape in this city perhaps for years to come.

The scenario goes something like this:

President Barack Obama defeats Republican Mitt Romney for the White House. Obama then begins cobbling together his Cabinet for a second term.

Current Secretary of State Hillary Clinton - who is on record saying she probably would not serve in that post for another four years - is not reappointed. (Many national pundits believe Clinton will run again for President in 2016.)

So, Clinton's out but who's in as Secretary of State?

Obama decides to tap U.S. Sen. John Kerry for Secretary of State. Kerry, who serves as the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was re-elected to his fifth term in 2008. So, in January, he'll have two years remaining on his current term.

IF Obama wins and IF Kerry becomes Secretary of State then that would create a special election for Kerry's unexpired Senate term.

One of the individuals who observers believe would be interested in running for Kerry's seat - if it becomes vacant - is Cong. Stephen Lynch.

Lynch is running for re-election in the new 8th Congressional District that includes Quincy. Lynch - who will face the winner of the Republican primary Sept. 6 between Boston's Joe Selva and Quincy's Matias Temperley - is considered a heavy favorite to become Quincy's next congressman. He would succeed Bill Keating who is running for re-election in the new 9th District.

So, would Lynch take a shot at an open U.S. Senate seat in a special election? Some say yes since he has nothing to lose. He wouldn't have to vacate his representative seat to be a candidate in a special election.

A Lynch win in a special Senate election would trigger another special election - this one would be for his own Congressional seat.

And locally, this is where it gets real interesting.

The hard numbers aren't in yet but Quincy may be the most populous municipality in the new 8th district, surpassing even the neighborhoods of Boston that are also in the new district. Those numbers are expected to be released soon.

An open seat and Quincy's political leverage in a new district could conceivably give local candidates an edge in the race to fill an open Congressional seat. On the Democratic side, one would expect the city's Democratic City Committee to line up behind one Quincy candidate (a current office holder now) and thus not risk splitting the city's vote in a primary battle.

And there's plenty of Quincy office holders who would probably give an open Congressional seat plenty of thought.

The list includes the state's legislative delegation of Sen. John Keenan and state Reps. Ron Mariano, Bruce Ayers and Tackey Chan with Keenan and Mariano holding an advantage. Keenan was a top vote getter while serving as a Quincy city councillor. Most of his Senate district is also located in the new 8th Congressional District.

Mariano has been a popular state representative serving both Quincy and Weymouth (also in the 8th District). He serves as the House Majority Leader and gave running for Congress after Bill Delahunt retired in 2010 some consideration before deciding to stay put on Beacon Hill.

Mayor Thomas Koch would be another potential candidate. Koch, who is expected to seek a fourth mayoral term next year, says he would take a look at an open Congressional seat but doubts he would mount a campaign.

"If (that vacancy) occurs, I probably would take a look at it to see if that was a way I could continue to contribute (in public service). I would look at it but I love what I'm doing right now. It would be a tough decision," he adds.

Koch would have to be considered a strong contender in the field of candidates for an open Congressional seat. He's has strong name recognition and a solid campaign organization.

But being mayor, he says, is the best political job because in the city's strong mayoral form of government, "you can affect change and get things done."

He adds:

"You're running the day-to-day operation (of managing the city). I remember talking to former Cong. Brian Donnelly when he was retiring as congressman and how frustrated he was. He worked for years and years on a bill and by the time the bill comes up for a vote, it's completely different from what it started as.

"You have that gridlock down in Washington. It's a different style. However, I would never close the door on anything."

Koch is also philosophical about his tenure as mayor.

"There's a shelf life to the (mayor's) position. I'm not going to be here forever whether I decide it's time or the people of this city decide it's time at some point there will be a change in this office."

"At some point I would hope if I feel that I am not contributing anymore that I would make that decision on my own. I reached a point in the Park Department where I felt I had done all that I could in a leadership position (executive director) and it was time for me to look at another way that I could contribute."

In January, 2007, Koch resigned as park commissioner to run for mayor against Bill Phelan and unseated the incumbent that fall. He's been re-elected two times.

If one of the city's State House delegation office holders were to be elected to Congress in a special election, another special election would be held for that office holder's seat because there would be more than one year remaining on their term. And that would trigger another political scramble.

But if the mayor ran and won an open Congressional seat, the City Council President would serve out the mayor's term until a new mayor is elected next fall. Of course, an open mayor's seat would set off a political scramble all it's own here.

Other potential contenders for an open Congressional seat and/or state senate-representative seat could include Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin and Ward 5 Councillor Kirsten Hughes. Coughlin - a Democrat - considered running for Congress in 2010. Hughes, a registered Republican - works for Sen. Scott Brown.

An open Congressional seat would surely attract other major players such as state Sen. Jack Hart of South Boston and Braintree Mayor Joe Sullivan.

This political speculation scenario has some major ifs . . . The first one being if Mitt Romney defeats Obama Nov. 6, the speculation stops in its tracks.

But if Obama wins, perhaps the music will be cued for a major shift in the city's political landscape.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1906 real photo postcard reproduction showing the intersection of Hancock and Granite Streets on the right in Quincy Square. The building across the street was the first brick commercial building in Quincy. It opened as the Robertson Hotel in 1875. It was built by Joseph Robertson, one of Quincy's wealthiest citizens of the 19th century. A fire destroyed the top floor, but it remains today as the Greenleaf Building. On the left was the Bethany Congregational Church which moved to its present Spear Street location when the Granite Trust Building was built on this site in 1929. It's too bad the bank didn't retain the small green-space in the right foreground. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Quincy's Yesterdays

This Week

57 Years Ago

Worst Rain Floods Cellars, Submerges Cars

The worst rainstorm in Quincy's history, the after effects of Hurricane Diane, dropped about a foot of rain on the city in two days, flooding 700 cellars, submerging hundreds of cars in streets and parking areas and forcing the evacuation of scores of families.

The U.S. Weather Bureau in Boston recorded an official level of 11.91 inches of rain in 40 hours, with 8.24 inches coming down in 24 hours to break the one-day record of 6.04 set July 11, 1921. The Blue Hills Observatory reported 11.95 inches in 46 hours.

"That means a three-month average rainfall in 36 hours," said Public Works Commissioner Charles R. Herbert. "Our drainage system was not designed to handle it. We will keep on pumping as fast as we can." Quincy drains reach capacity when four inches fall in 24 hours, he said.

Town, Furnace and Sachem Brooks all overflowed their banks and 80 percent of the families living on Brook Road, South Quincy, had to be evacuated from their homes. Fleets of small private boats were pressed into service to take residents of Furnace, West Quincy, to safety.

City Manager Donald H. Blatt warned parents not to allow their children to wade in the flooded streets for fear of health hazards and he asked sightseers to stay out of flooded areas. He also authorized food and building supply stores to stay open on Sunday in the emergency.

More than 150 cars were submerged to their rooftops in the South Street parking areas; a landslide dropped a granite wall into the home of Sarah Dalabon, 131 School Street; and a power line fell across a chain link fence at the Atherton Hough School, Houghs Neck, charging it.

SCHOOL DELAY STUDIED

The School Committee asked Dr. Charles Djerf, a committee member; Dr. Brooks Ryder, the health commissioner; and Dr. James Cameron, a city pediatrician, to study the advisability of delaying the September school opening due to the prevalence of polio in the area.

Thanks City For Refurbishing Willet Street Park

Thanks to the Quincy Park Department for refurbishing the park on Willet Street.

The Park Department replaced worn-out benches, mowed the grass, and removed two shopping carts. Work is in progress to replenish the mulch at the playground and to pick up the trash that has recently accumulated at the park.

Residents of the city should be aware that the Parks Department will respond to issues when asked. Our tax dollars are well spent here.

Ryan Not His First Choice For Romney Running Mate

As I read former Mayor Frank McCauley's latest commentary on Mitt Romney's choice of U.S. Rep. Paul Ryan (R-Wisconsin) for his running mate, like McCauley, I too see Ryan as a risky pick.

As a Reagan Democrat since before Reagan, I grew up in a Democratic household in the 1950s and 1960s. Both times my father had a chance to vote for President Eisenhower, he chose to go with Adlai Stevenson. In 1960, 1964 and 1968, he went with Jack Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson and Hubert Humphrey. However, like many urban Democrats born and raised as Democrats by 1972 he could no longer go Democrat, especially after George McGovern ran for president in 1972. My father always said he didn't the leave Democratic party, the party left him.

In 1972, I voted in my first Presidential election and both my father and I went with President Richard Nixon after the McGovernites took the party over to the far left. I am still a Democrat and often still vote for Democratic candidates but just as often have voted Republican when the GOP had the better candidate for the job. Two years ago I voted for Scott Brown for U.S. Senate and will be doing so again this time around, too.

As far as U.S. Rep. Paul Ryan goes, he was not my first choice for the vice president spot on the Romney ticket. Four years ago, John McCain received 47 percent of the vote which means Romney already starts off with that GOP base figure. He needed a running mate who could help him get that extra four percentage points that alluded McCain in 2008. Anyone who likes Ryan was already in Mitt's camp. He didn't need to shore up his conservative base, he had it. He needed to attract moderates, independents and undecided voters. Ryan doesn't do that.

As a Reagan Democrat, I find Ryan too libertarian. Romney needs the support of working class families who hold traditional conservative social values which once belonged to Democrat candidates. The Ryan pick shows how insecure Romney must feel with his party's base.

Frank McCauley apparently is voting for the guy named Mitt Romney while I am voting for guy not named Barack Obama. In the end we both hope the Romney-Ryan ticket wins because we can't have four more years of failed leadership.

Meanwhile as usual, the Quincy City Democratic Committee has met endorsing both Obama and Elizabeth Warren for U.S. Senate. Warren says she's up against the Romney-Ryan-Brown campaign but forgets to note that U.S. Senator Scott Brown voted twice against the Ryan Budget Bill when it came up for a vote in the U.S. Senate.

In the end sadly I think that Mitt Romney may finish off the Dead Man Trilogy following in the footsteps of Bob Dole in 1996 and John McCain four years ago. If the Jackie Kemp and Sarah Palin picks in 1996 and 2008 didn't work, what makes Romney think that Ryan is the great GOP hope this year?

Republicans need 50.1 percent of the vote and not their usual 47 percent.

Free Showing Of 'The Hunger Games' Tonight

A free screening of "The Hunger Games," the 2012 sci-fi thriller based on Suzanne Collins best-selling novel, will be shown tonight (Thursday) at 6:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

Every year in the ruins of what was once North America, the evil Capitol of the nation of Panem forces each of its twelve districts to send a teenage boy and girl to compete in the Hunger Games, a nationally televised event in which "Tributes" must fight with one another until one survivor remains. Pitted against highly-trained Tributes who have prepared for these Games their entire lives, Katniss is forced to rely upon her sharp instincts as well as the mentorship of drunken former victor Haymitch Abernathy. If she's ever to return home to District 12, Katniss must make impossible choices in the arena that weigh survival against humanity and life against love.

Directed by Gary Ross, the film stars Jennifer Lawrence, Josh Hutcherson and Liam Hemsworth

The 142-minute movie is Rated PG-13.

Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Children's Programs At Library

By JULIE RINES

Crane Public Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library announces it will conclude its summer children's program with the following activities:

Friday, Aug. 24th from 1 to 1:45 p.m. - Storytelling at the Farmers Market, weather permitting.

Stop by the Quincy Farmer's Market Friday, Aug. 24th between 1 and 1:45 p.m. to hear some stories told by one of the Children's Librarians.

Children's Movie: Secret World of Arrietty

On Tuesday, Aug. 28th at 10:30 a.m. the the Main Library Large Meeting Room.

The Clock family, Pod, Homily and their daughter Arrietty, are 4 inch tall people who live under the floorboards borrowing from the humans to survive. Life changes for the Clocks when Arrietty is seen by Shawn the human boy who has come to visit. Based on the Carnegie Award winning novel, The Borrowers by Mary Norton the story of the Clock family has been a favorite of children for 70 years since its publication in 1952. This recently released animated version of the tale by Studio Ghibli brings this delightful story to life for a new generation and will charm adults who remember reading the book.

Rated: G. Run Time 95 minutes. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library.

Children's Movie: Hugo

On Thursday, Aug. 30th at 2 p.m. in the Main Library Large Meeting Room.

An orphaned boy secretly lives in the walls of a busy Paris train station and looks after the clocks. He gets caught up in a mystery adventure when he attempts to repair a mechanical man.

On his adventures, he meets with a shopkeeper, George Melies, who works in the train station and his adventure-seeking god-daughter. Hugo finds that they have a surprising connection to his father and the automaton, and what he discovers it unlocks some deeply buried memories for the old man.

Based on the 2008 Caldecott Award winning novel, The Invention of Hugo Cabret by Brian Selznick, this is visual delight and tribute to the early days of cinema. This long live action movie is most likely to appeal to children ages 8 and older.

Rated: PG. Run Time 127 minutes. Sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Library.

Did you take the A - Z Reading Challenge this summer? Aug. 31st is the last day to turn in your A-Z Reading Challenge sheets so stop by the library with your sheets as soon as you complete the challenge. Need help choosing books to finish the challenge we have loads of great books to suggest.

'Exploring Houghs Neck' Walking Tour

The public is invited to take part in a free guided walk of Houghs Neck Saturday, Aug. 25 at 2 p.m.

The walk will feature the beautiful Leo Kelly Park, a 175-year-old tree, scenic salt marshes and ocean views and fun facts such as how the Willows got its name.

Participants should meet at LaBrecque Field (Sea

St. at the intersection with Rockland St.) It is recommended walkers bring water and wear a sun hat as well as insect repellent.

Because the walking trail has some poison ivy, walkers may also want to wear long pants and socks.

The rain date for the walking tour is Aug. 26.

For more information and rain date rescheduling, call 617/472-0799.

The program is sponsored by the Quincy Park Department's Environmental Treasures Program, the Houghs Neck Garden Club and the Thomas Crane Public Library.

QATV Wins National Awards For Programming

Quincy Access Television has received two national awards for programming produced in 2011.

Mark Crosby and Joseph Catalano of QATV attended the National Conference of the Alliance for Community Media in Chicago to accept the awards.

The Hometown Media Festival sponsored by the Alliance is the oldest festival of its kind in the nation. This year over 1,500 videos were submitted in various categories from over 2,000 Public Access Centers.

Crosby and Quincy's Public Health Nurse Ruth Jones received first place honors in the "Animation" category for their "Thanksgiving Food Safety Tips" video.

Both Catalano and Crosby accepted the prestigious "Overall Excellence" award.

"We at Quincy Access Television are honored to receive the award for Overall Excellence," QATV Executive Director Elizabeth Campbell.

"This award not only looks at the technical production quality, but more

Turkey Or Beef Pizza Burgers

I guess I have made just about every kind of a burger there is. Although I like mine on the plain side, this one turned out great.

I enjoy any kind of food with tomato sauce, from rice, pasta, pizza and on vegetables. So this recipe for a pizza burger just fit the bill.

I used ground turkey for today's recipe, but beef can also be used.

TURKEY PIZZA BURGERS

Enough ground meat to make 4 burgers
¾ cup tomato sauce

4 slices mozzarella cheese
Basil, oregano, garlic powder (or favorite seasonings)

Salt and pepper to taste

Mix the ground meat with 3 tablespoons of the tomato sauce, and the seasoning. Form the patties and either grill them or sauté them. Place the cheese slices over the burgers until melted.

When ready to place on the bun, place tomato sauce over each one and then the top of the bun over that.

Oatmeal Butterscotch Bars

I was just about to make oatmeal raisin cookies when I found today's recipe for oatmeal butterscotch bars instead.

It's not so different from the original oatmeal cookies, and equally delicious especially if you are fan of butterscotch.

OATMEAL BUTTERSCOTCH BARS

1 cup flour
1 ¼ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup light brown sugar
1 ½ sticks unsalted butter

1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ cup milk
2 cups quick Quaker oats
1 ¼ cups butterscotch chips

Melt the butter and add the sugar and then all of the other ingredients. When mixing in the butterscotch chips, reserve a quarter of a cup to place in the microwave and drizzle it over the bars when they are done.

Place in an 8x8 inch baking pan and bake in a 375 degree oven for 35 minutes. Makes delicious bars.

Marine Corps Pvt. Steven Clayton Graduates Training

Marine Corps Pvt. Steven E. Clayton, a 2008 graduate of Quincy High School, Quincy, recently earned the title of United States Marine after graduating from recruit training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C.

For 13 weeks, Clayton stayed committed during tainment from Rock Island Sound and a cash bar featuring wine and microbrews from event sponsors Wachusett Brewery and Geary's Brewery.

The event will also feature a selection of cold drinks and food sold by the Boy Scouts and the Houghs Neck Congregational Church will have their bake sale.

During the event, the annual "Mayor of Houghs Neck" Award will be presented.

All proceeds raised will support local youth programs of the Houghs Neck Community Council.

Individuals and restaurants interested in entering a chowder should contact Brian Laroche at (617) 786-1637 or blaroche@comcast.net.

Organizers said this year's event is expected to attract more than the 1,800 people who attended last year's event.

One week prior to graduation, Clayton endured The Crucible, a 54-hour final test of recruits' minds and bodies. Upon completion, recruits are presented the Marine Corps emblem and called Marines for the first time.

Vigil Remembers Those Lost To Substance Abuse

After a week-long delay due to inclement weather, Impact Quincy — along with the Mayor's Substance Abuse Task Force — held the vigil to bring attention to the issues of substance addiction, and to reduce the stigma that surrounds the disease.

"This is an opportunity to remember loved ones and bring awareness to this issue," said Mayor Tom Koch. "Years ago, people didn't talk of addiction in their families, and now it's different. It is okay to acknowledge the problem."

The vigil featured speakers in recovery, and a father of an addict who died from an overdose. They shared messages of hope and their struggles to become substance-free.

"I think the program was wonderful and the speakers were brave for baring their soles when they spoke," said Arlene Goldstein, the program coordinator of Impact Quincy. "For those who attended the impact was no less than last year. The program was just as moving and just as important this year. Unless you are connected to someone who is struggling, you just don't get it. This is an epidemic."

This is the second year the city has held an overdose vigil. Last year, the event was held in front of City Hall. Goldstein said they decided to hold the vigil in the stadium this year because of the crowd they had last year along with the fact that they invited three other towns to attend.

"Last year was more of an organic event," said Goldstein. "The granite ball in front of City Hall at last year's event worked as a kind of a magnet for people to lay things down, such as pictures and belongings of those who died. So this year we realized we needed a place for people to put pictures. The stadium didn't have anything like the granite ball at City Hall so we made a wall."

According to Goldstein, there were more names read at last year's vigil than the 107 names read this year, which she believes is because the vigil was rescheduled. Citizens of Quincy, Braintree, Randolph, Weymouth and other South Shore communities gathered at the stadium with candles and photographs in hand as the names of their loved ones were read to remember those lost and those struggling with addiction.

Reading the list of names while loved ones occupied benches in the stadium holding candles were:

Norfolk County Dist. Attorney Michael Morrissey; Quincy Police Detective Lt. Patrick Glynn; Quincy Police Chief Paul Keenan and Cong. Stephen Lynch.

"For the people that are struggling, for the family members that have family members that are struggling, there is a way to recover from this disease, there is a way," Jamie Keegan said.

"When I walked in here, I had to put 10 names in that box. I've known so many friends that have OD (overdosed) and have died from this disease, and it is so sad, and such an epidemic. I am just here to tell you that there is hope. As long as you believe, and as long as you don't enable, there is a way to recover."

Keegan added, "You can't get sober out of fear. You can't get sober because your family wants you sober. You can't get sober because of self-reliance. You can't get sober because your kids want you sober. The only thing that keeps me sober is God, and I am only standing here because of him. When I came to figure that out, that's when my life started turning around and I started getting better. I grew up in a loving, caring home where there was no alcoholism at all. This disease affects everyone."

Guest speaker Lee McDonald didn't know her addiction was hurting anyone, and said the 12-step program saved her life.

"It is a bittersweet evening tonight. I am here tonight to celebrate my 12 years of sobriety. There are many ways to get sober," said McDonald. "I didn't think that my using was hurting anybody. I didn't think that anybody cared. My sisters told me that they would read the obituaries to see if I was still alive."

McDonald said that it was when she entered programs to get sober that she realized there were many people who cared.

For many who attended losing a loved one was a wake up call to take the steps and get sober.

"Many say he looks just like me," said Quincy resident Jimmy Magrath as he taped his brother's picture on a wall with so many others who have died due to addiction. "He was only 38 when he died of an overdose. I decided to become clean after his funeral when I realized what my addiction has done to the people I love. Being clean is part of being responsible."

Quincy resident Jerry Shubert knows what it's like to struggle with addiction, and lose a daughter to it.

"It is important to give back, that's why I am here. These programs helped me and my family," said Shubert.

Bill Farrell, whose son died of an overdose two years ago, spoke about how the disease of addiction affects everyone, and to never be ashamed of those who are struggling with addiction.

"This disease can affect anybody. Don't ever be ashamed of a loved one that is inflicted with this disease. It is a disease, it's an addiction and people die from it, but it is a disease," said Farrell. "You should never feel ashamed because they are your loved ones. They are going through something that I don't think any one of us wants to know that feeling."

"We all have a tendency to enable because we want to save our children or our loved ones. It is something that comes natural to us, to enable."

"I don't know what the answer is, and no one here has the answer, otherwise we would have the problem solved. I think it's the individual who has to make it right. To solve this problem, this disease, this addiction, is in numbers. Numbers have a tendency to make people listen."

Quincy Students Build Relationships With Boston Common Homeless

David Coletti and Zachary Chen of Quincy, seniors at Boston College High School, were two of the 33 students who fed and befriended the hungry and homeless on the Boston Common in a homeless outreach program that runs every Thursday for 2 and a half hours after school.

This Project was founded by Coletti and three of his classmates, under the guidance of Campus Minister, Jessica Meyer. Named the St. Louis Project after St. Louis of Toulouse, the group hopes to increase awareness of the human dignity of the homeless, hungry, and impoverished within our community, importantly advocating through our program respect and love for our brothers and sisters in need.

"The St. Louis Project" says Meyer, "is both an interactive and spiritual project, in that it not only entails direct service work but through reflection and the

Nine Quincy Residents To Receive Stars' 2012 '40 Under 40 Awards'

A city councilor, a college athletic coach and a development director are among the nine Quincy residents selected as recipients of Stars' 2012 40 Under 40 Awards, the non-profit child and youth development program.

First launched in 2010 to mark Stars' 40th anniversary, the 40 Under 40 Awards recognize 40 emerging South Shore leaders under the age of 40 for their professional accomplishments, civic engagement and demonstrated leadership potential. This year's recipients also include such varied occupations as farm manager, financial advisor and children's theatre founder.

"The diversity of talents and vocations represented by this year's recipients is really impressive," said Executive Director Sheri Adlin, noting that awardees came from a variety of South Shore towns and represented a wide range of occupations. "One of the goals of the awards is to inspire young people by presenting them with role models who are making a difference in their communities, and this year's 40 Under 40 Award recipients demonstrate that there are many ways to make a positive impact."

Quincy recipients of this year's award:

Michael Connolly, manager of New England account development, Windstream

Sean Glennon, principal planner, City of Quincy

Kirsten Hughes, attorney and Ward 5 City Councilor

Megan Ward, director of development, Bay State Community Services

Tara Brooke Watkins, founder and director, South

TARA BROOKE WATKINS

Shore School of Theatre

Another 40 Under 40 Award recipient with a Quincy connection is Chris Cassani. A Cambridge resident, Cassani serves as director of constituent services for Mayor Thomas Koch.

This year's awards will be presented at a gala tented reception Sept. 28 at Siros on the boardwalk at Quincy's Marina Bay. Legendary local newsmen Chet Curtis is honorary chairman for the event.

Proceeds from the reception will benefit Stars' early education and youth development programs for children across the South Shore.

Dorothy Quincy Homestead Open Sept. 1

In celebration of Discover Quincy Days, the Dorothy Quincy Homestead, a National Historic Landmark, will be open for public tours Saturday, Sept. 1, between 1 and 5 p.m.

The Homestead is located on Butler Road at the corner of Hancock Street in Quincy.

Visitors are welcome to walk in on their own or take advantage of the Discover Quincy Days' van transportation running from the Adams Academy (Quincy Historical Society). Tours will start on the hour and half hour beginning at 1 p.m. The last tour begins at 4:30 p.m.

All tours are free of charge, but a voluntary contribution is suggested.

Dating from 1686, the house is 326 years old. During the 17th and 18th centuries, this mansion was considered the grandest estate in Quincy. During the pre-Revolutionary War era, it was a meeting place for such patriots as Josiah Quincy, John Hancock and John Adams. It was the childhood home of Dorothy Quincy Hancock, the wife of John Hancock.

The Homestead is operated by the Colonial Dames of Massachusetts in conjunction with the Massachusetts Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR).

Groups may request a private tour on a date of their choice by phoning 617-742-3190 or emailing nscda-ma@verizon.net. The final public open house tour date for the season will be Sept. 15.

For more information, visit the Homestead's website: www.nscda.org/ma/quincy_homestead.htm

DENTISTRY
for the 21st Century

A NEW USE FOR BOTOX?

Botox began as a treatment for eye twitching and later progressed into a treatment for wrinkles and migraines. Now this muscle-inhibiting toxin is being touted as a treatment for "bruxism," or tooth grinding. The nocturnal habit is often attributed to anxiety and stress, treatment of which may reduce or alleviate bruxism. If the habit continues, the grinding can wear away tooth enamel and even result in tooth fractures. However, using Botox to treat bruxism is not recommended. It has not been approved by the FDA for this purpose and may not even work. If it does work, the effect is transient. It is better to stick with a custom-made night guard that is proven to prevent bruxism's corrosive effects. Bruxism is probably the most common sleep disorder, and as we mentioned in today's column, Botox may help prevent teeth grinding at night. We would like to increase dental awareness and the importance of regular dental care. We believe with preventive dental care, daily brushing and flossing, and a well-balanced diet, people can maintain their teeth and gums in good health well into their later years. Call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're here to help. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology and a full trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. Dental guards may take a little getting used to, but they are effective, last for years, and do not cause complications.

PARTICIPANTS IN Katie McEvoy's recent "Kickbutt" Bootcamp are all smiles after exercising and raising $500 for South Shore Mental Health.

Katie McEvoy Coordinates Event That Raises $500 For SSMH Fitness Bootcamp Fundraiser Success

Downpouring rain did not deter many "Commit to be Fit" males and females from participating in Katie's Kickbutt™ Bootcamp fundraiser that raised $500 for South Shore Mental Health.

The night started off with McEvoy speaking about SSMH and introducing her male guest instructor, former New England Patriot Eric Alexander.

McEvoy then warmed up the crowd and got them ready to exercise. They started with a work out working their lower body muscles, lunges, squats, using only their body weight for resistance.

They then worked their upper body, again only using their body weight for resistance, push ups, renegade rows and mountain climbers. Separated the group half on one side of the complex and doing drills. Everyone was pouring sweat but enjoying themselves listening to the music and having some laughs.

McEvoy ended her kickbutt work out with an intense ab work out. Even Alexander couldn't handle it.

Laura McEvoy, a certified yoga instructor, ended the work out with some stretches.

After Katie ran a raffle giving away 3 sessions of Katie's Kickbutt™ Bootcamp, a Commit to be Fit T-shirt and a Katie's Kickbutt Music Mix CD.

Katie McEvoy runs Katie's Kickbutt™ Bootcamp at O'Rourke Field and Wollaston Beach through out the summer. Next month, she plans to open an indoor fitness facility at 46 St. Ann's Road., off Hancock Street.

Music for the fitness fundraiser was contributed by local Braintree DJ Mike Degagne.

Donations of fruit, granola bars and water were donated by Southern Artery Stop and Shop and Fruit Basket.

Harry Shulman, CEO, of South Shore Mental Health, commended Katie McEvoy for donating a portion of the proceeds of the fundraiser to South Shore Mental Health. Shulman stated that physical fitness programs such as these are important in helping people meet their physical and mental health needs.

He went on to further say that promoting SSMH through such a unique venue helps to heighten awareness of the issues faced by those affected by mental illness through positive healthy messaging.

attorney general 1974, and was re-elected to the post in 1978 and 1982. During his time in office, he reorganized the office by eliminating part-time staffers and hiring on based on merit. He also, according to Tobin, helped support many good attorneys nominated for judgeships.

"He was very instrumental in supporting good people, men and women, to serve on the bench," Tobin said. "That's why this is long overdue."

Tobin also credits Bellotti for inspiring a generation of young people to start careers in public service.

"He was a forerunner, he led the way for a lot of young people to think about a career in public service," Tobin said.

During his tenure as attorney general, Bellotti served as president of the 54-member National Association of Attorney Generals from July 1984 to July 1985. He also received the associations Louis C. Wyman Award in 1981, given to the most outstanding attorney general in the country.

Bellotti continues to practice law, serving as of counsel for Mintz Levin since 1991. His career has come full circle as he still makes appearances at the courthouse that will soon bear his name.

"I've tried well over a couple hundred cases there," Bellotti said. "I have a lot of great memories."

House Majority Leader and Quincy Rep. Ron Mariano was key to having the courthouse renamed, inserting language into the state's fiscal 2013 budget enabling the change. Mariano did so to honor Bellotti's lengthy career and dedication to his hometown of Quincy.

"Frank Bellotti is a legend of Quincy and Massachusetts politics, a distinguished attorney, and public servant, and a long-time personal friend and mentor," Mariano said. "In dedicating the courthouse to Frank, we seek to honor him here in Quincy, where his legal career began, forever commemorating his achievements and dedication to public service."

The Norfolk County Commissioners - Chairman Francis O'Brien of Dedham, John Gillis of Quincy, and Peter Collins of Milton - unanimously approved the name change; they have the duty of naming any county buildings. O'Brien said Bellotti truly deserved the honor.

"The dedication of this courthouse is a great way to honor a man who has committed himself to serving others, an honor he truly deserves," O'Brien said.

Bellotti's sons Michael, the sheriff of Norfolk County, and Peter, a private practice attorney who regularly appears in Quincy District Court, both were surprised to learn that the court would be named for their father. But both see it as a tremendous honor.

"My family and I are very appreciative and proud of this tribute. We are very thankful that Ron Mariano and the delegation and the commissioners have decided to honor my father's career," Michael said. "I was shocked (about the renaming). It's not often you name a courthouse for someone."

"I was very surprised when I heard the news the Quincy District Court was going to be named after my father. As I thought about it more I realized it was a tremendous honor," Peter said.

"Where my father has lived in Quincy for over 60 years, and practiced law for about 50, he's tried many, many cases in the court...he loved going to the court and thoroughly enjoyed being a trial attorney there."

The courthouse, at 1 Dennis F. Ryan Parkway, will be renamed during a dedication ceremony on Sunday, Sept. 23rd at noon. The public is invited to attend the event.

Adele Gormley Retires As UFPC Office Manager

'Jill Of All Trades' Devoted To Her Work And The Church

By EMILY TAFT

Thirteen years ago, Adele Gormley, a lifelong Quincy resident and office manager for the United First Parish Church made a promise to a friend that if she was offered the job as office manager at the church, she would stick with the minister who was there, who was Rev. Sheldon Bennett.

"Somebody had said to me that they had a friend who was a minister in Quincy and that he could use somebody, and he had been without somebody in the office for about four months," said the 78-year-old Gormley. "So this man said to me if you get the job, will you promise to stick with him? So I said 'yeah, I give you my word.'"

"Well, the last couple of years have been hard but I kept my word."

On June 28 — some 13 years later — Gormley retired from her job at the "Church of the Presidents." Rev. Bennett's last official day was June 30th.

"I'm going to just sit back for a little bit and decompress," said Gormley of her post-retirement plans. "Then I am thinking about working as an ombudsman one day a week. I don't want to be pegged down all the time.

"I've also gotten way behind on my genealogy for the family. Maybe I'll get back to exercising, and I want to ride my youngest son's motorcycle."

Gormley will also have plenty of time to read, which is a passion of hers.

"I don't do jewelry and I don't do shoes, but I love books," said Gormley. "That's my passion; reading books about anything that I am interested in, or an author that's from the area, or not from the area but writing about Quincy."

Gormley didn't start working until later in her life when her youngest son entered 11th grade. She was no stranger to the United First Parish Church. She attended Wollaston Unitarian Society when she was younger, which later merged with United First Parish Church. She then began volunteering at the church, later becoming the choir mother there until moving on to work for the Boy Scouts.

While volunteering for the Boy Scouts, she began working for them and running their whole production department in Quincy. After working and volunteering for the Boy Scouts for over 20 years, she moved ADELE GORMLEY recently retired after 13 years as the office manager at United First Parish Church. "Adele served very faithfully and ably and was very devoted to her work," said Rev. Sheldon Bennett who also has retired as the church minister.

on to work for the Unitarian Universal Urban Ministry in Roxbury as an administrator, and then ended right back at the "Church of the Presidents" in 1999.

"She saved my life, in a sense that at that point, I was at my wit's end," said Bennett. "I had been looking for someone for four months, and we weren't able to find the appropriate office person. 'By the time she came I was tearing my hair out. I deeply appreciate her 13 years of service. The job meant a lot to her and she did it very well. She was exactly the right person at the right time.'"

Gormley said that while working for the church, she discovered a love for the history of Quincy and a connection to Abigail Adams.

"I sense that Abigail is here," said Gormley. "Even though she died before this building was built, her remains are here now. I don't know what my fascination is (with Abigail). I admired her because people just didn't realize that she kept everything going while John was off doing all these things.

"She ran the farm, she took care of the kids, her daughter ended up with breast cancer, and she had a hard life. She was fortunate her father was a minister and gave her books. I always say to anyone I am bringing down there, she is the mother of our country, because if she hadn't have been such a strong woman John wouldn't have been able to do all the things he did."

Although Gormley said she would miss being able to go down to visit Abigail's tomb in the Presidential crypt of the church, she will miss meeting people from all over the world a lot more.

"I think I will miss meeting people from different cultures," said Gormley. "During the winter months — especially when people would knock on the door and ask to see the crypts — and of course we don't have the visitors program during the winter months, and I would ask them where they lived, and if they lived fairly close I would say things were closed, but if they were from a distance, I would say come on in, and give them a quick tour.

"There was one man that came from Denmark, I didn't know that country was known for its licorice, and he came in and had all different kinds of licorice that I tried, I never knew that about Denmark, so I learned something that day. I love meeting people especially from other countries, and that would happen because they would come to see the crypts."

Gormley's main responsibility at the church was to take care of payroll but she likes to call herself the "Jill of All Trades" because she juggled a little of everything that went on there, which is why it will take more than one person to fill her shoes.

"This job requires someone, well someone like Adele," said Rev. Bennett. "Someone with her background and ability to work with a historic building, which is what she had done in Roxbury. She was very comfortable with those things."

Gormley said the most interesting part of her 13 years of working at the church was being able to see some of the restorations being done on the church.

"The most exciting part of working here I think was being able to see some of the church getting restored. When I first arrived here there was scaffolding that went from the basement all the way up, holding up the roof, because the main beams were splitting so they had taken two rows of slat off the roofs on both sides and put in steel beams," said Gormley. "The job is just a job, it's interesting to find out more and more things about the city. Working here has deepened my love of the city. I think it's the history of it all."

Bennett said that he and Gormley have accomplished a lot in the 13 years that she has been there, and he is very grateful for everything she has done.

"We accomplished a lot here. It is a better place than it was 13 years ago," said Bennett. "Adele served very faithfully and ably and was very devoted to her work. She was a Jill of all trades, that was her term, but that's exactly what she was. I am very grateful for her service to the congregation and to myself."

Make Social Security Online Services 'Par For The Course'

By KRISTEN ALBERINO

Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

For many retirees (and near retirees), there is nothing that they look forward to as much as a day on the golf course. The game recently has been made more pleasurable by the use of computers and GPS technology. A hand-held electronic unit acts just like a personal caddy, providing quick and accurate yardage information — and much more. It saves time ... as well as mental and physical effort.

So golfers should be among those retirees (and near retirees) to recognize the value of technology in other aspects of life, such as Social Security's online services. Just by logging onto your computer at www.socialsecurity.gov, you can handle such important Social Security business as:

- Applying online for retirement, disability, or Medicare benefits;
- Getting a personalized estimate of future benefits with our Retirement Estimator;
- Accessing your Social Security Statement online;
- Changing your address or phone number in Social Security records once you start receiving benefits;
- Signing up for or changing direct deposit; and
- Much, much more.

One thing that golfers everywhere hate is slow play — waiting on the tee box, and then waiting again in the fairway. While we can't eliminate waits on the golf course, going online to www.socialsecurity.gov can eliminate the time you would spend sitting in traffic or waiting in lines at an office.

If you happen to be a golfer (or any other person) who loves tradition and hates to try new things, here's a thought. 2012 is the 100th anniversary of the birth of three of golf's legends — Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson, and Sam Snead. All of these golfing greats were quick to adapt to the newest golfing innovations of their day — and you should, too. Just go online to www.socialsecurity.gov and take a look at what we offer.

Once you do, you'll think of every other way of handling Social Security business as a bogey.

AAA: Gas Prices Up 6 Cents

Gasoline prices in Massachusetts are up six cents this week, according to AAA Southern New England.

AAA's Aug. 20th survey of prices in Massachusetts found self-serve, regular unleaded averaging $3.73⁹ per gallon, six cents more than a week ago. Prices locally are up 17 cents over the past month. The current price is one cent above the national average for self serve unleaded of $3.72. A year ago at this time the Massachusetts average price was $3.64.

The range in prices in the latest AAA survey for unleaded regular is 30 cents, from a low of $3.59 to a high of $3.89. AAA advises motorists to shop around for the best prices in their area, and to make sure they and their passengers buckle up — every time.

Police Investigate Bank Robberies

Police Capt. John Dougan.

The suspect, believed to be a white male in his late 20's, was wearing a red hooded sweatshirt, dark pants, a New York Yankees baseball cap, and a yellow reflective utility vest, according to Dougan. He entered the bank from the rear parking lot door and proceeded to the second teller window.

The suspect then passed the teller a demand note, and told the teller to hurry up.

According to Dougan, the suspect then fled on foot south on Franklin Street with an undetermined amount of money. Police dispatched a K-9 tracking unit but the K-9 lost the scent on Independence Avenue because police believe the suspect entered a vehicle.

According to Quincy Police Detective Bill Monteith, the suspect appears to be the same suspect who robbed the same bank on July 30th and the East West Bank in Allston on Aug. 6th.

Contact Quincy Police Det. Monteith at 617-745-5767 with any information.

Proposed Restaurant Before Board Aug. 28

The License Board will take another vote on a proposal to bring a Tilted Kilt restaurant to Quincy Center during its meeting Tuesday.

The License Board approved the Tilted Kilt's application for a liquor license during its July 17th meeting, but the issue needs to be brought back before the board because St. John the Baptist Church wasn't notified.

Under state law, applicants for liquor licenses need to notify all property owners within 300 feet. But churches and schools within 500 feet must also be notified, and in this case Saint John's wasn't; the church is at 44 School St., about 450 feet from the proposed restaurant at 227 Parkway, formerly the home of an Outback Steakhouse.

The board unanimously approved Tilted Kilt's application during its July 17 meeting. No one from the church attended the meeting, and no residents testified at all. But Rev. Richard Cannon, who was St. John's pastor until being transferred earlier this month, said his parish plans to oppose the license because of the outfits the chain's waitresses wear.

The board will re-hear the Tilted Kilt's proposal next Tuesday, August 28th at 4 p.m. in the temporary City Council chambers. If the proposal does go through, Quincy's Tilted Kilt would be the first in Massachusetts. There are about 65 Tilted Kilts in the U.S. and Canada, but the closest one is in Connecticut.

The meeting agenda appears on Page 19.

VETERANS DINNER – The Sons of the American Legion, Cyril P Morrisette Post Squadron 294 and the Chapter #79 DAV Quincy recently held a dinner for about 30-35 veterans from the Brockton VA Hospital. Members of the three local veterans organizations served a meatloaf dinner with all the fixings, soda, coffee and dessert. Entertainment was also provided and some of the visiting veterans danced. They appreciated going out for the day and really enjoyed their meals. They were also thanked for their service to our country. Among the local veterans who volunteered at the dinner were (kneeling) Bob LaFleur, commander DAV; Guy Ferris Morrisette Post and SAL; Jim Gill, SAL; Paul Moody, commander SAL; Fred White, commander Morrisette Post; Joe McDonald, SAL and John Buckley Chapter #79 DAV.

SOUTH SHORE MENTAL Health /Quincy President and CEO Harry Shulman (front row, third from right) was among the more than 550 mental health and addictions providers and advocates who attended the National Council for Community Behavioral Healthcare's (National Council) Public Policy Institute and Hill Day in Washington, D.C.

South Shore Mental Health CEO Attends National Council 'Hill Day'

More than 550 mental health and addictions providers and advocates arrived in Washington, DC on June 25 and 26 for the National Council for Community Behavioral Healthcare's (National Council) Public Policy Institute and Hill Day.

This visit was timed as two mental health bills that would promote better health for the 1 in 5 Americans living with mental illness and addictions were being introduced to the Legislature.

"Hill Day is an opportunity for behavioral health stakeholders to connect with each other and their elected officials on important issues affecting the care they provide," said Harry Shulman, President/CEO of South Shore Mental Health.

"It's time behavioral health is treated on par with the rest of healthcare and we were there to advocate for that. This year is unique in that we had real opportunity for meaningful dialog with the introduction of two far-reaching bills dealing exclusively with mental health and addictions."

Two new bills were recently introduced in Congress focused exclusively on improving care for Americans with behavioral health needs:

- Excellence in Mental Health Act (H.R. 5989) — Companion to S. 2257 this legislation would establish national standards and oversight for Federally Qualified Community Behavioral Health Centers (FQCBHCs). These standards will bolster our nation's community mental health and addictions system, providing new support for integrated and simplified treatment. The legislation will help prevent the development of costly health problems. It will also promote public health and safety by expanding treatment capacity, thus shifting the burden of substance abuse and mental health crises away from emergency and police departments.

- Mental Health First Aid Higher Education Act (H.R. 5996 / S. 3325) — This bill will authorize a demonstration program to train college faculty and staff in Mental Health First Aid, a community education program that helps people identify, understand, and respond to signs of mental illnesses and addictions and deal with psychiatric crises. More than one-third of college students will experience a mental health problem during college, and suicide is the second leading cause of death among these young adults. More than 60,000 caring citizens across the U.S. have already been trained in Mental Health First Aid, a program that helps people take care of themselves and of each other.

A third bill, the Behavioral Health Information Technology Act (H.R. 6403) was also introduced in the House. The bill would extend federal Medicaid incentive payments to mental health and addiction treatment facilities for the meaningful use of electronic health records.

"This is a tremendous step forward for the behavioral health field and our advocacy efforts will be essential to pass this bill in the next session of Congress," Shulman said.

VOLUNTEERS WHO WORK in Interfaith Social Services food pantry - Fay Strigler and Erin Guiney of Quincy - relax at the recent volunteer appreciation BBQ.

ISS Inducts 20 Volunteers Into Hall Of Fame

Annual BBQ Held At Atria Marina Place

For many people on the South Shore the word "volunteering" is synonymous with Interfaith Social Services.

Last year, South Shore residents and employees from local businesses contributed over 22,360 hours of volunteer service at Interfaith. At a recent ceremony hosted by Atria Marina Place 20 of those volunteers were inducted into Interfaith's Volunteer Hall of Fame.

Since 1947 Interfaith Social Services has served as a multiservice center for disadvantaged families and individuals from the South Shore. This nonreligious organization endeavors to strengthen family life and provide assistance by feeding, clothing and comforting their neighbors in need.

Interfaith's food pantry served over 18,000 people last year. Their volunteer run thrift shop sorted over 5,000 bags of clothing and household goods. They outfitted low income job seekers with professional clothing and prevented homelessness for hundreds of families. All of this was accomplished because they have an army of volunteers helping to get it all done.

From answering telephones to stocking shelves

Interfaith's programs are staffed by over 90 volunteers who fulfill weekly assignments. "We are very proud of our grassroots, community based service model," said Interfaith's executive director Rick Doane. "Interfaith has been serving the South Shore for 65 years. Over the past few years have experienced dramatic increases in demand for service due to the recession; because have the best volunteers in the world we have been able to keep up with the increased workload. Volunteers are the heart and soul of our organization."

Hundreds of additional volunteers from various community groups, houses of worship and local businesses also volunteer throughout the year. Some businesses like Arbella Insurance, State Street and Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts regularly send groups of volunteers to assist within Interfaith's various programs.

Recently Atria Marina Place in Quincy hosted Interfaith's Annual Volunteer Appreciation BBQ. Over 100 volunteers turned out for an elegant dinner graciously provided by Atria Marina Place.

"This is what a community does for each other," said Atria's spokesperson Nancy VanBenschoten. "Providing a dinner and refreshments is the least that we can do for Interfaith's volunteers who give so much of their time to help so many people in our region."

At the Appreciation Dinner Interfaith's volunteer coordinator Paula Daniels inducted 20 individuals into the Matti Lang Volunteer Hall of Fame. This honor, named after one of the organization's most dedicated volunteers, is bestowed upon those volunteers who have been serving within the organization regularly for at least one year.

"Some of this year's inductees volunteer 4 hours every week," said Daniels, "some volunteer over 21. Regardless of the time that you give we are grateful for your service, and we couldn't assist our thousands of clients without you."

The following South Shore residents were inducted into the Matti Lang Volunteer Hall of Fame:

Those interested in volunteering with Interfaith Social Services can contact Interfaith's volunteer coordinator Paula Daniels at 617-773-6203 ext. 28.

Ribbon-Cutting Today At Noon

South Cove Community Health Center Ceremony To Mark New NQ Location

After serving the Quincy community for 15 years, South Cove Community Health Center will host a ribbon cutting ceremony today (Thursday) at noon to celebrate the completion of its new state-of-the-art clinic.

Among those invited to attend are Mayor Thomas Koch and other representatives and officials from the City of Quincy as well as South Cove's friends and supporters who have been involved with the project.

Some 200 guests are expected to attend. Lunch will be served following the ceremony.

According to Census figures, Asians account for 24 percent of the total population in Quincy, compared to only 5.3% across the state.

The Quincy clinic serves approximately 12,000 patients.

South Cove's top management and Board of Directors recognized that Quincy's Asian population is fast-growing, coupled with the fact that demand has already outgrown supply at its clinic at 435 Hancock St. As a result, an $11 million development across from South Cove's present location has been in the planning since 2009.

The new clinic will be open for business sometime this fall once the computer infrastructure and furnishing are in place. Pediatrics, dental, OB/GYN, behavioral health, optometry and social services departments from the existing clinic at 435 Hancock St. to the new building at 88 Holmes St.

The Hancock Street clinic's Adult Medicine department will expand with 11 exam rooms and three full-time providers. In addition, it will also house a 304B pharmacy to provide affordable prescription drugs for South Cove patients.

The Holmes Street clinic is 21,000 square-feet, 3 and a half stories with a parking lot of 58 spaces.

The first floor will feature a reception area, social services, and pediatrics department with eight exam rooms. The second floor houses the dental department with five operatories, the optometry department exam room/suite and the behavioral health department with four counseling rooms.

The OB/GYN department will occupy the third floor with four exam rooms and there are an additional four rooms set aside for specialties.

The top floor has a conference and meeting room with large windows overlooking the skyline of Quincy.

There is also a Scholar roof-top garden designed with Feng-shui and Chinese elements (Wu Xing) in mind to pay homage to Asian culture and arts.

Bank Of Canton Raises Flag At New McGrath Highway Branch

Quincy Mayor Thomas P. Koch joined Bank of Canton officials to raise the flag at the new Bank of Canton branch at 60 Mayor Thomas McGrath Highway.

The City of Quincy has generously allowed Bank of Canton to install the flag on city property in front of the new branch.

"We are grateful to the City of Quincy for letting us place the flag on public property in front of our new branch," said Stephen P. Costello, President of Bank of Canton. "We have proudly flown the American flag for the 15 years we've been serving the Quincy community at our former branch location. Working together with the city, we were able to continue this tradition at our new, larger branch, and appreciate the cooperation of the city's elected officials and approval authorities of the great city of Quincy."

The new branch located in Quincy Center features a comfortable and spacious interior, large parking area, safe deposit boxes, and a drive-up ATM.

Summer Concert At Adams Field

The City, the Quincy Chamber of Commerce and the Quincy Center music studio Keep The Edge Studios will host an end-of-summer concert Thursday, Aug. 30 at 6 to 10 p.m. at Adams Field.

Scheduled to perform are "The Joshua Tree," a popular U2 tribute band and the musical group "Dalton and The Sheriffs."

The free family friendly event will be held in the outfield of Adams Field. Concert goers are welcome to bring a blanket or a lawn chair.

Keep The Edge Studios owner Keith Asack pitched the idea for a concert as a first step to a larger music series or festival in future years.

"As a music lover and Quincy Center recording studio owner, it seemed like a no brainer to have a community concert," Asack said. "As a way of showcasing what Quincy has to offer, this year's summer concert should be year one of a hopefully longstanding tradition for the community."

Gates will open at 5 p.m.

SITE NEAR Quincy's first stream-powered Grist Mill along Town Brook and the mill stone dedication plaque at Fort Square. In early colonial times, by law, mill stones had to be purchased from England; after the American Revolution they could be fashioned by local stone cutters and from local raw materials. Proximity to the Country Way (at School Street and Franklin Street) for a reliable system of transportation was a requirement of a successful mill. Local historian Pat Artis says this site was most likely chosen for its water flow and for having the highest available head or drop. A system of gears, additional shafts, pulleys, and belts called a power train was required to make the mill work. Two mill stones were used to actually grind the grain.

WORDING ON THE plaque dates the Quincy grist mill as being used between 1640 and 1825; while local historians give the dates of 1640 - 1850's. Many times mills changed purposes and it was not uncommon that a grist mill become a saw mill, or even a fulling mill where woolen cloth woven by local families was pounded by wooden hammers to clean and thicken it.

Town River, Town Brook And Quincy's Early Settlement

Why Historic Downtown Quincy Center Is Located Where It Is Today

By PAT ARTIS

If you have ever wondered why Historic Downtown Quincy Center is located where it is, you need only to understand its geography, history and the importance of the Town River and Town Brook to the "center" of the Town of Braintree (Quincy) during colonial times.

Transportation during the 1600's was arduous and time-consuming; land routes were rocky, muddy, and many times flooded or impassable; roads crossed private property, were maintained privately and tolls frequently charged to cross rivers/streams. The earliest town ordinances predominantly deal with property and right of way issues. The overland route from Boston to Braintree (Quincy) was by the Country Way along current-day Adams Street, to Hancock Street, along School Street, to Franklin Street, and then onto Plymouth.

The colonists lived primarily by the bays and rivers, finding small boat, the most efficient way to travel. By water route, the Town River provided an easy access into the North Precinct or Braintree. Ships would moor in Town River Bay, near the widest and deepest part of Town River, and passengers and cargo rowed to shore along the "broad meadows" and dropped off at the Town Landing. (John Adams, and as a young boy, John Quincy Adams on his first trip to Europe, left for England by this way.) The Town Landing was located at the current intersection of McGrath Highway (formerly called Canal Street) and Washington Street. The Town Landing would have consisted of a beach for landing small craft and sheds for storage. In this area in the higher elevations of Elm Street, Hancock Street, and School Street, a small community began, which would even include a tavern/inn (Brackett's Tavern). Back then, the Hancock Parking lot and the current downtown commercial area, was salt marsh, wetlands with the Town Brook meandering through it. Paths, first used by the Native Americans, and later by colonists, followed brook(s) upland into the Blue Hills.

Settlers, along the tidal marshes of Town River found the area had much-valued resources - salt marsh hay, shellfish, and waterfowl. Colonists used salt marsh hay for pasture, for bedding and fodder for their farm animals, and for garden mulch. The Town Brook provided much-needed fresh water, and a plentiful supply of smelt and eel - colonists could keep as much as they could "consume in their families".

Two important events happened in 1640, the Town of Braintree was incorporated; and Richard Wright began operation of the first Quincy "industry" - a stream-powered grist mill along Town Brook at Fort Square (the corner of School Street, Pleasant Street, and Fort Street). By 1641, according to Braintree Town Records, "no other mill was to be built without the consent of Richard Wright". A mill stone at Fort Square marks the site of Wright's mill and is all that remains of the grist mill today. The town grist mill was extremely important to the colonial village; farmers found it more efficient to have their corn ground at a mill. Corn meal was a food staple during colonial times; from it was made: corn mash, sample, corn pone, johnnycakes, spoon bread, porridge, Indian pudding and hasty pudding, with berries or maple syrup for sweetening. This first grist mill on Town Brook served the Braintree/Quincy community for over two hundred years; it ceased operation in the 1850's!

DEXTER GRIST MILL in Sandwich was also built in the 1640's and is powered by a large undershot wheel which would have been necessary at the Town Brook Grist Mill because of the amount of power available at the site and the rate of flow. The perimeter of the undershot wheel was constructed with a continuous row of wooden troughs called buckets or sometimes by blades. Water from the headrace channel poured over the wheel and into the buckets/blades. The weight of the water in the buckets/blades turned the wheel. Little is actually known about what this first Quincy mill looked like and how it was constructed. "We do know the building of a grist mill took great skill and expertise in the 1640's, and mill builders, like Richard Wright, were invaluable to a community," says local historian Pat Artis.

A powder-house was built for storing muskets and ammunition on the other side of the brook, upland near Granite Street and Scotch Pond. The early settler's meeting house and training grounds (greens) were located on the north side of the Town Brook. Since much of the current downtown was wetland; the first citizens chose higher elevation properties for their homes and early institutions.

The 1600's and 1700's was a period of "quiet development" in and around Quincy Center. Farms were mainly for subsistence. Work in the trades and crafts helped to raise their standard of living. Most early settlers worked as fisherman and farmers, but many were also blacksmiths, shoemakers, carpenters, coopers, tinsmiths, chandlers, tailors, and furniture makers. The Hancock Cemetery, next to City Hall, is the place where the names and graves of many of these early settlers can be found. In the early 1800's with the beginning of the granite industry, life along Town Brook, the Town Landing, and the Town River would change dramatically.

Both Braintree and Quincy Historical Societies, as well as the Commonwealth

Museum and the Massachusetts Archives, are useful places to begin historical research on the colonial settlement of Quincy. The best resources for this early period are from the writings and research of two eminent Quincy historians, Richard Pattee and Hobart Holly.

It is really important that the history of the Town River/Town Brook always be included in our city's story, and not lost or forgotten by city leaders or its citizens. All of the Historic Downtown Quincy needs to be carefully preserved as the city moves forward with the redevelopment of Quincy Square and the "enhancement" of Town Brook.

Pat Ellis Artis is a retired Boston Public School social studies teacher, past president of Wollaston Garden Club, a member of the QEN/WGC Town Brook Steering Committee, new member of both Braintree and Quincy Historical Societies, and a longtime Quincy resident.

THE PINKISH ORANGE SAPPHIRE

Those born in the month of September should know that their birthstones need not necessarily be blue. The rarest and most valuable color of sapphire is the pinkish orange found in the "padparadscha." This fancy sapphire from Sri Lanka derives its name from the Sinhalese word for the lotus flower. Buddhists regard the pink lotus as the "supreme lotus." However, a sapphire must display both pink and orange hues to be a true padparadscha. As with any sapphire, the more vivid the colors, the more prized the stone. It can range from a light to medium tone and from a pinkish orange to orange-pink. If the color tends to look brownish, it may lose its designation as a padparadscha.

The padparadscha sapphire is one of the most delicate and exciting gemstones. It is highly desired by those who appreciate fine jewelry. This is the place to mark the meaningful moments of your life! Our store is conveniently located at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center where we strive to make your visits with us friendly and relaxing. Call us at 617-773-3636, and allow us to assist you.

and I take great pride here in the 25th anniversary of this event," Chan said. "This started as a little event in a parking lot at the Wollaston Lutheran Church with 200 or so people. Went to North Quincy High School, the T Station in North Quincy, as well as Welcome Young Park, and Kam Man Marketplace.

"Now we're in Quincy Center in the heart of the city. To go from 200 people to 10,000 plus people is an accomplishment of all the volunteers and people who put the work into this event."

Councillor Doug Gutro joined the speakers as well. He thanked the Asian community for their contributions to Quincy's larger community.

"The heritage in the Asian community has really added so much to the city of Quincy," Gutro said. "As city councillors, we're extraordinarily proud of who we are as a community and what the Asian community has done to really transform us into a health community."

After the opening speeches performers from across the state and beyond took the stage until the festival closed at 5 p.m. They included Chinese, Korean, and Hip Hop dance troupes, a fashion show, martial arts demonstrations, and a watermelon eating contest. Another stage was set-up near the Granite Trust Building and traditional musicians performed there.

ENJOYING THE MERRY-GO-ROUND at Sunday's Quincy August Moon Festival are Jennifer Guan and her father, Junyi Guan, both of North Quincy.

More than 90 different restaurants, businesses, and community groups set-up booths at the event. The booths lined Hancock Street and food trucks, amusement rides, and a cultural area were located on Ross Way in a portion of space once occupied by the Ross Garage.

The cultural area included dozens of watercolor paintings done by Chinese painting master Xiao Yong Liu and a team of about 20 volunteer artists. The paintings represented a variety of proverbs and included the original Chinese writing, the English translation, and an image representing the saying.

"[The paintings] are part of the 'Words of Wisdom' exhibit at the library," Brothers said. "They were put together by our Chinese calligraphy teacher and a team of volunteers. Each integrates the art of teaching with a different philosophy, some Chinese ones and non-Chinese ones."

In addition to the proverbs, other panels showed the evolution of Chinese writing over about 4,000 years. Each panel included an ancient hieroglyph of a common word, based on artifacts dating to about 1700 BC. The changes to the character were shown with half-dozen representations of the same word representing different styles.

Democrat Elizabeth Warren, her party's nominee in November's U.S. Senate race, toured the festival. Alongside Chan, she walked down Hancock Street, meeting and greeting festival attendees.

A Job Well Done

On Sunday, Aug. 12, at approximately 2:30 a.m., Officers Steve O'Donoghue and Chris Klier were dispatched to West Street for a report of a possible domestic disturbance between a male and female. The caller clearly identified the apartment of the duplex for the officers.

LT. DAN MINTON

Upon arrival, Officer O'Donoghue observed a male walk by an open window on the second floor, then heard yelling between the male and a female, who was not visible. The officers were then met by a couple who stated that they knew the couple who were fighting and had broken up their fights twice already.

The couple confirmed that they were with the other couple and witnessed the male and female hitting each other during the earlier interactions, adding that they were "scared that someone was hurt this time." Officer O'Donoghue then made visual contact with the male suspect by the window and requested that he come downstairs to speak with the officers. The male suspect responded, "No, thank you, we're all set here," then closed the window and walked away from the officer's viewing angle.

The officers then walked up the rear stairs and knocked on the door. The male suspect told the officers that he was not going to open the door. The officers explained the seriousness of the situation and the importance of having them open the door to ensure that everyone was unharmed and free to leave.

The male suspect blurted out, "You need a warrant - We're not opening the door for you," followed by "Everything is all right." The officers explained to the occupants that they needed to physically see them, not just speak to them and that if they refused to open the door, they (the officers) would force the door open. In this case, the officers were relying on information from two citizens, who identified themselves, were at the scene of the incident, gave first hand accounts of both suspects assaulting each other on two occasions and were concerned that one could be injured.

The officers knew that it was their duty to determine if both suspects were unharmed and free to leave. They also had reasonable grounds to believe that a crime (assault and battery/domestic violence) had already occurred and needed to further investigate the past incident.

After numerous attempts to get the occupants to unlock the door, Officer O'Donoghue requested that the Quincy Fire Department respond to the scene to force open the door. When the officers informed the occupants of what was about to transpire, the male occupant said, "You're harassing us," and "You can't threaten us." At this time, the couple who reported the incident to the Police approached the door and pleaded with the occupants to let the police check on them. The occupants surprisingly agreed to allow the officers onto their front porch.

Officer Tom Gaeta Jr., who just arrived on scene, met the occupants on the front porch. When Officer O'Donoghue arrived at the front porch, he confirmed that the male he saw in the window was the same male on the front porch. The male stated, "Hi Officer - how are you?" as if he was passing the officer on a sidewalk rather than involved in a domestic violence call at 02:30 a.m.

The male occupant wanted to know what the big deal was. The officers attempted to explain the situation to the occupants but they just kept minimizing the incident and accused the officers of over-reacting.

Officers Klier and Gaeta interviewed the male occupant while Officer O'Donoghue spoke with the female. The female stated that they have been married for two years and that fighting is just what happens with them, that "it was just stupid that we both laid our hands on each other." Although she kept saying, "It was nothing," Officer O'Donoghue observed red marks along her neck and upper chest/collarbone area, along with a red mark/welt on her mouth. She admitted that the marks were from the physical fighting with her husband, stating, "I hit him too."

The female occupant (victim) refused requests for photographs of her injuries and a medical assessment. The male occupant (now suspect) said it was just a verbal argument and there was no hitting.

Based on the available information and evidence, the male occupant, a 31 year-old Quincy resident, was placed under arrest for domestic assault and battery. As

Defeated Cranston, Rhode Island To Win Regional Quincy American: 11-Year New England Champions

By SEAN BRENNAN
Quincy Youth Baseball's 11-Year Old American travel team made local youth baseball history when they defeated Cranston, Rhode Island by a 6-3 score on Aug. 13 to capture the 2012 Cal Ripken New England Championship in Norton.

The twelve-player Quincy American program finished with a 6-1 record at the New England Regional, which included five straight victories out of the loser's bracket after losing to Rhode Island 1-0 earlier in the tournament. Quincy snatched the title away from previously unbeaten Cranston by winning two games in the championship round: 4-3 in Game One and 6-3 in the decisive Game Two.

Winning the eight-team New England championship was the crowning achievement for a team that had advanced to the state tournament three straight summers as eight, nine, and ten-year olds, having finished last summer as runner-up.

"These kids had made it to the state tournament three straight years and they lost to Kingston in the finals last summer," said Coach Mark Free. "They were looking to take the next step this season."

Quincy American earned its spot at the Cal Ripken New England Regional by winning the Cal Ripken District 3 title for a third summer in a row; in the district round Quincy outscored opponents by a staggering 36-3 total score. The team followed up that title by winning the Eastern Mass State title over Raynham.

When the New England Regional commenced back on Aug. 4, Quincy made an immediate impression. At the event's Skills Competition — home run contest, accuracy throw, around-the-horn, and running relay — the boys from Quincy American won the overall team trophy. It was a sign of things to come and it showed off the depth and talent on the roster from player 1-12.

"Out of the eight teams there we ended up winning the overall team Skills Competition," Free said. "It was cool way to start the New England Regional and it really showed how deep of a team we had."

Quincy survived in its opening game against Oxford, Connecticut. Down 7-2, Quincy American rallied back to win 8-7 in extra innings. In Game Two, Cranston held Quincy scoreless and won 1-0, dropping Quincy into the loser's bracket of the double elimination tournament.

But this team was resilient. Quincy knocked out Concord, New Hampshire 11-1 in five innings in their next game and eliminated Oxford following a 7-6 win. Trailing the host team from Norton in the sixth inning, Quincy scored six times in the top of the frame and won 11-8 to move into the championship round versus Rhode Island.

Quincy squeezed past Cranston 4-3 in the first elimination game, setting up a winner-take-all final. After three days of rain pushed the game to Aug. 13, Quincy American won the New England Regional, 6-3. Quincy scored twice in the first inning on a Tom Kelly groundout and RBI groundout by John Paul Kelley. Cranston would get one back in the bottom of the inning, but Quincy opened up the contest on a home run from Jack Free.

"This team was mentally mature and everybody chipped in," said Free. "There was a 12-man roster and everyone contributed. It was an awesome experience."

"This group has been together for a few years and hopefully we can stay together (next year) and duplicate this success," continued Free. At the 11-year old Cal Ripken Baseball level there is no World Series; at the 12-year old level there is. "I don't think they even know how hard what they accomplished was."

Coach Free was assisted by Gerry Frazier, Tim Kelly and Tom Nazzaro.

Under-12 Softball Team Won South Shore Championship

If baseball was king in Quincy this summer than softball was queen.

Quincy Youth Baseball & Softball's 12-Under Quincy Presidents team went out and won the 2012 South Shore League 12-Under B League regular season championship before completing their summer season by winning the league playoffs with a 9-2 victory over Abington in the final.

Quincy and Abington had each won a regular season game against one another before the championship game was held on Aug. 1, but in the playoff final, Quincy jumped out to an early 3-0 lead and never looked back; the whole team came ready to play.

Led by the stellar pitching of Johanna Douglas and Meghan Davis and the strong defensive play of Riley McLaughlin, Shannon O'Brien, Karris Beal, and Jordan Currie, the Presidents held Abington at bay. Catcher Madison Synan also showed why she was considered by many to be the best backstop in the league, as she threw out three runners attempting to steal.

At the plate, the team perfectly executed delayed steals, bunted well, and came through with timely hitting with runners on base, as they saved their best game of the season for their last.

But Quincy winning the league playoff was no fluke. The Presidents finished with an overall record of 10-1-1, and defeated Hingham 11-7 back on July 27 to become regular season champions. Their first-place finish gave the team home field advantage throughout the South Shore League playoffs.

On July 30 the Presidents, again, defeated Hingham in their first playoff game by the score of 14-13. Quincy was down a run going into their last at-bat at Mitchell-McCoy Field in Quincy but Meghan Greene singled with one out and stole second. Douglas continued Quincy's clutch hitting by scoring Greene with the tying run on a sharp RBI single up the middle.

Douglas then used her speed to earn Quincy the win. She broke for second on a steal attempt and when the catcher's throw sailed into centerfield, she came all the way around to the winning run.

Coaches Mike O'Brien, Jay Davis, Jeff Currie and

Steve Striffler and the parents were astonished by the girls' performance and poise throughout the season, and one parent remarked "The team really played with such quiet confidence."

Organization's Travel Teams Had Successful Seasons

Banner Summer For Quincy Youth Baseball & Softball

By SEAN BRENNAN
Quincy Youth Baseball & Softball has every right to stand up and take a bow following a banner year on the diamond.

From the youngest to oldest participants, kids of all ages performed at a level that should give baseball fans in the city a reason to cheer. Quincy Youth Baseball & Softball saw huge numbers participate in their Spring House League; the league successfully hosted the 14-Year Old Babe Ruth Eastern Massachusetts state tournament as well as the 15-Year Old Babe Ruth New England Regional, where the Quincy representative placed fourth, back in July, but the feather in the preverbal cap came with the overall success of the league's travel summer teams.

"This was an incredible season for Quincy travel baseball," said Quincy Youth Baseball & Softball President Mike Lynch about his organization's baseball program. "From age 8 to 15, teams of all ages experienced a tremendous amount of success. We had more players participate in our travel baseball program than ever before and with that kind of interest, it's impossible not to have a successful travel season."

"The opening of the Marina Bay Sportsplex last January," continued Lynch, "gave players of all ages an opportunity to begin practicing earlier than ever before and that was a major factor in the success that our baseball and softball teams had this season."

The baseball accomplishments began at the lowest level as an 8-year old travel team won the annual Whitman Invitational Tournament. Not to be outdone, Quincy Youth Baseball's 9-year old travel team went out and captured the Cal Ripken District 3 title, and the 10-year old American travel team won the annual South Boston Tournament.

The 11-year old American team became the first team from Quincy Youth Baseball to win the Cal Ripken New England Regional title by defeating Rhode Island. According to Lynch,

Quincy Youth Baseball's Summer All-Stars

THE 8-YEAR OLD team won the Whitman Invitational Tournament earlier this summer. Team members included: Scott Ritz, Jackson Murphy, Danny Freeman, Drew Stevens, Zack Galligan, Gavin Toland, Kevin Salmanowich, Andrew Kabilian, Drew Peterson, Tommy Murphy, Coleman Ross, Jack Nelson, Quinn Murphy and Colm O'Malley. Chris Murphy, Adam Nelson, AJ Kabilian and Jim Ross coached the team.

THE 12-YEAR OLD AMERICAN team won the Cal Ripken 70' State title, the 70' South Shore Summer League and finished the season with a 15-3 record. Team members included: Erik Barber, Ryan Cox, AJ Currie, Matt Eagles, Matt Fox, Shawn Kelly, Griffin Lynch, Kevin McDonald, Mark Monahan, Max Storch, Justin Sullivan and Frankie Wahlberg. Kevin Kelly, Jeff Currie and Mike Lynch coached the team.

BOB CURRAN TOURNAMENT CHAMPIONS – Despite fielding a team of only 13 & 14-year olds, Quincy won the annual Bob Curran Division II Babe Ruth tournament in Waltham. The team went undefeated at the event and defeated Plymouth to win the crown. Team members included: Sean Connors, Cody Desmond, Kevin Fitzgerald, Josh Helfrich, Jack Loughname, Owen Lynch, Chris Mann, Adam McCormack, Tim Murphy, Troy Shepherd, Harry Theodore, and Chris Wallace. Kenny Mann, Gerry Shepherd and Mark Jaehnig coached the team.

based on their win over Rhode Island, this team is officially the best 11-year old Cal Ripken baseball team in New England. This team also won their Cal Ripken district and the Eastern Mass state title.

An 11/12-year old Blue travel team won the South River League regular season championship, while the league's 12-year old American travel team won an Eastern Mass state title, finished fourth in the Cal Ripken New England Regional tournament and won their summer league title.

QYB's 12-year old National team won the Suburban League for a third straight summer, and the 13/14-year olds captured the Division II Babe Ruth Tournament in Waltham.

Quincy Youth Baseball's host teams at the two Babe Ruth tournaments in July made the league and city proud as well. The 14-year olds competed in the Eastern Mass state tournament and narrowly missed advancing to the championship round, and the 15-year old representatives defeated Vermont and Maine to finish fourth at the Babe Ruth New England Regional tournament.

According to Lynch, on the softball side of the league the girls had a tremendous summer as well. It began with the 12 and 14-Under teams competing in the Babe Ruth State Softball tournaments, which marked the first time that Quincy Youth Softball competed in these tournaments and it was an opportunity for the softball teams to show that they can compete at a high level.

Other Quincy Youth Softball highlights included the 12-Under American team finishing third in the regular season with a 7-2-1 record and also finishing third in the playoffs. The 12-Under Presidents program finishing in first-place in the regular season with a 8-1-1 record before winning the league championship, while the 14-Under National team finished tied for third-place during the regular season before ending the playoffs as runner-up.

Just because the summer season is over, it does not mean that Quincy Youth Baseball & Softball is done for 2012. Longtime coach Mark Jaehnig is currently offering fall baseball for all players' ages 6-15 through the always-popular Red Stockings program.

This program includes a Farm League (ages 6-8) on Monday and Wednesday at Quarry Hills from 4-6 p.m., a Minor League (ages 9-12) on Monday and Wednesday at Quarry Hills from 4-6 p.m., and a Major League (ages 13-15) on Saturdays at Coletta Field from 1-3:30 p.m.

Online registration for the 2013 Quincy Youth Baseball & Softball season – it will be here before you know it – will be available by Sept. 1 for all players through the league website (quincyyouthbaseball.org), according to Lynch. An announcement will be made in The Quincy Sun when registration is available.

"I would like to thank all the players, coaches and families for making 2012 such a memorable and successful season," Lynch said.

THE 12-YEAR OLD NATIONAL team won the Suburban League title for a third consecutive season. The team finished the regular season with an 8-2 record. Team members included: Doug Brown, Robert Buttomer, Peter Gagne, Dara Griffin, Max Gustin, John McDonald, Dylan Malcolm, Eoin O'Sullivan, Kevin Pedro, Corey Shaw, Spencer Smith, Mike Tervakoski and Matthew Tomlinson. Rick Smith, Paul Gagne and Bill Pedro coached the team.

Quincy's Dan Gould Won 3-Point Shooting Contest Shannon Grant Community Safety Basketball Tourney

As part of the Charles E. Shannon, Jr. Community Safety Initiative Grant, a team sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department and the Quincy Police Department "Teamwork" program recently competed in the annual basketball tournament at Trum Field in Somerville. The Quincy Teamwork entry was made up of players age 15-19 who are active in the supervised Shannon Grant activities at Fenno Street and LeBrecque Park during June, July, and August.

Though the team lost its first game against Cambridge, by the day's end Quincy Teamwork had defeated Chelsea. Dan Gould, representing Quincy Teamwork, won the highly competitive 3-point contest. He was the top scorer in the preliminary round, netting 12 3-pointers in a two minute timed contest. Gould had the large crowd on its feet as he made an amazing ten 3-pointers in the one minute final.

In the Cambridge loss, Quincy Teamwork had a height disadvantage and was defeated 38-17, despite the fine play of Greg Clarke, Pat Gould, Kyle Richardson, and Matt Gerakis. Next up Quincy Teamwork faced Winthrop, which made for a better match up. The Gould brothers controlled the play and Solomon Umoren and Anthony Green chipped in some timely scoring. Tyshawn Moore showed some promising rebounding skills and Efthim Butka had some key steals in the 52-31 win.

This was the city of Quincy's sixth year participating in the Shannon Grant Program, which is awarded by the Executive Office of Public Safety. The Quincy Grant is administered through the Metropolitan Mayor Coalition and is made up of Boston area communities. According to Quincy Recreation Director Barry J. Welch, the grant in Quincy pairs Quincy Police and Recreation staff in an effective partnership to provide positive recreational activities of youth in this age group. Prevention programs best practices are shared by the coalition members, and the programs have been demonstrated to be a positive influence to youth and adults in the target areas.

Detective Lieutenant Patrick Glynn and Christine Hurton of the Quincy Police Department joined Recreation staff at the all-day tournament. Lt. Glynn is the Police Shannon Coalition Coordinator. Edward Grennon, Paul Carson, and Paul Cunniff, members of the Recreation Shannon staff, coached the team. Charlie Ticotsky of the Metropolitan Area Planning Center (MAPC) presented Dan Gould with a gift certificate for his first-place performance in the 3-point contest.

Team Qualified For South Shore League Playoffs

Under-14 Softball Had Season To Remember

Led by co-captains Lauren Carter, Madison Davis, Emily Van Tassell and Nicole Welliver Quincy Youth Baseball & Softball's 14-Under softball team won five of its final six regular season games to qualify for the South Shore Softball League playoffs. Quincy defeated an unbeaten Hingham team to earn qualification for the postseason and then beat Hingham again to advance to the League Championship.

Quincy eventually lost to Taunton in the finals.

"The Quincy girls got off to a rough start losing three of their first four games, but they never quit and continued to work as a team," said Head Coach Jay Davis after the championship game. "The team then won five games in a row to qualify for the playoffs. During the win streak each player contributed through consistent pitching, great defense and timely hitting."

Throughout the season the team received strong starting pitching from Jaclyn Shuttleworth, who was named team MVP, while relievers Liz Bell and Lauren Carter also contributed to Quincy's success. "We lost our projected number one and two pitchers before the season and Jaclyn, Liz and Lauren really pitched wonderful," Davis said. "All three girls worked extremely hard during the season to improve their pitching."

Bell earned the win in Quincy's first-round playoff game versus Hingham and Shuttleworth and Carter displayed phenomenal control and played solid defense throughout the season. Catcher Madison Synan's outstanding development and play behind the plate allowed Carter to pitch and play centerfield.

Offensively Van Tassell, Welliver, Synan, Catherine

Buttomer, Allie MacPherson and Emma McDonnell led Quincy, while timely hitting from Meghan Caggiano, Danielle Mahoney and Eileen Devine produced runs. Davis credited the team's hitting success to the extra work the players did with Coach Rob Buttomer.

"The girls were getting to hitting practice at 9 a.m. two to three times per week. This team is a prime example of obtaining success through hard work and a commitment to playing as a team," Davis noted. He also highlighted the activities the team did as a group off the field as being instrumental in developing a successful team environment. During the summer the girls and their parents organized off-the-field activities, such as a trip to the Boston Speedboat Codzilla and lunch at Dick's Last Resort. "Close teams do not happen by accident," Davis added. "They are the result of players putting team first and players, coaches and families working to create a positive environment."

Defensively Quincy relied on a strong infield that usually consisted of Welliver at third base, MacPherson at shortstop, Davis at second base and Van Tassell at first base. Davis was extremely appreciative of the help from assistant coaches Ray Welliver, Steve MacPherson and Buttomer, who all volunteered countless hours working with the team, and the support of the players' families.

Mulvihill Back As Coach Of Strypers

The South Shore YMCA recently announced the appointment of Australian swimming coach Tim Mulvihill as Director of Competitive Swimming.

Coach Mulvihill is no stranger to the New England swimming community. Between 2007 and 2009 he was the Senior Aquatics Director and Head Coach of the Strypers swimming team at the YMCA. During that period, the coaching team under his leadership set the foundation for some of the current swimming talent on the South Shore.

"It's a bit like the movie 'Back to the Future,'" said Mulvihill in a press release to the Sun. "In the new role as Director of Competitive Swimming, my plan is to go back and reinvigorate our systems and re-energize our membership base. We need to get back on the path of achieving great things in and out of the pool."

Since 2009 Mulvihill has continued to coach at the highest level. As National Coach for the Logan Vikings Swimming Club in Australia, he has coached four Olympic Trials qualifiers and 13 Junior Nationals qualifiers. In the past 2011-2012 season alone, his swimmers have collected seven national medals of various colors in the pool and in open water swimming.

His decision to relocate his family back to Massachusetts was not taken lightly.

"We had to work really hard to set the terms to make it viable for my family to come back," Mulvihill said, "but to the credit of the YMCA they made it happen. I've had good coaching success in Australia but this position gives me the greatest scope to have a positive, meaningful and lasting impact on the broader community."

"My hope is that we don't create champions but create an environment in which champions are inevitable," he continued. "Our impact as an organization has to be such that we shape champion individuals not just fast swimmers."

Mulvihill also said he has some unique ideas on the structure of the Strypers program. "We are making an incredible effort to make sure our swimmers finish practice as early as possible. Our senior training group in particular will be finished in the pool at 6:30 p.m. each night. This is just so critical in helping them balance all of the competing pressures as well getting enough sleep to perform at an optimal level."

This unique approach to program structure is also present in his approach to team organization and communication; in addition to the their website, the Strypers have launched a YouTube channel, Twitter account and Facebook page.

The South Shore YMCA

Strypers (www.ssystrypers.com) practices out of the Quincy and Hanover YMCA facilities. Registration for the 2012-2013 season will begin in mid-September.

Direct all inquiries to tmulvihill@ssymca.org or call 781-829-8585 ext 238 (Hanover) or 617-479-8500 ext 177 (Quincy).

TRANSFER STATION

While joints are usually associated with motion, the sacroiliac joints, which are positioned at the junctions between the spine and either side of the pelvis, hardly move. Instead, their primary function is to transfer the load of the upper body to the lower body. Thus, it's easy to see how biomechanical problems such as leg-length discrepancy, over-pronation, "tilted pelvis," or muscle imbalances can lead to pain that radiates from either side of the lower back into the buttocks. There may also be referred pain in the lower leg that is mistaken for sciatica. Classic symptoms include difficulty turning over in bed and difficulty putting on shoes and socks. The chiropractor may utilize a variety of manipulation techniques to provide relief.

A painful sacroiliac joint is

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) This week could offer more opportunities for ambitious Lams eager to get ahead. But don't rush into making decisions until you've checked for possible hidden problems.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Some light begins to shine on professional and/or personal situations that have long eluded explanation. Best advice: Don't rush things. All will be made clear in time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Although you might want to protest what seems to be an unfair situation, it's best to keep your tongue and temper in check for now. The full story hasn't yet come out.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Work prospects are back on track. But watch what you say. A thoughtless comment to the wrong person -- even if it's said in jest -- could delay or even derail your progress.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A colleague might try to goad you into saying or doing the wrong thing. It's best to ignore the troublemaker, even if he or she riles your royal self. Your supporters stand with you.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Be careful not to let your on-the-job zealotry create resentment with co-workers who might feel you shut them out. Prove them wrong by including them in your project.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Although it's not quite what you hoped for, use your good business sense to make the most of what you're being offered at this time. Things will improve down the line.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A more positive picture of what lies ahead is beginning to take shape. But there are still too many gaps that need to be filled in before you make definitive plans.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Continue to keep a tight hold on the reins so that you don't charge willy-nilly into a situation that might appear attractive on the surface but lack substance.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You still need to demand those answers to your questions. Remember, your wise counseling earns you respect, but it's your search for truth that gives you wisdom.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You'll find that people are happy to help you deal with some difficult situations. And, of course, knowing you, you'll be happy to return those favors anytime. Won't you?

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Give that special someone in your personal life a large, loving dollop of reassurance. That will go a long way toward restoring the well-being of your ailing relationship.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are a delightful paradox. You like things neat and tidy. But you're also a wonderful host who can throw a really great party.

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin Memorial Scholarship At Houghs Neck Church

The family of Dr. Carol Lee Griffin recently established a Scholarship Award, at the request of the late Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, for the benefit of students affiliated with the Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

The award is administered by The Scholarship Board For The Houghs Neck Congregational Church and will be presented each year in June. This new award will be known as The Dr. Carol Lee Griffin Memorial Scholarship.

Dr. Griffin grew up in the Houghs Neck Church - Sunday School, Pilgrim Fellowship and Young Adult groups - and was one of 11 student recipients to receive the very first scholarship awards 57 years ago. She will be the first former student recipient to have a Scholarship Fund in her name.

Dr. Griffin worked all her adult life to provide for and improve education for young people and was well known in Quincy for her extensive contributions. She worked in the Quincy schools for over 29 years, retiring as assistant superintendent. In retirement she served as Interim Head of Woodward School for Girls in Quincy.

This new Scholarship will be another opportunity for the Scholarship Board to help the Houghs Neck Church young people to further their education and work toward their life goals.

Members of the Scholarship Board are: Pamela Craig, chairman; Robert Gordon, treasurer; Susan Carr, secretary and Gloria Brummitt, assistant secretary.

Plumbing Tool Kit for an Apartment

Q: I'm moving into my first apartment, and my dad said that I should have some basic tools around for plumbing problems to keep damage from happening while we're waiting for the repairman. What are the best tools to have to take care of plumbing emergencies? — Tamara in Tuscon, Ariz.

A: The most indispensable tool in the apartment plumbing toolbox is, in my experience, the plunger. This inexpensive piece of equipment can stop toilets from overflowing and unblock sinks and shower drains without doing damage to the pipes. When choosing a plunger, go for a basic "force cup" model (this is the classic plunger with a simple bell), which works best on sinks and drains. If you want something a little more powerful for toilet clogs, pick up a second plunger with a center cone, which can increase the vacuum when plunging toilets. These don't fit sink drains very well, though.

It's also good to keep a few more tools around for other plumbing-related work. While many apartment management companies will provide more than emergency repair — they'll also install the shower head you want, or help with minor repairs like dripping faucets — some landlords don't provide more than emergency service. So add these to your plumbing toolkit:

—An adjustable wrench and/or channel-locking pliers, which can fit varying widths of pipe.

—Flat-head and Phillips-head screwdrivers.

—An "offset" screwdriver to help you reach screws at weird angles.

—Spare washers, o-rings and screws.

—Electrician's or duct tape, and plastic or rubber sheeting that can be cut to size and wrapped around a leaky pipe for a temporary repair while waiting for the handyman.

—Teflon pipe tape, used to seal pipe threads.

If you're interested or have permission to make more heavy-duty adjustments or repairs, adding a couple of sizes of pipe wrenches to the toolkit is helpful, as is purchasing a valve-seating tool, which cleans valve seats of sink faucets (a handy tool when fixing a leaky faucet).

HOME TIP: Group your plumbing repair tools in a separate box from standard home repair tools so that you'll be able to grab everything you need without sorting through all your tools.

he was led to the cruiser, he told his wife, "Not to worry — the Senator will handle the situation," then laughingly said, "Honey — I got all their names and badge numbers and I recorded the whole thing, it will be fine."

Nice Work!

THANKS TO:

- the neighbor on London Avenue who reported a suspicious person, leading to an arrest for breaking and entering into a home.
- to the mailman working near the Wollaston T station, who reported 2 suspicious youths hanging around the bicycle rack. This led to 2 youths arrested on default warrants (failure to appear for past offense) and prevention of a crime.
- the neighbor who reported a suspicious man in Rhode Island plate vehicle parked on Barham Avenue, suspect had criminal record and revoked license.

SOMETHING TO CONSIDER: For those walking/running in the early morning (or any time for that matter), consider walking/running towards traffic. Drivers are often distracted in many ways, such as (but not limited to) texting, making calls, shaving, applying makeup, still sleepy, medicated, eating, blinded by the sun or just not paying attention. If you are facing oncoming traffic, you would have a better chance of making an evasive move to avoid being struck, as opposed to being blindsided from behind.

EMAIL OFFERS: simply put the company name in "Google" followed by the word, "scam" or "complaint" to see how reputable the company or how credible the offer is.

Although the source of the information may not be substantiated in all cases, the information may help you decipher the "opportunity" at hand. Read the comments to see if there is a pattern of complaints.

Ready to Cancel Your Cable TV?

Has your cable cost gone through the roof? Your options include putting together a combination of subscription choices, all of which add up to less than your current cable bill.

Devices: You'll need a device to capture the shows if you no longer have cable bringing it to your television. You'll need high-speed Internet or Wi-Fi for the streaming, or the experience won't be satisfactory.

—Roku (four different models, from $49.99) requires only a television and a Wi-Fi connection to watch any of 500 entertainment channels, as well as free movies.

—Xbox, PlayStation and Wii can all act as streaming devices.

—Boxee [www.boxee.tv] is the newest kid on the block, and works similar to Roku. Boxee Live TV is an additional HD antenna gadget ($49.00) that plugs into the Boxee and brings local channels to your television for no additional fee. The Boxee itself starts at $180.00.

—HD antennas come in all prices and varieties, and some are for indoors. Check Antennas Direct online [www.antennasdirect.com] for a huge variety of antennas for all uses.

Sources: Netflix and Hulu Plus are the biggest names in streaming.

—Netflix has multiple levels of membership available, including DVD rental, streaming — or a combination of both. As with other services, Netflix streams through many of the popular devices.

—Hulu Plus has unlimited instant streaming for $7.99 a month, with a free week to try it out. Per the Hulu Plus website, you can watch your current shows on your iPad, iPhone, PlayStation3, Roku and television, with more devices coming. Read the FAQ carefully. Not all shows are available on all devices, due to licensing. Be sure you know what you're getting.

—Play On [www.playon.tv/] has a wide variety of television shows, free movies and sports. View via your game console or other device, even a Kindle Fire or an iPad. The list of available channels is long and includes the Travel Channel, Spike, Food Network, HGTV and more. Subscriptions are $4.99 a month, or grab temporary low pricing of $29.99 per year.

For a complete list of streamed television shows, check Clicker, the Internet Television Guide [www.clicker.com].

Downside: Instantly finding streamed versions of your favorite shows might be difficult. You might need to wait until they appear a day or a week later.

Announces Expansion Plans Manet Community Health Center Marks National Health Center Week

Manet Community Health Center recently celebrated National Community Health Center Week with a flurry of new patient sign-ups and health benefit enrollments, plus a community reception in Hull — all while setting the stage for the future by interviewing engineers and architects for its newest expansion project.

"National Community Health Center Week was a time of constant motion and continuous engagement with the communities along the South Shore we are dedicated to serve," said Joseph Reardon, president of Manet Community Health Center's Board of Directors. "It served as a perfect jumping-off point for the next stage in Manet's strategic plan."

There was an air of celebration all week as Manet Community Health welcomed enthusiastic patients and community members to its five open houses in North Quincy, Houghs Neck, Snug Harbor/Germantown, inside Quincy Medical Center, and on George Washington Blvd. in Hull. Manet staff shared news of expanded services that will be coming soon, including vision and hearing, pharmacy, and mental health services.

During the week, Manet Community Health:

- distributed 245 new patient kits with information about Manet's programs and services,
- conducted tours for 16 people, and booked appointments for 7 new patients,
- enrolled 9 people in health insurance coverage,
- introduced 1 new patient directly to their new primary care provider,
- assisted 13 people with Manet language services,
- provided HIV services information with 13 individuals.

Manet staff also solicited patient feedback about its programs and services, with 142 patient surveys completed in English, Portuguese, Vietnamese, Chinese and Arabic. "Engaging with our patients inspires us to think differently and to make the best use of our resources," said Jennifer Sabir, MD, Interim Chief Medical Officer for Manet.

Manet officials also met with several architectural and engineering firms about Manet's plans to build two centers of excellence inside its North Quincy practice site, a Center for Older Adults and a Center for Health in Public Housing, funded with a $5 million grant from the federal Affordable Care Act. Manet hopes to select a firm by the end of September.

Manet also received $500,000 to add a Center for Older Adults in Hull — the site of its August 9 Seaside Summer Celebration and Reception. That evening, a crowd of 100 friends and supporters heard Domenico Sestito, representing the Hull Board of Selectmen, proclaim Aug. 9 "Manet Community Health Center Day" in Hull.

At the event, Henry N. Tuttle, Manet's CEO, shared details about the upcoming expansions in Hull and North Quincy. However, he cautioned that the "recent windfall" of federal dollars is restricted to capital renovation projects; it can't be used to support the health center's operating budget.

He noted that a recent study published in the American Journal of Preventive Medicine found that community health centers like Manet perform equal to or better than their counterparts in private practice in the four categories measured. In addition, health centers provide local economic stimulus. Manet will generate $22.6 million in overall economic impact for South Shore communities this year.

"During National Community Health Center Week, and all year long, we're powering healthier communities in multiple ways," said Tuttle, "but first comes our patients' health. For them, we are only limited by our imaginations what we can accomplish on their behalf."

The City of Quincy also acclaimed its partnership with Manet Community Health Center and officials said they are proud of their efforts in providing accessible, quality health care to local residents.

The City of Quincy, through its Department of Planning and Community Development, has provided funding to complete a myriad of rehabilitation projects at Manet's North Quincy/Montclair, Houghs Neck and Snug Harbor locations since 1997.

The highlight of the department's efforts is the recent completion of a new triage unit at Manet's main building on West Squantum Street.

Over the past 15 years, the city has provided nearly $610,000 in Community Development Block Grants to Manet.

Frances M. Phipps, 71 Retired Hostess

A funeral Mass for Frances M. "Frannie" (Driscoll) Phipps, 71, of Quincy, a retired hostess, will be celebrated today (Thursday) at 10:30 a.m. at St. Agatha's Church, 432 Adams St., Milton.

Mrs. Phipps died Aug. 17.

Born in Boston where she was raised and educated, she lived in Milton until 2005 when she moved to her daughter Tina's home in Quincy.

Before retiring, Mrs. Phipps worked as a hostess at John Scott House and enjoyed travelling with her late husband to his Marine Corps reunions, loved going to Foxwoods and Twin Rivers, game shows and scratch tickets.

The beloved wife of the late Paul C. Phipps, she was the loving mother of Maureen Ackerman and her husband John of Plymouth, Paul Phipps and his wife Karen of Nairobi, Kenya, Linda Phipps and her partner Gill Sullivan of Quincy and Tina Keefe and her husband Jack of Quincy; dear sister of Millie Narus of Tewksbury, Margie Goyette of Halifax and the late John, Joey, Connie, Dickie, William, Helen, Mary, Catherine, and Pat; and is also survived by 11 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Visiting hours were Wednesday from 4 to 8 p.m. at the Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy.

Burial will be in Milton

Looks Forward To New 'Assignment' Robin Moreira New Atherton Hough Principal

By EMILY TAFT
Sept. 5th will not only mark the beginning of a new school year for the students of Atherton Hough Elementary School, but also the beginning of a new role for Robin Moreira, the school's new principal.

Moreira, who was the assistant principal at the school for the past two years, succeeds Dorothy Greene who after 22 years as principal of Atherton Hough retired in June.

"It is big shoes to fill. Dottie definitely left a great legacy here. She was a great mentor to me and she was the first person I called when I heard I got the job. She has done a lot here for the community and the school. For me to kind of continue that and kind of leave my own mark is exciting and a big challenge," said Moreira.

"I am looking forward to the first day. I have a lot of feelings; I am excited, I'm anxious. Come September you always have those feelings of anticipa-

After hearing testimony from more than 17 speakers in opposition and receiving petitions signed by more than 400 citizens against the proposal, the Board of License Commissioners voted 3-2 denying the request of an all alcohol restaurant license to the Titled Kilt restaurant during their second meeting on the matter Tuesday night.

Voting against the license were board members Jay Duca, the city's director of Inspectional Services; Police Chief Paul Keenan and City Clerk Joe Shea, the board's chairman.

Only 2 Contests On Two Ballots

Low Turnout Seen For State Primary

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

With only two contested races – one each on the Democrat and Republican ballots – only about one in 10 registered voters in Quincy are expected to go to the polls for the State Primary next Thursday, Sept. 6.

Because there are only two races, City Clerk Joseph Shea predicts a low turnout of about 10-12 percent of the city's 55,436 registered voters or about 6,000 will head to the polls. The state primary is also being held on a Thursday – just three days after Labor Day – and that may also factor into a low turnout.

But the main reason turnout is expected to be low is voters will decide just two contests.

On the Democratic ballot, there is a two-candidate contest for Governor's Councillor between incumbent Christopher Iannella, Jr. of Boston and Stephen F. Flynn of Hull.

On the Republican ballot, there is a two-candidate contest for Congress in the new 8th District between two political newcomers: Joe Selvaggi of Boston and Matias Temperley of Penn Street, Quincy.

Traffic, Security Concerns Aired At Marina Bay Meeting

By EMILY TAFT

Over 100 residents of Marina Bay packed the cafeteria of 500 Victory Rd. Aug. 22nd to hear plans for a proposed upscale apartment development at the site of the Ocean Club.

About two dozen speakers expressed concerns over parking and traffic with the plan as proponents for the development promised an extensive and thorough public process for the development that would command some of the highest rents in the city.

"This meeting is the first of what is going to be a very extensive and thorough public process," said Bryan Connolly, the attorney for Flagship Marina, the company that has proposed the project. "We have been very careful to make a proposal that stays within the envelope of zoning rights this property has. We will not be seeking any variances whatsoever."

The developers, Flagship Marina Bay and Redgate Real Estate Advisors, spoke to residents about their plans to replace the 62,000 square-foot Ocean Club along with some boat-storage warehouses with two buildings that will house 464 units along with some retail space.

Under the proposed development, units will be built to condominium quality, six stories high, with 1.5

parking spaces per residential unit in an underground parking facility for residents, along with 123 additional parking spaces near the retail part of the project.

Phase one of the proposed projects would take place at the site of the Ocean Club and would be an E-shaped building that would house 257 units. Phase two would house 207 units and would be in what are now the warehouses for boat storage.

"We are going to try and achieve the highest rents in Quincy. For a new product like this, that looks like this, and the materials that we are using, we need to get that high rent," said Kyle Warwick, a principal at Redgate Real Estate Advisors. "The average rent in Quincy, and in and around Marina Bay, is approximately $2.09 a square foot per month, some are lower, some are higher in the range of $2.20 potentially. We need to push it to $2.50 a square foot per month. For a studio, the smallest unit, it's $1600 a month. To get to a feasible project, to get activation, to liven the rest of the boardwalk, that's what we are going to try and attract. The average square footage per unit is 920 square feet, which is a little under a two bedroom."

Marina Bay who spoke at the meeting raised concerns about parking, security and traffic if the apartments are built.

"We think it is a little worth noting that our nightclub use will be discontinued, and I know it's not the more popular use," said Connolly. "That was part of what really made the peak traffic the worse. So we think that on some of the weekend peak one of the major contributors is going to go away."

Warwick said that overall the traffic would remain at the same levels for many areas, and in others increase by only three percent.

"All internal intersections

In Disappearance Of North Quincy Woman Public Appeal Helps Authorities Identify Persons Of Interest

By SCOTT JACKSON

A public appeal by Norfolk County Dist. Atty. Michael Morrissey for information on a North Quincy woman's disappearance last year has resulted in authorities identifying several persons of interest.

Two weeks ago, Morrissey appeared on Fox 25's "New England Unsolved" segment to discuss the disappearance of Evelin Valibayova. In addition, billboards with her picture and description were put up in Quincy, Weymouth, and Mattapan. Authorities also set up an anonymous tip line, and Morrissey told The Sun investigators are following up on leads from the line.

"We've had some calls and we're following up on a couple of suggestions," Morrissey said. "There were some good leads, we've identified some persons of interest."

Valibayova was 23 when she disappeared on July 17, 2011. Morrissey said last week that the 5'7, 115-pound Valibayova was the victim of foul play at her Hodges Avenue apartment that night. Since then, she has not contacted family members or friends, accessed her bank account, or used social media.

"In the course of this investigation we have developed evidence that leads us to believe that she was met with foul play in her Hodges Avenue apartment," Morrissey said.

Security footage from the MBTA showed Valibayova exiting the North Quincy station on July 16, 2011. Authorities learned that she arrived at her apartment a short time later and communicated with a friend in another state.

Valibayova, a native of Azerbaijan, was supposed to have a Skype chat with her mother on July 17, but didn't. Some of her belongings, including a brown shoulder bag, wallet, cell phone, and an MBTA Charlie Card were later found in the Dorchester/Mattapan area.

The billboards will remain up for about a month. Anyone with information on Valibayova is urged to call the tip line at 617-593-8840.

Quincy Woman Not Presently Competent For Trial

The Quincy woman under indictment for the 2009 murder of her daughter and manslaughter of her unborn son was deemed not presently competent to stand trial following a hearing in Norfolk Superior Court Aug. 24.

Judge Raymond P. Veary heard testimony from a clinician from Worcester State Hospital, where Fan Chi-Xue, now age 41, is presently committed. Judge Veary stayed the matter pending her regaining competency, Norfolk District Attorney Michael W. Morrissey said after the hearing.

Fang Chi-Xue has been hospitalized, first for physical injuries and subsequently for evaluation and treatment, since being found unresponsive and bleeding from a slashed wrist in her Woodbine Street, Quincy, apartment about 10:30 p.m. on April 16, 2009. Her 9-year-old daughter, Wen Xue, was found dead in bed beside her, allegedly strangled and with her wrist also cut, DA Morrissey said.

BILLBOARD URGING the public for information into the disappearance of Evelin Valibayova. The 24-year-old who lived in an apartment on Hodges Avenue in North Quincy has not been seen since July 17, 2011. The appeal to the public for information has led to authorities identifying several persons on interest, Norfolk County Dist. Atty. Michael Morrissey told The Sun.

An autopsy revealed that the defendant was 8 months pregnant with a son; the basis for the manslaughter indictment is the medical opinion that the boy was viable and that the mother's alleged self-inflicted wounds caused his death.

Fang Chi-Xue was returned to Worcester State Hospital following the hearing, where she remains committed under Chapter 123 Sec. 16 (c).

The law allows for the involuntary commitment of pre-trial defendants who are not competent to stand trial. Those commitments are a year at a time under paragraph c. Fang Chi-Xue's commitment comes up for renewal in March 2013, a spokesperson for the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office said.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On Sept. 9, 1776, the Continental Congress formally declares the name of the new nation to be the "United States" of America. It replaced the term "United Colonies," which had been in general use.
- On Sept. 3, 1783, the American Revolution officially comes to an end when representatives of the United States, Great Britain, Spain and France sign the Treaty of Paris. The signing signified America's status as a free nation, as Britain formally recognized the independence of its 13 former American colonies.
- On Sept. 7, 1936, Charles Harden Holley is born in Lubbock, Texas. Writing and performing under the name Buddy Holly, he would have an influence on rock 'n' roll that would far outlast his tragically shortened career. He left behind a legacy that includes "That'll Be The Day," "Peggy Sue," "Not Fade Away," "It's So Easy," "Everyday," "Oh Boy!" and "Maybe Baby."
- On Sept. 6, 1943, a new high-speed train traveling between New York City and Washington, D.C., derails, killing 79 people and seriously injuring 100 more. The Congressional Limited traveled at an unprecedented speed of 65 mph.
- On Sept. 4, 1957, Ford Motor Company unveils the Edsel, the first new automobile brand produced by one of the Big Three car companies since 1938. One reporter called it "an Oldsmobile sucking a lemon." In addition, at highway speeds the famous hood ornament had a tendency to fly off and into the windshield.
- On Sept. 5, 1972, during the 1972 Summer Olympics at Munich, Germany, a group of Palestinian terrorists storms the Olympic Village apartment of the Israeli athletes, killing two and taking nine others hostage. The terrorists were part of a group known as Black September.
- On Sept. 8, 1986, "The Oprah Winfrey Show" is broadcast nationally for the first time. It went on to become the highest-rated talk show in TV history. By 2008, "The Oprah Winfrey Show" had an estimated weekly audience of some 46 million viewers in the United States and was broadcast around the world in 134 countries.

Montclair School Milestone

Public schools will open next week in Quincy but for one local elementary school, this academic year will be something special.

The Montclair Elementary School is marking a significant and historic milestone: its 100th anniversary. A centennial celebration is scheduled Saturday, Oct. 20 from 1 to 3 p.m. at the school that has stood at 8 Belmont St. since first opening its doors in 1912.

The celebration will feature dedications, guest speakers, a musical performance and offer a trip down memory lane as classrooms showcase a myriad of school artifacts arranged by decades representing the last 100 years.

It will also be an "open house" welcoming past and present teachers, administrators, students and parents and other school "alumni" who can reminisce and share memories from their Montclair years.

The milestone is also an opportunity to celebrate 100 years of educational excellence and the Montclair School community "and that all goes with that," says Scott Perfetuo, a member of the Centennial Celebration Committee who taught at the Montclair School for 10 years before beginning a new teaching assignment at the Parker School this fall.

"The Montclair School, like other schools in Quincy, has always been a great community school. We want to celebrate all the students, parents and educators who have been a part of the Montclair School for 100 years.

"We're looking forward to it and it should be a great day. People are very excited about it. Everyone's welcome and we hope to see as many people who can make it attend," Perfetuo added.

The celebration is still in the planning stages but the pieces are falling into place for an historic and memorable occasion Oct. 20.

A "cross-section" of the school community including Montclair administrators, teachers and parents as well as retired school staff are organizing the celebration. The committee is seeking donations of Montclair memorabilia such as pictures, yearbooks and class lists. These artifacts will be arranged in classrooms highlighting the 10 decades from the past 100 years.

During the celebration, visitors will be able to walk through the school, visit the artifacts in the classrooms and essentially step back into school days of the past.

"The plan is to have each of the classrooms represent each of the 10 decades that the school's been open with a history of what was happening at that time," Perfetuo says.

"People will be able to walk through the building and see each classroom and all those different things. Then we'll come together and there will be a slide show. We're hoping to get pictures from people.

"Any old photos, anything that they send to us, we'll get them back to them.

Anyone who has Montclair artifacts to loan for the celebration should contact the school at 617-984-8708, email Principal Renee Malvesti at rmalvesti@quincy.k12.ma.us or stop by the school at 8 Belmont St. All materials will be returned and should be labeled with the owner's name and address.

The centennial celebration will also feature a musical show performed by the fifth grade class and the dedication of new brick walkway in the front of the school. The walkway will be comprised of engraved bricks that were sold to teachers and students' families. Bricks will be placed around the front walkway as a permanent reminder of Montclair's Centennial.

The Montclair School - one of the oldest standing school buildings in Quincy - has an interesting past.

According to the Quincy and Massachusetts Historical Societies, the Montclair School was constructed in 1912 at a cost of $42,000. The new school was built to relieve overcrowding at the Wollaston School on Beale Street and to avoid having children in the Montclair neighborhood make the long walk to the Quincy School in the Atlantic neighborhood.

The Montclair School was designed by architect James E. McLaughlin and built by Dennis F. Crowley, a popular Quincy builder in the day. McLaughlin was also the architect for the Thomas Pollard School that was built in 1919 at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Southern Artery. The school closed in 1982 and the building was demolished after a fire in 1985.

McLaughlin also help design the Quincy Armory Building at 100 Hancock Street.

An addition to the Montclair School was put on in 1930 by another prominent Quincy architect, William Chapman. Chapman also designed Quincy Point Junior High School on Edwards Street and the Merry-mount School on Agawam Street.

The Montclair once had a "sister school" but she is no longer standing. The old St. John's School, built in 1909, shared a strong resemblance with the Montclair School. Like the St. John's School, Montclair features brick facades, flat cornice (molding) and floors separated by raised brick panels with recessed centers.

When it opened, the Montclair School had only eight classrooms and taught students through grade 8. The school underwent two additions, one around 1930 and the other in 1950 - to accommodate a growing school population. Today, the school educates about 400 students kindergarten through grade five.

The building is more than just bricks, wood and glass. It's a special bond that has formed among the hundreds of teachers and thousands of students - including generations of the same family - who have walked the school's halls throughout its 100 years.

"There have been generations of families that have gone through this school," Perfetuo says. "Some families go back three or four generations."

He recalled meeting a group of ladies last year who had attended the Montclair School back in the late 1940s and early 1950s. They are scattered throughout the country but remain close friends.

"They live all over the country but they get together once in a while and they came back last fall to visit the school. They walked around and visited their old classrooms and saw the building.

"It was incredible to see how excited they were to be back in the building and all of the memories they had. One of them told me they didn't have secretaries back then - the students would answer the phones."

Of the five ladies, two of them were sisters. They have remained close friends after all these years.

"I told them about the centennial and they are all planning to attend," Perfetuo says.

Oct. 20 should be a great day for the Montclair School community.
